7,000 Prison Guards Off Jobs - in - Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal prisons were in mourned today the shooting of their Montreal fellow that Gaston Gosselin, as soldiers, Mounties and supervisory personnel took over guard duty in the prisons.

There were no reports of unrest at the 49 prisons. Most of the 8,000 prisoners were locked in cells for the day as a result of the guards' walkout, which began at midnight.

In British Columbia, Tuesday night's shift of guards remained on duty on overtime to familiarize the RCMP and the army with the prisons there. The midnight shift of guards did not show up.

"The national day of mourning" is largely a protest against the refusal by federal Solicitor-General Warren Allmand to commit the government to the death penalty for killers of prison employees and police, except where juries recommend clemency.

Funeral services were held today for Gosselin, shot last Friday while escorting a prisoner to hospital, at Ste. Therese, Que.

The guards last week demanded the return of the death penalty for the slaying of prison employees or policemen on duty, warning that if it was not returned they would withdraw services for a 24-hour period.

The law calls for the death penalty when prison employees or policemen are killed on duty, but the federal cabinet has commuted all death sentences since 1961.

The 7,000 guards involved are members of the solicitor-general's component, Public Service Alliance of Canada, and President Bill Cameche said in Montreal Tuesday that only 75 to 100 of them would remain on duty to preserve essential services.

These employees, he said, would supply services such as heating and stationary engineering services only.

The 2,000 military and 1,250 RCMP personnel called in to replace guards for the day would look after maintaining order in the establishments. The military have established perimeter patrols with the RCMP "available for assignment by military officials."

Prisoners were to be locked in their cells for the day; all outside routines were cancelled as were visits by friends and relatives. There are 8,000 prisoners in the federal prisons.

One army official said it was hoped the military and police would have as little direct contact with the prisoners as possible.

At the same time, the guards have drawn considerable sympathy.

Even Mr. Allmand, in rejecting their demands, said last week his resolve on the matter of capital punishment was weakened by their arguments.

He acknowledged that they have one of the most difficult and dangerous jobs in the public service, but still could not accept that taking life by execution would serve to prevent taking life by murder.

There now are eight persons under sentence of death in federal prisons, seven of them for having killed either a prison employee or a policeman on duty.

The first guards not to report for the overnight shift were those at Dorchester, N.B., where they were replaced at 11 p.m. Tuesday by 150 military and police personnel.

After that, the replacements took place across the country as the midnight shifts failed to make their appearances.

The guards also drew support from the Alberta RCMP detachment where S. Sgt. Frank Dyck, provincial staff relations officer, said in Edmonton:

"It is not as if the guards are striking for extra pay or fringe benefits. They are striking, as I understand it, at least, for the preservation of life, and that life may be their own."

Sgt. Dyck also said he was unable to confirm some reports that RCMP officers would not move into the prisons today. He said while prison guards can strike, RCMP are forbidden by law to strike.

He added, though: "Most of the RCMP members in this province support the views of the prison guards in respect to capital punishment, not only as it relates to murder of policemen and prison guards, but in all premeditated murder."

Other support in Alberta came from 850 provincial guards, social workers and parole officers who planned a study session while provincial guards in Newfoundland also left their jobs at midnight. Administrative staff took their places.

Clowning Around?

Al Zabas

No, the clowns weren't clowning around at one point during Canada Day festivities at Centennial Park, Trenton. Cheryl Collins (left) was nearly in tears and had to get help from Sue Patrick to get a fleck of make-up from her eye. The clowns were among twelve the Trenton recreation department provided during the day-long event Tuesday.

News Briefs

Vinyl Chloride Ban Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — A public interest health group urged the U.S. Food and Drug Administration Tuesday to impose a ban against use of vinyl chloride in plastic food packaging. The Health Research Group, established by Ralph Nader, said significant amounts of the potentially cancer-causing vinyl chloride can seep from food containers into meats, vegetable oils and other products.

Seniority Rule Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The seniority system and the rule that the last hired is the first fired are among the prime topics at the annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The AFL-CIO favors the seniority system. But some NAACP delegates argue that following seniority patterns would lead to a massive layoff of minorities, often the most recently hired company employees.

Wage Ceiling Opposed

LONDON (AP) — Union leaders and left wing Labor party legislators today attacked Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey's threat to put a 10 per cent ceiling on wage increases in an attempt to check Britain's economic slide and a 25 per cent rate in inflation.

Miss Canada Chosen

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Normande Jacques, 21, of Blind River, Ont., was chosen Miss Dominion of Canada over 12 other contestants Tuesday.

U.S. Gas Price Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States consumers were told Tuesday they would probably end up paying for a new round of gasoline price increase and that more of the same is expected this summer. Eight major oil companies announced increases of as much as three cents a gallon in the wholesale price of all grades of gasoline, effective either Tuesday or today, and dealers expect to pass the increase along to consumers.

Tapes LBJ's Suggestion

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon, in an affidavit in connection with his attempt to obtain tapes and documents left behind when he resigned as U.S. president, says his predecessor, Lyndon Johnson, urged him to install the automatic taping system that ultimately contributed to his resignation from office.

Slain Man Said Hired By RCMP

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto secretary who was a friend of a man killed four days after he took part in an abortive attempt to trap a prominent underworld figure, says her friend was hired by the RCMP to capture the man.

The woman said in an interview that William Browne, 41, top lieutenant to the man who controls theft and drug smuggling activities at Montreal International Airport, was recruited as an informant by RCMP last year in their attempt to trap his boss.

She said the trap, which involved two RCMP officers following the man and her friend to Spain, failed when a drug purchase was cancelled.

Mr. Browne was shot to death in Montreal as he was getting out of his car in front of his apartment last Aug. 29, four days after his return to Canada. No one has been charged in the slaying.

The woman said she accompanied Mr. Browne, his boss and another woman to Spain.

Year's Toll of Guards Equals 25-year Figure

OTTAWA (CP) — As many federal prison employees have been killed on duty in the last 12 months as in the previous 25 years.

Prison guards say they fear a trend is developing and want more protection against prisoners, who they say enjoy more freedom of movement than ever before.

Fourteen prisoners have been murdered by other prisoners since 1959, two of them this year.

Until last year when carpentry foreman Stanley Green was beaten to death at Stony Mountain, a maximum-security penitentiary in Manitoba, the killing of prison employees was rare.

One prison employee was killed in 1963 and one in 1961. Before that, the last previous killing had been in 1949.

Conditions were different then, a veteran penal officer said Monday. "It was so strict then."

Fighting In Beirut Dies Down

BEIRUT (AP) — Street fighting in Beirut between religious and political factions tapered off early today, and the Lebanese began returning to work through streets strewn with war debris and rotting garbage.

The police reported more than 250 killed and 1,000 wounded in eight days of guerrilla warfare between left-wing Moslem Palestinians and Lebanese and right-wing Christian Lebanese.

Government security forces patrolled the city in jeeps and armored cars and cleared the private armies and armed gangs to remove roadblocks.

Bike Violations Difficult to Curb

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie has a possible solution for the problem of clamping down on youngsters who violate both the Highway Traffic Act and Municipal law by the manner in which they ride their bicycles — charge the parents.

"Maybe that might be one way around it. I don't know," he said in an interview following his return from the annual conference of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police (OACP) held last week in Kitchener.

Chief Crosbie said OACP discussed the increasing number of incidents and injuries involving bicycles but deferred the issue until the Canadian Standards Association publishes its standards for a safe bicycle.

During a recent meeting of the Belleville Police Commission, he commented on the "atrocious habits" of young bicycle riders in Belleville and noted family court would be jammed if all offenders were charged.

In the interview, Chief Crosbie remarked, "with jurisdiction, the only way to take them to court is to go to juvenile court if they are juvenile delinquents. But you can't tag a kid for going the wrong way on Campbell St."

Hussars on Guard At Warkworth

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

WARKWORTH — About 80 men from the Eighth Canadian Hussars from CFB Petawawa and approximately 40 RCMP officers moved into positions at Warkworth Medium Security Institute here without incident in the wake of a nationwide, one-day walkout by prison guards at midnight last night.

About 150 security staff are off duty today.

An armed forces information officer in Kingston said today the armed forces and RCMP took over the 24-hour duty at Warkworth.

CFB Petawawa troops arrived at the prison late Tuesday and took up positions in watch towers and around the prison at midnight. They are armed with FN rifles.

A spokesman said a RCMP officer said unarmed RCMP officers are now patrolling inside the prison.

About 200 officers and 400 military personnel now staff the five federal prisons in Ontario. Four prisons are in the Kingston area.

A prison spokesman said there about a dozen regular administrative and managerial staff are on duty today.

Involvement by CFB Trenton in the movement of troops to federal prisons in Canada was minimal according to a base spokesman Tuesday.

He said a 436 Squadron Hercules flew to Calgary Tuesday to move an unknown number of troops to a prison in Prince Albert, Sask. The troops are members of the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry.

Mobutu Convinces Amin To Spare Life of Briton

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Uganda radio indicated today that British teacher Denis Hills, although spared from a firing squad, still is in detention and will only go free if the British government negotiates with the president of Zaire for his release.

Ugandan President Idi Amin announced Tuesday he had told Zaire on Tuesday that he was going to pardon Hills, who had been sentenced to death for calling Amin a village tyrant in an unpublished manuscript.

Amin said President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire had convinced him he should grant clemency.

He also said he was referring all issues between Uganda and Britain to Mobutu for mediation, and Uganda radio said today Amin's regime wants the release of Hills. it must do it through Mobutu."

Multi-level Parking Facility Forecast for Pinnacle Street

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville parking authority chairman Kay Manderville says a multi-level municipal parking facility on Pinnacle St. should be under consideration within two years.

During an interview with The Intelligencer, Mrs. Manderville said her board is looking at two methods of accomplishing the project.

"We are primarily looking for a developer who is willing to invest in the construction of a parking and commercial complex . . ." said Mrs. Manderville. "If this idea fails and a developer cannot be found, we intend proposing the city and the downtown business association jointly sponsor the project and assume responsibility for any deficits it incurs."

This fall the parking authority intends taking a parking survey of the downtown core to determine what the present and future parking needs are in the area.

"Though it's only a projection, we hope to be going to council in the way or another in January or February," said the authority chairman.

The developer scheme "is more attractive" than the local alternative, said Mrs. Manderville. "We have prime downtown land to offer. We'd probably rent it at a minimal rate."

If we can't find a developer outside, we'll have to look to our own community," she said.

"We're not going to wait forever," she said.

She said, one way or another, the project will mean demolition of the existing city recreation building on Pinnacle and if a developer is found, the Pinnacle Playhouse building will also likely fall.

"We're looking for a major facility to be under construction within two years . . . probably starting off with 300 spaces and then adding as the need arises," she said.

The staff plans are still a little vague but that more information will be available in the fall.

If council and the downtown business association go together on the parking facility, a local improvement tax would be levied from the downtown area to help meet the parking area's operating deficit.

He Is Not to Blame

The owner of a self-service gas station on Mt. Pleasant Rd. in [illegible] placed this sign on his pump to ensure that his customers blamed the right source for the new high gas price. Gas has risen 10 cents a gallon since Finance Minister John Turner imposed a 10-cent tax in the June 23 federal budget.

Chief Doesn't Expect Strike by Policemen

Chief Douglas Crosbie of Belleville Police Department says he agrees with a Toronto police official's statement that Ontario police will not follow the lead of Quebec police who say they might begin illegal work stoppages to press demands that the death penalty for murder be enforced.

He was answered by Syd Brown, president of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association, who noted it is unlikely stario policemen will followsuit.

Fire Guts Truck, Bus

FOXBORO — Thurlow Township Volunteer Fire Department responded to two vehicle fires in the Foxboro area Monday.

The first call was to a fire in a party-dismantled school bus at County Bus Service at 310 Main St. in this village at about 10.30 a.m.

Fire Capt. Bob Pearce said today the bus was gutted in the blaze which is believed to be caused by children playing with matches.

A mid-con model half-ton truck was destroyed on Highway 62 just north of here at about 2.30 p.m.

Capt. Pearce said the driver, Clarence Millings of Brighton, was driving when he noticed fire in the back. He pulled the truck over to the side of the road but was unsuccessful in attempting to quell the blaze with a brown.

Parkland Debated

Sidney Township's parks committee approached council last night looking for more say in parkland acquisition and clearer terms of reference of what the committee's responsibilities are.

Committee chairman Wayne Brooks said some of the land that has been deeded to the municipality by developers is not suitable for park development.

"We think the park committee should be involved in subdivision talks and land acquisition before the deal between council and the builder is signed," said Mr. Brooks.

Under present provincial legislation, a developer must deed five per cent of his subdivision to the affected municipality for the purpose of park construction. If the municipality feels a park is not needed the developer may pay cash in lieu of parkland.

No decision was reached at the meeting.

Vandals Busy

Vandals were active at a playground near Sir John A. MacDonald Elementary School sometime Monday night or Tuesday morning, strewing recreation equipment over a large area, city police said today.

A spokesman said a playground storage locker was forced open and the equipment scattered around the north end of the school property. None of the items, which included baseball equipment, was stolen.

Two Hurt In Crash

BRIGHTON — A Tyconto man was admitted to Trenton hospital Tuesday after a two-car collision on Ontario St. here demolished his car.

Brighton provincial police say the Temmel vehicle was southbound on Ontario St. when it came in collision with a stationary vehicle occupied by Ronald Ferguson, 44, of 120 Yeoman St., Belleville.

Nearby, another camper has his car tape deck at a distorted level and is subsequently asked to turn it down. Along the lakeshore two young kids are strolling and they are reminded that the beach is closed after 10:00 p.m.

"And so it goes around the clock at Outlet Park. Mr. Ives is in charge of law enforcement at Outlet Park, and says Robert Davison, park superintendent, the program is "going very well this year".

Mr. Davison said that Outlet Park is no worse than any other similar park for rowdyism, but that a number of local newspapers are "encouraging bad element by using sensationalistic headlines in their stories."

Apartment Robbed

City police are investigating the theft of $195 in cash and a portable radio and an automatic camera valued together at $129 from an apartment at 46 Alexander St., Tuesday afternoon.

Police said the resident, W. S. Meager, reported the theft at 4:15 p.m. There was no sign of forceable entry to the apartment.

Crosbie Says Proposed Legislation Will Help Cut Moped Mishaps

Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie says he welcomes new provincial legislation controlling motor-assisted bicycles (mopeds) but adds he feels there was an easier way to classify them.

A bill amending the Highway Traffic Act to impose additional controls on mopeds was introduced in the legislature last week by John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications.

Chief Crosbie was chairman of the resolutions committee during the annual conference of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police (OACP) in Kitchener last week at which he was elected second vice-president of the OACP executive.

"We (committee) felt the easiest way to tidy up the act was to classify them as motorcycles," he said in an interview. "We recommended they be dealt with the same as motorcycles."

However, Chief Crosbie commented, "it (legislation) has gone a good distance to remove some of my objections." He noted his committee's demand that helmets be made standard equipment was omitted from the legislation.

He pointed out there has been one moped accident out of several so far this year in Belleville in which the rider suffered a minor head injury.

The act amendment would class as motor-assisted bicycles only vehicles weighing 120 pounds or less and without hand and foot-operated clutch or gear controls.

Dealers will be required to certify upon the sale of a moped that it is a motor-assisted bicycle within the definition.

Moped drivers will be required to hold a licence and pay a nominal registration fee. The demerit point system and licence suspensions will apply.

"Legislation enacted in February this year created a new class of vehicle known as a motor-assisted bicycle and permitted their operation by persons 14 years of age and over," Mr. Rhodes explained.

"The reaction of the public, safety organizations, police forces and municipal councils to this legislation has been unfavorable and in view of this reaction and our opportunity to examine the experience in the sale and operation of these vehicles over the last few months, it has been determined that further control is required."

All moped operators will require insurance and must be at least 16 years of age when the new regulations receive assent, Mr. Rhodes said.

Municipalities will be given power under terms of the bill to prohibit mopeds on portions of highways where the maximum speed limit is 50 miles an hour or more.

Student Administrator Joins Hospital Staff

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Belleville General Hospital (BGH) has the first administrative resident in its history in the person of Murray Ramsden, a 24-year-old undergraduate of Wilfred Laurier University now midway through a hospital administration program at the University of Toronto.

Mr. Ramsden, who assumed his duties June 2, will be at BGH for one year as his university program takes him into the field for the final stretch.

During a recent interview with The Intelligencer, Mr. Ramsden said the initial part of his stay in rotation among the various BGH departments to acquaint himself with operations and complete assignments.

He said he will be "assuming more duties" with experience along the line of "chairing committees and that sort of thing as things get going" while answering directly to Philip Bickard, BGH executive director.

Mr. Ramsden remarked the reason he chose BGH "is the fact that it is a community hospital, has a wide range of services and the staff is very co-operative as far as teaching goes."

One of Mr. Ramsden's tasks will be to write a thesis next year but he has not chosen a specific subject. "It will be something to do with the hospital though . . . related to Belleville specifically."

On every second Friday beginning Sept. 12, he will have to commute between BGH and the university combining both classes and hospital duties.

Mr. Ramsden said he receives a stipend from BGH to finance his stay here and the provincial ministry of health will re-imburse the hospital.

However, he noted the stipend will not exist next year as the program will fall under the provincial ministry of colleges and universities and those on field trips will require student loans.

He said the present course involves eight months academic instruction at the university and 12 months in the field but this will likely change to two years academic and four months in the field between each year.

Centre Suggested

A centre for physically-handicapped children in this city could be a reality in the near future, the report of the Belleville General Hospital (BGH) medical director to the BGH Board of Governors Friday indicates. Dr. Reg Anderson said, "an attempt is now under way to obtain a census of all physically-handicapped children in the area which would be served by a centre located in Belleville. Every possible source of information is being explored."

Resident Gets Busy

Murray Ramsden of Toronto finds his duties increasing as he familiarizes himself in his job of administrative resident at Belleville General Hospital (BGH). Mr. Ramsden, on field assignment as a requirement of his University of Toronto hospital administration program, is the first such resident BGH has ever had.

Question:
What is AM SUPPRESSION?
Answer:
AM in this context has nothing to do with AM broadcasting. AM here means the (amplitude modulated) noise signals emanating from fluorescent lamps, motors, automobile ignitions etc. which unless suppressed, cause that notorious irritating crackle during FM reception. AM suppression is expressed in dB higher values are better, 40 dB is about minimum.

Russia In Re-play of Old Naval Control of the Mediterranean

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Has the Mediterranean Sea become the strategic ocean centre it was in the years before the Second World War or long ago in the Napoleonic era? During the last year it was rudely called "the under-belly of Europe" by Allied military policy planners. Their inference was that Hitler's Europe could more easily be penetrated through Italy or the Balkans than via the direct assault across the Rhine and East Prussia.

Anyone who took part in the slow and bloody Italian campaign of 1943-44 knows how terribly wrong that assessment turned out to be.

Indeed the First World War produced the same kind of disastrous thinking, that a major attack on the crumbling Turkish empire, an ally of Imperial Germany in 1915, would bring about Germany's downfall sooner than direct assault on that country.

When it was attempted in the abortive of the Dardanelles campaign, British and Imperial troops from New Zealand and Australia were driven off the beaches by the Turks, their transports and even supporting battleships sunk by marauding German submarines.

Prior to the Second World War, the British with a fleet reduced to dangerous minimums of warships and cruisers by inter-war disarmament treaties, worried about the growing naval power of Mussolini's Fascist Italy.

During the 1930s, the Duce had created a modern fleet of very fast cruisers, among the fastest ever built in fact, to roam throughout the Mediterranean from Italy's many naval bases in her African and Aegean colonies.

But it all turned to ashes when Mussolini went to war and mis-used a fleet of great potential danger to Britain with her 40s and 50s to a ship and weapon party with the U.S. Sixth Fleet there.

And though Russia is physically outside of the region, she has many ideological allies and more coming from the look of events in Portugal, Italy and perhaps Spain.

At present Egypt offers Russia bases with that country's tiny navy an appendage of the large Soviet fleet, as well as Algeria and Libya.

In key NATO countries in the region, Italy, Turkey, Greece and even Portugal on its fringe, political developments are making these countries into uncertain members of NATO.

Local election victories for the Italian Communist party have given it the greatest strength in that country since it shared Allied power in 1943. And Italy is NATO's naval centre for the Mediterranean.

Portugal is not a Mediterranean state per se. But mounting political opposition there to that country's strong NATO naval connection, definitely affects events in the entire region.

Greece has not gone Communist. But the basically conservative and pro-U.S. Karamanlis government has had to accept left-wing pressures to reduce the traditional use of Greek ports for ships and men of the American Sixth Fleet.

Y's 'Outreach' Program

The Outreach program of the Y in Belleville, although not without its difficulties, has completed a successful season with hopes that it will be continued.

A report by one of the program's supervisors, Peter Fleming, makes it clear that more volunteers will be necessary if certain aspects of the program are to go forward.

Nevertheless, the report indicates that much has been accomplished in the way of providing wholesome and creative activity for youngsters who might otherwise find themselves in aimless situations that could lead to mischief.

Operating at Quinte secondary school, four public schools and at the Y, the government-funded (Local Initiatives Program grant) program afforded instructional evenings for boys and girls aged 12 to 16.

An extract from Mr. Fleming's report tells some of the story of Outreach. "The purpose of the program is to teach sportsmanship, to be a good loser and a gracious winner. In this day and age of supposedly 'nothing to do' the Y, through this program, is endeavoring to offer a healthful, wholesome evening of fun for boys and girls who for some reason or other are not members of any sports and recreational program.

"There is no charge to participants and we were successful in having a registration of over 500 youngsters. A shortage of volunteer leaders, paid supervisors, forced us to restrict the program to youngsters in Grades 7 and 8. Attendance averaged from 18 to 40 youngsters during the winter months but dropped off in the spring.

Besides Mr. Fleming, who is stepping down from the job, supervisors included Pam Barrett and Bill Winter, with Jack Frame as co-ordinator. Mr. Frame acknowledged the assistance of Hastings county board of education, Peter Ramsay of the Cheshire Home, Carl and Ralph Boomhower, teachers of trampoline, tumbling and gymnastics, and Y executive secretary director Di Diamantides and his staff.

Such a program deserves to succeed. It also deserves greater public support, as well as people willing to volunteer their help, if it is to be of even wider service.

Slowdown For The Turnerville Trolley

Government Evolution

Will the months and years ahead and the natural processes of municipal evolution uphold Tweed reeve Barbara Allen in her view that the existing local and county government is adequate?

Are ratepayers, as she suggests, "being well and economically served by our existing programs."

Reeve Allen may be right in her contention that local government is "streamlined" enough, with many municipalities making use of sophisticated technology, and that to embrace regionalism would mean increased bureaucracy.

The question is, to what extent will provincial governments of the future leave local administrations to their own devices? The issue is already creeping into pre-election talk and it's something the Davis government will have to face in the main election dialogue when it comes.

What future governments might pose, in the name of progress, was expressed at County Council by Bancroft Reeve Russell Hanley, when he said some councillors fear if "they don't do something they are going to be told to do something."

Reeve Allen though is not one to be stampeded, or into being turned from her own course, and in the end Council expressed confidence in her municipal reform committee. In the long run though it may mean she has won a battle only to have lost the war. The shadow of regionalism may loom larger as time passes.

Summer, Vacations, Home and School

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

At the end of June, school holiday time stretches ahead as long as may last almost forever. It's a time of leisure for some, although often the joy wears off and all that free time gets a bit monotonous.

Although it is not easy to be sure at this distance of time, it does seem probable that the original idea of closing the schools for eight more than two months in summer was to allow the pupils to help their parents on the farms. Farming was the usual occupation in those days.

There was no real holiday then because all but the youngest children had work to do in the fields, or in the garden or around the home. Summer brought a change but probably the average school pupils had to work harder in summer than over the books in winter time.

Most of the work of harvesting hay comes in early summer, and there was plenty to do in the days when hay was cut, raked, cocked, pitched into a wagon, lifted into the mows with a horse-powered hay fork and spread in the mows by hand. This was so demanding that all available help had to be used to accomplish the task at all. If there were problems, at least the problems of those days were seldom the complaint of having nothing to do.

That's probably a common complaint today in the urban environment, and not an easy problem to solve. Even summer employment for the older students is hard to find. For parents of several small children the question of what to do in summer is a difficult one sometimes.

Some people say the summer holiday custom should be changed; that is debatable, since it would tend to increase the factor of schools in life as opposed to the role of the family, which is already under pressure of modern ways and customs.

Vacation is, in a way, a means of restoring the balance between the influence of the school and the influence of home training. It might be good economy to cut the vacation period, but in the long run some worthwhile values would have to be sacrificed. Our vacation system may have come about largely by accident, but it seems likely to last.

Hidden Expenses Among the Drawbacks of Mobile Homes

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

If there's a bit of the gypsy in your soul, you may have considered a mobile home.

There's something appealing about the concept of taking your home with you when you tire of one place and want to move on to another.

Mobile homes, however, are a big investment—and their upkeep can be a big expense. Living in them involves a whole new set of circumstances that might never have occurred to a person used to a conventional home.

"The consumer must carefully consider his own needs, lifestyle and economic situation before buying a mobile home," suggests a report in the current issue of Canadian Consumer.

"Thorough investigation of benefits and short-comings of mobile homes will avoid later disappointment or frustration."

The federal department of consumer and corporate affairs has received nearly 1,000 complaints during the past three years from mobile-home owners. The Canadian Association of Consumers says it has received "similar feedback."

The most frequent complaints are bad poor construction of mobile homes, and lack of service from manufacturers and dealers.

The "mobile" in mobile homes may be misleading. They are prefabricated, dwellings, meant to be used as permanent homes that can be relocated.

The cost of moving a mobile home by truck or railway flat car is little, about $1 a mile for 12-foot, single-units. It's higher for wider models.

The most popular mobile homes are 12 feet wide and 60 feet long, and sells for around $11,000.

To have more space, many owners prefer a double-width model—two sections, built and transported separately, but joined together on the site.

Then there are extendable mobile homes with sections that telescope or fold into the main unit for transit.

Financed the purchase of a mobile home normally has to be done through a consumer loan, because the homes are not attached to the land.

Under certain conditions, however, Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. will make a mortgage loan on the security of a mobile home.

Mobile homes are becoming a substantial part of the housing market in Canada. They accounted for 13 per cent of all new housing units in January-September, 1974. Their popularity is highest in British Columbia (and to some extent the other three western provinces) and Nova Scotia.

A mobile home, like any other home, has to sit on land.

If you own a serviced lot and there are no local ordinances against the use of mobile homes, you have no problem.

Most mobile homes end up in mobile home parks — which never seem to have enough spaces to meet the demand.

In many cases the parks are owned by mobile-home dealers, and one restriction—among many—might be that you have to buy your mobile home from that dealer if you want to park there.

Site rental fees can vary between $45 and $100 a month, according to the CAC publication. Road maintenance and snow clearing would be included, but taxes and utility services would be extra.

Some tenants of mobile-home parks complain that the rent expense represented in arbitrary regulations—such as the requirement that they buy fuel or even dairy products exclusively from the dealer-owned pointed supplier.

If you can find the right unit and a good place to park, the mobile home can offer the most inexpensive form of modern living—plus, of course, mobility.

It's essential, however, to check construction carefully, to obtain a detailed written warranty, and to know whether you have to pay extra for the essential accessories that are transporting the mobile home to your chosen site.

Cabinet Shuffle Expected

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — With the parliamentary summer recess gradually approaching, and with Energy Minister Donald Macdonald suggesting he may leave the cabinet, the speculative cabinet-makers are beginning to lend a hand to Prime Minister Trudeau as he ponders forthcoming changes.

And although Mr. Macdonald is talking of leaving politics to spend more time with his family, there appears unanimous speculation he will be talked into staying within the cabinet. Mr. Trudeau is known to think highly of his tireless energy minister and is almost certain to offer the 43-year-old bilingual lawyer another portfolio.

The justice department is frequently mentioned as one which would allow Mr. Macdonald to spend most of his time in Ottawa with his family. Another suggestion is that he go to communications, although this would be unlikely until the crucial feud with Quebec over cable television is resolved.

At the moment, Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier, his main rivals pleaded firmly in Quebec, is carrying on the fight with the province. And after Mr. Macdonald has spent the last two years battling with the oil-producing provinces, Mr. Trudeau is not apt to throw him into another confrontation with any province.

If he does move to justice, the common rumor is that Otto Lang would move to transport, while maintaining responsibility for the wheat board. He is known to be interested in this portfolio, which is tied in closely with wheat movements, not to mention long-standing western complaints in the transportation field.

Finance Minister John Turner, after 3½ years in that difficult assignment, is known to be ready for a change, but there is little room for an obvious promotion.

The only more senior portfolio is external affairs and Allan MacEachen, who took on this job only last year, appears likely to remain there for some time.

So one of the suggestions is the Mr. Turner might take an energy. He has established himself as a prodigious worker, he has a good relationship with all the provinces and it would permit him to maintain a high but more comfortable profile.

And there have been other suggestions that Mr. Turner might combine a new portfolio with the thickish task of government house leader.

Privy Council President Michael Sharp is not totally delighted with his job, and some members of the Quebec caucus have expressed displeasure with the way the organization is being handled.

The fluently-bilingual Mr. Turner, like Mr. MacEachen, who was House leader during the last minority Parliament, is considered "a House of Commons man." He enjoys the House and is highly knowledgeable of its rules.

With recent criticism that the finance minister is not a public serve of senior Anglo-Saxon public servants, there is speculation that Health Minister Marc Lalonde could move there. He never has been a France phone finance minister.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand, with his longawaited transport policies in pursued, is being mentioned as a possible minister of state. Officials in the department say Mr. Lalonde has established a top-flight assistant, Gordon Operation, which would make it easier for Jean Marchand, impressive performer in the Commons, who is reported to be having difficulties with William Hamilton, president of Canada Mortgage and Housing Corp. With his salesman-type enthusiasm, Mr. Hamilton is being mentioned as a possible trade minister, a portfolio now held by Alastair Gillespie.

LETTERS

Press and Events in India

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Regarding Alan Harbron's column about India, may I be allowed to comment.

Our foreign correspondents of Press and T.V. often reveal a quite frightening ignorance about Leninist or Communist techniques. These techniques consisting power illicitly can be read by anyone in the Small Handbook for Revolution".

This technique is being used now against Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi of India. It is accompanied by the smear technique of corruption charges.

The techniques were first used last year in the U.S.A. against Richard Nixon with great success. Today, no one can exactly say what Richard Nixon was guilty of: but a massive campaign of smear and innuendo by T.V. and Press forced him from office.

He avoid to allow crypto-communists to infiltrate his government, so he had to go. A government of saints could not have survived so clinically intense and hostile an investigation: for the simple truth is that all human institutions are necessarily imperfect.

An archaic legal system which knows nothing of Communist techniques was adroitly used by Crypto-Communists to destroy Nixon's administration.

An archaic legal system formerly set up in India by the British, is now being used to destroy Indira Gandhi. Law is a unifying force against a Communist attack on a land, country.

It is surely ironic that legal systems developed through the years to defend our liberties should be used as an instrument to enslave and destroy them.

CP News Roundup

Bell Asks 6 Per Cent Rate Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — A 6.5-per cent increase in residential and business telephone rates was proposed Monday as Bell Canada let the second shoe drop in its two stage rate application.

The residential and business rate increases affect primary or main telephone service—untouched in the first-stage application filed late last month. The first-stage proposals included a 6.8-per-cent increase for business and home extension telephones.

The second phase application includes higher rates for such services as long distance, auxiliary services like switchboards and customer-requested change of telephone number.

The second round of increases, filed with the Canadian transport commission, would take effect Oct. 1 and bring in an additional $110 million in 1975.

The telephone company's first-stage increases would come into force Aug. 1 and earn Bell an estimated $80 million more in revenue this year.

The transport commission will hold hearings beginning Thursday on the first stage of the Bell application. No dates have been set for the second-stage hearings.

Export Tax Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Energy Board has put another sizable export tax increase on refined petroleum products, bringing the total increase on the tax on gasoline to $8.75 a barrel in the last month.

The board said Monday that effective today the tax on gasoline and gasoline components is increased to $4.25 a barrel from $2.50. On June 3 the board increased that tax from $1.50.

Suit Filed

NEW YORK (AP) — A $2-million damage suit was filed Tuesday in federal court against Eastern Airlines Inc., charging negligence in the crash of a jetliner that claimed 123 lives.

Bernice Wolff Norman, widow of Dr. William David Norman, and her two children brought the suit, believed to be the first court action arising from the June 24 crash, the worst single-aircraft disaster in United States history.

Galaxy Discovered

BERKELEY, Calif. (Reuter) — A galaxy five to 10 times larger than the Milky Way has been discovered by a University of California scientist. A university spokesman said Monday professor Hyron Spinrad has photographed the galaxy through a 120-inch reflecting telescope at Lick Observatory, about 30 miles south of here. The group of stars is the most distant ever seen from earth—about eight billion light years away.

Assault Charged

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — Louis Cameron, leader of the Ojibway Warrior Society, has been charged with assault causing bodily harm in connection with a street fight outside a hotel last week. Kenora police say Cameron will appear in court July 7 to face the charge. Other persons, not identified, are being sought. Two men were injured in the incident. One man was taken to hospital after suffering a mild concussion, but later was released. The other man had several teeth broken.

The consumer price index rose to 181.3 in May, a rise of 1.5 from the April index of 179.8 Statistics Canada reported June 11, that the largest rise in food prices so far this year, as well as higher housing costs accounted for the increase. (CP Newsmap)

Federal Sales Tax Formula to Change

OTTAWA (CP) — An additional 17,000 businesses will be thrust into the role of federal tax collector under a government proposal to revise the federal system of sales tax.

The proposal includes reduction of the tax to 10 from 12 per cent. Consumers likely won't notice the change because any resulting retail price fluctuations will be minimal. Federal taxes differ from provincial sales taxes paid on retail values.

In a discussion paper released by Finance Minister John Turner with his June 23 budget, the government proposed to apply the sales tax on the wholesaler's selling value rather than on the manufacturer's price as at present.

India Cracks Down On Evaders of Taxes

NEW DELHI (CP) — The Indian government announced a crackdown, Tuesday night on smugglers, tax-evaders and land speculators, who were accused by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of running a parallel economy within the country.

President Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed said the government would be given broad powers to arrest suspected smugglers and seize their property.

He said no reasons would have to be given for the arrests and smugglers' property could be taken even if it was not in their name.

The order followed a national broadcast by Mrs. Gandhi during which she promised severe punishment for smugglers, tax-evaders and land speculators.

The prime minister, who last Thursday declared a state of emergency, said government efforts against smugglers had been thwarted by the release of several of them recently on technical points.

Since the emergency was imposed, several constitutional provisions have been suspended, including the right of citizens to move courts to enforce their fundamental liberties.

Mrs. Gandhi, in her broadcast, promised long-awaited government support to millions of landless peasants, many of whom are forced to work for generations to clear small loans from village landlords.

State governments now are expected to issue orders conferring ownership rights on landless peasants living in landlord's housing and declare a moratorium on the recovery of debts from such people by professional moneylenders.

Mrs. Gandhi has said ceilings on land holdings should be strictly enforced and surplus land given to the landless. She said agricultural labor was among the worst exploited and announced a review of minimum wages.

She also said her government "is seriously trying for better relations with the United States" and hopes President Ford will go ahead with plans for a state visit late this year.

"It is very far from the truth to say that the government of India is anti-American," Mrs. Gandhi told a group of visiting American teachers.

The comments were Mrs. Gandhi's friendliest towards the U.S. since Washington resumed arms shipments to Pakistan in March.

In Washington, the state department protested the expulsion of Washington Post correspondent Lewis Simons, who was ordered out on grounds that he refused to abide by censorship rules imposed last Thursday.

Radio Station Finds Wife of Knife-wielder

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A radio station switchboard operator was released unharmed Monday after being held at knifepoint by a man who said he wanted the station to help him find his wife and baby in North Bay, Ont.

Theodore Charles Soucie, 23, of Rodney, 30 miles west of London, has been charged with forcible seizure in connection with the incident and ordered held in custody until he appears in provincial court Wednesday.

Police said a man wielding a knife forced Bruna Ingrassia, 22, into a small office near the switchboard at CFPL Monday afternoon.

After she was taken into the office, Mrs. Ingrassia telephoned station manager C. B. (Bud) Knight to say the man wanted the station to find his 19-year-old wife and 18-month-old son. The man said his wife left him 10 days ago.

Mr. Knight said in an interview later that he alerted the Ontario Nurses Association, want a 40-per-cent salary increase over two years. They want the starting rate increased to $1,300 from $945 a month. The current maximum for a nurse with seven years' experience is $1,145.

Today's Child

by Helen Allen

JEANETTE, KENNY, MARILYN, GAIL, WAYNE, MARLENE

Here is an opportunity and a challenge for some mother and father — an opportunity for an instant family, a challenge to become instant parents all at once.

These attractive children are brothers and sisters who want to stay that way. Their hope is to be adopted together. When it happens, as I am confident it will, they will be the fourth family of six to be adopted after appearing in Today's Child. And six is not the biggest family. Seven children have been adopted together four times by Today's Child readers.

In some, the family resemblance is strong, in others, not but all have beautiful dark eyes. French Canadian in descent, they are English-speaking — except for Kenny who doesn't talk much. All are in excellent health.

Jeanette as the oldest, feels responsible for the younger ones. She tries to act as mother to them, a duty which Marilyn seeks to share. Bobby girls, especially Jeanette, need the chance to be really children while trusted grown-ups take over the joys and problems of bringing up the family.

Jeanette and Marilyn suffered the most from deprivation in the years before the children came into the care of the Children's Aid Society. Both are behind in school and are considered below average in ability. Jeanette has been working at the grades one and two level, Marilyn at grade one. Each needs special help in math and reading.

Jeanette is a quiet, reserved girl who doesn't express her feelings in words but in deeds. For instance, though reading is difficult for her, she will read to the younger ones for hours. She is learning to swim and ride a bike.

The three older girls have been camping and are eagerly wait to go again. They like the outdoors, especially activities connected with water.

Marilyn is shy and gentle, eager for affection but fearful of seeking it out. She is careful and proud of her clothes and other possessions.

Gail is outgoing and bubbly, an affectionate girl who has no trouble making friends. She is open about her feelings. She is sometimes excitable and can be stubborn but is generally happy and cooperative. Her grade one work this year has been average or above and she is expected to move ahead of her sisters academically as they go on through school.

Wayne is a friendly good-natured fellow who likes to play with other children but can be happy alone as long as his toy horses and cars are with him. Like his sisters he loves the water. He is considered average in ability. Wayne responds to praise and attention.

Marlene is a sweet, affectionate child, very talkative, and, outgoing. She loves attention and will sometimes consciously misbehave to get it. She likes company but can content herself with her dolls. Marlene is deeply attached to her sisters and brothers.

Kenny has developed slowly and is just starting to say a few words. He is beginning to be toilet trained. This lovable, cuddly toddler needs a great deal of stimulation.

Every one of these children has a special need and special needs. The couple who adopts them will not only have six to love alike but six individuals to treat according to their varying qualities and wants. Such parents will have needs of their own, plenty of time, plenty of energy. Their reward will be sizfold.

To inquire about adopting Marlene, Wayne, Gail, Marilyn, Kenny and Jeanette, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life.

Interest in instant coffee has While Canadians are taking been growing for years, but the more interest in the quality of percolator's biggest rival is the the their coffee, consumption of the sewer filter-drip process. brew is declining.

The reason? Experts say coffee drinkers have become more discriminating.

"Water should pass through the coffee grounds only once," says Jim Warnock, product manager for Melitta Co. Ltd. "In the percolator the water is recycled through the grounds so many times it just becomes a bitter brew."

Mr. Warnock estimates the filter-drip process will grab almost half the United States market within a year. In Canada, he says, it accounts for more than 10 per cent of the market, and is expected to double in sales every year.

Statistics Canada says this country now imports 188 million pounds of coffee—12 million pounds less than four years ago.

Concern about the health hazards involved in ingesting large quantities of caffeine provoked the sales increase of decaffeinated coffee. Some doctors suggest it is better for many people to refrain from drinking coffee altogether.

Sales managers report some people, particularly older ones, are still buying percolators. But if the newer types of coffee take over as predicted, hang on to your percolator.

Ann Landers

When Smokers Light Up, She Leaves

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest a letter from an individual who was recently divorced. A member of her friends said, "I knew all along he was seeing that woman." "It stripped me of my last shred of dignity," was the way she put it.

Well Ann, I can top that. After many years of marriage my wife suddenly developed an insatiable appetite for sex—with every male in town except me. That stripped me of MY last shred of dignity was when several "friends" whispered in my ear. "She really put the make on me and I tried to fight her off, but after you've had a few drinks—you know how it is. Ha, ha."

What is a guy supposed to say when he gets cracked over the head like that?—Zonked

Dear Z: The answer to your question is—nothing. Stony and unsmiling silence can be the most devastating response of all. When people make such cruel digs they deserve to have their words left frozen in midair.

Dear Ann: I'm facing the same problem thousands of other parents face when their children become 18 and go to work but continue to live at home.

Our son was always a wonderful boy. He did well in school and never gave us any trouble. Now that he has reached 18, however, he feels he should have the right to go and come as he pleases.

His father is very strict and has set time limits for him to be home at night. If the boy breaks curfew he is grounded. I am in the middle. My husband expects me to stand with him. On some matters I do, but on others I feel he is too rigid. I have always been more liberal and believe an 18-year-old boy who is trustworthy should be given more freedom. My husband is not the type you can reason with. He just says down "law" and that's that.

We both think a lot of your column. Can you help?—Respect East.

Dear R.E.: I wish you had given me more information. For example—at what time does your husband expect the boy to be in at night? Eleven o'clock? Three in the morning? What do you mean by "grounded"? To be kept in for a week? A month?

Young people who live at home should respect their parents' rules, even though they are beginning to make their own way.

BUT—parents should be reasonable and not treat an 18-man as if he were a high-school freshman.

Divorce for Ann Landers

CHICAGO (AP) — Syndicated columnist Ann Landers, problem-solver for millions of North American newspaper readers, says she and her husband of 36 years are getting a divorce.

"The lady with all the answers does not know the answer to this one," Miss Landers, 57, said in Tuesday's column in her home newspaper, the Chicago Sun-Times.

The columnist, whose real name is Esther Lederer, wrote: "The sad, incredible fact is that after 36 years of marriage Jules and I are being divorced. I write these words, it is as if I am referring to a letter from a reader. It seems unreal that I am writing about my own marriage."

Mrs. Lederer, who writes for Field Newspapers Syndicate of Chicago, was married to Jules Lederer, July 2, 1939. Until recently, Lederer was chairman of the board of Leo Burnett U.S.A. Car Corp. in Chicago.

Miss Landers did not divulge the reason for the divorce, and asked readers not to write or call for details.

More than 700 newspapers carry the column, and it has an estimated readership of 54 million persons in the U.S.

The column began:

"Dear Readers: In my 20 years as Ann Landers this is the most difficult column I have ever tried to put together.

"I do so after many hours of soul-searching. Should it be written at all? Would it be appropriate? Would it be fair? I have decided yes—because you, my readers, are also my friends. I owe it to you to say something. There should be some word directly from me."

Recipes for Coffee Lovers

If a good hot cup of coffee is an important beginning to your day, you make like trying the ubiquitous beverage in some new ways.

First, an explanation of brewing methods and a history of the bean. Then some unique and simple recipes to produce a different cup of coffee.

* * *

The most common methods for preparing coffee — besides instant which needs no explanation — are drip, vacuum, percolated and steeped.

Drip or filter coffee is produced by placing finely ground coffee in a paper lined filter and pouring freshly boiled hot water over the coffee. It is served as soon as the water has dripped through. It is the fastest method.

Vacuum method coffee uses special equipment and is the method most restaurants use to produce coffee. Water is placed in the lower bowl of a coffee maker and ground coffee placed in a wet paper filter in the upper bowl. The process takes three minutes once the water has filled the upper bowl.

Percolated coffee places the ground coffee in a basket above boiling water. After the water boils, it should be percolated six minutes.

Steeped coffee is made by pouring freshly boiling water directly on coffee grounds and allowing to stand, covered in a pot of boiling water for five minutes. Pour off grounds.

The discovery of coffee is generally accredited to Africa, although earliest cultivation is traced to Southern Arabia. Coffee grew in Africa only in a wild state until fairly recently, when it began to be developed there (about 1878) on a production basis by British interests.

Coffee probably derives its name from the original Arabic gahwah, indirectly through its Turkish form kahveh, although some historians connect it with the name Kaffa, a town in southwest Ethiopia (Abyssinia) reputed to be the birthplace of coffee. Through the ages the Arabian primitive root shows influences in whatever word has come to mean coffee in all tongues, according to the pronunciation of each long usage as: Bohemian, kava; Chinese Kafi-fei; Danish and Swedish, kaffe; Dutch koffie; Finish, kahvi; French, Spanish and Portuguese, cafe; German Kaffee; Greek, kafeo; Hungarian, kave; Italian, caffe; Japanese, kahi; Latin versatile coffebibi; Latin versatile coffea; Persian, qehve; Polish, kawa; Rumanian, cafea; Russian, kofhe.

The origin of coffee is vague and obscure but its history is rich in legend. No one knows exactly when coffee was discovered, but one of the most accepted tales, tells as most an Arabian goat herdsman, named Kaldi, who noticed that his goats became unusually frolicsome after eating berries that grew near their pasture. He too ate the berries after boiling them, and found that he could stay awake during the long night vigil. Monks in a nearby monastery heard of this, and found that they could endure the long nights meditation and prayers after drinking the beverage. News of the "wakeful monastery" spread and coffee was a hit.

The early record of coffee in Europe, where it was introduced into one country after another during the 16th and 17th centuries, is filled with accounts of its use as a religious, political, and medical potion, its ups and downs in favour, its persecution, prohibition or approval. Coffee was banned in Sweden, also in Turkey, as people were spending too much time in the coffee houses and not in the temples, as the religious fixtures of that day had it banned.

Coffee gained its first real popularity as a beverage in the coffeehouses. For more than 300 years, the coffeehouse has been an expression of the various cultures in which it has existed. It has survived as an institution mainly because of its unique conception, its dedication to coffee, conversation and conviviality. The earliest coffeehouses on record were opened in Mecca about 1450. During the next century they spread to other important centres in the Middle East, to Medina, Aden, Cairo and finally in 1554 to Constantinople. Wherever they were introduced, men gathered and talked. Inevitable, coffehouses became centres of free discussion and political controversy.

By 1700, there were more than 2,000 coffeehouses in London alone, some of which were to be immortalized by the presence of such illustrious conversationalists as Pope, Dryden and Swift. Because any poor student could purchase a "dish" of coffee for a penny and listen to spirited discussions, the coffeehouses were dubbed "Penny Universities". The coffee houses, in each time and place, has been no different than the devotees who found in its congenial atmosphere the pleasures of coffee and stimulating conversation.

Coffeehouses did not become popular in North America until 1689. Captain John Smith, founder of Virginia is said to have been the first to bring knowledge of coffee to America in 1607, but this is not certain nor is there a definite 'first date' for coffee's appearance in North America. It is not found in the records that there was coffee aboard the Mayflower (1620) nor proof that the Dutch brought coffee from Holland to New York in the early or mid 17th century. It is known however, that the first licence to sell coffee in the U.S.A. was issued to a Dorothy Jones of Boston in 1670.

Until the close of the 17th century, the world's rather limited supply of coffee was obtained, almost entirely from the province of Yemen in Southern Arabia. But, with the increasing popularity of the beverage, the propagation of the plant spread rapidly from the southern parts of Arabia to Ceylon (1658), to Java and other islands of the Netherland Indies starting about 1696, Haiti and Santo Domingo in 1715, Dutch Guiana (Surinam) in 1718, thence throughout the tropical countries of the world.

Where you live determines how you like to drink your coffee. In Europe, the filter method of making coffee was introduced early in the 1900s, and in some other parts of Europe, the "espresso" method was very popular. If you lived in North America, then the percolator was the way to make your coffee.

In Canada, drinkers prefer a clear, rich brewed coffee, often sweetened with sugar and diluted with a little cream or milk. The French enjoy a mixture of half coffee, half hot milk known as "cafe au lait". In the Orient, beans are ground as fine as flour to make a thick, black beverage that is drunk grounds and all. In Sumatra, a tea-like beverage is prepared from the roasted leaves of the coffee plant.

Canadians, it is estimated, drink an average of two cups of coffee each day. That's over 15 billion cups a year.

Even though coffee is made from just two ingredients, water and ground coffee beans so many other factors can affect the final beverage that the "mystique" of coffee brewing lingers on.

1) Q. Why do all directions for making coffee insist on cold, fresh water?

A. Hot water pipes can contain mineral deposits which escape into the water and adversely affect the flavor of the coffee. Cold water, however, does not "hold" the same amount of dissolved minerals and so does not strongly influence the resulting coffee taste.

2) Q. What are the correct measurements of coffee and water?

A. The ratio, no matter what method of coffeemaking, is used, is always one coffee measure or two level measuring tablespoons of coffee for each six ounces of water.

3) Q. Why do I end up with less coffee than I attempted to make? When I make 12 cups of coffee, for example, I end up with only 11 cups.

A. During the brewing process, half an ounce of water per cup is absorbed by the coffee grounds and this applies to all methods of making coffee. Also coffee is served in cups and mugs of varying sizes; so to produce the right amount of brewed coffee for the cup you plan to use, measure the amount the cups hold, and also figure on losing that ½-ounce per cup during brewing.

4) Q. Why is the grind so important to good coffee?

A. The grind must fit the type of coffeemaker, so that the coffee will be fine enough for the water to extract the right amount of color, flavor and aroma. With drip-filter coffeemakers, use fine grind coffee; if the grind is too coarse, it permits water to pass through too quickly, without enough time to extract the true coffee flavor.

5) Q. What is the best way to reheat leftover coffee?

A. Leftover coffee cannot be reheated, because reheating breaks down the components and results in a bitter flavor. You can keep freshly brewed coffee warm over very low heat for up to one hour.

Cafe Sirene

Steep one teaspoon of sugar, cinnamon, clove and a bit of orange peel in a cup of hot strong coffee. Strain and mix with ½-oz rum. Crown with unsweetened whipped cream.

Capuccino

Asher Fire

Mix two ounces of red wine with hot strong coffee. Heat and pour into glasses. Fill glasses with tequila, sweeten and add a dash of cocoa powder.

Irish Coffee

Heat one jigger of Irish whiskey per cup of coffee. Place in preweamed cup or seven-ounce goblet. Stir in one tsp. sugar and fill within ½-inch of top with freshly made hot coffee. Crown with chilled sweetened whipped cream.

Imperial Melange

Stir one egg yolk with one tsp. of cold water. Add three spoons of hot cream and two tsp. sugar. Stir and fill with hot coffee. And a shot of brandy.

Iced Coffee Rio

Mix one pint vanilla or mocha ice cream with four cups cold strong coffee. Add a shot of mocha liqueur (Tia Maria) per glass and top with whipped cream. Serves four.

Iced Coffee Viennese

six oz. strong black coffee sugar to taste
two oz. light rum
three tbsp whipped cream

Chill coffee after sweetening to taste. Pour into a tall glass and top with whipped cream.

Blender Frozen Coffee

¼ cup strong coffee, cooled
one tbsp sugar
1/16 tbsp. ground cloves
one small jigger rum
two cups crushed ice

Place coffee, sugar, cloves, rum in blender jar. Add two cups crushed ice. Blend thoroughly and serve in chilled tall glasses.

Cafe Brulot

20 whole cloves
peel of one orange peel of one lemon
two sticks cinnamon
½ small cubes sugar
¼ cup brandy
four cups freshly made hot coffee
¼ cup warm Cointreau

Stud the orange with whole cloves and place in a deep serving bowl with orange and lemon peel, sugar and cinnamon. Heat brandy (do not boil) and pour over these ingredients. Ignite to melt sugar. Remove orange.

Pour coffee into the bowl. Place orange in a ladle, surround with warm Cointreau. Ignite and lower into bowl.

Serves eight.

Building Value Up 30 Per Cent for First Half of Year

By COLIN BRRUCE
Staff Reporter

There has been more than $9-million in new building growth in Belleville during the first half of this year — a figure representing a 30 per cent increase for the same period last year, building inspector Grant Sickle said this week.

During the month of June, the inspection department recorded $1.1 million in building permits, a figure only slightly lower than the $3.8 million recorded in May.

"This is pretty busy building," said Mr. Sickle. "We're getting a lot more small growth, particularly in the commercial field."

During the month of May permits were issued for 15 single-family dwellings and 20 multiple units. Two apartment buildings are located at the corner of Craig and North Front St. (120 units) and Bridge St., (82 senior citizen units).

In June, permits were issued for four single-family units and 27 multiple units.

Though residential building has slackened through land and mortgage money shortages, residential building was the highest category of building permits in the first half of the year, totalling $3-million.

The largest permit during the month of June was issued for the construction of the Century Place building at the corner of Front and Bridge streets. The permit was for $2.3-million.

Mr. Sickle said the reminder of the $5-million figure stated as the project cost was exhausted in acquisition of property.

He said the city is experiencing "good growth" that is not all located in large projects but is spread across many smaller projects.

In 1974, the bulk of new growth was contained in several industrial developments which came along in the early portion of the year.

Trenton to Seek Aid For Bridge Replacement

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton will begin talks this summer with officials at Queen's Park in an effort to get a provincial government commitment for money to replace the existing Dundas St. bridge by a new $2.75-million structure.

The action was slanted by council Monday with its initial approval of construction of a new bridge.

When any new bridge will be built hinges on money from the province. Mayor Bob Patrick said Monday it could take three years before action is taken.

Replacement costs for the existing fixed-swing bridge are more than double the $1,035,000 needed to repair the structure. With repairs, it would last another 15 to 20 years while a new structure would have a life expectancy of about 60 years.

While town officials chase provincial dollars this summer, remedial work on the existing bridge will take place.

Council approved Monday $1,200 in work to patch up a steel support beam and to sandblast the 50-year-old bridge.

Jerome Machine and Repair Co. Ltd. is expected to begin the work within the next few weeks.

Costs of the minor facelift will be met by a $100,000 reserve account created established in its $5.6-million 1975 budget.

Centennial Project Nears

"We must have some time talks this summer but the project must get going this year to ensure it is complete for Centennial year 1978," said Mayor Jeffrey.

The committee which has been handling the choice of a civic project has made a recommendation to city council that a civic square be constructed near City Hall. This recommendation is still to be formally dealt with by council. Mayor Jeffrey said $100,000 has been set aside "for the project or projects".

Maintenance Bylaw Ready by January

Belleville should have a maintenance bylaw by next January Mayor Robin Jeffrey said during an interview this week.

The proposed bylaw met a wave of criticism from city residents and Belleville associations when it was first revealed last January and has since been the subject of a number of working sessions.

The document was criticized for extending over too broad an area and being difficult and vague to enforce.

"The document has been improved and many of the loopholes have been found and plugged with different wordings," said Mayor Jeffrey. She said council will likely be presented with the modified document in August.

The mayor said a number of public meetings will be held in the fall "where the public will have the opportunity to put the polishing touches on the document".

Cultural Introduction

Checking the Books

City building inspector Grant Sickle goes over the books calculating the amount of permits issued by his department in building in the city. His figures show an increase of about 30 per cent in building value during the first half of this year compared to 1974.

Grant Helps Tibetans Learn Canadian Culture

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Tibetans are teaching Tibetans — in Belleville.

In a way, it's a matter of two-way cultural preservation for the little colony.

Tibetans first began arriving in the Belleville area about four years ago — after Canada accepted them from exile in India following Chinese invasion and takeover of their homeland.

The group now has grown to around 60, as Belleville became known among the Tibetans as a good place to live among Canadian communities, says 23 - year - old Nyma Chukdong.

It has the undramatic title of Cultural Preservation in the references of the federal Opportunities For Youth program which has granted it $4,500.

The program's aim is twofold:

(1) To preserve the folk culture of the homeland for young Tibetans born out of their culture since their parents became refugeeexiles.

(2) To help older Tibetans to adjust to their new, Canadian surroundings.

The seniors are the breadwinners — which means they must hold down jobs.

In Canada, this means the ability to communicate in the English language, to understand the social idiom in which they work.

For some it hasn't been easy.

Because of their inability to work where the English language prevails five or six have had jobs, says Nyma.

They also have difficulty in communicating even with their neighbors.

In fact there have been instances where neighbors complained because their youngsters, communicate with the Tibetans next door, he says.

Meanwhile at the other end of the age scale is the fact that youngsters born outside Tibet are losing contact with their homeland culture — its myths, songs, dances, even language. Young Tibetans, now in school, "even speak English to their parents" who may not be fully proficient in the language.

Nyma who worked with the Tibetan Mission in India before coming to Canada, sums up both dilemmas: "Anybody who comes as an immigrant to Canada has to be a part of Canadian society. But that doesn't mean we have to forget our own culture — which is important to us."

Therefore, Cultural Preservation, organized a month ago and which has been run as a backyard classroom while the Tibetans waited to take over store granted by the Hastings County school board in space created by the summer vacation.

The classes are for both age groups.

The youngsters may learn their homeland language, religion (Buddhism) and traditions from Tibetans like Nyma, assisted by their elders.

The adults in turn can learn Tibetan culture and Canadian customs.

Jaycees Plan Campaign to Reduce Crime

By ROBIN CHASE.

Two-thirds of Canadian youngsters who become involved in crime first try their hand at car theft, says a survey of Canadian police chiefs carried out by the Canada Jaycees.

The Jaycees were measured police support which called for officers to be supplied with cards which could be used for reference when answering inquiries about crime stories, such as provincial police currently use.

The cards, recommended to the OACP by the study group, would contain basic information which the officer could give to the news media without endangering on the rights of persons arrested and charged and without suffering criticism from senior officers.

Chief Crosbie said he will introduce the cards once the details have been worked out as to their content.

surance Bureau of Canada (IBC). The IBC is the trade association that represents 90 per cent of the private property, casualty and automobile insurance companies operating in Canada.

Called Lock-It-And-Pocket-The-Key, it is modelled after a highly — successful program first developed by Jaycees in the U.S. As its name implies, it is aimed at convincing motorists to pocket their keys when they park their cars.

Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said the program was endorsed by the crime prevention committee of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police (OACP) at which he was elected second vice-president at last week's annual conference in Kitchener.

The Jaycees "gave pretty convincing statistics" in their presentation he said in fact, Chief Crosbie has some alarming statistics for Belleville.

Last year in this city, there were 165 cars stolen. And up until May 31 this year, 53 cars have been stolen, which means a possible increase of the end of the year.

Chief Crosbie said he was unable to determine immediately how many of the car thieves were youths and how many involved unlocked cars with keys left in the ignition.

"I don't know whether it will work or not," he said of the program. "But at least it's worth a try."

James Macleod, Jaycee executive director, said last year details of the program will be unveiled to the 1,000 delegates who will attend the Jaycees' national convention in Chatham July 2-5.

According to Mr. Macleod, in March this year there were 219 cars reported stolen in Ottawa alone. Of these, 81 had the keys still in them. "Think of the problem on a national scale," he commented.

Mr. Macleod said units that will be participated will have the most complete range of promotional materials ever developed to back up a Canada Jaycees program. These include posters, pamphlets, radio spots, television slides, parking meter stickers and a wide range of other materials aimed at helping local clubs to attack the problem in their own communities.

Mr. Macleod said 96 per cent of the 46 chief constables who responded to the survey said they would support the program. Chief Crosbie, who was not asked to participate in the survey, said he would also support the effort.

Police Chief Approves Of Uniform Release

Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie says he is in favor of a uniform method of communication between police officers and the news media to be worked out by the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police (OACP).

Chief Crosbie, elected second vice-president of OACP during its annual conference in Kitchener last week, said in an interview the new policy will mean that if a police chief, deputy-chief or inspector is not present when reporters call "the sergeants will know what to give out on a particular case".

J. L. Erskine, Ontario Provincial Police deputy-commissioner, told the OACP conference the association's news media committee met with the Ontario news study committee of the Canadian

Old Cars Challenging Hobby Says Collector

By RON HIUSER
Staff Reporter

There are few individuals in the Quinte area who have turned a boyhood hobby into a pastime and in some cases a profitable business.

"My pride and joy is a 1928 Ford Model "T," says Carman Nobes.

Mr. Nobes, who lives on the Wallbridge Road, says "I bought it in 1956 and right now it would probably be worth at least $8,000."

Mr. Nobes said he became interested in old cars in high school during the 1950's when a friend wrote an essay on old cars that "even the teacher didn't understand."

Since then Mr. Nobes has studied vintage cars, how to customize and get them into running order.

Mr. Nobes, in the late 1950s, joined the Road Angel Car Club of Belleville and presently is vice-president.

"We're just a group of guys who like to work on cars. Historic, customizing, building a better machine."

"I remember that well," says Carm. "She came come out to the shop until one day last year she wanted to do some work and went out and chose this pile of rusted metal."

"She did all of the work on the car except for the welding which I did."

"A swap meet is like an automobile flea-market," he said.

Not only is the restoration of old cars a popular pastime, but old farm equipment is having a revival.

"Right now, I'm working on a 1928-29 Massey-Harris Tractor," said Ben Thompson, owner of the Quinte Speed and Custom Shop on the Massassauga Road.

The museum bought this tractor last year for $150 from a farmer near Milford, he said Mr. Thompson.

It had to be stripped it down, replace some parts and get it running," Mr. Thompson states.

A member of the Prince Edward Auto Club, Mr. Thompson, 28, has been working on cars since his high school days.

As a farmer's son, he has had a lot of experience repairing farm machinery.

"Presently, I'm into the retail sales for high performance machines, customizing, and welding," Ben says.

Boys who want the big machines are slacking off, but there are still some young fellows who want the big machine."

He says the reason for this decline is the price of gas and "manufacturers putting on cams made specifically for a car to give better mileage."

Early Detection Key To Education Problems

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Hailed by county educators as a major document, a 100-page report on the future of special education has strongly recommended a new major thrust towards early detection of learning problems.

The lengthy and comprehensive report is the work of a Hastings County task force who in October, 1974, was instructed by the Hastings County Board of Education to investigate and explore the area of special education.

Special education includes programs ranging in scope for the gifted and talented to the drainside retarded. It also encompasses less conspicuous areas such as learning disabilities, emotional problems, communication disorders and physical handicaps.

In handing down the report superintendent of special education E.T. Tedlo-Sherris said it represents a general study of special education including a series of recommendations. He said he hopes the board and all educators in Hastings County will read and try to implement the recommendations.

Mr. Morris said the report recommends a concentrated effort towards early detection of learning problems. The report even went as far to recommend that the board establish another task force to specifically look into special education for kindergartens and primary division and to develop programs.

The report also suggests that all kindergarten and primary school teachers take special courses in speech correction through professional development.

Bringing Back the Old

The restoration of old cars is an art some local residents are good at. One of these residents is Carman Nobes whose pride and joy is his 1928 Ford Model "T" which he and his wife restored to its original condition. A couple of auto clubs in the area have been formed with members interested in the restoration and customizing of their cars.

Irvine To Visit

Provincial housing minister Donald Irvine, is expected in Belleville officially open an $1-unit senior citizen housing project on Wallbridge St., near the fair grounds July 18.

The project was built through the Ontario Housing Corp. and is filled with residents now, an OHC spokesman said this week.

Official opening of the four-storey building will take place at 11 a.m., a ministry invitation states.

Woman Charged

A 66-year-old Odessa woman Maria H. Sabransky — has been charged by city police with changing lanes not in safety under the Highway Traffic Act in connection with a two-car accident on North Front St. Tuesday at 12:18 p.m.

Police identified the driver of the other car involved as Robert Fitzpatrick, 21, of 195 Lingham St., Belleville.

Police said her car was northbound in the centre lane when it changed to the curb lane to turn into a donut establishment and was in collision with a second northbound car.

Civic Sendoff Tonight

A civic reception will be held tonight for high school students participating in the Belleville-Lahr student exchange program.

Eight Belleville students returned last Friday from a year's stay in Lahr. This Thursday their eight German counterparts will leave for home.

The civic reception is really "a hello and goodbye party," said Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

The reception and dinner will be held in the Separate School Board offices on George St. beginning at 8:30 p.m. Attending the function will be city council, the exchange committee and foster families.

Three Sought In Assault

STIRLING — Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville are investigating the abduction of a 19-year-old female on Front St. here early Tuesday who was allegedly assaulted while being held for almost four hours in her quarters.

A police spokesman said today the girl was walking Front St. at about 1:30 a.m. when a car stopped beside her and two men allegedly jumped out.

The spokesman said the girl ran but was caught an was pushed and knocked to the ground several times. He added the screams failed to alert residents of nearby houses.

Officials said the girl was then taken to an undetermined location and assaulted and released at about 5 a.m. on Dominion 4 of Sidney Township.

Portuguese Revolution Threatens Bullfighting

LISBON (AP)—Social revolution and an economic pinch are threatening bullfighting in Portugal where they don't kill the bulls and do their fighting on horseback.

Some of the country's top fighters are working almost exclusively in Spain. Agrarian reform threatens to break up the many ranches that breed some of the Iberian Peninsula's best bulls. Fights in some major cities will be down considerably this season in number and quality.

In addition, the Communist-controlled television and radio networks have stopped beaming live bullfights and have halted a weekly 40-minute program about bullfighting, making it difficult to develop future generations of aficados.

"Historically bullfighting has always reflected the ideological or political or religious climate of the times, and Portugal since the coup last year is no exception," said Jose Manuel Lory, president of Tertulia Posta Brava, the country's leading aficionados' club. "Bullfighting here is in a bad way."

As an example, he pointed to the government's projected program of land reform, by which no irrigated land holding can be larger than 125 acres and no dry-land area more than 1,235 acres.

"Bulls need much greater areas to live on, and this measure may mean the death of the large ranches," Lory said. "If the ranches and bulls disappear, so does bullfighting."

He said one bull breeder, apparently fearing nationalization of his large ranch, has asked government permission to replace his bulls with most cattle, which need less space. Two other major breeders, Ernesto de Castro and Jose Samuel Lupi, have already moved their entire herds into Spain.

Lupi is one of the country's leading equestrian fighters—a form highly developed in Portugal—but like many of his colleagues now fights almost exclusively in Spain. Fights are more frequent there, the prence is better and for some of the wealthier horsemen the atmosphere is friendlier.

Another aficionado said it is understood, although never being stated, that no good Communist would ever go to a bullfight; Communist party chief Alvaro Cunhal doesn't like them.

"Too brutal or elitist or associated with the old order," he complained sarcastically. "But do people want to stop the real reason? Everybody's head is full of political garbage and everybody has the money to go."

"The Lisbon bullring this year is scheduling just half the number of fights it normally holds in a season," he said. "The management said part of the reason is the decline in the number of foreign visitors to Portugal since the revolution.

"With the stress on exchanging out our balance of payments, we must export our best bulls to Spain and southern France, where they are in great demand," Lisboa said. "Only our lesser animals are available for fights here."

Lory said, his club is holding a special month for bullfighters, breeders, impresarios, writers and aficionados.

"We'll draw up our conclusions and present them to the authorities," he said. "Bullfighting is too entrenched in Portugal, too much a part of the fabric of life to die without a brave fight."

Knowledgeable Traveller Can Cut Hotel, Food Costs

ZURICH, Switzerland (CP) — By becoming a knowledgeable traveller rather than a tourist, a person visiting Switzerland can cut hotel and food costs in a variety of ways.

One way is to ask for a room without a private bath. The room will have a basin and running water and the bath will be on the same floor, usually just down the hall.

In the smaller towns and in the countryside, travellers will find pensions with room and breakfast which still are reasonably priced.

One way to get a meal for under $10 is to order the menu of the day rather than a la carte.

The two large department stores in this city, Globus and Jelmoli, offer average-priced meals which are substantial.

Very much a part of Zurich's afternoon life is to partake of cakes and coffee at the Kranzler or the famous Sprungli, both situated on the Bahnhofstrasse, a major shopping avenue.

A pot of coffee costs about 75 cents. Enjoyed with a sachertorte, one of the delicious cakes made world famous by the Sacher Hotel in Vienna, the repast could well be substituted for lunch if a tourist is on a budget.

And if the traveller is staying at a Swiss-style hotel, which traditionally serves a continental breakfast of rolls, cheese and coffee, this hearty meal will sustain one until mid-afternoon.

Another way to save on meals is to buy fruit, cheese and crusty rolls for a picnic lunch in the park on the edge of the lake. It's a good lunch to take on one of the four-hour cruises on the lake.

Vancouver Man Cycles Round Globe

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (CP)—Marathon cyclist John Hathaway has arrived at the Victoria Falls on the second leg of a 50,000-mile round-the-world trip prompted by a three-year run of bad luck.

British-born Hathaway, who met off in November from Vancouver, his home for more than 20 years, made up his mind to pedal his troubles away after the research firm he had worked in for 17 years let him out.

"It was the last straw," said the 50-year-old draftsman whose wife died in 1971 and who later spent weeks in hospital with a smashed hip after a cycle accident.

Hathaway, who has given himself 700 weeks to complete the journey, doesn't cycle every day, but sets himself a target of 125 miles a day when he does. Days off he spends sightseeing.

After resting at the four-star Casino Hotel — "I don't believe in stinting"—and spending the next day viewing the Victoria Falls, Hathaway resumed his trip.

He arrived by air in Cape Town three weeks prior to his arrival at the falls after cycling the length of the United States and South America. He covered the distance from Johannesburg to the falls in 64 days.

Of the 60 countries on his itinerary he has already visited 14. The next leg of his marathon trip will take him to Nairobi, where he will load his cycle aboard a plane for Bombay. After India he will cycle extensively in Europe.

Hathaway has ridden competitively in Britain and Canada. He was a champion time-trialist for the Coventry district in the late 1940s.

Several Toronto Folk Make Homes on Boats

Mr. Dyer lives on a boat in Toronto harbor all year.

He's not alone. At least a dozen other Toronto people including New Democratic Party leadership candidate John Harney, a United Church minister, an architect and an RCMP constable do too.

John Dyer and his wife, Pat, both 28, didn't know a thing about boats 14 months ago—except that they wanted one. Basily, But they could not afford to keep their 10-room house and have a boat too.

So they sold their house and moved into a dilapidated, 35-foot, double-ended wooden cutter.

Total monthly expenses for the house averaged $450 including mortgage, taxes, repairs, hydro, water and heating. Living on the boat cost $221 a month for mortgage, mooring, hydro, water and maintenance. An unexpected paint job cost $1,000.

Then came the hidden expenses. Confinement started to get to them, so they spent a fortune on dining out—at least three times a week—and movies.

But the Dyers are confirmed romantics and they are not about to give up.

"Whether or not I ever do take off for the Bahamas is immaterial, as long as I know I can," Mr. Dyer says.

John Harney's experience is a different story. He knows boats. He has been around them all his life.

Mr. Harney says that his boat, a 58-foot Nova Scotia fishing boat, is "pretty darn snug." He loves the feeling of sitting near his wood stove when a storm blows up.

He also enjoys the feeling of community he has experienced with five other boats nearby.

Mr. Harney's next-door neighbor is a fellow faculty member at York University, United Church minister Ed Pike. Mr. Pike took to his boat two years ago when his marriage broke up and his wife kept the house. He rotates between his 43-foot schooner and a farm just outside Toronto which he shares with friends.

ROLL BACK THE YEARS Edward B. Moogk.

Did you know that the phonograph records were made in Canada? That the "'His Master's Voice" trademark was first used on Canadian records? That the oldest surviving recorded sound is a speech by Baron Stanley of Preston at the Toronto Industrial Exhibition? These are some of the interesting facts to be discovered in this much-needed history of Canadian recorded sound from the beginnings to 1930. As well, there are biographical sketches of the early recording artists, an extensive discography, and even a record with words and music from 1898 to 1924.

WHAT PRICE NUTRITION? FEEDING A FAMILY OF FOUR IN CANADA TODAY — Food Prices Review Board.

We have now received most of the publications of the Food Prices Review Board. 'What Price Nutrition" outlines the requirements of a nutritious diet according to the Canada Food Rules and lists foods which provide a balanced diet at the lowest cost per unit of nutrients. Researchers found that by following these guidelines, Canadians could eat nutritionally better for less expenditure. This booklet, and the others in the series, which deal with the prices of individual food items, provide the wise shopper with food for thought.

A DIRECTORY OF CANADIAN WOMEN'S GROUPS SECRETARY OF State, Women's Program.

A timely and for people wondering whom to contact for information, this bilingual directory of local, national and government organizations lists mainly groups involved in women's liberation, but also includes organizations dealing with day care, assistance to native and immigrant women, business and professional women, and many others. Information includes address, phone, activities and publications.

RULES OF THE GAME — Diagram Group.

This "complete illustrated encyclopedia of all the sports of the world" has colored diagrams for every sport, showing dimensions of playing areas, positions of players, and the necessary clothing and equipment. Rules are stated clearly and concisely, to help anyone — spectator or participant — understand and enjoy competitive sports.

COLLECTING CANADA'S PAST — Jean and Elizabeth Smith.

Based on the author's own collections, this book describes common household items from pioneer homes — furniture, kitchen implements, ceramics, lamps, toys and others — many of which are still available to collectors and are not just to be found in museums. Photographs on almost every page show the antiques in home settings as they would have appeared when they were in daily use. As well as telling something of the history and use of the items, the authors provide useful suggestions on how to collect Canadian antiques.

Budget Approval Expected By Commons During Week

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons is expected to approve this week the Liberal government's new budget, which includes an excise tax of 10 cents a gallon on gasoline purchased for personal use.

The government, with its strong majority, is in no danger of losing the vote on Finance Minister John Turner's budget proposals, despite heavy opposition criticism.

Three tax bills implementing budget proposals are expected to be introduced Friday. One would give formal approval to gasoline excise tax, already in effect. The others would increase slightly personal income taxes for persons with "higher incomes" and change resource taxation to make more money available for exploration.

The budget—Mr. Turner's second in seven months—was introduced June 23. Three days of hard-hitting Commons debate followed the June 24 parliamentary holiday, St. Jean Baptiste Day.

The government rejected in the budget both mandatory wage and price controls and restrictive monetary and fiscal policies.

Mr. Turner said the government will set an example of restraint through spending moderation. Opposition critics have said the budget will fuel inflation and increase unemployment.

The Progressive Conservatives say higher energy costs will encourage workers to seek higher wage increases. New Democratic Party spokesmen predict that manufacturers will lay off workers and increase product prices of cover higher energy costs.

One of the tax bills to be introduced Friday will include a new 25-per-cent resource allowance that can be deducted from production income in resource tax calculations. The government says the changes, effective next Jan. 1, are designed to increase exploration activity by petroleum and mining companies by putting at least an additional 40 million back in the hands of the industry.

The government says the new gasoline excise tax is expected to bring in an additional $350 million during the current fiscal year. The revenue department will rebate excise taxes paid by farmers, fishermen and industry.

Mr. Turner also announced a maximum $350 income tax increase for the top rank of taxpayers, affecting about 250,000 persons.

The increase starts at income of $25,358 for single persons and at $27,174 for a taxpayer married and with two children under age 16.

The single taxpayer would pay the full $350-increase at an income level of $32,903 and the married taxpayer with two children under 16 would pay the full increase at $38,757.

Time Short, Says Nixon For Writing of Memoirs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Nixon says time is running short and he cannot adequately write his memoirs unless he obtains the tapes and documents left behind when he resigned as U.S. president.

"I am 62 years old and desire to complete the task of reviewing my presidential materials during my lifetime," Nixon says in a sworn affidavit. "Each month that these materials remain unavailable for that purpose can never be recaptured and thus represents an irrevocable loss."

The Nixon affidavit was the latest legal document in his fight with the government over ownership of the 42 million documents and 880 reels of tape recordings amassed in the 5½-year Nixon presidency.

The affidavit was filed late Monday with a three-judge court considering Nixon's claim that Congress acted unconstitutionally by giving the government possession of the materials. The government and other parties involved in the battle have another month to respond.

Mopeds Popular Across Canada

By WILLIAM HANLEY
The Canadian Press

Mope' sales have mooned in recent months across Canada and the provinces, responsible for licensing and regulating the vehicles, have responded in various ways to the boom of the motor-assisted bicycles.

Regulations vary from British Columbia—where mopeds are treated as motorcycles—to New Brunswick, which as yet has no regulations. Manitoba maintains the vehicles aren't licensed and consequently cannot be used on streets or highways.

However, a survey by The Canadian Press indicates that the provinces either have strong regulations, are in the process of drawing up such regulations or are considering the problem.

Last week, the Ontario government moved to beef up its legislation covering the vehicles by introducing a bill to amend the Highway Traffic Act to impose additional controls.

The legislation would class as motor-assisted bicycles only vehicles weighing 120 pounds or less and without hand and foot-operated clutch or gear controls. Drivers will be required to hold a license and pay a nominal registration fee.

One of the biggest bones of contention about mopeds was also covered by requiring operators be 16 years old, instead of the previous 14 years.

John Rhodes, Ontario transportation minister, said in introducing the legislation that public reaction to old legislation regulating mopeds was "unfavorable" and "further control is required."

Both Alberta and B.C. treat mopeds as motorcycles. Operators must have a driver's licence, wear helmets, have insurance and comply with all highway regulations. In Alberta a learner's licence can be obtained at 14, but the learner must be supervised by a person 18 or over.

Saskatchewan requires moped drivers to have an automobile operator's licence, yet obtainable until 16 years of age, and the licence must be endorsed for mopeds by taking a special road test.

A spokesman for the B.C. motor vehicles branch says a major problem with the mopeds is that the lights are not powerful enough. However, he said standards have been upgraded and these standards are being enforced by yearly inspections.

In Quebec, the law requires that mopeds keep their lights on both night and day, although helmets are not required.

Under regulations introduced July 1, 1974, vehicles must be registered like motorcycles. Minimum operator age is 14 and a driver's licence is not required. However, parents must sign a special government form authorizing their child to drive a moped.

In Quebec, mopeds must not exceed 28 miles per hour and are not allowed on roads where the maximum speed is more than 38 m.p.h. Ontario's legislation calls for municipalities to be given the power to prohibit mopeds on portions of highways where the maximum speed limit is 50 m.p.h. or more.

Information concerning regulations governing motor assisted bicycles was not available from Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

NDP Meets Friday To Pick New Leader

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party, which lost its leader and 15 Commons seats in the last general election, meets in Winnipeg on Friday to begin a rebuilding program and select a successor to David Lewis.

Ed Broadbent, the 39-year-old MP from Oshawa-Whitby who has been parliamentary leader since Mr. Lewis' defeat last July, is considered the front-runner as some 1,500 delegates prepare for the Monday voting. He has the backing of the party strong men, including key unions.

Lorne Nystrom, 29, who entered the Commons in 1968, has mounted a massive grassroots campaign during the last two months. Many party members seem to feel the MP for Yorkton-Melville is in a much stronger position than originally predicted.

Rosemary Brown, a radical outspoken legislature member for British Columbia, has proved to be the most exciting speaker in an otherwise low-key Scarborough race. Apart from her appeal, there has been increasing talk among some delegates of giving Ms. Brown first-ballot support to show there is no discrimination against women or blacks.

John Harney, an MP from 1972 until his 1974 defeat in Scarborough West, is the most fluently-bilingual candidate, in the race and he has been concentrating heavily on potential Quebec support. The general impression is that Mr. Harney is running fourth at the moment.

Sentenced

TORONTO (CP) — Rywa Regina Wertman, 46, and her lover, Manfred Baron, were sentenced Monday to the maximum term of 14 years in penitentiary for conspiring together and with others to murder her husband, Isaac Wertman, 58, between August, 1973, and May 15, 1974.

Award Made

TORONTO (CP) — A Port Colborne, Ont. man and his mother, both badly injured when a parcel bomb exploded on their home, have been awarded more than $11,200 by Ontario's Criminal Injuries Compensation Board, it was announced Monday.

The board ordered that Lawrence Michael Pulak, 23, be paid a lump sum of $7,500 and an additional $200 a month indefinitely, retroactive to Feb. 1, 1972. His mother, Mary, was awarded $3,700.

Dredging Case Arguments Heard

HAMILTON (CP) — The credibility of a key Crown witness became a pivotal point in the Hamilton dredging trial Monday, as Crown and defence lawyers made their final summations to the jury.

Crown attorney Clay Powell and lawyers for Kenneth Elliott and Reginald Fisher made their final statements to the seven women and five men of the Ontario Supreme Court jury, with the testimony of Crown witness Horace (Joe) Rindress a matter of strong contention.

Mr. Rindress, formerly president of J. P. Porter Co. Ltd. of Montreal, testified for eight days during the trial, linking the defendants to phoney invoices, payoffs, kickbacks and money laundering.

But the witness also admitted personal wrongdoing, saying he paid a bribe to Elliott, gave the man a kickback of about $250,000 and stole money in bid-rigging.

Monday, Mr. Rindress came under heavy fire from both Malcolm Robb, Elliott's lawyer, and Ray Harris, who represents Fisher.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions.

All this was accomplished by a healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. The substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Quick Metric Switch Urged

FREDERICTON (CP) — If Canada decides to follow the advice of Hans Milton, a world authority on metric conversion, people can expect to see highway signs in kilometres and milkbire beer cans "almost overnight."

"Everyone likes progress but few are willing to change," says Milton, the metric expert who guided Australia's successful conversion from the English system to the metric system of measurement.

In an interview here, Milton said the problem of switching is not difficult "and in this case, a very small change will mean a great advantage for mankind."

Milton is a 36-year-old assistant deputy minister in Australia who has been on a world lecture tour on the advantages of converting to the metric system.

He noted that Australia has converted 60 per cent of its measurement system to metric in 4½ years and the only countries still using the old Imperial system of feet, pounds and gallons are the U.S. and Canada and a few underdeveloped countries such as Burma and Fiji.

"I'm a bit of a metric ambassador," he says. He suggested that despite some moves toward the use of metric system, Canada has been dragging its heels.

The Canadian Metric Commission has been "overmanaging" and trying to plan the whole thing, he said.

"If you've allowed one year for converting one building material, for instance, and it actually takes only two months, then the whole process is held up for 10 months."

First of all, he said, the process is called "metrication, not metrification" and it's a system that though legally permitted in Canada since 1967, has been blocked by historical affinity for the Imperial measuring system.

He says the metric system, devised in France in 1791, is used in 85 per cent of world commerce and is "by far the most logical system."

"It has three great strengths. It is set up in multiples of 10 so that converting upwards or downwards is easy.

"Unlike changing inches to feet to miles, one merely adds the appropriate suffix such as 'kilo' or 'milli'".

Canada has always used one portion of the metric system, the kilowatt, the measure of electrical energy used.

Units of different measurements such as liquid and solid volume were related in the metric system whereas the relation of a cubic foot to a gallon under the old system was difficult to compute.

Another advantage was that symbols for various metric measures were international. A blueprint from Russia could easily be read in Canada and vice versa.

Milton is also looking beyond metrication to what he believes is the next step—an international language.

"I believe if we had the metric system when computers were coming in that today we would have a common language over the world."

Peru, Brazil, Columbia Ban Export of Monkeys

LIMA (AP) — A ban on the export of monkeys by Peru, Brazil and Colombia has created concern among research scientists in the United States and other developed countries.

Some scientists say the action may slow research into critical diseases.

In an effort to bring monkey producers and monkey consumers together, the Pan American health organization sponsored a three-day conference recently on "conservation and utilization of South American non-human primates to biomedical research."

The 80 participants from five countries — Peru, Colombia, Brazil, Bolivia and the United States—adopted a series of resolutions urging creation of monkey-breeding farms, banning the use of monkeys as pets and outlawing monkey salesmen who have acted as middlemen and reaped huge profits.

Participants called for establishment of more national parks which would put the monkeys out of bounds to hunters and prevent extinction of some species.

Dr. Victor Villarejo, director of the Louisiana State University International Centre for Medical Research and Training, said these were long term remedies and pleaded with the monkey-producing countries for urgent action.

"We're on the verge of conquering type-A hepatitis and we're paralysed right now. We're at a critical stage," he said.

The marmoset-variety monkeys essential to this research are most plentiful in Peru, which banned the trapping of primates in October, 1973, except for research purposes under stringent conditions. American scientists said in practice, no monkeys have been received from Peru since the announcement.

Dr. Marc Dourejeanni, director of wildlife conservation in the Peruvian agriculture ministry, said 330,000 monkeys worth $1.5 million have been exported from Peru in the last 10 years.

He said that during the process of capture, transport within the country and transit captivity, an estimated two monkeys died for every one that survived—a total of 1,017,240 monkeys during the last 10 years.

Dourejeanni said studies indicate that four times the number of monkeys exported are consumed as "mountain meat" by the poor local population. He said this would mean 4.7 million monkeys died or were killed in Peru during the last decade.

Brazil embargoed the export of primates five years ago and Colombia stopped issuing primate export permits several months ago because of huge depletions of monkey populations.

Consumer Consultant

With young and old alike, frozen dairy treats are age-old favorites. And, with the emphasis on choosing snacks which are not empty calories, these foods make good choices during the hot summer months. Our leaflet, "Frozen Dairy Treats" describes the composition and food value of the ever-popular ice creams and sherbet. You'll find it along with other leaflets on dairy foods at the Consumer Awareness Centre of your nearest Food City market.

Since many consumers will be freezing fruits this summer we thought it timely to supply information on this topic. "Freezing Fruits" will be available this week with the above leaflet.

Mrs. Albany will be talking with shoppers Thursday, July 3rd at Woodstock Food City, 845 Dundas St., Woodstock from 1:30 p.m. to 5.00 p.m. Please feel free to come in and ask questions relating to food shopping.

Mrs. Albany is available to speak to groups. Write her at 125 The Queensway, Toronto, Ontario M8Y 1H7 or call (416) 259-6633.

Thousands Jam Trenton Park For Canada Day Festivities

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Eleven kites snapped in the blue sky July 1st and their high-flying color acted as beacons to attract crowds to Centennial Park in celebration of Canada's birthday.

And as if that wasn't enough, a mid-afternoon five red - and - white parachutes drifted in earth, skies, sunshine, and a crowd of 424 Squadron paratroopers from CFB Trenton.

Crowds numbering in the thousands swarmed over the park to partake in troubles a k i a, sunshine, and a multitude of activities coordinated by the Rotary Club of Trenton.

There was something for everyone. Activities ranged from an inner tube race, an art and craft show, a pedigreed dog show, to singing and dancing groups.

Children were far from neglected; if anything, they were catered to, fulfilling what Mr. Goldberg had earlier said was a day planned to provide the most fun for the least money.

However, both Mr. Goldberg and chairman of Canada Day's co-ordinating committee Jim Coad had a bone to pick. Both men objected to the confusion over when the Canada Day holiday was to be celebrated.

Federal plants and businesses in Trenton and area opted variously to remain open Monday, and closed Tuesday, and vice-versa. The arrangement met with disapproval from the two men.

Both said they felt July 1 should be celebrated as a holiday. After all, said Mr. Coad, "you don't find the Americans changing the July 4th holiday around".

The last part, he said, was that the federal government "encourages us to hold a day like this" yet does nothing to extend businesses staying open.

Besides the usual food concession stands, no changes were levied. On the contrary, a corps of 12 clowns were giving candy and balloons to children. The Trenton Women's auxiliary arts and crafts show awarded cash prizes to winning entrants.

And the biggest show of the mall, the one that hit the night sky, cost nothing. Thousands sat on Centennial Park grass to watch Trenton firemen shoot trip with fellow Trenton High School students.

Ban Continues on Land Purchases

TRENTON — Trenton council Monday maintained its ban on land purchases between the two bridges along the town's greenbelt, but lifted a partial ban it established earlier this year on those north of the D. J. MacDonald Bridge.

The move came during the last meeting before council adjourned for a two-month summer recess.

Council had earlier asked the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority to stop indefinitely land purchases from roughly south of the IGA supermarket along the west bank of the Trent River.

Its move Monday frees the authority to spend $117,000 in funds earmarked this year for development and land purchase. The town works through the authority in assembly of land because up to 70 per cent of acquisition costs are then covered by provincial government grants.

Authority officials now are free to develop land from the Macdonald bridge to Le Cas Island, the schemes northern limit.

In a related move, council opted to no longer meet demolition costs of buildings in the greenbelt. Formerly, the town paid the cost of tearing down buildings on properties bought by the authority.

Mayor Patrick said he understood the authority now has enough money to finance demolition.

Park Work Under Way

TRENTON — Fill from town projects will be dumped in Centennial Park this summer as the beginning of park development as outlined in a consultant's report given council here in April.

Preliminary work was given approval Monday with the acceptance by council of plans to convert the land into a major regional park.

Acceptance of the plan means a central gathering place, a marina, and washrooms and a concession stand will be constructed. The existing sewage treatment plant will be transformed into a multi-purpose community centre.

The multi-million dollar scheme will be developed over a possible 20 to 30 years.

Soil Smell A Problem

TRENTON — Trenton council took no immediate action Monday to end what one Herber St. resident called a bad "oil and sewer smell" from a town-owned property at the corner of Hebert and Bryan Sts.

Melville Johnson of 16 Heber St. wrote to council to complain that on a hot day "the odor is so bad that we are unable to sit outdoors".

He said that he is forced to close doors and windows in his home when a breeze blows from the direction of the former automobile wrecking yard.

Council's decision not to act was prompted by a revelation by councillor Pete Atzi that a town realtor is expected soon to offer to buy the land.

Mr. Atzi reasoned that if a building were erected on the site, the need to dig foundations and remove oil-soaked soil would eliminate the odor.

A report submitted to council Monday by building inspector Norm Mallory indicated the property was laden with oil. Removal of the source of the smell — by replacing oil-saturated soil — would cost an estimated $1,000.

The Victor

Winner of the Second Canadian International Inner Tube Race, 12-year-old Lori O'Neil of Trenton towels down her hair after becoming the second woman in race history to win the event. Lori was among nine contestants to enter the Trent River during the race, held in conjuction with Canada Day activities in Trenton Tuesday.

Donkeys Are Misunderstood By Many Says Breeder

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

CONSECON — Want to beat the gas increase?

Yes? Drive a donkey. New and used models. All colors. Very economical. Come for a demonstration drive. Prompt delivery.

Its writer, a pretty 25-year-old mother of one boy and herder of 15 donkeys says it came over her in a flash. It's the first time she has advertised locally. As yet, has had no response.

Valerie Bush of RR 1 Consecon is serious. She and her husband, Ean, do have donkeys in all colors, and are willing to sell them, although she's more concerned over their image at present than their saleability.

Sitting on the grass in the sun on a 40-acre farm the couple bought last year about two miles northeast of Consecon, she talked donkeys.

Four years ago the couple bought a pair of donkeys, also called burrows, and jackasses, depending on the part of the continent one is from. Getting the pair wasn't easy.

Trying to buy one in Canada is like trying to find a four-leaf clover. It's difficult, she says. People are really reluctant to part with them. One elderly gentleman, she said, told her "my wife would kill me and throw me out of the house if I sold it".

Few people in Canada own donkeys. When Mrs. Bush advertised for one, she received one response, she has also advertised in a cross-Canada farm publication to sell her donkeys. Response came from Alberta, British Columbia, Saskatchewan.

She said one woman wanted three donkeys and didn't even ask the price (between $400 and $400) until she had them delivered.

That price is a good indication of their popularity in Canada. In the United States, donkeys can run between $300 and $4,000 for a pinto. Mrs. Bush said one black-and-white pinto jack (male) named Texas was purchased for $3,500. It now is standing in stud in Maine.

Meet My Friend

Prince Edward County resident Valerie Bush plays with Applejack, a donkey, that she says is far from the mean and stubborn animal most people think it is. Donkeys, says Valerie, are good mounts, work well in harness, and are gentle and friendly with children.

U.S. Couple Injured

BRIGHTON — A 58-year-old American woman, Mrs. Beard, was admitted to Trenton hospital following a two-car collision on Highway 30, five miles north of here Tuesday.

She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Russell Beard.

Brighton provincial police said the Beard vehicle was in collision with a vehicle driven by Doris Pitts, 23, of Sunnyside Ave., Ottawa. Mrs. Pitts was taken to Trenton hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

Fisherman Drowns

Dead is Thomas Joseph Lejeune, 21.

A police spokesman said Tuesday a fellow fisherman jumped into the river and "had a hold of him, but couldn't hold on. The current is too fast."

Driver Charged

Michael Spizzirri, of Toronto, suffered leg and face injuries in the mishap. A passenger in the car, Frederick Prosie, 22, also of Toronto was treated and released from hospital.

Madoc OPP said the accident occurred about 6 p.m. on Highway 62 about eight miles north of this village.

Spizzirri has been charged with careless and impaired driving.

Body Identified

PICTON — A six-year-old Kingston child who disappeared Sunday at Outlet Provincial Park has been identified as Evelina Trethewin of 252 Division St.

The girl was swimming, supervised by adults, when she disappeared in the water. Her body was found soon afterward, floating in about two feet of water.

Artificial resuscitation was started by members of the beach patrol and an unidentified doctor on the beach began external heart massage but the child was pronounced dead at the scene.

Beer Garden Refused

TRENTON — Beer gardens in downtown Trenton are still taboo as far as town council is concerned.

It refused outright Monday to grant the Roma Restaurant and Tavern on Front St. permission to set up a small beer garden during a sidewalk sale later in July. It is the second time within a year such a request has been denied.

Leading the opposition to the garden was councillor Bob Wannamaker. "I don't feel we should be peddling beverages of this type in the streets," said the councillor.

He said the beer garden would attract youth downtown and "we have enough problems on the streets without adding more". He mentioned vandalism as one such problem.

Woman Wins Race For Second Year

By her victory in the Second Canadian International Inner Tube Race, she became the second young woman and the second consecutive Trenton resident to win crowd applause during Canada Day activities.

Having a Smell

With more wishful thinking than actual use of their olfactory sense, 13-year-old Janet Perry (from left), Donna Mullin, 11, and Tracey Crossley, 11, plunge their noses into a bunch of artificial flowers at the arts and crafts show Tuesday. The juried show, held in conjunction with Canada Day in Trenton, attracted over 300 individual entries. The flowers were made by Trenton's Michele Douglas from wire, pipe cleaners and multi-colored fabric.

Most Residents Feel Pinch as Gas Continues to Rise

TRENTON — With prices at gas pumps popping up like mushrooms in the Trenton area this week, there is little Belleville residents can escape paying more for fuel for that family boat or burden and conveyance of pleasure — the car.

At most service stations here, the pump price rose 10-cents-a-gallon, the result of an excise tax imposed by Finance Minister John Turner in his recent federal budget.

What, if anything, are people doing to circumvent or live with the latest increase? In a random survey in downtown Trenton last week, people responded:

Cliff Sanderson says he can't do much. He must drive daily from his home in Belleville to Trenton to work.

"As much as I resent the increase, we're still more fortunate than people in England this original home".

He said the increase in gas prices bothers him less than the way garages increased prices. "They took the cream off the top," he said, faulting the federal government for not clarifying the increase and "making service stations withhold increases on old stock."

Wally Hiddleston said he was planning to go to the Maritimes this summer, but "if it goes much higher, I'll think twice about it".

"The only thing I have on me about the increase is a lot of squawking," he said.

Owner of Stanley's Doorway to Fashion Ltd., Stew Stanley has a unique solution to increase gas prices: he has given a Cadillac he bought two months ago, to his wife to drive.

He now drives his wife's Volkswagen Rabbit car and said "it's great to pass a few gas stations". Frequently out of town on business, and allowed a company car that is eligible for an eventual tax break as a result, he feels he is saving money. Mr. Stanley drives about 30,000 miles a year, his wife, now in the Cadillac, drives about 3,000.

"I have a strong resentment that it was foisted on us," he said, while noting there wasn't a great deal that could be done now.

Queen Elizabeth public school teacher Ken McClintock said "It cheened me off the way they did it — slapped it on without any warning." He won't be able to do much about it, since he must drive 10 miles daily to work.

He said his family will be driving the smallest of their cars sometime after. "I'm just wondering where it is going to end," he said.

Alan Russell, a mechanic in a local car dealership, said he doesn't think he'll feel the increase he estimated to be about $1 a week.

Philosophically, he said that "if the government doesn't get you that way (with a gas price increase) it'll get you another way".

He predicted the gas price increase will cause a simple reaction: "I'll do what everyone else will do — hit my boss for a raise."

Frankford resident Kyle Conley also says little can be done. He has to drive daily to work in Trenton and can't avoid that, he says.

But he said "it's hitting the little guy not the corporations. They're going to get their money back at the end of the year." The "little guy" won't.

He said he plans to postpone his honeymoon to the Thousand Islands, gas price increase or no increase.

He was also runner-up for the sweepstake prize won by J. H. McLeod of Belleville.

Dodgers Keep Losing; Now Ferguson's Gone

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers are hitting for a change—but this time it's with their fists, not their bats.

The Dodgers, no doubt bothered by their poor baseball performances lately, took out their frustrations on San Diego Padres with a bench-clearing brawl Tuesday night.

"The brawl might spur 'em on, make them a better ball club," said Dodger manager Walt Alston, whose team lost its ninth game in the last seven. "But I sure hate to lose Joe Ferguson for eight weeks."

Ferguson, the Los Angeles catcher who was one of the main event sluggers in the eight-inning fracas at Dodger Stadium, suffered a fractured wrist in the melee.

Adding insult to injury, Ferguson was thrown out of the game along with teammates Willie Crawford and David Lopes. San Diego's John Grubb, another of the late swingers, also was forced to leave the field.

The distracting incident was apparently inspired by the top half of the eighth when the Padres attempted to squeeze in a run, although they already held a 10-1 lead. Dodger reliever Jerry Hough, obviously thinking the run unnecessary, hit Dave Winfield with a pitch. Ferguson had to restrain the Padre slugger from challenging Hough.

In the bottom of the eighth, San Diego relief pitcher Bill Greif was hit by two Dodger pitches, throwing four pitches dangerously close to Crawford after the last one almost hit his tribe. Crawford stormed out to the mound and to attack Greif. Then Ferguson and the others jumped into the fray.

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis Cardinals beat Philadelphia Phillies 6-5, Cincinnati Reds defeated Houston Astros 8-7 in 15 innings, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Mets 2-1 in 10 innings and San Francisco Giants beat Atlanta Braves 8-7 in 10 innings. In games, New York beat Chicago 5-1, Pittsburgh defeated Montreal 5-2, St. Louis beat Philadelphia 6-2, Cincinnati beat Houston 8-6 and Los Angeles defeated San Diego 6-1.

While the Dodgers were using their fists, the Padres were using their bats. Mike Ivie hit a grand slam homer in the eight-run fifth inning and also singled home a run.

In all, the Padres sent 12 batters to the plate, 10 of them getting on base.

Bake McBride drove in three runs with a pair of singles and stole two bases to lead St. Louis past Philadelphia. Al Hrabosky, the Cardinal relief ace accounting in his fourth consecutive game, recorded his 12th save of the year.

Joe Morgan, who homered earlier, singled home a run in the 12th inning as Cincinnati won a marathon battle with Houston. The Reds tied the game 7-7 with a three-run inning. Bill Plummer drove in two runs to lead Pittsburgh's 10th attack against Montreal. Rookie John Candelaria, with late relief help, won it.

Chris Speier drove in five runs with a pair of doubles as surging San Francisco beat Atlanta for its fifth consecutive Giants victory.

DON BAYLOR

Dave Kingman also hit a grand slam for the Cubs, who lost 5-4 to Texas Rangers while Minnesota Twins beat California Angels 13-3 after dropping the doubleheader opener 4-3 in 10 innings.

In Monday's games, Boston beat Baltimore 5-2 and the Orioles came back for an 8-7 victory in their second game, Cleveland swept Detroit 3-2 and 4-1, Milwaukee edged New York 5-4, Chicago beat Oakland 6-1 and California whipped Minnesota 10-3.

The Brewers posted their fourth consecutive victory Tuesday behind the five-hit pitching of Jim Colborn and Rick Austin. George Scott drove in two runs and a single, drove in a run and scored twice while ex-Yankee Mike Hegan drove in two runs with a single in the two-run fourth inning and a grounder in the Brewers' four-run third.

Baltimore's Don Baylor broke a tie with a three-run homer off Reggie Cleveland in the seventh inning after Lee May singled and Paul Blair beat out an infield hit. May hit a run-solving triple in the fourth, singled home a run in the eighth and also had a double. Bernie Carbo homered for the Red Sox.

Mickey Lolich pitched a three-hitter and Ron Bloomberg had a two-run homer to lead Detroit. Lolich raised his career mark against Cleveland to 30-15, most wins of any active pitcher against the Indians.

Oakland's Vida Blue allowed four hits and one run—Carlton May's second-inning homer—in eight innings in coasting to his 12th triumph and Joe Rudi rapped three run-scoring singles as the A's snapped the White Sox' nine-game winning streak, longest in the majors this season.

Claudell Washington had two singles, stole two bases and drove in a run and, during the game, A's owner Charles O. Finley announced he was giving the 20-year-old outfielder a $10,000 raise. Washington went into the game with a .284 average, 42 runs batted in and 29 stolen bases.

Mike Cubbage homered and Mike Hargrove and Jim Sundberg each had two RBIs apiece each for Texas. Texas pitcher Ferguson Jenkins got the win despite three home runs by John Mayberry and one by Harmon Killebrew.

Bucs Supply Fireworks

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos had a fireworks display scheduled after their National League baseball game Tuesday night in honor of the July 1 holiday, but Pittsburgh Pirates upstaged the festivities with a show of their own.

The Pirates struck early and often on their way to a 17-hit, 10-4 win that moved them 13 games ahead of the last place Expos in the National League's East Division.

"When everybody in the lineup starts hitting like that we did tonight, we're going to get some runs," said Pirates interim manager Bob Skinner in something of an understatement.

The Pirates picked up their second consecutive win without his rookie manager Danny Murtaugh, jumping on Expos starter and loser Woodie Fryman, 4-5, for seven runs in his 1-2 innings pitched.

Bill Robinson slapped a two-run single and Richie Hebner connected for a two-run double that gave the Pirates a 4-0 lead in their first inning before Gary Carter lofted his eighth home run of the season in the bottom of the inning for two runs. Pete Mangual had led off the frame with a walk.

The Expos scored in the seventh on pinch-hitter Jose Morales' force-out after a lead-off single to Pete Mackanin and in the eighth on Nate Colbert's single which scored Bob Bailey. Mackanin led off with a walk and moved to second on winning pitcher John Candelaria's wild pitch.

Brewers and Orioles Tighten Up the Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Last weekend, Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees were worried only about each other but now they're looking over their shoulders at Milwaukee Brewers and Baltimore Orioles, as well.

The Orioles outslugged the Red Sox 10-4 while the Brewers were defeating the Yankees 6-3 in baseball games Tuesday night, further tightening the race in the American League's East Division. The Red Sox still lead the Brewers and Yankees by a game, with the defending champion Orioles 6½ games out.

Milwaukee, which begins a three-game set against the Red Sox tonight with a double-header, trailed by five games two ago while the Orioles were nine games back as recently as last Friday.

In other AL action Tuesday, Detroit Tigers defeated Cleveland Indians 6-2, Oakland A's beat Chicago White Sox 10-1 to open an eight-game lead in the AL West over Kansas City Royals, who lost 5-4 to Texas Rangers while Minnesota Twins beat California Angels 13-3 after dropping the doubleheader opener 4-3 in 10 innings.

Evergreens Hang On To Take the Title

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Kitchener Evergreens won the Ontario senior fastball championship Tuesday with a 2-0 extra-inning victory over Hamilton Wasman.

The nine-inning victory was Kitchener's fifth straight in the five-day tournament and the second over the Wasman.

Terry Gallimore was the winning pitcher, giving up four hits and one run—a fourth-inning home run by Ted deFuiter.

Gallimore also gave his team its first run—a third-inning home run off losing pitcher Wally Dick.

Kitchener scored the winning run in the bottom of the inning on a single by Ross Wolstyn, John Haggo and Jim Murdock were on base at the time.

Dick picked up the win for Hamilton, giving up five hits while Ken May, who gave way to Andy Gionetti in the sixth, was charged with the loss.

Bombers, Esks On Right Foot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Blue Bombers took advantage of a couple of breaks and Edmonton Eskimos went to their most effective offensive weapon—Dave Cutler's toe—to open the Canadian Football League exhibition schedule on winning notes Tuesday night.

The Bombers got an outstanding performance from quarterback Ralph Brock and scored a pair of touchdowns on turnovers to humiliate Saskatchewan Roughriders 41-8 before 18,100 spectators in Winnipeg.

In Edmonton, the Eskimos had an apparent game-winning field-goal in the final two minutes nullified by a penalty but Cutler came back at the end of the play of the game to kick a 27-yard single that produced a 31-30 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Conference.

Saskatchewan scored early and took an 8-0 lead when veterans Ron Lancaster and George Reed were running the show. But it was the only offensive power they exhibited all night as Lancaster and Reed spent almost the entire final three quarters on the bench.

Saskatchewan led 8-6 at the half but in the battle of the back-ups in the second half, it was simply no contest. Brock masterminded two touchdown drives that was the game in the second quarter. He hit Gord Patterson with a 34-yard touchdown pass, then hustled seven yards himself to give Winnipeg a 21-8 lead.

Fullback Phil Polak recovered a fumbled kickoff and carried it 18 yards for a major score and Paul Williams added to Saskatchewan's misery by intercepting Lancaster's pass 105 yards for a touchdown.

Jim Washington gave the Bombers' final touchdown on a punch and rush and rookie Bob Macovirii kicked two field goals and five converts.

Saskatchewan's lone points came on Lancaster's seven-yard strike to Tom Campbell in the first quarter and his pass to Steve Mansfield for the two-point conversion.

In Edmonton, it was the Eskimo veterans, especially Cutler, who carried the load for the defending Western Conference champions.

The West's leading scorer last year demonstrated that his toe is as deadly as ever as he kicked 15 points on four field goals, two singles and a convert.

Tyrone Walls took a six-yard pass from quarterback Tom Wilkinson in the first minute of the second quarter for Edmonton's only touchdown.

Rookie Tom Clements sparked Ottawa in the final quarter with a 19-yard pass to Tony Gabriel and defensive back Lewis Cook ran 41 yards with a pass interception for the Riders' touchdown. Gerry Organ converted both and added two field goals.

Wilkinson, the leading quarterback in the West last season and one of the game's best for dicking opponents offside by bobbing his head, almost cost the Eskimos the game.

Cutler kicked a 40-yard field goal with 1:34 remaining but Wilkinson was called for having Ottawa offside. Cutler's kick from five yards farther back failed.

Back-up quarterback Bruce Lemmerman, who marched the Eskimos into position for the 47-yard field-goal try, came right back when the Eskimos got the ball and hit veteran George McGowan twice to move deep into scoring territory.

Cutler assured the victory when he kicked the ball deep to the deadline.

Cutler – Back at It

Jackson Plans New Wrinkles

HAMILTON (CP) — One of Russ Jackson's first innovative moves as head coach of Toronto Argonauts gets its test tonight when the Argos start their Canadian Football League exhibition schedule against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Jackson says he is looking to take advantage of the new rule that allows for restricted blocking—as opposed to no blocking in previous years—and plans to use three deep backs to handle the punt returns.

In fact, Jackson has schooled two three-man teams which he will experiment with tonight. One team has defensive backs Larry Uteck and Billy Cooper with rookie wide receiver L. J. Clayton. Defensive backs Wayne Allison and Al Charuk join slotback Eric Allen on the other threesome.

Jackson said he also plans to use Allen and Charuk on the kickoff returns as well as running backs Doyle Orange and Randy Walker.

Veteran Mike Rae will start at quarterback but Jackson plans to give newcomers Rick Worley and Bill Bynum a chance in the second half. Veteran Jim Elter will start at quarterback for the Ticats.

And while Jackson will be testing his kick return crews, Ticat coach Jerry Williams says he'll be giving particular attention to his kickers. Ian Sunter appears likely to retain his place-kicking job but rookie Gerald Kunyk, a draft choice from University of Alberta, is fighting Ken Clarke for the punting chores.

Both coaches said they plan to use as many players as possible in the game. "I want to give everybody a fair opportunity to make the club," said Williams.

Record-setting Swede Wants Gold

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Anders Garderud of Sweden slipped his own six-day-old world record by six-tenths of a second in a gruelling 3,000-metre steeplechase race at an international track and field meet Tuesday and said he won't be running for world marks any more.

"It's enough for me now," said the tall, blond Swede after setting a time of eight minutes, 9.8 seconds before a capacity crowd of 20,000 cheering fans.

"From now on I'll be running for victory, that's the most important thing for me. I want to win the gold medal at the Munich Olympics next year. I was that model last night."

Garderud, 29, who beat Kenyan Ben Ajecto's previous two-year-old world record last week in Oslo with a time of 8:10.4, is undoubtedly the hottest man in track for the moment.

But he has never won any of the big honors. He failed in the 1972 Olympics in Munich and had to settle for a silver medal last year at the European championships in Rome, behind Poland's Bronislaw Malkowsky.

Malkowsky, 34 and Gardarud's archrival during the last year, was soundly beaten in the finish here by the Swede but still bettered his national record with a time of 8:12.6.

Joe Sax of Toronto placed eighth in 8:34.4 and Bill Marcotte of Toronto was ninth in 9:06.8.

Gardarud's performance was the highlight of the two-day meet here, despite New Zealander John Walker's excellent 2:12.2 mile Monday, only 1.2 seconds off Tanzanian Filbert Bayi's world mark.

Yvonne Saunders of Toronto was the only Canadian to pick up a gold medal in the two-day meet which ended Tuesday. Twenty-one Canadians took part in the 21-country meet.

Miss Saunders won the 800 metres in 2:02.96, defeating Australia's Charlene Hendina who had a time of 2:03.78, Joan Wennel of Waterloo, Ont., was third in 2:03.88, Maureen Crowley of Vancouver was fourth in 2:04.1 and Abby Hoffman of Toronto sixth in 2:07..

Miss Saunders took the lead in the stretch from Miss Hendina. Miss Wennel got under the Olympic qualifying time for Miss Crowley, missed out by nine-tenths of a second.

Gabriele Hinzmann of East Germany won the women's discus with a throw of 190 feet eight inches. Carol Martin of Thornhill, Ont., was second with a throw of 180 feet and Jane Haist of Montreal wound up third with a toss of 188-5.

Grant McLaren of London, Ont., was fifth in the 5,000-metre event with a time of 13:37.2, qualifying for the Olympics. Emil Putzmann of Belgium won in 13:36.4. John Bennett of Toronto was last in 14:19.02.

Ken Elmer of Vancouver placed fifth in the 1,500 metres with a time of 3:43.8 and John Craig of Toronto ninth. Rolf Gysin of Switzerland took the gold medal with a time of 3:40.5.

Bishop Dolegiewicz of Laval, Que., was fifth with a loss of 192 feet in the men's discus and Ron Rossi of Toronto was eighth with a mark of 180-7. The winning toss was 216-10 by Ludvig Daneck of Czechoslovakia.

John Beers of Burnaby, B.C., leaped seven feet, three-eighths of an inch in the men's high jump, good for fourth place. The winning jump was 7-3 by Rory Kolinek of the United States. Dwight Stone of the U.S., the world record holder at 7-6¼, finished second, clearing 7-1¾.

Claude Ferragne of Montreal was well back with a leap of 6-10, the same as Dean Baack of Vancouver.

Minor Baseball Roundup

Tadpoles Are Big Winners

Close games were not the story in the Tadpole division of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association in recent play.

Elsewhere in Tadpole action Trudeau Motors defeated Belleville Conductors 14-4 and then defeated Legions House Dart League 11-4. The Kinsmen smashed 16 runs to defeat Belleville Conductors 16-2 in their scheduled game.

Jim Wright was the winner in the Trudeau Motors victory over Belleville Conductors. He pounded a homerun proving pitcher can hit too. Derek Fuson helped the cause with a homer while Tony Nelson picked up a pair of hits.

Robert Jones and Jim Wright combined for Trudeau Motors' second win. Wright also went for a homer, a triple and a single at the plate.

The Kinsmen didn't look back as they pounded Belleville Conductors 16-2. Bob Dafoe and Ken Dafoe shared the mound and did well, combining to strike out 14 batters.

Bob was also strong at the plate as he hit a homerun to lead the winners offensive drive.

A and B Precast just edged Bob Rickman 9-8 in Tots action, with Carl Vance earning the victory, given to him by the one run edge of his own homer. Ron Urch also homered for the winners while Sean Doyle had two safeties.

A and B precast picked up another win when they downed Belleville Broadloom 14-8.

Ron Urch took the win for Precast, with assistance from Sean Doyle and Carl Vance, who both hit triples for the winners. Bolton hit a homer for the losers to lead all at the plate.

Retirement Will Wait; Ali to Meet Frazier

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — "I want you like a hog wants slops," Joe Frazier crooned to heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali.

Frazier made this elegant expression of desire after Ali said Tuesday that his eight-day-old retirement announcement was inoperative.

Ali had insisted he was sick of the boxing rat race ("the only thing good about this is the money") and planned to hang up his gloves after disposing of British challenger Joe Bugner. Nobody—except perhaps Ali—seemed to accept that the 33-year-old titleholder was serious.

Within hours after outclassing the 25-year-old Bugner in a 15-round decision victory Tuesday morning, Ali was exchanging more or less friendly insults with Frazier as the publicity campaign got under way for their fight in Manila on Oct. 1.

Promoter Don King has dubbed their third match Super-fight Three. Ali terms it the "thriller in Manila." Frazier hasn't given it a name, promising only to knock Ali's block off.

The Manila fight was expected to have much the same format as Ali vs. Bugner: a mid-morning contest to allow closed-circuit theatre-TV in the United States. The Oct. 1 fight in the Philippine capital will be seen the previous evening in the United States thanks to the international date line.

All fought Bugner outdoors in searching tropical heat. Officials said the temperature was more than 100 degrees in the ring and Bugner blamed the weather for his defeat.

Ali suffered a slight cut above his left eye in the 13th round but it didn't bother him nearly as much as the heat.

Until the seventh round, the fight was fairly even with Bugner scoring with left jabs. But his inability to use his right and Ali's pressuring offence soon took their toll.

In the eighth and ninth rounds, Ali broke through Bugner's peek-a-boo defence with strong head shots. In the 13th and 14th rounds, Ali had Bugner wobbly with body punches. And in the 15th, the champion nearly put the challenger down.

A crowd estimated at 22,000—it looked smaller—watched the fight, for which Ali received $2 million and Bugner $500,000.

It was Ali's third successful defence of the title he regained last fall by knocking out George Foreman in Zaire, and it raised his record as a professional to 40-3. Bugner is 31-7-1.

Burkitt Handcuffs Cooke Trucking 6-0

Dan Burkitt pitched shutout ball for Stirling Men on Saturday in the Stirling and District Softball League, gaining a win over R. D. Cooke Trucking 6-0. The second game saw A and B Precast over Stirling Merchants 5-1.

Burkitt gave up just three hits en route to his win while walking one and sending down 11. R. D. Cooke batters on third strikes.

Greg Dufoe and Robert Vandervoet both pounded homers to lead the victors and Glen Bird had three singles to help the winning cause.

Bob DeJong hit a triple to threaten Burkitts shutout, but his teammates couldn't bring him in.

Ted Sexsmith gave up only one run on three hits to lead Stirling Merchants to a 5-1 victory over Holloway A and B Precast.

Sexsmith came up with nine strikeouts and had his only run scored on him by a homer.

Ken Smith pounded a homer for the winners as did Rick Shorey, while Doug Bolte and Mike Thompson both had two singles to help make the difference for Stirling.

Sigwere Morgan proved to be the big gun for Holloway A and B Precast once again, making a homerun for the only run on the losers' side.

Bonfires Designed To Scare 'Apemen'

The bonfires are not meant to keep away the cold, for the stunty mountain people of the Himalayas have thick woollen shawls to protect them from the sharp wind.

It is the mysterious apemen the Arunachal tribesmen are worried about. Despite government assurances that no such apemen have come to the notice of forest officials, the local peasants believe that a 1,500-year-old legend has come true.

According to the legend of the Apa Tani warrior tribe, "men huge as rocks and tall as trees shall come down from the mountains to establish their own kingdom."

Several peasants claim to have seen the apemen. Leading newspapers like Calcutta Statesman asked their correspondents in Shillong, the biggest city in northeast India and capital of Meghalaya state, to rush to the area and investigate the reports.

So far, no confirmation has come. On the contrary, the Shillong correspondent of the Statesman reported that the apeman just does not exist.

But the local people persist in saying that at least two apemen have been seen in the Khampti forest area.

K. D. Singh, an experienced hunter of the adjoining state of Manipur, says the tribesmen may be right "partly."

Singh claims to have seen an official report in which they are reported references to members of a primitive tribe with huge and hairy bodies.

According to one Bengali-language newspaper, these "apelike" men may belong to a last Himalayan mountain tribe that originally lived in northeast India but moved to the Shan area of Burma near China.

Some years ago, a British expedition investigated reports that a huge aquatic reptile called the Buru was creating terror in one of the mountain lakes of northeast India.

But the Buru was not found. "The apeman report is certainly not a deliberate hoax," said a government official. "The tribals may be mistaken but they do not tell lies. They are the most honest people one can come across."

The Arunachal state administration is said to be willing to permit any expedition to investigate the apeman reports. Normally, outsiders are not allowed to enter the sensitive frontier area adjoining Communist China.

Craps Best Game When You Gamble

RENO, Nev. (AP) — How good are your chances of striking it rich in the casinos? Not very, says Bill Eadington, an economics professor at University of Nevada, who recently compiled statistics on gambling.

Among his findings: for every $100 bet playing roulette over a prolonged period, you'll probably lose at least $6.50. For the same amount bet in Keno, you'll lose $25.

Statistics can be compiled on every aspect of gambling. The most widely used is the "expected loss" factor, a term which indicates how much money will be lost on every bet made.

Craps is the best game to play, according to this type of rating, Eadington said.

The expected loss on this game is 1.5 per cent, meaning that for every $100 bet, the player's loss will be around $1.50, he said.

Baccarat has the next-lowest expected loss figure, w ich is 1.36 per cent. Blackjack, or 21, is hard to judge with statistics because the quality of player must be considered.

Eadington said with a good player, the expected loss may be as low as one or two per cent. "A bad player who does everything wrong could have a loss factor of 10 per cent."

The expected loss on slot machines ranges from five to 25 per cent, depending on how the

"I don't encourage people it gamble, and I don't discourage them. Gambling is a form of entertainment, so people should realize that it's going to cost them money."

Stamps Issued

TOKYO (AP) — Two memorial postage stamps will be issued to honor the Oct. 1-10 visit to the United States by Japan's Emperor Hirohito. One will portray the Japanese flag and American dogwood flowers and the other the American flag and cherry blossoms.

Poorly Equipped Oil Tankers Still Calling at Coastal Ports

OTTAWA (CP) — Poorly-equipped rusting hulks of tankers still slip into East Coast ports, every voyage increasing the chances of another major oil spill, says an expert in oil-cleanup operations.

Dr. P. D. McTaggart-Cowan, appointed by Ottawa to mop up after the Arrow spill in Nova Scotia five years ago, briefings as he talks about these ships, most from "flags of convenience" fleets.

Owners register the ships in countries such as Liberia to get around higher standards imposed by the major maritime powers on the men and equipment of their national fleets.

"The sloppiness in tanker operations still is there," he said, adding that the federal government should be doing more to cut down the odds on future oil spills.

An inquiry into the grounding of the Liberian-registered Arrow in Chedabucto Bay during the winter of 1970 put the blame on human negligence rather than equipment failure.

But the inquiry also found that the ship's radar and echo sounder were not working, her grey compass was off by a few degrees and she was travelling up the bay at a rate of 13 knots in a severe storm.

About half the Arrow's cargo of 12 million gallons of bunker oil spewed into the bay, covering about 125 miles of rocky shoreline. Only about 30 miles of beach could be cleaned, the rest had to be left to weather away.

Despite that spill, the worst so far in Canada, and subsequent tightening of the Canada Shipping Act, poorly-equipped tankers continue to call at coastal ports.

The act now gives the ministry of transport the power to stop such ships at the 15-mile limit, barring them from Canadian waters.

South African Produces Rain

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — A South African businessman is outdoing the witchdoctors at their own game. He appears to be able to produce rain at will.

The rainmaker, from Johannesburg, watched closely by Africans who have come to regard certain months of the year as sure to be dry.

Even teams playing the hallowed game of Rugby, normally accustomed to ground more like concrete than grass, are having to come to grips with the sort of conditions they might expect in wetter parts of the world.

The rainmaker is a 63-year-old professional man of apparent high standing in South Africa. His activities are known to the government's department of water affairs and to Sir Edward Teller, the British atomic scientist who watched an experiment here last year.

But the rainmaker wants to remain anonymous. According to the one South African journalist who has met him, he dislikes publicity and, as a religious man, is deeply concerned about tampering with nature.

The journalist, James Clarke of Johannesburg Star, has watched six experiments and on each occasion rain has fallen on the appointed day.

MAKE THE MOST OF HOME GROWN PRODUCE

Nature has been kind to us this year, and if fine weather continues we can count on unusually good crops of home grown produce from now until the frost. Home grown fruit, berries, and vegetables, when properly prepared to make full use of the flavour, are tastier than market - and can, jam, pickle and freeze for the cold months ahead. At the same time, watch prices of commercially canned and frozen products. You can sometimes see very advantageous buys as processors prepare to can or freeze the new crops.

We're happy to offer suggestions for doing down fruit and vegetables at home. Our home economist and experienced canners alike will appreciate our free booklet on safe canning available free from Information Branch, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Foods, Parliament Buildings, Toronto. Costly Operation Forces Increase in Hockey Fee

It might be 86 degrees, excuse me, I meant to say 30 degrees celsius, outside, but inside the meetings of Belleville Minor Hockey, it is still nippy. Or, if it isn't, it should be.

At the most recent get-together of the association's executive, a budget was devised for the upcoming hockey season.

If you're sitting down, here are some figures to toss around. The estimated cost of operation for the 1975-76 fiscal year is $27,000. And that's not the choker. The biggest portion of the budget, which you've likely already guessed, was taken up by ice-rental costs. That was rounded off to $42,000. (Last year's entire operating costs only amounted to $43,000.)

Want to know something else that'll make you gag? The $7 grand is only the cost of operating the Belleville Minor Hockey Association house league teams. The 13 all-star squads, which participate in the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, are a completely separate matter.

If you're still around; minor hockey will be working on a deficit budget of over $28,000.

It is estimated that approximately $29,000 of the big $7 will come from registration fees.

You guessed it. The individual registration cost per child has been raised from $12 to $15 with a proportional increase to $17 in 1976.

However, believe it or not, they are not as bad as last season. If you recall, for 1974-75 the individual registration cost was jacked from $8 to $12. And the cost of ice-rental went from $17 to $21 an hour. This season, the city has only boosted it to $23 — just $2 an hour more and registration fee only up $3.

Gary Donavan, fine young goalie with Belleville Olympic Soccer Club, Ontario Premier Soccer League and member of the Soccer Association, has been selected to play for Ontario Under 21 team.

It's quite an honor for the local athlete and serves to point up the quality of young soccer players now developed in the Bay of Quinte area.

On the weekend, the Eastern Ontario Under 21 team, with Donavan and another Olympic, halfback Bruce Mole of Brighton, in the lineup, took the bronze medals for finishing third in tournament play at Toronto. Both players played in all their team's games and Mole scored a goal from his midfield position.

It's getting down to very close to zero hour for organizers of the seventh annual Belleville and Hastings Bantam Tournament opening Friday with play continuing Saturday and Sunday. And there's only one flaw in the well organized event.

Nothing that can't be overcome, you understand.

All that is needed is a few more volunteers to take in players from some of the visiting teams.

Both teams were without their regular starters, Sandra Clause and Norma McQuarrie respectively.

Sharon Francis had a homer, three singles and a triple for Ellis. Joan Barhastock came up with a double and a homer for the winners. Evylena Hill homered as did Verna Hill, Donna Brant and the other hits were spread out among the team.

99 Blasts Thurlow

Belleville Legion "99" decided to prepare themselves for the Golden Bat Tournament by taking a win over Thurlow 13-1, Tuesday in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association Bantam action.

John Dent tripled, doubled and singled twice for the winners while Charlie Doran hemmered and had a triple and a single to add to the victors' attack.

The next Belleville game will be at Centennial against Port Hope on Thursday at 6.30 p.m.

Also in Pewee action Thurlow Flames Concrete defeated Peterborough 8-6 on Monday night.

SETS RECORD

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Bulgaria's Hristo Plachkov set a world weightlifting record Monday when he lifted 418 pounds in the snatch event, 11 pounds more than the record held by Vasili Alexejev, the Soviet Union's well and Olympic champion.

REJOINS ROSTER

CHICAGO (AP) — Terry Forster has returned to Chicago White Sox 25-man active roster after being on the disabled list since May 23. Forster will start at left fielder Dick Colaccio who suffered a severe ankle injury on Sunday's game against Oakland A's when he fell after crossing first base.

Ready for Golden Bat

Lefties by the Number On Legion 99 Squad

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

There probably isn't a baseball coach in the province of Ontario that doesn't crave a strong left-hander. Every team that's anything has to have one southpaw to face those intimidating left-handed batters in clutch situations.

However, Mark McDonell, coach of the Legion 99 ranters, has found himself in quite a unique, but dismal position. Of the three starting hurlers in his ball-pen, not one is a right-hander.

Peter Mandeville, Rory Radford and Steve Carr are all lefties and, though all are capable, of doing fine jobs they, naturally, have problems against right-handed batters.

"If anything is going to hold us back in the Golden Bat," said McDonell, "it will be the fact that we don't have a solid right-hander."

As McDonnell said, they don't have a solid right-hander, but they do have a right-hander. And he could very really be his best right-handed bantam pitcher in the province, once he returns to form.

The right-hander McDonnell refers to is Ken Revoy. A second year player who struggled much last season because of an injury caused in hockey, year-old. But his hockey injury has set back his pitching. He didn't pitch at all last year and this year his longest stint is five innings. That five innings was against Fletcher-Gough, a powerhouse of the EOBA, and Revoy literally fenced their otherwise resounding bats.

"We've used him sparingly in regular season action," said McDonnell, "but during the Golden Bat we intend to give him a good shot."

"We'll find out if he's ready tonight," he added. In tonight's EOBA game, Belleville takes on Trenton, one of the strong points in this weekends Golden Bat.

Even if Ken isn't ready to throw that doesn't limit his importance to the club. The lanky young man is not only one of the best right-handed pitchers in the EOBA, he is probably one of the best hitters, in any age group, anywhere. While strength pulls him through on the mound, his ability at the plate is a-

MAC McDONNELL

Revoy is capable of bursting up his team's bantam division in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association, if he is healthy. He is a big hitter, a big boy, at his age (15), Ken carries the arms of a 21-year-old. But his hockey injury has set back his pitching. He didn't pitch at all last year and this year his longest stint is five innings. That five innings was against Fletcher-Gough, a powerhouse of the EOBA, and Revoy literally silenced their otherwise resounding bats.

Barrett is Big News At the Canadian Meet

By TOM GAVEY

Four Weightlifters from the Apollo Barbell Club participated and did justice to their months of training.

In the lightweight division, Ron Hayes finished an impressive fourth in the overall totals according to official standards set reviewed.

He gained the position by lifting 198 pounds in the snatch and 275 pounds in the clean and jerk for a 473 pound total.

He snatched 253 pounds and

PAUL BARRETT

355 pounds in the clean and jerk competition. That gave him a 578 pound total and was good for a silver medallion.

The other two representatives of Belleville didn't have the luck along with them, as Art and Gary Walt middle heavyweights, both ended up out of the competition.

Art was almost good all of his snatches and was eliminated from the rest of the Championship.

Gary Walt lifted 296 in the snatch and looked as he was going to a fine showing when he recovered his leg and also had to leave the competition.

"Art and Gary are a pair of hard-luck weightlifters, I'm proud of them. They are good at the Championships," he said.

POLE SIDELINED

BOSTON (AP) — Right-hander Dick Pole of Boston Red Sox suffered a fractured right cheekbone Monday when he was struck by a line drive off the bat of Tony Muser of Baltimore Orioles in the first game of an American League baseball doubleheader. He will be sidelined for a period of weeks," a spokesman said.

DISPUTE SETTLED

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry O'Brien, National Basketball Association commissioner, said on Monday that Buffalo Braves coach Jack Ramsay and New York Knicks' have resolved their dispute over the Knicks' signing of Eddie Donovan as general manager, and a pending lawsuit between the Braves and Donovan would be withdrawn. He said the matter was closed and all parties were "very happy" about a mutual discussion with respect to it.

DEVELOPER SUED

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves said Tuesday that outfielder-first baseman Bob Bailey has been optioned to Oklahoma City 89ers, a Texas League farm club to make room on the National League baseball club's roster for pitcher Tom Dal Canton, acquired on waivers Monday from Kansas City Royals of the American League.

Lack of Timely Hits Fatal to McDonald's

TORONTO — Belleville McDonald ptchers should start using their batters for non-support. The way things went here, Tuesday night against the Waxman Globals in Ontario Fastball League action, they'd win, hands down.

Actually, the Macs did get five hits off Toronto pitcher Reg Barlow, but none of them scored a run. The final score was Toronto 2, Belleville 0.

Starter Ted Waite got into early trouble when John Barrowski doubled and went to third on a Belleville error. To make things worse, Mike Thompson tripled and went in on another Belleville blunder to make the score 2-0, which is the way it stayed throughout the game.

Belleville can't say they didn't have their chances, as the bases were loaded in the fifth inning but nothing going across. In the seventh Macs had two men on and couldn't take advantage.

As usual there was the late inning rally to win, when Carl Boomhower tripled with two out. Pinch Harrison came up and hit what looked like a sure homer. Unfortunately for Belleville the Toronto centerfielder made a fantastic over the shoulder catch for the third and final out of the game.

As was expected, John Barbowski was the big gun for Toronto, with a double and two singles for a perfect night at the plate.

Martin wen all the way for the Globals, striking out three batters, while giving up five hits and walking two batters. Jim Chase relieved Waite in the second inning and gave up two hits and two walks while striking out four Toronto batters.

Tonight in Belleville the Macs play the Oshawa Tony's team in the province's 300 ball against so far and this add be their chance to make a really good showing in the doubleheader at the Alemite.

Oshawa brings with them Paul Wannamaker, Wayne Colley and Barry Timbers though, and Harold Reid has called for an extra hour of batting practice for all the Macs.

Devolin Team Haunted By One-run Losses

When you only give up three hits you expect to win the game, but that wasn't so Tuesday night in Quinte Fastball League action as Devolin Motors and Don Ross Holoway had to settle for a 2-1 loss at the hands of Howard and Robert. In the second game of the doubleheader Bardon Supplies defeated Borabeck Real Estate 5-2.

Holoway gave up just three safeties all night but also walked five batters, giving up one in the third and the sixth.

Rick Graham doubled for Howard and Robert to drive in the winning run, while Dave Skelton and David Rathwell both singled to account for the H and R hitting.

Ralph Plante led Devolin with a triple and two singles while Holoway had a double and a single.

Leo St. Denis had two triples and a single, while Keith Stacey hit two singles for the winning team.

On Monday in earlier OFL action Bardon Supplies played a 2-1 nailbiter with Devolin and took the win. In the second game of that doubleheader at the Alemite the Juniors defeated Angers Hess West 7-1.

Ken DeMille gave up six hits and a walk for Bardon but only one run came across as he struck out four errors to the victory.

Don Holoway took another close loss, giving on five hits and two walks while sending eight Bardon batters down on third strike.

Stacey had the best night at the plate for Bardon with a double and a single while Wannacuder and Don Noble both singled.

Bob Swan and Jamie Hunter pitched for Asgers's, giving up eight hits and two walks while striking out three.

Brian Turner was tops for the Juniors with a homer and a triple, while Ken Vee had two singles to aid the winners. Asger's top batter was Brian Carlery with a triple and a single while Daryl Carlery came up with a single, as did pitcher Hunter.

A's Tie Painters 4-4

The Ameliasburg A's and J. Goode Painters played to a 4-4 tie on Monday night in Quinte Edward North Slow-Pitch League play. Bayview Orchards trampled Frankford Place 19-4.

Harold Werkhoven and Garry Evely threw for Ameliasburg, with eight hits given up and two walks while striking out two.

Larry Waite and Neil Goyer threw the J. Goode Painters tie, giving up nine hits combined along with four walks and one strikeout.

For the A's Murray Macale tripled and Bob Morris had a single and a round trip shot.

J. Goode saw good hitting from Tom Bentley with a triple and Barry Dafoe, Harold Babcock and Rod Salter all doubled.

Bayview pitchers Dennis Bell and Don Bunter couldn't complain, as they won 19-4, giving up 10 hits and a walk in the game as well as 8 batters.

Chris Miller and Robin Seiler max took the loss, giving up 17 hits and five walks while striking out four.

Regina Police Improve Relations with Natives

REGINA (CP) — When Albert Huget retired in 1972 as RCMP assistant commissioner and became chief of the Regina police department, one thing he wanted to do was develop a better relationship between policemen and native people.

That was 2½ years ago. Now the 55-year-old chief says a positive relationship between natives and the force is being established.

One sergeant is responsible for public relations and semi-says while another patrols a residential area dominated by native people.

But the chief says he hopes to expand the program.

The white patrolman has had a good reception, walking the streets day and night, visiting schools and handling problems that the native people bring him.

However, chief Huget says the problem of racial discrimination remains, with police having to deal with fights between natives and whites in bars and parking lots.

The incidence of discrimination may be higher in the Saskatchewan capital than elsewhere, Chief Huget says, because the native population is higher—about 14 per cent of the city's population of 148,200.

Many of the natives are poor, he says, representing the visible poverty pockets in an affluent city.

Chief Huget, who spends much of his free time reading history and biographies, says he finds his city police job more personal and emotional that the senior ranks of the RCMP. When he first arrived in Regina he talked about community involvement in policing—words he now considers largely rhetoric.

Citizens may be behind the police force 100 per cent, he says, but that's not meaningful in terms of their relations with themselves.

Before Chief Huget's arrival, the Regina force was the subject of a municipal inquiry which found it tended to use more violence than necessary and employed members whose morale was low. Chief Huget says that image has changed.

People generally are showing more empathy for policemen and are joining in the cry for capital punishment, tighter bail control and tougher sentencing.

Chief Huget says the Regina force is reacting to some of Canada's more spectacular crimes with development of a special team to deal with snipers.

Instead of a large force converging on a sniper, a small, well-disciplined group of men trained to do specific jobs will be used, working with a set list of approaches.

Chief Huget says he is considering development of a hostage-negotiation team to work closely with the sniper team and use training in psychology to establish a profile of the gunman in an effort to find the right approach to use.

Tubular Weaving Is Something Else

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)— Most weavers are content to make flat articles such as blankets and place mats, but Joanne Scantlebury, a Charlottetown artisan, says this is not for her.

Joanne says she likes to experiment with tubular weaving a technique which requires stuffing with torelyne to complete the final product.

A perfect example is her "hotdog" couch" a 5½-foot long woven mini-cheterfield which looks like a hotdog in a bun, complete with onion and relish trimmings.

The talented young weaver has been giving her first one-artist showing at the Handcraft Training Centre here. It has 40 of her best "experiments," including the couch and a padded swing on loan from the permanent collection of the Confederation Centre Art Gallery.

There also are six hand-tooled leather boxes and bottles and a ceramic piece.

Joanne is from a crafts-oriented family.

"As long as I can remember," she said, "we have had a store selling craft and hobby supplies. In that kind of atmosphere and with a father who is a commercial artist. It was natural for me to become interested in design and various types of crafts."

She has several demonstrations in macrame to her credit but said:

"I don't want to be an instructor, at least not for a long, long time. I want to try to make a living from my weaving."

She is seldom out of sight of her loom. In the summer she weaves at her shop, The Three Cloughs in Olde Charlottetown. There's another loom at home, which ups up any spare evening hours.

Depressed Patients Often Cured

HALIFAX (CI) — Depression, a condition prevalent in today's fast society, is not as depressing as it sounds.

Dr. Harry Poulos, medical director of the Nova Scotia Hospital, says between 85 and 90 per cent of depressed patients referred to the hospital are cured.

Some treatment involves the administering of anti-depressant drugs. These cause the body to produce its own deficient chemical in larger quantities and the system becomes balanced once again, he said.

Dr. Poulos, in an interview, outlined various symptoms experienced by the depressed person. These include loss of sleep, appetite and energy and in some cases a general feeling of malaise.

Citing statistics in Nova Scotia, Dr. Poulos said nearly 4,000 patients were admitted to the 500-bed hospital in 1974 while an additional 4,000 were treated on an out-patient basis.

Dr. Poulos said the average length of stay for those patients admitted has been dramatically reduced but, conversely, the number of patients has increased substantially since 1968.

About 320 beds in 26 units are occupied at all times, usually for a period of less than 30 days.

IN MEMORIAM

ANDERSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Stanley Jellicoe Anderson, who passed away July 2, 1970.
Though my eyes are not yet glistening,
And my face is not always sad,
There is never a day I don't think of you
And I do not think of the love we had.
For in my heart I still love and miss you.
—Always remembered by wife Bernice and sons Rodger and James.

SPINELLI — In loving memory of a dear son Wayne Spinelli, who passed away July 2, 1972.
Time will pass but memories miss him,
Sadly we see his empty place.
Lonely is our home without him,
Empty our hearts, no longer his place.
—Ever loved by Mom and Dad.

SPINELLI — In loving memory of a dear brother Wayne Spinelli, who passed away July 2, 1972.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always dear to us you were.
Thinking days, dear brother,
We do not think of you.
—Ever fondly your sister Fave, Fern, Sherry and Gail.

COULTER — In loving memory of a dear husband and father John Smiley Coulter who passed away July 2, 1973.
Memory drifts to scenes long past,
Time, but memories last.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Leaves memories and heartaches all.
—Lovingly missed and lovingly remembered by wife Ethel, son and family and daughter Jean and family.

PEARSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Charles Pearson, who passed away on July 2, 1972.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Gone is the hand we held in ours,
The kind heart for sorrow or speech,
But we live for that thought to reach.
Sadly missed by those who once was here,
But who though absent is just as dear.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Myrtle and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to extend my sincere thanks to Dr. Hodge and staff, Dr. Wilson and staff, Dr. Ashton and orderlies on third floor for their kind care. Thanks for visits from relatives, friends and neighbors, for their visits, cards and flowers. Thank you. — Arthur W. Brough.

This west side location is ideally located in relation to schools of all grades. Select a plan and have us price it for you. We will visit you in your own home to assist with all details including financing.

EVER POPULAR HILTON
No one house is selected as often as the Hilton. Maybe it's because it has almost everything and at an affordable price. Master bedroom is above average size. Dining ell is longer than most. There is a den or fourth bedroom on the main level. Attractive entrance foyer comparable to many larger homes. Built in garage.

YEAR OF THE CONDOMINIUM
That is what this year seems to be. We are being deluged with orders. So much so that Belleville is 12% sold, Trenton is 8% sold, Port Hope 100% sold, Cobourg 86% sold. All these people can't be wrong. With the $1,500.00 grant to help and sub sidized monthly payments as low as $60.00 you may be wrong if you don't act now! No excuse not to own your home.

Unemployment Down

Canada's unemployment rate dropped slightly to 7.1 per cent in May, down from 7.2 per cent in April.

Statistics Canada reported that the rate was still the highest since July 1961. The number of jobless was down 714,000 from 795,000 in April. (CP Newsmap)

Hard Times Shrinking Middle-class Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A year after Juan Peron's death, his widow and his party still are in power in Argentina, but his dreams of a new prosperity are lost in economic chaos.

Even by government figures inflation went up 80 per cent in the last year. Gasoline now costs 13 times what it sold for in June, 1973, and in that period many real estate values have quintupled. Some items, such as toilet paper and toilet paper, often aren't available at any price.

For the first time in decades there may be real poverty in this country with immense agricultural and industrial potential. Hard times are shrinking the middle class.

The resulting dissatisfaction poses a threat to the constitutional government, although few are taking seriously the increasing talk of a possible coup d'etat. Elections aren't scheduled until 1977.

Economy Minister Celestino Rodrigo, the third man in the job since Isabel Peron took power on her husband's death last July 1, ordered drastic measures.

The peso was devalued by half against the United States dollar. Fuel, electricity and public service rates were raised up to 180 per cent.

Mrs. Peron appealed recently to workers to avoid sporadic strikes and slowdowns which have crippled production.

But her only specific move was to raise the minimum wage by 45 per cent to 3,300 pesos monthly (119 at the new rate of exchange). She left to individual unions to bargain for mid-year raises and conflicts continued across the country.

A worker earning 3,300 pesos cannot afford four full tanks of gas for a standard-size car. The monthly minimum wage is about equal to the price of a good suit off the rack.

Printing presses churn out so much money that inflation in circulation has increased 300 per cent in two years, but production has dropped instead of rising to absorb it.

The Argentine peso was worth 10 to the dollar only just over a year ago. Now the official rate is 30 to one, but black marketeers will pay more than 60 pesos for each dollar.

Flourishing black markets, illegal pricing techniques and smuggling have created a "parallel economy" — which bankers say amounts to perhaps as much activity as the legal, visible one.

Strikes, slowdowns and absences have hit virtually every industry. In February, Fe de Motor Co. produced one complete car off an assembly line that normally finishes 4,000 units a month.

Foreign reserves, 2 billion in 1973, are down to about 700 million against a foreign debt estimated at 7.5 billion.

The trade surplus, 1 billion two years ago, only could reach 500 million this year — non-half what is needed just to pay interest on the national debt. And the government wants more loans.

Unrest has reached the ranches.

Argentina's traditional source of wealth, when 100,000 cattlemen locked their gates for a short period last month to protest price policies and official restrictions.

The Peronist movement has become firmly conservative. Some opponents call it fascist. Left-wing activism has been excised from the government, the universities, the arts and the streets.

Although authorities have promised to investigate the right-wing death squad known as the Argentina Anti-Communist Alliance (AAA), no arrests have ever been announced despite more than 100 murders linked to the group.

Peronist power has swung to Social Welfare Minister Jose Lopez Rega, private secretary to both Perons, who as virtual prime minister has put his personal stamp on much of what is done in the government.

If Lopez Rega has enemies, he also has supporters among Argentines who consider him a tough-minded operator capable of providing some stability in the many-sided Peronist movement.

The 44-year-old Mrs. Peron herself has stayed out of the limelight except for periodic speeches appealing to Argentines to work for the national greatness which Peron promised.

She often warns against foreign interests which she says are behind terrorism and economic manipulation.

Mrs. Peron lives surrounded by machine-guns and steel, rarely venturing away from her official quarters or from her well-protected beach retreat south of here. She has made no trips abroad since taking office.

Interior Minister Alberto Rocamora was reported to have told legislators last month that 1,700 incidents of terrorism were counted since May 25, 1973, when the Peronists returned to power. He gave no breakdown.

No Sure Things in BISL

Surprises have been the name of the game in Belleville Industrial League action recently.

On Tuesday night The Intelligencer defeated Canadian Tire by a whopping 17-3 score. Black Diamond upset Post Office 5-0 in the other league game.

Three pitchers hurled the win for the Intelligencer. Dave Feeney, Jim McKay and Ron Culloden, combining to give up eight hits, eight walks and strike out three.

Ron Prest took the loss for Canadian Tire, giving up 14 hits and five walks while striking out three.

Kevin Andrews led the Intell attack with a triple and a homer. Tony Gonzalves had three singles while Maurice Switzer singled and tripled. Glynn Reynolds had two singles and a double and Fred Bickle singled and doubled.

John French tripled and singled for the losing cause, while Ed Kelly and Prest had two singles each.

It was a close game with Rick Sullivan and Joe Scanlon combining for the 6-5 win. They gave up six hits, three walks and struck out three.

Kerik gave up eight hits, no walks and struck out six for the losers.

Joe Clark singled three times to lead UIC to the victory, while Mike Terris singled and cranked a homer.

The Lenders took their first win of the season over Independents 13-6 with Herm Van Dallen pitching the victory.

Van Dallen gave up seven hits and seven walks while striking out two and tripling in his win.

Greg Bellis, Earl Colten and Paul Trumpour shared the loss giving up 10 hits and five walks while striking out eight.

Meads took a sporaker from CNRA 3-2 with Harold Wilkinson picking up the win giving up four hits and three walks with one strikeout.

Brian Plumbe took the loss giving up five walks and one free pass while setting down five batters on third strikes.

Reg Bennett singled twice for the winners to lead them at the plate.

The CNR hits were spread out among the team with Junior Day getting two doubles for the only extra base hits.

33,000 Watch?

TORONTO (CP) — Closed-circuit television of Monday's heavyweight title fight drew 33,000 customers to 10 Canadian locations, a spokesman for All-Canada Sports, the promoter, said Monday. Gate receipts were greatest in Toronto, where 7,300 paid $50,000 to watch the fight at Maple Leaf Gardens. Other crowd estimates were 5,000 in Montreal, 3,500 in Halifax 2,000 each in Ottawa, Quebec City and Edmonton, 2,500 each in Calgary and Vancouver, 2,000 in Sydney, N.S., and 1,500 in Moncton, N.B.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dizzy Gillespie brought his puffed-out cheeks and upward-bent trumpet to the Newport Jazz Festival Tuesday night and proved once again he's a master of the cool sound in jazz.

Gillespie gave a thoroughly professional performance and was warmly received by an enthusiastic capacity crowd which wouldn't let him off the stage until he did an encore. The encore, Night in Tunisia, was a Gillespie classic played with gusto.

PORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A circuit court judge has given Bobby Gleason, comedian Jackie Gleason's estranged wife, seven days to leave their country club house.

Judge Robert Tyson issued the order after Gleason said it was impossible for him to entertain in the dwelling near the Inverrary golf and tennis centre. Under an agreement reached Monday, he is required to live in the house.

Gleason said his wife insulted his guests or invited her own friends to the house without telling him.

Gleason, who filed for divorce a year ago, was ordered to increase his temporary alimony payments to $750 from $500 a month.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Roy Clark was released Tuesday from St. Thomas Hospital where he had been undergoing treatment for pneumonia. Clark was admitted to the hospital last week. The 42-year-old singer is one of the stars of the Hee-Haw television program, produced in Nashville.

The 29-year-old recording and television star and Allman, 27, a singer and songwriter with The Allman Brothers, were whisked away in a limousine immediately after the ceremony and refused to speak with reporters.

The marriage was Cher's second and Allman's third.

Sonny and Cher were divorced in Santa Monica, Calif., after a Superior Court judge agreed to her suit that the marriage be dissolved on the grounds of irreconcilable differences. The custody of their five-year-old daughter, Chastity, still is to be decided.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Thursday, July 3

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Enthusiasm reigns supreme for you today. You'll be a go-getter in things that tend to benefit you materially.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Set up goes today. You're in control. Even if push turns to shove, you'll retain the leader's role.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You function best as a loner today. If there's something important to accomplish, get away from outside influences.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Associate with friends who are on the same level of your mind and will inspire you to greater heights.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Events are stirring today that will have a profound effect and lead you to set your sights on a singular, lofty goal.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will come up with a fresh approach. It will win persons to your way of thinking who've vigorously resisted your ideas before.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Someone you've been associated with in a past endeavor will come to you with an interesting new proposition. Hear him out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) A bold ally you've won over to your cause will be needed in a delicate situation today. You can depend on him at usual.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) This will be a very productive day for you. Puzzle pieces that were missing will fall into place. You can put it all together.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) Be firm with those under your supervision today. If you need to apply stern measures or strict orders, don't hesitate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You should get a good start on some necessary repair work at home. Don't worry about completing it. Do that tomorrow.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You've been neglecting a matter that you need to communicate about. Get on it today. You'll have your answer soon.

Thumb-suckers Need Diversions

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a three-year-old daughter who sucks her thumb. About six or eight months ago I tried using a preparation on her thumb to discourage this. It worked temporarily, then she started watching her pants. Her father is now trying scolding, but this only works when he is around.

It wouldn't bother me so much, but she sucks her thumb day and night, and it is changing the shape of it. Can you help.—Mrs. C.W.

If the effect on her thumb is what is bothering you, you needn't worry. The thumb will recover nicely as soon as she stops. The teeth may be another matter.

Thumb-sucking should be discouraged because some authorities believe it can cause dental disturbances. This is especially true if the sucking continues after permanent teeth have emerged.

But in a three-year-old the term "discourage" shouldn't be confused with the word "forbid."

Often, and as you have learned, an overly stern approach—threats, calling, scolding—is counterproductive and can even produce other compensating habits, perhaps less desirable, as in your daughter's bed-wetting. Incidentally, the bed-wetting may not necessarily be related to emotional factors, or even to the thumb-sucking, and you should not assume this automatically. Bed-wetting can be caused by other, physical factors.

In the persistent thumb-sucker, it is usually best (especially at her age) to back off a while and take an understanding approach. I am not 100 per cent sold, incidentally, on the preparations, gloves, or other devices intended to discourage the habit.

There are more subtle methods you can use. Tots seem to develop certain patterns to their thumb-sucking. You may notice the most intense episodes coming in such situations as when they are being read to. You can turn this to advantage, perhaps, by allowing her to hold the picture book and turn the pages for you as you read.

Tots often turn to thumb-sucking in contemplative situations, as when engrossed in watching mother perform a certain chore, or while watching TV. If you use your imagination, you can find other little things to divert her from sucking in such situations.

The idea is to give the child something more productive to do with her hands. When they are occupied they do not practice the habit.

Many youngsters suck their thumbs out of what adults call boredom. If the sucking has followed weaning and has continued, the underlying motivation is usually a desire to hold onto the pleasant sensation associated with nursing. If it begins spontaneously, long after weaning, then things such as anxiety can be suspected.

In either case, a gentle, sensible, non-forceful approach is desirable. The chances are she will soon find some substitute for whiling away her waking hours.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is procitis? What causes it, and what can be done for it?—C.H.

This is an inflammation of the rectal membranes. It is often traceable to a specific cause, such as nonspecific dysentery, or to ulcerative colitis.

Artificial Lens Restores Eyesight

MONTREAL (CP) — Only two weeks after Julian Nathan had had an artificial lens implanted in her eye, she was able to drive a car and read the fine print in newspapers—with even better vision than she had before developing a cataract.

She had undergone an operation which was a modification of the traditional technique for the removal of cataracts.

Developed in recent years by a small group of international eye specialists, the operation was first performed somewhat fully in Canada by Montreal ophthalmologist Dr. Marvin Kwitko almost 10 years ago. The first transplant in a human had been preceded by several years of animal research.

While the new technique still is controversial, Dr. Kwitko said in an interview, "it is gaining recognition as a promising method for treating cataract patients."

However, said the Montreal eye specialist, the operation cannot be performed in all cases where vision is impaired by cataracts.

He suggested patients should consult with their own eye surgeon who will advise them because this method now is performed in several Canadian medical centres.

Cataracts pose one of the major problems as people become older. The lens—that part of the eye which focuses the rays of light and allows a person to see — eventually becomes opaque.

The standard operation removes the cataract but leaves the patient with limited vision which must be corrected by heavy cataract glasses or tiny contact lenses implanted in the cut for older people to manipulate.

In the new operation, after the cloudy lens is removed it is replaced with a small irregular made of a special form of hard plastic, centering to the eye the vision it had before the cataract developed.

To be assured of maximum success the new lens is hand-made and placed in a tissue culture for three months to test for acceptance or rejection.

Until several years ago, the lens transplant technique still was experimental and Dr. Kwitko would do operations only if it was completely impossible for the patient to wear glasses or contact lenses.

Early research into the operation began in Holland in 1949 by Dr. Cornelius Binkhorst and grew into a co-operative study with ophthalmologists in England, South Africa, the Soviet Union, the United States and Canada.

A small international organization of these eye surgeons meets every two years to discuss advances in the field of cataract surgery.

While Coolidge Slept Congress Killed Veto

WASHINGTON (CP)—When Calvin Coolidge completed six years as president of the United States in 1928, he was awarded the dubious distinction by commentators of being the man who slept more than any other in the illustrious office.

But while Coolidge slept—reputedly for 13 hours a day—the rest of America went on a grand spree before the big bust.

Babe Ruth and Jack Dempsey became the superstars of sport. Al Capone had begun floating to the top of the criminal world on a wave of bootleg liquor. F. Scott Fitzgerald wrote the Great Gatsby and the U.S. Congress, after a period of dangerous inactivity, displayed its muscle.

It did so by reviving the constitutional right of the Senate and House of Representatives to overturn the president's veto on virtually any piece of legislation passed by Congress.

On a single day early in 1928, the last year Coolidge was in office, the required two-thirds majority in both houses overrode three presidential vetoes in succession, a record which has never been surpassed.

Coolidge was unmoved.

For his predecessors and successors in office, however, the sight of Congress to knock down a veto and pass a bill into law against the president's wishes has been a constant source of concern and often of irritation. It also serves as one of the chief measures of a president's strength and ability to lead.

The case of President Ford is often cited as a prime example. In his first four months of office, after taking over from Richard Nixon Aug. 9, 1974, he saw four of his 13 vetoes overridden and to much of the outside world he appeared as a weak and somewhat ineffectual leader.

But in the few weeks he has successfully defied three major congressional attempts to overrule his vetoes and his standing abroad, partly because of this, has improved markedly.

The Times of London, for example, recently commented: "Mr. Ford's latest successes in dealing with the Congress must be seen as an indication that he should no longer be looked on as a lame-duck president."

The veto system itself is an often-misunderstood practice peculiar to the U. S. and some Latin American countries with presidential forms of government.

Under the U.S. system, the president has the right to disallow any act passed by Congress but his veto, in turn, can be overridden by a two-thirds majority in both the House and the Senate and the act then becomes law without a presidential signature but with the full force of any other legislation.

It is used most often in cases when the president belongs to a different party than the one which dominates Congress, as now is the case with the Democrats holding roughly two-thirds of the Senate and House seats with a Republican in the White House.

During the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, for example, when the president belonged to the dominating Democratic party in Congress, there was not a single instance when a presidential veto was overridden.

But the difficulties facing Ford are obvious from the congressional standings and his latest exercises in arm-twisting and arguing to break up Democrat-led assaults on his vetoes are nothing if not impressive.

In the 435-seat House, the Democrats have 288 members and the Republicans 144 with two seats vacant. In the 100-seat Senate, there are 60 Democrats against 37 Republicans, with two members who are independent of both parties and one seat where conflicting claims of two candidates still are being adjudicated.

Virtually the only way a president can avoid the danger of a veto override is by using a loophole known as the pocket veto, a system which the late Harry Truman once called "the last damn refuge when Congress digs its heels in."

This can be used when Congress sends a number of bills to the president at the end of a session. Under the constitution, the president must sign the bills into law within 10 days. But if Congress adjourns in that time without a signing, the bills are effectively lost and with them, the chance to take further action.

One of the reasons a president often feels compelled to use the veto arises when a bill, even one he has asked for himself, arrives on his desk from Congress with a string of amendments attached which he finds unacceptable.

In such cases, he must accept or reject the whole package, according to law, and the lesser of two evils may sometimes appear to be a veto.

Meanwhile, Ford's success—or lack of it—in having any future vetoes upheld may prove to be one of the most closely-watched indicators of his likely fate in the run-up to the 1976 election.

Henry's Last Queen

Catherine Parr's Castle Is Now Tourist Attraction

WINCHCOMBE, England (CP) — Catherine Parr, twice a widow before her marriage to Henry VIII, managed to survive the monarch and had a secret marriage after he died. Now her home in this southern England community is a tourist attraction.

In 1548 she secretly married Sir Thomas Seymour. She had been about to marry him when Henry decided to marry her instead. Henry's wishes overrode her own preference.

Her marriage to Seymour soon became public knowledge and she moved from her dowager residence in London to Sudeley Castle, taking with her the young princess who later became Queen Elizabeth and Lady Jane Grey who was to die on the scaffold within a few years.

Twelfth century Sudeley Castle had been granted to Thomas by his nephew, the young King Edward, son of Henry VIII and Jane Seymour. Thomas's sister, Thomas made considerable alterations in the castle in preparation for his royal bride and her retinue of guards, pages and servants.

It is this combination of 12th century and Tudor castle that is open to the public, restored in the 19th century to its former beauty. Sudeley castle is about 90 miles from London. Afternoon tea is served in the main outdoor courtyard during the summer. Morris dancers entertain.

Catherine wasn't destined to enjoy life at the castle for long. She died in childbirth within the year. The nursery she prepared is one of the few rooms intimately associated with her. Here hangs a portrait believed to be that of the daughter born to her. There's a mystery as to whether the child died at birth or lived to age six. There are also two small rooms used by Catherine. One was for her private devotions. She was an ardent upholder of Henry's reformed religion. She even composed a prayer book.

Here, too, are contemporary portraits of Catherine and Thomas. He was later beheaded for intrigue, some 10 years after Catherine's death.

After Seymour's execution, Sudeley Castle passed into the hands of Lord Chandos. At the beginning of the Civil War he armed his tenants and servants in behalf of King Charles. A letter of thanks from the king to the inhabitants is on display. Charles even stayed in the castle briefly.

But the Roundheads finally captured Sudeley and made it unlinable as a military post. Over the next 300 years the castle remained in partial ruins but was restored by new owners (the Dent family) in 1877, except for the towers and the still partially standing magnificent banqueting hall.

Vancouver to Acquire Steam-driven Clock

VANCOUVER (CP) — The city's turn-of-the-century area Gastown, is to be blessed with as addition to its curiosities—a steam-driven clock. And not just any steam-driven clock because this one will be 16-foot tall and will whistle on the hour.

Mayor Art Phillips has said that the idea for a steam clock was turned into a project when Central Heat Distribution Ltd. agreed to supply the steam to drive the clock. Steam already escapes from the company's steam system at various locations in the city.

The mayor said Gastown merchants have contributed toward to $25,000 bill for the clock.

R. L. Saunders of The Sculpture Studio—designers of the free standing clock — described how the clock works.

He said the clock has a unique falling ball, weight-drive device.

Every few minutes one of 8 spherical weights rolls off the drive chain, which powers the clock, and travels across to the wind-up chain which carries the weight to the top reloading track.

Mr. Saunders said the wind-up chain belt is revolving continuously under power from the steam device housed in the lower portion of the clock.

'Barefoot Journalists' Serve Chinese Papers

Working alongside factory hands and commune laborers, their job is to conduct social investigation, install village correspondents and maintain the bridge between the tightly controlled press and its readers.

Shen Kuo-hsiang, deputy director of the Shanghai daily Wen-hui Pao, says his newspaper is striving to eradicate "the personality approach" in news and to open its pages to the people.

There are no star reporters in the Chinese press and articles written by peasants and workers have as much chance of getting good play as those by professional writers.

To improve their "ideological state," Chinese journalists must go to cadre schools for up to six months to study revolutionary thought and do manual labor.

Shen said the 150 editorial staffers of Wen-hui Pao had completed at least one course at cadre school, learning that they were not above the masses.

But more and more Wen-hui Pao is relying on workers and peasants instead of journalists. It now has a network of 2,000 "worker-correspondents" in the greater Shanghai area, most of them trained by barefoot journalists sent out to factories and farms.

There are no advertisements in Chinese newspapers, few photographs, no cartoons, no comic strips or crossword puzzles.

A Chinese journalist probably has never heard of an expense account or competing against a rival newspaper. There aren't any.

Like other journalists in this teeming city, Shen is aware of Wen-hui Pao's reputation as the most radical of China's major newspapers.

In late 1963 it published possibly the most consequential article ever printed in China. Written by a then-unknown journalist, Yao Wen-yuan, the article launched China's great proletarian Cultural Revolution — an event that changed the history of the world's most populous country.

The Communist party's central committee in Peking was under the control of revisionists and Chairman Mao Tse-tung came to Shanghai to deliver his counter-attack.

Yao Wen-yuan's article, personally approved by Chairman Mao, fired the salvo that started the revolution.

Today Yao is an influential member of the all-powerful politburo and Wen-hui Pao is known, in Shen's words, as "an advanced newspaper."

Its circulation has risen to 910,000 from 150,000 since the Cultural Revolution, he said.

Million Watch Shriners Parade

TORONTO (CP) — Police estimated one million spectators watched the largest and longest Shriners' parade, involving 14,000 marchers and lasting eight hours Tuesday.

At 7 a.m., two hours before the parade start, spectators began lining University Avenue, bringing deck chairs, lunches, cold drinks and leashed dogs.

At the end of the humid day, they were 20-deep along the 1½-mile route with another 8,000 to 10,000 seated in Varsity Stadium where the parade finished.

Almost all the Shriners taking part were costumed as ancient Arabs, cowboys and Indians, Uncle Sam and Orientals.

Casualties of the parade were limited to one man who was injured after falling off his horse and two Shriners who fainted in Varsity Stadium.

Luxury Cars in Demand

DETROIT (AP) — Luxury car sales in the United States continue to race upward, despite price increases and an overall auto industry sales slump.

John Naughton, Ford Motor Co. vice-president, sums it up this way: "There is a certain group of buyers who want a luxury car and price is not a consideration."

The luxury category includes cars in the $9,000 and up price range, topped off at a $70,000 sticker for the prestigious Rolls Royce Camargue.

The Cadillac Eldorado, with a sticker price of $8,711 in 1973, now costs almost $10,000. The Lincoln Continental is up $1,172 to $9,656.

Guards Back at Work

Kingston Prisoners Praised by Director

OTTAWA (CP) — Soldiers and RCMP ended 24 hours of special duty at federal penitentiaries late Wednesday night as prison employees returned to work across the country.

About 7,000 employees in 6 federal institutions completed their one-day walkout to protest government policy on capital punishment and to mourn slain prison guard Paul Gosselin, whose funeral was held at St. Therese, Que., Wednesday.

Guards at the maximum-security establishment in Dorchester, N.B., were the first to return. There was a smooth transition of authority when about 150 troops and RCMP turned back security duties to the 11 p.m. shift of about 70 prison guards, prison director H. D. Sheehan said.

In the Kingston, Ont., area soldiers and Mounties had an uneventful day at five prisons.

Arthur Trono, regional director of the five penitentiaries, called a news conference to praise the co-operation from prisoners as well as the armed forces, who kept an outside watch, and RCMP, who guarded cell blocks inside.

"We hope this substitution will not happen again but if it does we will have had valuable experience in ironing out wrinkles in a joint operation," the director said.

He admitted the numerical weight of the army was heavy but said the force was prepared for any incident.

At least 1,000 troops carrying automatic weapons and 600 Mounties took the place of 3,200 guards across Canada. In many cases guards remained overtime to ensure that replacements were familiar with the prisons.

In Kingston some guards voluntarily stayed on and correctional staff concerned with medical services, food and elevators remained on the job in all establishments.

Normal routines resumed as predicted by Paul Gascon, executive secretary of the Public Service Alliance of Canada group representing prison employees.

The federal guards received widespread support from police and provincial prison employees in some provinces. In Alberta, staff at provincial correctional institutions held study sessions but essential services and security precautions were maintained as usual. Some normal prisoner activities were restricted.

At a medium-security prison at Bowden, Alta., 72 prisoners offered to co-operate while 80 regular employees were off for the day and 150 troops helped RCMP guard prisoners at the Saskatchewan penitentiary near Prince Albert.

Quebec prison guards had been given leave to attend the funeral of Gosselin, shot three times by a prisoner from Archambault maximum security penitentiary whom he escorted to a Montreal hospital.

In B.C., five of seven federal institutions were guarded by RCMP and army units while the other, two minimum security correctional camps were staffed by supervisors.

No incidents were reported.

Director Raymond Deurchers of Sinsty Mountain said everything returned to normal as expected at the prison near Winnipeg.

The "day of mourning" was a statement of protest at the federal government's refusal to commit itself to the death penalty for killers of prison employees.

The guards had said Sunday they would walk out that Wednesday if Solicitor-General Warren Allmand would give them a commitment that cabinet would not commute a death penalty except where a jury had recommended clemency. Mr. Allmand refused.

Although Canada now is involved in the second of two five-year moratoriums on the death penalty, federal law requires it for the killing of either a policeman or prison employee on duty.

The last executions in the country were in 1961 when two men were hanged back to back in Toronto's Don jail.

In the Commons Tuesday, two motions which arose from the issue were both defeated. One, by Roch Lasalle (PC—Jollette), called for one minute of silence for the dead guard and the other, by Jack Marshall (PC—St. Georges-St. Barbe), demanded Mr. Allmand's resignation.

Stanfield Says Allmand Should Resign

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Wednesday that Solicitor-General Warren Allmand should resign because he is in the impossible position of declaring openly that he does not support a bill he introduced in Parliament.

"I don't see how he can continue in office," Mr. Stanfield said outside the Commons.

Federal prison workers took "a national day of mourning" Wednesday for slain guard Paul Gosselin after Mr. Allmand rejected their demand that the government not interfere with death sentences except where juries have recommended clemency.

Mr. Allmand said it would be irresponsible to "hang a few" to reduce pressure for the death penalty.

"It's an obscene and degrading measure which I don't think we as Canadians should use."

Wholesale Prices Fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices in the United States dropped slightly in June despite increases in the price of fuel, the government said today.

New York Garbage Will Be Collected

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York City mayor's office announced an agreement today to end the three-day wildcat strike of sanitation workers that has left 50,000 tons of garbage piled up on city streets.

A city hall spokesman said: "The mayor has effected an agreement with the Uniformed Sanitaymen's Association under which its members would return to work effective at noon today."

Final language on the agreement was being worked out in Albany, where Democratic Mayor Abraham Beame negotiated with state Senate Republicans in an effort to get the taxing powers that would allow him to restore some of the job cuts that prompted the crisis.

In response to the budget-induced layoffs of 19,000 city workers, city firemen began their own job action Wednesday, increasing sick calls and instituting a slowdown. City firemen, however, voted against any formal job action in response to the layoffs.

The walkout by the 10,000 sanitation workers in New York did not have official union sanction, but city officials called it the "best organized wildcat strike" they had ever seen.

Arabs Believed Holding American

BEIRUT (AP) — Arab leftists are believed holding a United States colonel reported kidnapped four days ago during the street fighting in this Lebanese city.

One source said Col. Ernest Morgan, 43, of Petersburg, Va., was pulled out of a taxi Sunday night by a group of armed men who said he was "an American general" sent to supply rightwing Christian factions who were battling Palestinian guerillas and their left-wing Lebanese Moslem supporters.

The source said the taxi driver reported that the abduction occurred when he slowed down for a traffic circle on the road to the airport. The airport road runs near a Palestinian refugee camp that is also a guerrilla base, and the guerrillas periodically set up roadblocks on the highway during fighting.

U.S. officials in Ankara said Morgan is on the staff of the U.S. military aid mission in Turkey and was stopping here with a delegation of Turkish, British and Iranian officers returning from a meeting of the Central Treaty Organization in Pakistan.

Meanwhile, a semblance of peace returned to this city Wednesday after eight days of guerrilla warfare in which at least 60 persons were killed. Only scattered shooting by snipers was reported, and a police spokesman said there were no more casualties.

School Boards and Councils Could Keep Meetings Secret

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario education ministry official said Wednesday that under existing law, county boards of education and municipal councils may conduct all business in camera.

John Gillies, an information officer, said in a telephone interview from Toronto that if a board takes legislation provided in the Education Act to the extreme, it may conceivably do most business as it sees fit in committee of the whole or closed sessions. He said the same is true of municipal council.

The boards and the Grenville County board of education has been criticized by some trustees for conducting too much business in closed meetings.

He said the board could hold meetings in camera and make business passed legal by approving a motion later stating it agreed with actions taken in the closed session.

Ford Pledges To Clean Up Environment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposing "a detente with nature," President Ford pledged today a firm commitment to cleaning up the environment but also said he must balance that against economic considerations.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the dedication of a $30 million National Environmental Research Centre in Cincinnati, Ford told the gathering "you have my pledge that this country will remain firmly committed" to seeking a cleaner and healthier environment.

But he said that as president he can not "lose sight of another insistent aspect of our environment—the economic needs of the American people."

"If accomplishing every worthy environmental objective would slow down our effort to regain energy independence and a stronger economy, then it must weigh all factors involved."

Without giving details, Ford said he will propose to Congress this month "a comprehensive and uniform system for fixing

Amin Asks Britons To Remain

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Idi Amin of Uganda has urged the 700 Britons still living in the former British colony to remain there, Uganda Radio reported today.

The broadcast said Amin, who last week was calling the British in his country spies and threatening them, praised them for laying the foundations of education in Uganda.

It said Amin told a news conference he has many friends in Britain, and "only the British government and the British Broadcasting Corp. are against me."

News Briefs

Shulman Won't Run

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morris Shulman said Wednesday he will not seek re-election to the Ontario legislature after a decision by NDP Leader Stephen Lewis not to promise him a cabinet post if an NDP government was formed after the next election. Dr. Shulman had said he might take on Premier William Davis in Brampton. He had been seeking a promise of the post of solicitor general with the power to call royal commissions in the justice field.

Winnings Picked Up

TORONTO (CP) — Audrey Kabakos, the 54-year-old London, Ont., woman who won $300,000 in the August 30 Ontario lottery, picked up her winnings Wednesday from the Ontario Lottery Corp. office. Mrs. Kabakos says she let the cheque remain at the offices for six days because she was afraid of the publicity. Since being tracked down by a London ward reporter, Mrs. Kabakos says she has been taking sleeping pills to avoid telephone calls and visitors.

Ying Hope Acquitted

TORONTO (CP) — Ald. Ying Hope was acquitted Wednesday on charges of breach of trust and theft by conversion of $200. A jury of six men and six women deliberated for three hours before acquitting Mr. Hope, who was charged in April, 1974, after he submitted an expense account for $201.80 to attend a conference in Oshawa and failed to produce a registration receipt for the conference.

It's Law, Not Justice

MONTREAL (CP) — Don Whiteside, president of the Canadian Federation of Civil Liberties and Human Rights Association, asked Justice Minister Jerome Choquette Wednesday to cease "the vindicative use of the legal process" against convicted shortstop Henry Morgentaler. "Although this may be the law, it is not justice."

May Close Hospital Floor

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The board of governors of Bowmanville Memorial Hospital says it will announce on decision Friday on the possible temporary closing of the third floor of the hospital for 28 days to help the hospital meet restrictions imposed by the province, which has asked for a two per cent spending reduction by hospitals.

Ontario Lake Like Caribbean

TORONTO (CP) — Recent warm weather and little wind has heated the waters of Lake Ontario, almost to Caribbean temperatures.

In past few days, water temperatures off several Toronto beaches have ranged between 23 to 28 degrees Celsius.

Jim McCulloch, head of lakes and marine applications at the atmospheric environment service, said the warm weather in May and June and little wind has meant little stirring of the water.

In mid-June, the average temperature of surface water was 14.1 degrees C while last year at the same time, it measured 9.8 degrees C.

"These high temperatures are just on the surface. The water must be very stratified by now so the first good storm to come along will mix the layers and the water will be much colder," he said.

Unfortunately, the weather offline reports thunderstorms for Thursday.

Sentences Commuted

LONDON (Reuter) — President Idi Amin of Uganda has commuted the death sentences imposed on people convicted of economic crimes from life to six months in jail, Radio Uganda, monitored here, said today.

Those who had been sentenced to 10 years in jail now will be released in one month, and those already under arrest for similar offences, such as hoarding, will be released from jail, the radio said.

Politicians Get Tickets To Olympics

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says about 500 Canadian politicians will receive 16,000 free tickets for all events at the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

The newspaper, in a Montreal story, quotes Kenneth Farmer director of spectator services for the games, as saying the extra allocation of VIP tickets became possible because sales to the general public fell to a trickle after the initial boom in May.

Bayside Water Shortage to Be Ended

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

By next December students and staff at Bayside school complex will no longer have to conserve water as the Hastings County Board of Education expects to complete a $214,000 renovation of its water purification system.

Controller of plant Keith Hawkins said Wednesday the project is expected to get under way mid-July and board officials hope it will be completed by late fall. The board has awarded the contract to Marcus and Sons Ltd.

Mr. Hawkins said the school complex includes Bayside Secondary School and Bayside Elementary School. It has been short of water for the past two years. The board has taken drastic measures to conserve the water at the school.

The air conditioning equipment, which uses about 9,000 gallons of water a day, has been used only on a limited basis. School authorities were also forced to restrict use of washrooms and the use of water in auto mechanics courses.

Mr. Hawkins said the new equipment will be installed in the event of fire. The total school complex, completed in 1972, is valued at over $3 million.

Mr. Hawkins said the original equipment was only designed to serve for five years. It was expected that the school's complex would be in with a new water line that would have extended from Prince Edward County to Trenton and Belleville. The line never materialized.

The new system will provide a maximum capacity of 31,000 gallons. The two schools, which house about 2,000 students and staff, require about 40,000 gallons a day. The schools have been limited to 28,000 gallons with the old equipment.

Mr. Hawkins said school officials on occasion have been forced to send students home because of lack of water. He said the water system should supply the school with enough water for the next 20 years.

The work will include a lagoon system as required by the Ministry of the Environment.

A Safety Start

Gardening Column
Youth Turnout Nice to See

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

Last Saturday, I went to the Belleville Garden Club's Rose, African Violet and House Plant Show with an open mind and came away with a full heart. All because of people like Judy Nickson and so many others like her.

Ms. Nickson won the Ralph Morden Silver Vase for the Best Named Floating Rose. Now she didn't amass many points for her single win, nothing to compare with Eileen Easton who won the African Violet Sweepstakes, Best Miniature, Largest Blooming Violet and five other awards, or Lillian McCoy who won Queen of the Show, Princess of the Show, Sweepstakes Runner-Up and many others with her African Violets. Nor did she come close to the point winners in her own section — Roses. Not compared with J.H. McLeod who was the Sweepstakes Winner with most points, had the Best Grandiflora, the best Floribunda, or J.B. Lainsby who won Queen of the Show, Princess of the Show and many others. Because Judy Nickson only entered one rose — and it won — the first Rose award in her family. Her father, Bruce Nickson of 38 Applewood Drive has been entering the show for four years but it was Judy who sailed down the first award for her family.

What pleased me so much about this single award, compared with the outstanding mass achievements by the aforementioned entrants, is this: Judy Nickson is a 15-year-old Grade 11 student at Centennial Secondary School. Because it's one thing for the old folks like myself to focus years of experience, about one of our spare time on growing prize roses, radishes or rudebekia, but it's something else for a pretty, brown-haired high school student to win over all comers in her particular category.

You see, I think a good deal of gardening. It is by no means my only pursuit nor does it provide the bulk of my livelihood. Nor will it until our nursery is open next spring. But for me it is the best possible therapy, the greatest tension reliever and the most satisfying pursuit that I know.

What has always bothered me is the preponderance of grey heads in the world of gardening. Chronologically, most people categorize it with lawn bowling as an occupation of the aged. But the Judy Nicksons and many others like her are changing all that.

It is a known fact that Canadians are returning to the land in droves. In suburban Toronto in a number of subdivisions, back yards have now been converted to vegetable gardens. And while the sales of automobiles have plummeted, the sales of rototillers and garden tractors have sky-rocketed. But a lesser known fact is that this return is being spearheaded by youth. I see it at nurseries all around Ontario. And in gardening classes and lectures, particularly when the subjects are organic or indoor light gardening.

It is the young people that are buying farms. And raising their own food. The young people born and bred in the cities of Canada, who have experienced the pressure cooker existance of city living and are saying — "Enough".

And so to the Judy Nicksons all other young people who have decided to grow their gardening, I say "Welcome". If ever you want to get a Young People's Gardening Club started just drop me a line at this paper. I'll be more than glad to help in any way I can. And so, I'm sure, will the Belleville Garden Club. From what I've seen of them, they're a great bunch of people. And incidentally, they put on an excellent show.

Sunken Garden, Boardwalk Part of Bain Park Plan

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Bulldozers will rip into Bain Park soil early this August in the first step of an estimated $125,000 scheme that will transform the now barren area into a multi-use recreational haven.

That vision now is in sight for the Trenton parks board which last month approved a plan to revamp the 23 acres in east Trenton in the next three to four years.

Parks director Deno Gettas said Wednesday redevelopment will start within five weeks and will see completion in 1975 of a soccer pitch, a lit baseball diamond and a sunken garden. Up to $75,000 will be spent this year.

Redevelopment is based on a study by Steve Skidd, a University of Guelph landscape architecture student.

He said Wednesday his plan, now at the detailed drafting stage, is a practical and realistic fulfillment of a park design to serve Trenton.

The plan, he says, is geared to develop "the potential of the site and the components of it; existing trees, and open space for maximum use with the minimum detriment to the environment."

It sets down separate areas for a beach, a sunken garden in the park centre, a children's play area and a boardwalk along the bayshore.

The major departure from the existing park set-up is the closure of the memorial archway to vehicular traffic. Cars would be funnelled down a southerly extension of 6th Rd. to a new parking lot.

In his report, Mr. Skidd says the park now is poorly drained in parts and floods on the Bay of Quinte shoreline. It has "no parking facilities, and no adequate active or passive recreational facilities".

The report emphasizes the abundance of mature trees (between 150 and 150 years old along the bayshore and the need for their protection. Open space in the park centre is plentiful but "the ground is so uneven that it gives you the feeling of being in a pasture."

The report says that in abstract terms, "you have wide open plain, a forest, a seashore, and a chain of islands", conditions termed ideal for a park.

Director Gettas describes the plan as realistic. Parks board members received the plan favorably, he said: "They thought it was better than plans presented by some consultants".

"We didn't come up with a $2.5-million park on a $20,000 budget," said Mr. Gettas. The plan cost the parks board about $400, roughly a fifth of the salary received by Mr. Skidd this summer. The acting-consultant is also producing a master plan for parks in Trenton, expected in mid or late August.

Development in the upper, open area of the park will be funded through $40,000 pledged by the Rotary Club for a ball diamond, $17,000 from Bain Park development funds, and an anticipated $15,000 grant from the provincial government.

Mr. Gettas predicted a completion date in 1978 or 1979, saying it depends "on how much funding we can see from council."

The ball park, the major development this year, he says will be on par with Alemite Park in Belleville, considered by some to be one of the finest ball diamonds in eastern Ontario.

Craft Shop Features Work by Local Artists

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The County Book and Craft Shop in the Armory Mall this month is selling the "doorbell" with a difference.

Century-old English door knockers obtained from the private collection of a Prince Edward County resident have been displayed for sale.

Co-owner of the shop, Beverley Skidmore, says the door knockers date from circa 1830 to 1890 and already are big sellers among her customers.

Mrs. Skimore, who opened the craft shop this spring in partnership with her mother Ada Wilkinson of Wellington, observed business has "far exceeded our expectations".

She noted it is primarily local residents, not tourists who are shopping in the new boutique. Four of five pulcheack quilts sold recently were purchased by county residents. Similarly, five hand-hrocheted table cloths this spring were sold to local persons.

Mrs. Skidmore commented more and more Quinte area crafts people and hobbyists are contributing their art to the shop for sale.

The cannisters, as well as colorful ceramic piggy banks, are made by employees at an occupational training centre for the retarded in the basement of the Armory Mall.

Another top seller at the craft shop is "the faceless monks" a collection of figures by potter Marian Casson of Carrying Place. Each of these figures is a detailed replica of a monk's hooded cassock but all are faceless.

Mrs. Skidmore observed she and her mother are pleased that their shop is serving as a successful outlet for county crafts enjoyed by local residents as well as tourists.

Summer visitors, however, share this appreciation for Prince Edward County crafts as one Syracuse family demonstrated recently.

The vacationing husband noticed Mrs. Skidmore's display of old-fashioned quilts while on a fishing holiday here. When he returned home he described the blankets to his wife, who telephoned the craft shop for detailed descriptions.

Pictures of a quilt in the Log Cabin motif will be on their way to Syracuse soon to help the American customer select the pattern of her choice.

The book section of the new shop also has proven highly popular and a special section is filled with books by Quinte area authors such as Al Purdy and Richard and Janet Lunn.

On Saturday, July 5, Mr. and Mrs. Lunn will visit the craft shop in the Armory Mall from 2 to 4 p.m. to autograph copies of their books The County and Twin Spell.

Arthritis Society Plans Picton Public Seminar

PICTON — A public information showing has been announced by Richard Byers, president of the Prince Edward County branch of the Arthritis Society to take place Friday, July 11, at 7:30 p.m. at the Armory Mall here. Everyone is welcome.

Arthritis and other rheumatic diseases affect more than one million Canadians but with early diagnosis and treatment severe disability can be prevented. The main objective of the voluntary Arthritis Society is to control and eventually eradicate arthritis and related diseases.

Interest Growing In Purebred Dogs

TRENTON — Dogs and the Northumberland Purebred Dog Training Association have proved to be the most popular dog-time event at Canada Day festivities here this week.

That popularity with children and adults alike, was attributed to two factors Tuesday by two club members . . . greater public exposure of purebred dogs and the availability of better dogs.

Len and Doreen Holland both said purebred dogs are receiving more exposure, and thus prompting more questions, than once was the case.

Owners are learning to keep dogs out more. A simple shopping trip is excuse enough to take a dog walking, said Mr. Holland. A side effect of this trend is a better dog, one not ill-tempered.

"A secluded dog produces a bad tempered dog," he said. Dogs become socialized. The presence of people makes them more accustomed to people.

Breeders have also been producing better dogs, said Mrs. Holland. Strep often than previously, dogs are taken on a regular basis to veterinarians for medication.

Picton Without Power

PITCONT — The town of Picton and parts of Prince Edward County were without electricity for several hours today in a power blackout that began shortly after 7 a.m.

Constable Donald Watt of the Picton detachment of the OPP said the power failure was believed to be caused when a lighting bolt struck near the Proctor-Lewyt plant in Picton. He said the blackout affected not just the town but certain areas of the county.

Neither the Ontario Hydro District office nor the Picton Public Utilities Commission could be reached for comment during the power failure.

William (Bud) Stewart, manager of the Proctor-Lewyt plant said lightning did not strike the building. He added, that it is believed an insulator on a hydro pole at the rear of the plant was hit.

'Pick Your Own' Popular

PICTON — A "pick your own" program sponsored by several Prince Edward farmers during the strawberry season has proved highly successful says Richard Hendry, assistant agricultural representative for the ministry of agriculture and food here.

Mr. Hendry said farmers have been "overwhelmed" by response to their advertisements inviting the public to pick their own berries, at a reduced price.

One Waupoos farmer was forced to cancel his ads last week as his patches had been picked clean.

Other strawberry growers report up to 150 persons picking fruit on their farms in a single day.

"We didn't know how people were going to respond to it," said Mr. Hendry recalling the introduction of the new self serve program.

He commented that many persons not only enjoy buying berries at much lower prices than are offered by the store but also discover it is an outing for the family when they pick the fruit themselves.

Hutton Faces Rape Charge

PICTON — A Picton man, John Hutton, 18, of Dawson Avenue, was charged Wednesday with rape and remanded in custody to the Quinte Detention Centre in Napanee.

Picton police chief Charles Fleming said the charge was laid in connection with an incident Wednesday involving a 19-year-old woman.

Mystery Monks

Prince Edward County potter Marian Casson of Carrying Place contributes these unusual figures of hooded and faceless monks to the County Book and Craft Shop. Co-owner Beverley Skidmore says her customers find they have special appeal because of their mysterious air.

Wet Spring Brings Good Growth of Hay

PICTON — Prince Edward County farmers this summer have harvested their hay crops "in pretty good time" despite heavy rainfalls says Richard Hendry, assistant agricultural representative for the ministry of agriculture and food here.

Mr. Hendry observed this week that in June more than six inches of rain fell in a three-week period. A rainfall of one inch a week usually is considered adequate.

He said most farmers have harvested their hay in good time and those who cut it early in the season now have a good looking second growth.

Mr. Hendry predicted a large hay yield but added quality becomes the question when the crop is harvested late in the season.

"On-tenth bloom is the optimum time to cut alfalfa," commented Mr. Hendry.

He noted the alfalfa weevil created a serious problem for some framers earlier this season and a number of them sprayed to kill the insect.

Mr. Hendry said wheat stands throughout the county look well this month and he predicted an average to above-average yield.

The tomato crop in Prince Edward was sown later than usual this year with some plants set in the last week of May.

Mr. Hendry remarked the effect of this late start on the crop yield cannot be determined yet.

He said generalizations must be made in discussing the crops throughout the county as it is impossible to use any one area as typical.

For example, Big Island with its clay soil could not be worked for some time after the June rains as the land was too wet but at West Lake where the soil is much sandier the rainfall was welcomed.

Recession is Hitting Corporate Activity and Treasury is Feeling the Pinch

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Almost everybody is feeling the financial pinch of the current recession—even the federal treasury.

The government was counting on the taxes paid by corporations for about one-fifth of its 1976 revenues, according to the figures given in the budget of last Nov. 18.

Now, with the recession biting deeply into business earnings, those corporate tax payments are running well below forecast levels.

And next year's corporate taxes will be even less than this year's, according to the estimate in the latest budget of June 23. That means a significant decline in the government's tax revenues, and a corresponding increase in its budgetary deficit.

Income taxes to be paid by corporations in 1976 are estimated by the finance department at $4,250-million now, down 13 per cent from the $1,950-million that it was forecasting last November.

For 1976 corporate tax payments, the finance minister has dropped his forecast by 28 per cent—from the $5,600-million he was expecting last November, to a revised estimate of only $4,036-million.

Not much revision has had to be made in the forecasts of other taxes and non-tax revenues.

This poses a challenge that the Trudeau government has never had to face before.

Until now, corporate taxes have risen year by year, partly because of inflation, partly because of a cover-of the momentum of the economic boom of the 1960s.

This year, for the first time, the government is having to listen to the flip side: Earnings and corporate taxes are dropping but government spending has expanded so much that its 1976 cash "requirements" shortfall—will be a record $5.3-billion, or just under $5-billion when foreign-exchange transactions are taken into account.

For the ordinary Canadian, these billion-dollar figures boil down to still more inflation and possibly record-high interest rates on mortgages and other borrowings.

It's true that the government is fairly flush with cash as a result of big sales of last year's Canada Savings Bonds issue and the central bank's sales of its foreign-currency holdings, to help maintain the value of the Canadian dollar.

But by spending these billions, Ottawa is feeding the demand for goods and services—in other words, stimulating inflation.

The government has little room to manoeuvre, however. Roughly 70 to 75 per cent of its spending budget is of a type required by law, which limits the amount of discretion it can exercise.

Recourse to the bond market is not the answer. Investors don't have the savings, and probably not the inclination, to supply the capital needed by Ottawa as well as the hundreds of millions of dollars that industry will need for expansion in the coming decade.

The bond market could collapse under the weight of that kind of demand upon it, one leading financial analyst suggested the other day.

Mr. Turner's task is further complicated by Canada's big current-account deficit on foreign trade. Imports are rising at a faster rate of our real gross national product, while exports have been falling.

Only when inflation has been brought under control, and a period of stability is seen to have arrived, are these trends likely to be reversed.

Yardmen Band Issue

Belleville Yardmen secretary Ernie Belanger is quoted as saying "It's None of Your Business" concerning the fate of the Yardmen drum and bugle corps. The remark was addressed to a Press interviewer, but of course as one representing Press and public it IS his business.

The Yardmen pursue their activities with money obtained from the public through the monthly lottery.

The progress of the Yardmen's band moreover has been followed with interest by the community. Its smart bearing on parade and its fine showing in competition here and in the United States has brought credit to Belleville.

There is this dispute over Belleville amalgamating with the Kingston Grenadiers to produce a group with more clout against other aggregations. But this is said to be for competitions only, with each band retaining its own identity at home.

It's a delicate enough matter, but it will be in everyone's interests if the issue can be resolved amicably. The Yardmen drum and bugle corps should not be allowed to wither on the vine, for the sake of a misunderstanding or because of petty politics. It is to be hoped that next week's meeting will bring about a settlement.

The Ends Don't Meat

Making ends meet is more than ever an impossible task since the latest federal budget.

Only a Government that is completely insensitive to the needs of its own people, or one that has got its priorities completely out of kilter — as heavy disbursements in foreign aid indicate — would tolerate the poverty-like conditions many pensioners face.

The tax dollars of pensioners and other Canadians are being shelled out by Ottawa for the most questionable reasons and the most spurious causes. This, while at home pensioners fight inhuman economic odds and native people exist in various wilderness backwaters.

Other letters on this page speak of other basic concerns: the spread of pollution by means of burning garbage, and the use — or misuse — of weed killer, to the detriment of citizens.

Really, government and people have a long way to go toward meeting society's legitimate needs, in a way that is of benefit to all. And this, whether it is in the context of ensuring a decent standard of living for senior citizens or, at the township level, avoiding conduct detrimental to citizens' rights.

Summer in the Parks

There is a brilliance about these summer days that has been unmatched for many years.

Let's enjoy it while we may, and spare a thought for a young New Zealander who was here recently, visiting her sister, and went home to Auckland and found it cool enough nights for an electric blanket.

Her mother, still in Belleville, has high prake for Zwick's Island and Belleville's other parks and is amazed that the youngsters can have a dip in the pool there for free.

Sunday was one of those days of summer perfection at Zwick's Island that has people asking themselves why they pile into the car and head for faraway places. Indeed, with gas prices climbing, there will be less hankering for what's on the other side of the horizon anyway.

What better than a relaxed afternoon at the park. The afternoon's enjoyment up there in the shade of the pines, was enhanced by the Bill McCarthy trio, a young group with a very delicate touch and just the right mood music for a Sunday afternoon.

There was a pretty songstress too, her name Danielle.

Musicians don't strike, or if they do we don't hear of it, but their union keeps a strict eye on things and the trio's spokesman told the mixed audience of youngsters and older folks around the bandshell that they were appearing under the auspices of the American Federation of Musicians.

Yes, probably luckier than most these bright days are the citizens taking their ease by the Bay of Quinte.

Loss of Agricultural Land Concerns Americans Too

Detroit Free Press

It took almost a year for the state to come up with the rules to get its new Agriculture and Open Space Act into effect, which may have cost Michigan several thousand acres of farmland. Estimates are that each year some 50,000 acres of agricultural land are converted to urban use. But the new act, now that it is about to be implemented may change some of that. It uses the bait of tax incentives to lure farmers and open-land owners into pledging to keep their land in its present state for 10 years. While 10 years of continued agricultural use by no means provides the ultimate answer to the state's need for preserving agricultural space, it certainly helps. Surely, in those 10 years, more land-use legislation that complements the new act will be implemented. We only hope it comes soon. In the meantime, the Agriculture and Open Space Act, in which thousands of Michigan Farmers have already expressed interest, gives a boost to our farmers and to every concerned person who worries about the indiscriminate urbanization of the state.

Township Weed Spraying

* * *

I will try with a calm hand to express my outrage and anger at the weed spraying campaign against weeds along the side of the road undertaken by the Huntingdon Township office.

On the day that the truck came by my house, my year old son and I were out in the garden hoeing. My garden happens to be near the road. All of a sudden this truck with a huge nozzle spewing forth were of some sprayed stuff by. It was a windy day, and the spray carried. The smell was of a sickening chemical. Do you imagine how dumaging this is to human beings, especially those of us who happen to be in the vicinity?

Mr rows of corn and beans which are close to the road were severely damaged. We depend on that food to live on, as we don't want to buy vegetables in the store which have been sprayed with insecticides which make their food value nil as well as causing harmful side effects in humans. Also my baskets of petunias and geraniums which I had at the base of my driveway were killed. I spent $5.00 on those flowers.

I expect that money to be refunded by your department or the department responsible for environment is destroyed. What is so harmful about wild daisies and lilies, clover and grasses. We are destroying our heritage, our soil, our life blood in these foolish practices. Stop now before it is too late. I am sure something for our children.

TOWNSHIP RESIDENT

Belleville-Lahr Journey

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Apropos the editorial comment in my letter concerning "Lahr Trip Comes Under Fire".

In editorial in pick up $500 of the cost the city of Lahr demonstrated a greater degree of hospitality than Belleville.

The Mayor's comment that the trip was of "tremendous value" is a piece of pure hypocrisy.

The subsidizing of tourist trips with public money in the pursuit of "friendship" is a dangerous precedent that should be stopped at once.

With the approach of the Bellevillle centennial one has cause to be concerned. If the same kind of unnecessary spendthrifts are still in office they are likely to see the entire Royal family being feted in the name of the city of Belleville.

P.M. on Gifts to Parliamentarians and Tax Loopholes

By STEWART McLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — The government already has decreed that official gifts given abroad to travelling MPs can be brought back duty free—and now the prime minister's office is concerned itself with guides for the presentation of gifts to foreigners.

Prime Minister Trudeau says in a letter to Perrin Beatty (PC-Wellington-Grey) Daffern Waechter that the guides will be issued soon will apply to government officials.

Meanwhile, he defends the decision to allow MPs to bring home official gifts without having to pay customs duties and federal sales tax.

"Representatives of Canada abroad receive gifts, whether they like it or not, from foreign governments. They have no control over receipt of these gifts and to turn them down would be seen as discourteous and would damage the goodwill which these visits are intended to produce."

Mr. Beatty had written the prime minister to protest the regulations. He wrote: "As long as the government maintains a policy that actually encourages elected officials to accept large gifts for their personal use by making special provisions for them, the public will have every right to wonder whether members of Parliament are here for public service or self service."

The regulations were issued earlier this year following a study undertaken within the prime minister's office. Earlier, there had been some criticism of Mrs. Trudeau accepting expensive camera equipment from King Hussein of Jordan.

Fittingly, they are manufactured by Premier Matches Ltd.

Blair Williams, national director of the Liberal Party of Canada, has written to ministerial assistants asking for contributions to an "achievements brochure" outlining such subjects as legislative programs, announcements and projects.

He said the brochures should be ready by the end of June and "reasonable quantities can be ordered at that time."

Evening Bus Service Cut

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

As a regular passenger and city taxpayer I am writing to protest the short-sighted and backward step to curtail bus service in the evenings. There are many regular passengers and others who are working at night who will be faced with a transportation problem.

In a growing city which seeks to expand this is a backward step. We should be trying to improve our bus service thereby making it attractive for new passengers rather than curtail day and night with a burning permit, although there's garbage collection weekly, not to mention the danger to surrounding properties, what does the Ministry expect to accomplish with industry.

The so-called small-potatoes in great numbers does the same thing; he can deny he's burning and carry on from day to day.

It's a filthy habit that should be abolished and long overdue.

Editor,

Cost of Living Hurts

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I have just received notice from the pension department that for the year 1974 I had made $1420, representing an over-payment of $155, which I have to pay back.

The result is I will not receive two months pension cheques which I depend on for paying the upkeep of our home.

The whole of my old-age pension goes to pay the rent. That leaves me with nothing to provide for eats, telephone, hydro and the other necessities etc.

I have been employed by the City of Belleville for the past six months as a Crossing Guard, but we do not perform these duties during July and August and consequently are without remuneration.

I would like to express my personal feeling on behalf of my fellow Senior Citizens who are going through the same hardships. I think it very unfair we have to live on the small pittance that we receive each month.

Members of Parliament can vote themselves a substantial salary raise plus a lucrative $10,000 per annum expense account while the poor elderly citizens have worked hard all our lives and have paid our taxes, I think we should be allowed to make a few extra dollars to maintain a decent standard of living.

Educational Insurance

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Columnist, Richard Needham, frequently in his articles emphasizes the need to be able, to read and write as the prime prerequisites for this education.

Few would be inclined to disagree with him — except of course, some of our "new concept" educators.

It was interesting to read that Hastings (County) Board of Education were being asked to consider so-called "Errors and Omissions insurance."

This type of protection, as I understand it, is to provide for any case where a parent or student might use for damages for not receiving an appropriate education.

There must be many parents today who have complete confidence in a course of action — certainly the schools system of many students are not, and have not been, providing an adequate education. If, after 13 years in the school system a student cannot read and write properly something must be wrong.

Is this exploration — into "Errors and Omissions" insurance tacit admission that students are not, in fact, learning a basic and adequate education?

One Million Pleasure Boats in Canada Says Minister

Canadians heading for their cottages and the beaches this summer will again make use of the approximately one million small pleasure boats in Canada, says Jean Marchand, federal minister of Transport Canada.

This vast number of pleasure craft, from canoes to sailboats and large yachts, will once more crowd the waters of our numerous resort areas. The number of drownings and injuries resulting from boating accidents underline the need for boat operators to be cognizant of regulations and of safe boating practices, he says.

The Canada Safety Council plays a major role in educating Canadians to be safer boaters "and I welcome this opportunity to thank the council for its work and to pledge the ministry of transport's full support of this year's Safe Boating Week, being held July 1-7," Mr. Marchand comments.

He outlines past, present and future ministry responsibilities.

"Many groups join forces every summer to teach boating skills and new safety measures to hundreds of vacationers. The efforts of the Canadian power squadrons and of the Canadian Red Cross in the field of boating safety deserve laudatory mention. Their instructors and the many courses they offer contribute in making our waters familiar, safer and more enjoyable.

"Small vessel regulations are the responsibility of the ministry and it has been very active in the past year to promote safety afloat. The ministry has launched a nationwide promotional campaign to encourage the wearing of approved life jackets.

"On the regulatory side, new construction standards for day-powered pleasure crafts not exceeding 20 feet in length will become mandatory on August 1. These standards will probably be expanded in the future to include other classes of vessels.

"Amended regulations also call for a personal buoyant aid for each person to be carried aboard canoes, rowboats and powered craft, unless these are engaged in or preparing for a racing event. This buoyant aid may consist of a life jacket, a personal flotation device (PFD) or a lifesaving cushion.

"The ministry has also received and is assessing a report on hypothermia — the cooling of the body to subnormal temperatures which is often the cause of drowning. The effects of cold water immersion on the human body constitutes an important survival problem to pleasure boaters in many parts of Canada.

"The ministry will again distribute this year more than half a million copies of the Boating Safety Guide. It provides information on boating regulations and safety requirements, navigation information and other vital operational facts.

"I am confident that all Canadian boat operators will join in supporting this year's Safe Boating Week promotional events and in achieving its goals of better and safer boating."

Chiefs Suggest Changes To Bail Reform Act

The Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police (OACP) made two recommendations to amend the beleaguered Bail Reform Act at its annual conference in Blenheim last week, says Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, OACP second vice-president.

One involves a breach of the act for which an offender would receive a maximum of five years and a minimum of three months consecutive to any other jail sentence, he said in an interview.

"We also recommended that when a justice of the peace releases a person on his own recognizance but not at a bail hearing, the justice of the peace may impose conditions on his release," Chief Crosbie reported.

He noted as an example that in 1974 at Windsor "90 persons charged with serious criminal offences released under the act committed 223 subsequent offences before their trial".

OPP Re-activate Motorcycle Team

The Golden Helmets will ride again this year.

The Golden Helmets are the Ontario Provincial Police motorcycle precision riding team which thrilled Ontario residents with their performances for eight years from 1963 until their disbandment in 1971.

A provincial police announcement in Toronto last week said the team will be reformed and will embark on its exhibition schedule immediately after Labor Day but dates and locations were not released.

The motorcycles are 1,200 C.C., 850-lb. Harley Davidsons which are white-coloured, have sirens, flashing red warning lights and first aid kits.

The OPP say they play an important role on Ontario highways, particularly in the southern part of the province, bringing first aid and assistance through lines of waiting traffic to the scene of an accident through their mobility.

The team is composed of 18 OPP officers from Barrie to Guelph to Peterborough. Between competitive team members will return to their respective detachments for regular police duties.

Hospitals Reach Accord On Pathology Service

A contract covering the provision of pathology services to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital in Picton has been approved by the Belleville General Hospital (BGH) Board of Governors.

In making the recommendation last week, the board's finance and audit committee noted the service had previously been provided without the use of a formal contract. The agreement is effective last Jan. 1.

The agreement calls for the Picton hospital to provide "the necessary staff, equipment and supplies for all laboratory work to be done in its own hospital".

In addition, pathologists only only be employed by the Picton hospital for periods not to exceed two half days per week.

Duties outlined in the agreement show "the pathologists shall arrange for the processing and interpretation of surgical specimens, shall perform autopsies and shall provide consultative services in matters pertaining to the practice of pathology".

The Picton hospital also agrees to "provide the necessary facilities and equipment for carrying out a quality control program under the direction and supervision of the pathologists." —

Cost of the service to the Picton hospital will be $10,400 per year to be "paid out to the pathologists as part of their general remuneration".

The service includes "referrals to the Belleville Hospital Laboratory such surgical pathology, clinical laboratory tests and autopsies, which shall be billed to the Picton hospital in accordance with current Ontario Medical Association schedule of fees in addition to the charge stipulated in the agreement."

Other terms show the Picton hospital will consult with the pathologists with regard to the annual budget and BGH will bear no responsibility or liability for services rendered by the pathologists pursuant to the agreement.

Tory Rule 'Corrupt': McLauchlan

COE HILL — New Democratic Party (NDP) members of the newly-created provincial riding of Hastings — Peterborough held their first meeting in the public school here last week.

The main attraction was an address by Carson McLauchlan, NDP candidate in Quinte riding, who called the current provincial government "corrupt and scandalous".

Mr. McLauchlan commented the government's law and order platform "is a farce" and said the voters have but one alternative — to vote NDP.

He stressed the fact that human issues and not corporate issues were primary issues for the NDP, especially issues concerning housing, rent control and full employment.

The riding members decided the nomination meeting to select a candidate for the next, unset provincial election will be held no later than the second week in September.

Robert Thompson of Deseronto announced his intention to seek the new riding's NDP nomination and addressed the meeting, outlining his views and opinions on the provincial political situation. He was warmly applauded.

Hartford Charged

COLBORNE — A Colborne man has been charged with resisting arrest and causing a disturbance by being drunk after a scuffle with police investigating a disturbance at the Queen's Hotel here Monday.

In the altercation, Hartford struck his head on street pavement and was knocked unconscious. He was rushed to Cobourg hospital by ambulance for treatment.

Italians Enjoy Too Many Pontes

ROME (Reuter) — Italians, but are on the point of losing a unique record—that of enjoying more holidays a year than any other country.

Officially, Italy shares first place in the holiday league table with Mexico. Each has 16 civil and religious holidays—ahead of Spain and Canada with 16, West Germany with 15, and Brazil, Egypt and Sweden with 129 days.

leisure-loving Italians to stretch their existing holidays to more than 30 by the time-honored device of the long weekend or "ponte" (bridge), as it is called here.

The way the ponte system works is simple: Look at a calendar, ring the official holidays which are marked in red, and count the number of working days sandwiched between them. If there are only one or two, the whole period is declared a ponte, and everybody heads for the mountains or giant traffic jams along the turnpikes.

But the pontes now have got out of hand—that politicians, industrialists, and even trade unions agree some reform is overdue.

In late April and early May, there were no less than three pontes on successive weeks.

Italians the world over are known for their love of holidays. May Day, and another four days for the religious Feast of the Ascension.

The government has a bold plan to cut the number of public holidays to a mere eight—and relegate Italy to near the bottom of the holiday league table ahead of only Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia and Romania (six).

Few people believe that such a drastic blow to the dolce vita has much chance of being accepted. But it is a strong opening position in what are expected to be tough negotiations.

The main opposition to the government's reform project comes from the Vatican, which attaches great importance to religious holidays.

The church is not at all happy with the government's suggestion that its festivals should be celebrated on the following Sunday if they happen to fall in the middle of the week.

A Vatican spokesman recently insisted that any reform must not affect festivities that are basic to the Christian conscience, like Christmas or Ascension Day.

Lay observers argue that the plethora of religious holidays is an anachronism in a modern industrial society.

CP News Roundup

Stanfield Is Afraid Of Korea

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield Wednesday rejected assurances that External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said he received from the South Korean government and repeated a call for a moratorium on nuclear reactor sales.

In an interview he said he does not regard South Korea as a stable country and it is not safe to export nuclear reactors until major exporting countries have agreed on safeguards.

Mr. Stanfield commented after Mr. MacEachen told the Commons in response to questions from Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) that he was given categorical assurances by President Chung Hee Park that South Korea has no plans to develop nuclear weapons.

Outside the House, Mr. MacEachen said Canada is not insisting in safeguard negotiations that products be processed in Canada.

He said categorical assurances from Korean officials that they will not get nuclear weapons nuclear weapons is the best a government can get.

He said the foreign minister of Japan tells him he does not believe South Korea will get nuclear weapons.

Mr. Stanfield said Canada also received assurances from India and that country a year ago had exploded a nuclear device made from plutonium from a Canadian-supplied nuclear reactor.

Environmentalist Dies

MARLINTON, W.Va. (AP) — Allan George Tracey, 28, of Mississauga, Ont., was killed Tuesday when a large boulder fell on him as he led a group of Ottawa college students into a cave near this community. Tracey, an administrative environmental specialist with the Canadian government and a veteran cave explorer, died about 90 minutes after the two-ton boulder fell on his legs and hips, firemen said. It was the first cave fatality reported in the cavern-riddled county in more than 40 years, firemen said.

Trudeau Is Back

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was back in his office Wednesday night after a bout with influenza that forced him to cut short a Newfoundland trip last week. He was not in the Commons for the afternoon question period.

A spokesman said he did not know whether Mr. Trudeau would be in the Commons today.

Lead Suspected

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Harmful quantities of lead and cadmium passed from pregnant women to their children may be the cause of some cases of sudden infant death, Dr. Richard Coumbis, a forensic scientist, said Wednesday. Coumbis, whose team has investigated more than 80 cases of crib and stillborn deaths in the last year, said lead and cadmium levels in the brains, livers and kidneys of 10 to 20 of the infants "approached toxic levels." Lead and cadmium come from paint, automobile exhaust, food and water, the researcher said.

Eight Die in Crash

NANTES, France (Reuter) — Eight persons including the two crew members were killed when a twin-engine aircraft crashed shortly after takeoff Wednesday. Airport officials said. The Beachcraft-99 belonging to regional airline Touraine Air Transport was en route to Brest in Brittany.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE with Major Hoople

Storm Does Damage

MONTREAL (CP) — A half-hour long thunderstorm caused power failures, backed up sewers and damaged homes Wednesday night as 50-mile-an-hour winds and 1.61 inches of rain hit the city.

Air Traffic Halted

ROME (AP) — Ground personnel at all Italian airports went on strike Tuesday, halting air traffic throughout the country. The 24-hour walkout was called by unions to press demands for pay increases and for improvements in safety measures and career opportunities.

Would Be Offence

OTTAWA (CP) — Destroying or defiling retired military colours would be made a criminal offence under a bill introduced in the Commons Wednesday by Crawford Douglas (L—Bruce-Grey). The colors generally carry the insignia and motto of a military unit. The proposed legislation received first reading in the Commons and dropped to the bottom of a list of private members' bills that have little chance of becoming law.

Move Defeated

TORONTO (CP) — A New Democratic Party proposal to increase widows' pensions paid under the Workmen's Compensation Act to $315 monthly was defeated in the legislature Wednesday.

Results Delayed

TORONTO (CP) — Workers at the Canadian John-Manville Co. Ltd. plant here have waited a year before learning whether they suffer from an asbestos-related disease, Ontario NDP Leader Stephen Lewis told the legislature Wednesday.

He said results of tests carried out by the occupational health branch of the Ontario health ministry in June, 1974, only now are being reported to the workers.

Predicts Delays

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Attorney-General John Clement said Wednesday there will be further delays before Ontario brings in legislation on uniform store hours and Sunday closing. Replying to questions in the legislature, he said he is not satisfied information before him now is sufficient to draft legislation. He said the government has not abandoned its intention to bring in controls, but added he could not predict when legislation would be before the house.

Probe Prices

TORONTO (CP) — High lot prices in government-sponsored Ontario Housing Corp. Easy projects are under investigation, Housing Minister Donald Irvine told the legislature Wednesday. He said some persons taking part in projects find themselves unable to purchase the land on which their homes are built. He said he would make a policy statement soon which will determine how a fair market value is placed on lot prices.

Two Major Fires Burn In Maritimes Forests

HALIFAX (CP) — Two major forest fires roaring out of control and dozens of others have been 'taxing firefighters to the limit in the Atlantic provinces.

A major fire near Bishop's Falls in central Newfoundland has been burning for a week over a 25-square-mile area, but despite its approach to within 1,000 feet of a trailer court on the north bank of the Exploits River, fire officials said there was no immediate danger it would jump the river.

About 200 men, two waterbombers and a DC-6 which is dropping a fire retardant chemical are fighting the blaze which has burned about 21,000 acres.

Another major fire near Shag Harbour, about 35 miles southeast of Yarmouth, is burning "wildly out of control."

The blaze destroyed several homes in the tiny community late Wednesday afternoon.

A section of the blaze also swept towards Woods Harbor, in northeastern New Brunswick, two fires which have formed a single blaze in the Tabusintac-Estradelc area on the border of Northumberland and Gloucester counties have consumed about 3,000 acres of softwood and cut-over woodland.

Another fire erupted about 30 miles from the Shag Harbour blaze at Upper Clyde, 15 miles inland from Shelburne, destroying a woods camp and campground. Another fire near Moncton reported contained at South West Port Moution.

Inquiry Is Told Prisons Too Big

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Farris inquiry was told Wednesday that Canadian penitentiaries are so large "a potentially dangerous situation can develop to a dangerous point before it can be detected or anticipated."

Inger Hansen, ombudsman for federal prisoners, told the inquiry into the June 9 seizure of 15 hostages at the British Columbia penitentiary that in such large institutions prisoners and staff cannot get to know each other.

The B.C. penitentiary holds 840 prisoners.

"If people know each other they can see variations in behavior—but you can't see that in a person unknown to you," she said.

Miss Hansen said that if the population in each penitentiary were decreased to "somewhere between 100 and 200 people" there would be a marked decrease in tension and danger to staff and prisoners.

Smaller institutions would permit the detection of danger signals, provide chances for greater personal attention to prisoners and increase the chances of rehabilitation, she said.

Asked to rate Canadian penitentiaries, Miss Hansen said the B.C. penitentiary and Millhaven penitentiary near Kingston, Ont., seem to be the most tense prisons in the country.

End to Poverty Seen As Key to Women's Lib

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The first international Women's Conference ended Wednesday with a call for thorough reform of society's customs, laws and attitudes to enable women to be equal partners with men.

In a declaration of principle adopted shortly before the two week conference ended, the delegates also said a redistribution of economic power from rich to poor nations is necessary to improve women's status.

The conference's main achievement was a 10-year blueprint for women's equality in which called for governments to guarantee women equal access with men to education and job skill training, adequate health care, an end to being bartered as child brides and equivalent to the sale of male family members.

The plan also said wife and husband should have the right to decide whether or when to have children and should have equal access to family planning facilities to get and their wishes.

Without this freedom, it said, millions of women will remain victims of 30-year spans of childbearing which ruin their health and preclude them from otherwise contributing to society.

Heavy Crop Loss

BISMARK, N.D. (AP) — Communities throughout eastern North Dakota are bracing for higher water today and Minnesota Gov. Wendell Anderson says four years of heavy rain has caused "astronomical" crop losses in the state's northwestern counties.

Many Strikes

OTTAWA (CP) — Time lost due to strikes and lockouts in the first four months of the year contributed to set a record pace with 1,308,540 man-days lost by the end of April, federal labour statistics show.

Atomic Board Looks At Radioactive Leak

OTTAWA (CP) — The Atomic Energy Control Board is investigating charges that radioactive waste is leaking from a nuclear refinery's dumps at Port Hope, Ont., Environment Minister Jeanne Sauve said Wednesday in the Commons.

"Representatives . . . have been sent to establish the radioactivity situation at this site," Mrs. Sauve told Alan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland-Durham).

If dangerous radiation levels are found, "immediate action will be taken."

Mr. Lawrence called for an independent inquiry into "the serious allegations regarding radioactive waste" at three dumps owned by Eldorado Nuclear Ltd., a federal Crown corporation responsible for refining all uranium in Canada.

Mr. Lawrence said later in an interview that a University of Toronto group, Energy Probe, conducted a series of tests for radioactivity and leakage of toxic materials at the plant's three dumps.

The group found that "Eldorado was pretty complacent," Mr. Lawrence said.

Radar Reveals Baby's Sex

MONTREAL (CP)—The techniques used in radar now can be used to determine the sex of a baby two months before it is born.

Dr. Juan Stocker, a Montreal obstetrician, has been using sound waves for several years to detect problems in the developing fetus and surrounding organs.

He noticed that nearly two-thirds of the seven-month-old fetuses looked at were in a position that allowed him to see their sex.

So far 96 per cent of Dr. Stocker's predictions about the sex of unborn children have been correct.

Dr. Stocker does not feel his discovery is of great medical importance. He says many parents don't want his predictions because it spoils the surprise for them.

Ultrasonography, the technique he uses, bounces sound waves through a bag of water on the abdomen of a pregnant woman.

The echoes are projected on a screen and show up as a series of dots that create a relatively clear image of that part of the body.

Ultrasonography has no known side effects, unlike x-rays that may produce radiation damage to the fetus.

Why is Cheating Sometimes Okay?

"Cheaters never prosper!"

How many of us should at least believe that old schoolyard taunt!

All around us we see individuals and organizations becoming rich and powerful by dishonest means.

And can we say, honestly, that we've never done anything underhanded ourselves?

Just as society seems to distinguish between the white lie and the real lie, there seem to be degrees of cheating. And it seems there are more and more examples of acceptable deception.

Beating the system has become almost a popular sport. The image of the little man struggling against big organizations is the modern counterpart of Beanstalk Jack cheating the Giant, or Ulysses out-tricking the Cyclops.

In fact, our culture gives us a great deal of support for the notion that cheating off tyrants is a Good Thing. And so all we have to do is to decide who the bad guys are and then our cheating is stamped "Okay."

All branches of government fail into the "Get them or they'll get you" area, as do telephone and oil companies and large department stores.

Doing the government out of some income tax money is condoned by almost everyone but the tax collector. It's a matter of self-preservation, we say. Someone who succeeds in an endeavour highly regarded by the cheater's peers.

And cynical senior students excuse copying on exams and essays as simply part of the game. "The teachers have to juggle marks to let a certain percentage of us pass," they say. "Why shouldn't we just help things along? Who cares anyway? It's only to get the marks and get out."

But if you were to find out that the reason your child had passed this year was that he had copied on an exam, or paid someone else to do an essay . . . what would you do?

Would it be worth jeopardizing his future to make an issue out of your discovery? How important is it, in relation to the importance of getting him through school?

Cheating is a quick and easy way to get what you want. And in a world where speed and success are admired, how does one explain why cheating is wrong?

Is it possible that, in the context of our society, cheating may become a virtue?

Unique Old Woman Rules In Spite of Islamic Traditions

CUKURCA, Turkey (Reuters) — In this remote mountainous corner of Turkey, where women are shrouded in black from head to ankle and men slip their tea in male-only cafes, the woman's life, it seems, has made its mark.

Just west of here, in a two-house settlement with its water mill, eaves and nut-crop, the head man, as it were, is a woman.

The unwritten rules of the unusual riverside hamlet stipulate that no man may go to market, to sell crops without her permission.

The 76-year-old woman, Aisha, is unwilling to speak to foreign reporters, but the men in her life said she rules so effectively and strictly as any man, settling family disputes, deciding on policy for sowing, harvesting and hoeing and acting as the final voice on any problem.

The men of the settlement, some with shotguns and bandoliers of cartridges around their waists, were unsure how Aisha had come to power in an area where the traditional values of orthodox Islam hold sway.

Told that 1975 was women's year, one of Aisha's male underlings said without bitterness: "Here, as you can see, it is always the year of the woman."

The weather-beaten Aisha, however, is an exception to the rule in the rugged, Kurdish-dominated highlands of Turkey's Bitlaki province.

Even in her own settlement, the men rapidly grew angry as a foreigner raised a camera to photograph a woman sitting wheat on the flat straw roof of one of the outbuildings.

In this village where men sport the baggy trousers and turban-like headgear of the Kurds, some women are totally veiled.

With barely translucent veils drawn over their faces, and their bodies swathed in black from head to toe, it is difficult, from a distance, to tell whether a woman is coming or going, and virtually impossible for the inexperienced eye even to guess at her proportions, age or looks.

The tiny Cayhane tea-house is a male preserve, as are similar establishments in the provincial capital, Hakkari, where women cross the road rather than risk meeting the gaze of a foreign eye.

Technically, Turkey is a secular state where men and women enjoy equal rights, although in a gentle of the reformist zeal of Mustafa Kemal Ataturk, founder of the modern Turkish republic.

Shortly after the republic was founded in 1923, Ataturk abolished the veil as a means to emancipate women, publicly scorning the veil.

Gradually, he introduced a non-Islamic marriage law, banning polygamy and the Islamic system of divorce in a woman simply by repudiating her.

By 1933, women had been elected to parliament, but this sense of sexual equality does not appear to have percolated through to the craggy outposts of Hakkari province.

One teen-aged girl: "We hardly ever have a chance to meet girls, and if we do, it has to be in secret. In the evenings, we sit at the tea house in the company of males, while the women stay at home."

"I argue with my father about it, and he says a woman has no need to comb out because her job is to run the house and raise the children. So I have to spend all my time with male friends."

Three-year Celebrations Mark Ancient Marriage

LANDSHUT, West Germany (CP) — It was the wedding of the ages when the daughter of the king of Poland was brought here to be married to the son and heir of Louis the Rich of Bavaria. Although it happened in 1475, the people of this south German town still keep the memory fresh.

In recent times Landshut has been celebrating the event every three years, except for 1971 when, shortly before the event, fire destroyed th costumes and props accumulated over the years.

On the three-year basis, there should have been a pageant last year but Landshut postponed it to celebrate the 500th anniversary. The dates are June 20 to July 13.

Some 5,000 grandstand seats are being made available to tourists along the procession route. The same daily events are repeated each week. The bridal procession usually takes place on the second day of each week.

One thousand costumed burghers, knights and ladies of Landshut accompany the wedding guests—the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick III and his son Maximilian, the Count Palatine, Archduke of Austria, Count of Perugia, Margrave of Brandenburg, the Duchess of Saxony and, of course, Princess Jadwiga in her golden bridal coach drawn by six white horses.

Then there were 25 princes, bishops, ambassadors, armored knights and the army of servants, bodyguards, musicians—including 1,100 drummers and pipers—and crossbowmen.

They all stayed eight days and they consumed 333 oxen at Duke Ludwig's expense. Then there were 9,284 horses to feed.

Additional evidence is provided by Dr. Jesse L. Steinfeld, the surgeon general who issued the 1972 report that led to the law that forced cigarette companies to print a warning on each pack sold. Dr. Steinfeld said, "Many rooms in which we work or hold conferences, and the autos in which we ride, have a very low rate of exchange of air—and in some instances none at all."

Jesse-Irene has a very good point.

Dear Ann Landers: A word, not so crazy, Dr. "Lady Who Has Made the Scene." She has "Lady Who Has Made the Scene." She has been in her choice of words. She's so lady.

Dear Ann: Those "sensational lovers" with whom she's made the scene, they are no bargains either. I hope you can get through, to those bedroom athletes that the mission of sex, like anything else, renders it meaningless, ordinary and cheap—Bin Thar

Dear Bin: Right you are. Sex as a contact sport leaves much to be desired. Better they should go in for touch football.

Meat Loaf Letters — Classic Column

Dear Ann Landers: A reader recently referred to that column about the women who did her housework in the nude as your all-time classic. I disagree. I believe the one about the meat loaf beats the hell out of the smithereens. Will you print it again, please?—Still Laughing In Omaha.

Dear Still: My sister in Omaha (whose recipe it was) didn't do much laughing when that column appeared. She nearly had to have her phone taken out. People kept calling her with "complaints" and "suggestions." But here's the column—with pleasure.

Dear Ann: That dame in Michigan who didn't like your meat loaf is nuts. Only a moron would try a new recipe on guests. I made it for my family and they said it was the best they ever ate. I have orders to serve it every week.—Love You

Dear Love: Read on. It seems I've started something.

Dear Ann: Your meat loaf is delicious. I tried it yesterday and my husband said that I fell off the bacon because we keep kosher. If you have a recipe for beet borsht I'd like to have it.—Miami

Dear M.: Sorry, no beet borsht recipe. I'm quitting while I'm ahead.

Dear Ann Landers: I never measure anything and I hate recipes. But I tried your meat loaf and it was terrific. The letter from the lady who said her dog wouldn't eat it made me mad. I gave your meat loaf to OUR dog and he cleaned the plate and cried for more—Sioux Falls

Dear Ann: That meat loaf loaf: It's a smash! I gave some to our cat. She ate every bit of it—and boy, is she fussy!

Dear Ann: That meat loaf recipe must have made you rich. You mentioned three brand names. Now you are retire. And it's about time. Kids—I Spy

Dear Spy: As for my getting rich as a result of those "brand names," I have never read a commercial endorsed a product or accepted any remuneration for it. Brand names I mention I shall be ever thus. More bad news: I have no retirement plans.

Dear Ann: I improved on your meat loaf recipe. I used four hard-boiled eggs. Just shove them into the meat. Looks lovely spaced, so everyone will get at least a part of one.

It looks beautiful when you cut it.—Canada

Dear Canada: Sounds great. I'll try it.

Dear Ann: Your slove needs to be regulated. One hour isn't long enough for a meat loaf was too rare and I had to put it back for an extra 15 minutes.—Columbia

Dear C.: We checked out stove two weeks ago. Maybe YOUR stove needs regulating.

Dear Ann Landers: I read your column in Hong Kong. My cook can't read English. Will you please have this recipe translated into Chinese and send it to me? I realize this will put you to a lot of trouble but I see that your name was mentioned a one of the most admired women in the world and this means you go out of your way to be outstanding and do unusual things. Thanks in advance.—Farmer Buffalo Reader

Dear Buffalo: Sorry, but I'm fluent in Chinese. Try Madame Chiang Kai-shek. She was on the list, too.

And now, dear readers, before you get out your pens and paper and ask me to send you that meat loaf recipe—it will appear in tomorrow's column. This will save both you and me several hundred dollars in postage.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a smoker. I have been a smoker since I was 16. I will always be a smoker. I tried to quit four years ago and gained 30 pounds. I decided I'd rather take my chances with lung cancer or emphysema than look like a blimp.

Th problem. My sister-in-law has the crazy notion that the smoke from MY cigarette will be damaging to HER health. Whenever I light up in her presence (which is often because our husbands like to spend time together) Irene makes some remark about my nicotine habit. Unless I put out my cigaret she leaves the room.

Please settle this question once and for all. It seems crazy to me that my cigarette can harm Irene's lungs. — Happy Puffer.

Dear Puff: Irene's "notion" is not so crazy. Dr. Jesse L. Steinfeld, president of the American Lung Assn., says there is four times as much carbon monoxide in side-stream smoke from the burning end of a cigarette than in mainstream smoke inhaled by the smoker. This is also true, according to Dr. Stocklen, of several other harmful constituents in cigarette smoke, such as tars. He further says the increase in carbon monoxide levels found in the blood of non-smokers exposed to second hand smoke exceed federal safety standards.

It Was Quite A Time!

The Grand Opening of Vader's new showrooms and services department was a great success. I had the grand tour myself on Saturday and the air-conditioning sure felt good. And the great line up of '75 Datsun cars and trucks looked pretty good too. But there always has to be a scene-stealer, doesn't there? Saturday it was a grey-blue metallic 200 2+2 X 2 car and his attractive new owner who had just come from Ottawa to pick up her car. This was the third 'Z' car she had bought — all from Vader's. And Doug said that most testimony than a satisfied customer is there? But I didn't feel too badly. After all, I have a Mini 2 myself. Congratulations to Vader's on a fine weekend and the same to all you potential Datsun owners who found out what you're missing.

Some New Faces

The Tropical Gardens Pet Shop, 301½ Front St., is now under new management, that of Sandra and Richard Lundquist, who have been in the area all their lives. The Dainards are great bird fans and will specialize in their particular area. They have over 300 birds in their own home, birds from all over the world. So you bird fans are going to see some interesting varieties and get great advice on full care from the Dainards. Of course, you'll also get great help with any other kind of pet too, but the bird area will be the first to receive expansion. Diamond told me. If you're used to dropping into the Tropical Garden, introduce yourself to the new owners when you pop next time. And if you've never been there, you're missing something.

Getting Around To It

I know with the holiday weekend, and the arrival of summer guests, and the children getting out of school, you certainly are well-occupied. Nevertheless, I'm sure that Bellevview Glass and Mirror at 134 Pinnacle St. and doing something about those unsightly and unsafe screen doors. But summer is here and marching on and the mosquitoes and moths are marching right along with it. You'll keep getting flying pests just as long as you have screen doors. Bellevview Glass and Mirror at 968-5731 and doing something about stopping their shenanigans, or, to put it, minimize, so to speak, I don't mean to put down spray and hanging pest controls, but they are really no replacements for faulty screen windows and doors and you know what I mean—Sarcastically.

Jonathan Logan Transitionals

Studio 221, 231 Front St. has just received a new shipment of great Jonathan Logan fashion to take you right through to and into fall. Lots of great new two-piece, happy dresses in summer and fall easy-care colors and materials. This kind of clothing is very versatile and a wise fashion investment. Jonathan Logan's transitionals range from size 8 to 44 size range, can make a very good investment in clothing right now at Studio 231. The 30 per cent discount on last queen-size clothing still applies. This is a good opportunity for you to get comfortable vacation-time fashion at terrific savings. Drop in and take a look and check in on Jonathan Logan and on those queen-size bargains.

Get Organized

Superior TV, 103 Canniffon Rd. have a suggestion for you vacationers and those who don't. Why don't you let Superior TV fix your television set and then when you're ready for it, it will be ready for you. Superior would also like you to remind you of their new summer hours. Six days. Tuesdays and Wednesdays and Saturdays, Superior will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and closed on Mondays and Thursdays. On Thursday and Fridays, Superior will be open until 8 p.m. While business is certainly good, Superior assures me that they can still get your portables ready for you to take to the cottage in a couple of days. So get yourself down to Superior and enjoy the summer hours and get everything in summer working order.

A Great Way To Celebrate

I had a birthday last week . . . I won't tell you which one, though. And guess where I celebrated it? At Inn On The Bay in Picton. You see I really do practice what I preach and I get my family and friends to do so too, and since it was my birthday . . . and as you might well predict, I had my favorite Inn On The Bay menu selection — Shrimps a la Maison, which were as tasty as ever. The other members of the party had lobster tails and eye an eye, all very satisfactorily prepared and served. But then I know they would be. If you have a birthday or anniversary coming up soon, may I suggest that the Inn On The Bay way is a great way to celebrate. Everyone gets to enjoy the birthday, not just the one having it. Happy whatever the occasion and happy dining.

With School Out

With school out, it's going to be a lot easier for you to get the family's optic needs taken care of. And one place to call is Trenton Optical at 962-9311 can take care of the whole procedure, including arrangement an eye examination with a reputable and qualified expert. Then you can take your prescription to Trenton Optical at 54 Bridge St. E., (you don't need an appointment) and choose from their an extensive selection of glasses frames. All children's glasses have safety lenses. So that they won't cost quite a million pieces on impact. But, besides this total optic service, you'll appreciate the very, very competitive prices of Trenton Optical. Trenton Optical expects you to compare, and they know they come out on top.

Let The Floor Do It

The answer to the drab look of the interior of your home may not be the fault of the walls; it could be the carpet. Wray's Home Furnishers, 300 Front St. and Harding have the answer: the Harding print collection. These hard-wearing, easy care colours brighten any room — the family room, hall, bedroom or summer home. There is a variety of colors and designs to contrast or complement. All you need is your decorating imagination and a visit to Wrays. Stop blaming the walls and the wall-paper and get down to the bottom of things with the Harding print collection available at Wrays. Remember that Wrays have their own expert installers too, so the arrangement doesn't conclude with just the sale.

Nice, Quiet and Brick

If you're looking for a nice quiet spot in central Belleville in an older home with some character which has been extremely well-kept, then you'll want to call Gord Hobbs Real Estate at 968-6475. This home on Queen Alexander Ave., which is a deed-end street so, by the way, is forty-five years old; is two storeys and has been in the hands of only one owner all these years — an owner who took great care of his home. It has three bedrooms, hard wood floors, a separate dining room, a lot which measures 43.9' by 109 ft. And the asking price of this property is an additional worthwhile factor — only $23,900. There are many more selling points about this property besides those which I've mentioned. And to get those, all you have to do is to call that above-mentioned number. That's not much effort for a lot of peace and quiet in it?

The All-Round Store

You're dying for a Diet Pepsi; your mother-in-law needs a birthday gift; your child needs some relief from the pains of his sunburn, and you just forgot that shower present you need for tomorrow. Where are you going to go? Why Sidney Inn, 265 West Moira St., of course. The Sidney Inn has groceries, meats, drug supplies, a gift counter, with all the appropriate cards to match the occasions, barbecue supplies, and even an ice-cream counter and food take-out service. But what's really great about the Sidney Inn is the hours. 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. every day. So it doesn't matter when you want that Diet Pepsi or when you need that Bronx, sunburn relief, or present. Sidney Inn has it all, right at the corner of West Moira and Sidney Sts. at the railroad overpass.

'Sees' by Sound

Melody Daughters holds her 8-month-old son Dennis in their home recently. By broadcasting silent sounds that return as audible echoes, Dennis, who was blind since birth, "sees" much like a bat does. It's all done through special equipment within a kind of beanie cap worn on the head. According to Dr. Tom Bower, who conceived the project, Dennis is apparently the first blind baby in the world ever to experiment with a sonar device. (AP Photo)

Dream Come True Makes Novel Tale

By BRUCE EASSON
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Probably everyone has had a dream so vivid that it seemed real or that they wished would be true.

Master story-teller Brian Moore uses that prosaic situation as the basis for his latest novel, The Great Victorian Collection.

Anthony Maloney, the central character, is a McGill University assistant history professor visiting California when he has his dream: a dream that the finest objects of the Victorian era are assembled outside his motel.

When he awakes, Maloney looks out and there, set up in the parking lot, are the objects that he, an expert on the Victorian age, has read about or seen in the great museums.

"Laid out on the stalls and in partially enclosed exhibits resembling furniture showrooms was the most astonishing collection of Victorian artifacts," he later tells a television interviewer.

Moore, superb craftman that he is, thereupon weaves a taut narrative of what happens to an ordinary, guilt-ridden individual who sees a dream come true, only to become entangled with bureaucratic red tape, logistics, the publicity glare, the conflicting opinions of experts, and eventually with those to whom a "modern miracle" spells money.

Maloney becomes obsessed with his dream come true, then possessed by it and finally it destroys him. But perhaps most frightening, The Great Victorian Collection lingers on after him, dated gradually to deteriorate from age and neglect.

Pig novelist Moore, Irishborn, a Canadian citizen now living in California, The Great Victorian Collection is an abrupt departure from the style of his earlier works.

The Lonely Passion of Judith Hearne, Moore's first successful novel, was published in 1956 while he still was living in Montreal where from 1949 to 1952 he worked for The Gazette.

He hit the best-seller lists again with The Luck of Ginger Coffey which came out in 1960, the year he left Canada for the United States.

Since then he has published six other books prior to his latest novel, including the Revolutionary Script, a gripping documentary about Quebec's 1970 FLQ crisis.

In his previous works, Moore demonstrated his ability to create memorable characters caught up in the events and pressures of contemporary life.

With The Great Victorian Collection, he has added an extra dimension of fantasy that compresses ordinary life into an explosive nightmare.

His novel should be required reading for those who cherish the current Great Canadian Dream, winning a million in the Olympic lottery.

Ranging from such subjects as how to choose a doctor (don't look in the yellow pages) to sex (it could be 99 per-cent above the neck) to acupuncture (what's good for the Chinese may not be good for you), The Doctor Game seeks to unravel the rules and debate the myths of the modern medical maze.

W. Gifford-Jones, MD, is the pseudonym of a Canadian gynecologist with two other books to his credit, Hysterectomy, and On Being a Woman.

Anyone curious about the author's identity should have little trouble in discovering it—the book jacket contains a picture of him, and the biographical data reveals that he lives in Niagara Falls, Ont., with his wife, also a physician, and three sons and one daughter.

SOCIAL ISSUES

During his 25 years in practice in Boston, Montreal and in Ontario, the doctor has become convinced that birth control, abortion and euthanasia are issues that the medical profession is going to have to face, despite the protests that they are physicians, not sociologists.

The doctor of the future will have to keep his finger on the pulse of society as well as that of his patient. The venerable Hippocratic oath, he feels, needs updating.

And about those warnings of the United States Surgeon-General in American cigarette advertisements, disturbing statisticians claim there were so many statistical flaws in the report that it was worthless.

The Doctor Game would seem to have something for everybody and should prove interesting reading for anyone planning a trip to the hospital in the near future.

Oil Hunt Stirs Hope At Brest

BREST (CP) — The hunt for "black gold" is stimulating dreams of economic recovery in this Breton town on the northwest coast of France.

After opposing construction of a petroleum refinery as a nuisance several years ago, the city's 200,000 inhabitants are pinning their hopes on a recently-launched search for offshore oil.

Five years of prospecting and research ended in May when a consortium led by a French company called ELF-Aquitaine began drilling the first well in the Atlantic, about 70 miles west of this city.

Drilling is taking place at a water depth of 600 feet and is scheduled to last about four months. Two other wells are to be drilled before next spring.

Without expecting the stretch of the Atlantic known as the Iroise Sea to rival the North Sea, experts estimate production could mount to about 20 million metric tons a year.

That would represent about 15 per cent of France's yearly petroleum imports, whose rising costs in the last two years have contributed greatly to the country's trade deficits in 1974 and in the first three months of 1975.

A domestic petroleum output, even as slight, would help redress the country's economy—and especially that of Brittany, a region afflicted by under-development and a high unemployment rate.

Experts say the project represents the last chance for France to locate offshore petroleum, at least, at such a shallow level.

France's War Vets Annoyed

PARIS (enter) — After 30 years of peace, France's war veterans are back in the front line—to fight their own president for scrapping the annual celebrations of the Allied victory over Nazi Germany in the Second World War.

Nothing in President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's first year in office has provoked such public outcry as his announcement that this was the last year France would officially celebrate the Allied victory on May 8.

No group has been more embittered than the "ancienne combattants." Suddenly they are appearing on television to voice their disgust at the French president, drawing on a fund of memories of France's humiliation under Nazi occupation.

For years public attention has focussed on them only at memorial celebrations and through the signs on public transport that declare certain seats reserved for "disabled veterans," together with disabled workers, pregnant mothers and the blind.

The ancienne combattants now have found a new cause: resistance to the president's decree.

At one point, an estimated 5,000 people marched down the Champs Elysees to place a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at the Arc de Triomphe and to sing the French national anthem.

They have promised that it will not stop there. The bereaded ancienne combattants, many of them physical reminders of war, say they will perform the same ceremony each year on May 8.

France's major news magazines and newspapers are carrying out polls on public feeling over the issue. The Communist members in the national assembly have demanded a one-day debate on the affair.

Communist party members formed a nucleus among resistance fighters when France was overrun by German troops. The party mouthpiece newspaper L'Humanite attacked the president's decision vehemently under a splashed front-page editorial headed: "Hitler? Never heard of him."

Nobody knows exactly how many anciens combattants there are in France. They are grouped in dozens of associations and the major event on their calendar is the annual dinner, full of nostalgia—from the first aperitif through to the last cognac.

President Giscard d'Estaing's decision eloquently illustrates an aim of his year-old reformist presidency—to turn France away from introspection and wound-licking to a new era of a strong France in a strong Europe, independent of the United States.

Restrict Dirt

Hammered Violin No Great Loss

HALIFAX (CP) — Frederick Alt, professional violinist for 30 years, picked the remnants of a shattered violin from a brown paper bag and read the inscription: "Antonius Stradivarius, Cremona."

"Fortunately, not too great a loss," he shrugged without hesitation.

Thus ended a period of anxiety for Eddie Bowden, 20, who had hammered the old violin to pieces thinking—rightly as it turned out—that it was a piece of junk. He had been helping clean out his father's basement when he came across the violin. It would not fit into a full garbage bag, so he knocked it into the right shape, and found the Stradivarius label and the date 1734 engraved inside the sound box.

His father was equally shattered by the discovery. He had heard of Stradivarius and knew that violins made by the famous 18th-century master were valuable.

Mr. Alt, who said genuine Strads have sold for up to 100,000, agreed to examine the remnants of the fiddle to a lay Mr. Bowden's fears that he had lost a fortune.

The instrument was probably bought through a catalogue many years ago. It's typical of a factory-made product," Mr. Alt said.

He turned to his own pine and maple viola, bought for him by his father in 1945 for $50. Through the sound holes a label could be discerned: "Antonius Stradivarius, Cremonensis, Faciebat Anno 1711."

"Because they have a Strad label does not mean they are forgeries," Mr. Alt said. "Some of them are excellent copies of an excellent style. A good Italian violin of over 100 years can realize 30,000-60,000."

He plucked a soft note on one of his own violins—this one dating back to 1780—and explained how he discerns good violins from bad.

"It's the difference between factory-produced and good-quality, solid-mahogany workmanship. You can tell by a glance, by the type of construction, whether it is a carved fiddle or a steam-processed job.

"The hallmarks of any well-made instrument are immediately apparent to a player. But remember, there have been many excellent makers who have made excellent copies and stapped on a Stradivarius label."

Sex Trap

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Cheese may have to take a back seat to sex when it comes to baiting cosmetrizes, the department of food and agriculture said. They asked University of California to determine if sexual pheromones, chemical agents in rodents, can be identified and used for rodent control.

Halley's Comet May Prove Tame

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Astronomers say people awaiting the return of Halley's Comet in 1986 shouldn't expect a celestial extravaganza. It might be another Kohoutek.

Two comet experts say the interplay of several factors probably will dull the greatly anticipated return of the world's most popular comet, last seen in 1910. This could mean Halley will be no more spectacular than last year's disappointing Comet Kohoutek.

The latest orbital calculations indicate Halley's Comet will pass almost three times farther away from the earth than on its previous visit, the astronomers say.

To complicate things even further, the comet's greatest brightness and longest tail will occur below the plane of the Equator, making seeing it from the Northern Hemisphere more difficult and less exciting, they say.

"We merely remark that if you were disappointed by Comet Kohoutek in early 1974, don't have high hopes for a fine display of Comet Halley," the astronomers write in the June issue of Sky and Telescope, the astronomy journal.

Dr. Brian G. Marsden of the Harvard-Smithsonian Centre for Astrophysics here and Dr. Robert G. Roosen of the Joint Observatory for Cometary Research in New Mexico say another reason the long-awaited event might be diminished is increased light pollution.

The authors cited a University of California study that showed total evident illumination increased 10 times from 1960 to 1970.

"If that growth rate holds until 1986, some cities by then will be bathed in permanent twilight, the astronomers said, "with only the brightest stars and planets visible over city centres."

Roosen said in an interview that many people who saw Halley's Comet in 1910 were disappointed, saying it wasn't as spectacular as advanced publicity built it up to be.

"The reason we did the article is that people are already calling observatories to get information on Halley's comet," Roosen said. "Once we found out it probably won't be much greater than Kohoutek, we decided to write the piece.

"One purpose of the article is to caution people that they shouldn't spend the next 10 years waiting for a magnificent celestial sight," Roosen said.

While astronomers will have a field day with Halley's Comet, particularly where So ... e Hemisphere, the general public might have to wait for another visit for a good view. The comet returns every 76.1 years.

However, Roosen did hold out some hope for comet watchers.

"It is almost certain that there will be a far more spectacular comet than either Kohoutek or Halley between now and 1986," he said.

"It hasn't been discovered yet, but just following the orbit means there is a good chance."

Halley's Comet is named for Edmund Halley, a British astronomer who charted the comet in the 17th Century.

Marching to Summer Jobs

These young Belleville men and women are on their way to summer jobs with the Hastings Prince Edward Regiment as new recruits. The high school students will train for two months with the militia capping the summer program with a two-week stay at CFB Petawawa "to put their summer training into practice," a spokesman said. Approximately 80 students in Belleville and Peterborough have been enrolled in the summer job scheme.

Student Militia Valuable Recruiting Aid Says Major

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Some 40 Belleville and area high school students donned green uniforms and scarlet berets Wednesday marking the opening of the summer work program sponsored by the department of national defence and the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment.

For the next two months the 40 young people, aged 17 and 18, will train daily as members of the militia earning approximately $100 a week.

Regiment training officer Maj. Carl Hubel said the program this year is the largest ever for the local regiment with 40 jobs in Belleville and 40 jobs in Peterborough. A company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, based in Peterborough, will train the Belleville students.

"Last year there were only 20 jobs for both companies," said Major Hubel. "I suppose there is just more money available this year."

The students will take all aspects of militia training — a course equivalent to basic training, said the major. Ten women are included in the course and will undergo identical training as the men.

At the close of the course, the entire group from Belleville and Peterborough will move to CFB Petawawa near Ottawa "to put some of the training into practice," said Major Hubel.

The prime purpose of the program is to provide summer work for students but regular militia recruitment is a valuable side benefit, said the major.

"It's one of the best recruiting programs sponsored by the militia," said Major Hubel. "Each year we find a good number of summer students returning to winter duty with the regiment."

Sgt. Eric Scheller, training adviser with the regular force, said during an interview: "There were no problems finding young people for the course. We could have filled double the spaces."

Wednesday, the new recruits were sworn in and later went to the barber to get regulation hair cuts and to the doctor for physical examinations.

Province Chips In For Faraday Bridge

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — Bay Lake cottagers and residents who have been taking the long way home recently, received some good news Wednesday from Faraday Township council.

Faraday reeve Jack MacKenzie announced that the provincial government has allocated additional funds for the reconstruction of the Bay Lake bridge, four miles south of here on Bay Lake Road.

The bridge, which has been blocked off since a portion of it collapsed under a township truck six weeks ago, will be replaced by a 10-foot culvert and a redesigned access road.

The new approach will remove a major curve and hill that has led to the bridge.

According to Reeve MacKenzie, the province's portion of the $146,000 project will be $100,000.

The rest of the funds will come from the municipality which will pay 30 percent of the labor costs and 20 per cent of capital expenditures.

Reeve MacKenzie said "work will start immediately on the project and the majority of it will be done by Labor Day."

The project should, said Reeve MacKenzie yet under way within the next week.

He said he is hopeful it can be completed within three months.

Antiques Stolen

WEST LAKE — Antiques valued at approximately $250 were stolen Wednesday afternoon from the porch of a West Lake residence.

Community services officer for the Picton detachment of the OPP Constable Donald Watt said the antique pieces were taken from the home of Mrs. Lyn West Lake Road. Among the articles stolen were a garden table, a low smoker and a brass Chinese carriage lamp.

Meetings Reduced

City council now is on summer hours.

This means it reduces the number of regular meetings from two to one a month during July and August.

However, special meetings can be called as the need arises. So far, there has been no such demand and the next session of council scheduled to date is a regular session — set for July 21.

Land Study Complete

The Quinte Planning Board will receive the Open Space Study for the planning area at its regular monthly meeting in Sidney Township offices July 3.

The open space study is one of several documents which is being combined to formulate the Quinte Planning Area Concept plan which will be considered a guide for growth over the entire area of Belleville, Trenton, Sidney and Thurlow Townships, and the Village of Frankford.

Also at that meeting, the board will deal with interim reports on the official plans of Frankford and the two townships.

Fillin' Up

Due to the growing demand during the warmer months, the production of soft drinks increases. At the only locally-owned bottling plants, Misener Beverages bottlers of Pepsi and other soft drinks, the line of bottles rolls on. Charles Misener, owner of Misener Beverages, says the peak months are during the summer but demand has levelled off during the year because of social activities.

Signet Plant Almost Ready

Signet Distributors Ltd. will officially open for business as a member of Belleville's industrial community July 7.

Located in the city's northwest industrial park, the plant serves as a warehouse and shipping centre for institutional food staffs.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey will formally open the building and will be accompanied by Hastings MP Jack Ellis.

Summer Rec Program Employs 74 Students

The city's recreation department Wednesday launched its series of summer programs which — before the season's over — will involve hundreds of young people, from tots to teen-agers.

The department doesn't expect to have a reliable head count on the number of young participants until later this week.

But the variety of leisure activities — including those run by community agencies or service clubs — should attract wide involvement, department officials anticipate.

The programmed pursuits range from swimming to ceramics, arts and archery and tennis, from city playgrounds to rural campgrounds.

It all amounts to what recreation Clifford Belch calls a "real wide choice of leisure" for the community's younger citizens.

It's also providing summer jobs for scores of other young people.

Mr. Belch says 74 young men and women — students from universities, community colleges or secondary schools — have been hired as instructors, leaders, lifeguards or supervisors to staff the various programs.

Car Ablaze

PICTON — Picton firefighters were called to Main Street Wednesday night when a fire broke out in a car parked near the Maple Leaf restaurant.

The car, owned by Brian Bedford of Dundas Street, Picton, is believed to have caught fire owing to a faulty carburetor.

The blaze had been extinguished when firemen arrived shortly before midnight. No damage estimate is yet available.

Trapping Big Business

Statistics from the province's natural resources ministry on the 1973-74 fur harvest show that some 10,000 beaver were trapped in the district. This was the second-highest among the ministry's districts and doubled more than $200,000 for the 517 trappers involved.

Plant To Re-open

PICTON — Workers laid off their jobs at a Proctor-Lavoy Division of SCM Canada Ltd. in April, will return to the plant on July 15 as scheduled.

Plant manager William Hall Stewart this week said all workers laid off, except for those who have taken other jobs, will return to the plant in mid-July.

The plant was shut down temporarily in February when 105 workers were laid off for a four to six weeks period. Workers returned to their jobs but only a few weeks later in April a second shutdown was announced.

Soft Drink Boom Keeps Bottler Busy

By RON HUISER
Staff Reporter

Consumption of soft drinks increases during the warmer weather, but contrary to what most people would expect, there has been a growing demand for the beverages in the cooler months.

Social activities such as New Year's and the Grey Cup have created the demand for the increase during the winter months, says Charles Misener owner of Misener Beverages, bottlers of Pepsi and other soft drinks.

"Within the last few years, soft drinks have out-sold other drinks, including coffee and tea," says Mr. Misener.

"Although it varies, today we have 17 trucks on the road," says Mr. Misener.

He thought there has been a greater demand during the winter the summer months are still the peak time of the year.

The area Mr. Misener is responsible for, serving about 140,000 people, extends from Colborne to Napanee, Prince Edward County to north of Highway 7 above Tweed.

"We bottle Pepsi, Diet Pepsi, all Crush brands, 7-Up, Diet 7-Up, Dr. Pepper and a variety of gingerales," said Mr. Misener.

"Pepsi-Cola has been the soft drink business for over 25 years.

"I spent five years with Coke in Canada and the U.S. then went to Pepsi Canada working in Toronto, London, Calgary, Ottawa and Montreal," Mr. Misener said.

"We have the only locally-owned bottling plant and we hire the most people in the soft drink business. Our main priority to the customers is to provide a good quality product," said Mr. Misener.

To provide a constant flavor across the country, every bottler has a water treatment system to remove hardness and impurities. It is then mixed with the syrups sent to them from the main plant in Toronto.

The original formula for Pepsi was created by a druggist in New Bern, North Carolina in 1893, for his drug store and since then it has been a closely guarded secret.

The effects of the metric changeover will not change bottling drastically.

"There will be a gentle phasing in," said Mr. Misener.

"The 10 ounce bottle will be 300 ml; the 26 ounce will be 750 ml; the litre, the litre and a half; and probably a two litre bottle will be introduced.

Providing for that means giving the customer the choice between returnable and non-returnable bottles and cans.

"We're doing everything to promote returnable bottles. We only bring in the cans because the customer wants them."

The Beat Goes On for Yardmen Band

BY COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Yardmen Drum and Bugle Corps and their benefit fund sponsors are making music again.

Last week continued ownership of the bugle corps was left in doubt when it was said the instruments were being recalled and an audit was being taken of the corps books.

Musicians met with sponsors Wednesday night to sort out the "misunderstanding". Art Lucas, co-director of the corps said during an interview with The Intelligencer today.

"According to them (Yardmen Benefit Fund) they never had any intention of taking the instruments," said Mr. Lucas, who attended the Wednesday meeting. "It was a very harmonious meeting."

He said there had been a "misunderstanding about the bookkeeping", but this had been cleared up. "We now have a member of the sponsoring organization who we can talk and relate our finances through him to the benefit fund," said Mr. Lucas. "It's going to be a good relationship," he said.

Mr. Lucas said the corps "has the blessings" of the Yardmen Benefit Fund in its amalgamation with the Kingston Greenadiers. "We have made necessary if either band wants to compete with bands from larger centres.

"We will continue with the amalgamation for at least this year, but we don't know about next year," said Mr. Lucas.

"It seems the sponsors are in favor of the amalgamation, at least until we have a junior corps that can bolster our senior ranks."

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1975

Federal Troops, RCMP Ring Warkworth Prison

WARKWORTH — Riot equipment, military drills, restrictions on visitors — these aspects indicated a increase in security procedures at Warkworth Medium Security Institute Wednesday as Canadian soldiers moved in to assume the positions of about 150 security staff off-duty on a one-day walkout.

About 7,000 prison guards walked off their jobs to mourn from CFB Petawawa and approximately 40 RCMP officers were called in for 24-hour duty. The soldiers were armed with rifles.

About 7,00 prison guards walkedof f their jobs to mourn the shooting of their Montreal fellow guard, Paul Gosselin, shot last Friday while escorting a prisoner to hospital at Ste. Therese, Que.

At Warkworth, an Intelligencer reporter observed a squad of about 20 men, clad in riot-helmets, carrying billy-clubs and transparent body shields, drilling in a fenced-enclosed compound behind a prison building. In the same compound, nine blue-and-green troop carriers were parked.

The drill was observed from the administration building. In front of which two Mobile Command jeeps were parked. On the side of the building, another truck, bristling with communications antennae, was located.

On a hill overlooking the prison, no men could be seen patrolling the perimeter of the penitentiary. However, the visiting reporter was halted by a khaki-clad guard at a guardhouse outside the main gates.

The guard directed the reporter to a small single-storey administrative building outside prison gates. From the time the visitors reached the guard house to the time he regained the Northumberland County road leading to the prison, he was not allowed out of the sight of soldiers.

Access to armed forces personnel guarding the perimeter and inside photographs were forbidden by prison officials.

About a dozen regular administrative and managerial staff remained on duty.

Y's Men Representative To Attend Conference

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

After an 11-year absence Harry Collins of the Belleville Y's Men's Club is returning to Japan to renew old friendships.

Mr. Collins and his wife, Lois, are making a two-week journey to attend the Y's Men's International convention, July 12-15, in Atami, Japan.

He is one of 20 Canadians attending the three-day international convention representing more than 20,000 members.

During the trip they will visit friends made during Mr. Collins' trip in 1964 and acquaintances from personnel exchange programs to Canada.

Preceding the convention the Collins will participate in a three-day package tour of Japan.

"We could have stayed with friends," said Mr. Collins "but it's very expensive to entertain in Japan so we decided to explore on our own."

Mr. Collins said he always hoped to return to Japan and take his wife along.

"The food and especially the Kabuki theatre are very unusual and I remember them distinctly from my last visit," he said.

During free time on the tour and after the convention in over the Collins' will be seeing many friends whom they have been communicating with through the mail.

"Some have retired but I hope to see everyone."

"We will be staying at a friend's home for a day, sleeping in the traditional Japanese style on mats on the floor," said Mr. Collins.

After they leave Japan the trip home will be in two parts.

"We are stopping in Calgary to visit our son and his family and also to accept an invitation to tour the city by the Calgary Y's Men's club," he said.

"When I return to Belleville I hope to have an interesting slide show for the members of the Y's club," said Mr. Collins.

Water Safety Program Draws Growing Interest

At least that's the way it looks this year to instructors of the annual summer swim program at Belleville Kinsmen pool.

More than 250 have registered for July sessions which opened this week — at Bayside and Dundas St. pools now in its 20th year of operation, reports Kathryn Watson, manager of the 1975 swimming program.

"It's an exceptionally large registration — and we really can't take any more this month," says Kathryn.

Lessons are being given daily through July and August to classes that range from young beginners to adults and include a lifesaving course.

But the largest student classes involve the youngsters. Some 150 beginners — the youngest is 18-months-old — are enrolled this week for the July course, she says.

"People are really feeling they should get lessons for their children," adds the program manager.

There are some root reasons for the increased awareness of water safety.

Most youngsters are learning the need in public school programs.

Lifestyle also is a factor, apparently. Clubs report an increase in the number of domestic swimming pools.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during a 48-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Thursday, July 1, 4.50 p.m. —grease burning on burner of stove at 44 West Moira St., some damage, mostly smoke, confined to kitchen.

Wednesday, July 2, 2.36 a.m. — investigation at 279 Front St., someone thought he smelled burning wires, nothing found.

Als and Argos Late Winners

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian Football League clubs continued experimenting with some new league rules in exhibition action Wednesday night and Montreal Alouettes took advantage of one to score their first win.

The Als took the option of going for a two-point convert, instead of the one-point kick, and the extra point proved to be the difference in their 19-18 win over the Stampeders at Calgary.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats made use of the new rule that allows for restricted blocking on punt returns and managed to break one for 49 yards to help set up an early touchdown against Toronto Argonauts. But the Argos, like the Als, staged a late rally for an 18-17 victory.

At Calgary, the Als rallied with a 23-yard touchdown pass from veteran Dave Lewis to rookie Wayne Moseley to reduce the Stampeders' lead to 18-14.

The Lions rolled out another Hound Moseley in the end zone for the two-point convert, leaving Montreal with a two-point kind.

Montreal failed to keep possession on a short kickoff attempt, however, and had to give up the ball with three seconds remaining. Hodgson then failed to hold on to a Lewis pass on the final play but officials called a pass interference penalty, giving the Als one last chance. Als kicker Don Cowan then booted the winning field goal from 47 yards.

Sonny Wade's 13-yard pass to Peter Dalla Riva in the third quarter provided Montreal's first touchdown and Sweet also chipped in with a convert and a single.

Calgary got touchdowns from Tom Parzani on an 18-yard pass from Karl Douglas and rookie Bill Ziegler on a 48-yard run. Cyril McFall kicked a 36-yard field goal, two converts and a single.

The Argonauts didn't gamble on the two-point conversion after rookie runner Bob Miranda scored on a one-yard plunge at 4:18 of the fourth quarter to chop Hamilton's lead to 17-16. Instead, the Argos elected to have Zenon Andrusyshyn kick the traditional one-point convert to tie the score and then Andrusyshyn scored the winning point at 10:18 when he boomed an 8-yard punt into the Hamilton end zone.

Helping Runs Jackson make his coaching debut a winning one, Andrusyshyn also provided a 27-yard field goal and a convert on Chuck Herd's touchdown that came on a 17-yard pass from Mike Rae.

The Ticats made an early gain on the new rule which allows blocking on punt returns. Ernie Palango returned an Andrusyshyn punt 49 yards to the Toronto 18 in the first quarter and three plays later quarterback Bill Etter fired a five-yard touchdown pass to Mike Wade.

Hamilton's other points came on three less hunter field goals from 37, 33 and nine yards, a single by Sunter and a single by gunter Ken Clark.

As promised, both coaches tried to put as many players as possible into the game. Etter played the first quarter at quarterback for Ticats before giving away to rookie Jim McMillan and Jim Stoekel.

DON SWEET

Eagle Means Business

VANCOUVER (CP) — As far as Eagle Keys is concerned, there are no exhibition games in the Canadian Football League pre-season schedule. Keys, B.C. Lions head coach, takes them all seriously because he's still looking for some answers.

"There's no way these games are exhibitions. There's a lot of ball players who are trying to make the club and it's no exhibition to them.

"Sure, you'd like to win. But the objective is to give every man an opportunity to play. The outcome isn't life or death, but it means a lot to the players who are trying to find a job."

Keys went up the training camp at Penticton, B.C., with 45 football players. Monday, he came back with 51 and said he is a long way from deciding the 40 who will be in uniform when Lions' regular season starts July 24 at Winnipeg.

Don Moorhead is back at quarterback for his fifth season and Keys said "he's stronger than he ever was." Peter Liske, acquired late last season from Calgary Stampeders, was slowed by a sprained ankle but still had an impressive camp.

Ken Johnson, a rookie import from Colorado, and Eric Gulbrie, a Canadian returning to B.C. after a year with Detroit Wheels of the World Football League, also worked in the quarterback spot at training camp.

Keys has to fill the spot left vacant by Munroe Eley, who gained 1,176 yards rushing last season. One candidate is rookie import Charlie Davis, a 1973 third round draft choice of New England Patriots of the National Football League.

Also gone is Johnny Musso, sold to Birmingham of the WFL, so Canadian running back Terry Bailey, who carried the ball 30 times last season for 146 yards, may have plenty to do after being used infrequently during his rookie season.

Keys said Ray Nettles, the 1973 defensive player of the year, will play middle linebacker this year. But there's a scramble for the other linebacking positions among Canadians Dan Dwyer, Pete Palmer, Lorne Watters and Paul Gordday and imports Dan McDonough, Larry Cameron and Ollie Bakken.

Elton Brown, a nominee for the CFL outstanding rookie award last year, will be back but where is anyone's guess. The situation typifies Keys' quandary.

Dick Allen Wrecks Cardinals

'Bull' Responds to Challenge

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Ron Reed hurt Dick Allen's feelings Wednesday night and ended up regretting it.

Reed issued an intentional walk to Greg Luzinski in order to pitch to the slumping Allen in the eighth inning, but the strategy backfired when Allen hit a 1-0 Reed pitch into right field for a two-run triple, leading Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-3 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

"Maybe the next time they won't be in such a hurry to walk the bull," said Allen, his pride obvious.

Allen's ego was obviously hurt by Reed's move. It used to be that pitchers would never think of walking someone ahead of him to pitch to him. But times have got tough lately for the Philadelphia first baseman.

Allen swinging good, I'm just not hitting the ball," said Allen, who's batting a lofty .223 and has only collected three home runs and 19 runs batted in since joining the Phillies in mid-May.

In other National League baseball games, Atlanta Braves and San Francisco Giants 6-0, Cincinnati Reds defeated Houston Astros 4-3, New York Mets defeated Chicago Cubs 7-2 and Los Angeles Dodgers defeated San Diego Padres 6-5 in 14 innings. The Pittsburgh-Montreal game was postponed by rain.

St. Louis took a 3-0 lead in the first inning off Philadelphia left-hander Steve Carlton.

The Phillies, after scoring one run in their half of the first, tied it in the sixth when Bowa beat out a bunt single with one out. Johnstone struck out, but Luzinski lined his 21st home run into the upper deck in the score. Allen followed with a single, but Reed fanned Mike Schmidt to end the inning.

ANDRUSYSHYN

Evert Falls To King

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King's marathon match of winning her sixth Wimbledon singles crown, then three less hunter field goals from 37, 33 and nine yards, a single by Sunter and a single by gunter Ken Clark.

Mrs. King, 31, who vows that Friday's final with Evonne Goolagong Cawley is her last major international singles effort, has amassed 18 Wimbledon titles in her 15-year career, five singles, nine doubles and four mixed doubles.

Victory in two of those three events this week would break the record of 19, all doubles, which belongs to Elizabeth Ryan, who played here in the 1920s and 1930s.

Mrs. King moved into the final with a 3-6, 6-2, 6-3 triumph over defending champion Chris Evert on Wednesday. It was Miss Evert's first European loss since 1973, when she bowed to Mrs. King in the final here.

Mrs. Cawley earned a berth in the final by beating Margaret Court 6-4, 6-4 in a duel of former Wimbledon champions from Australia.

Mrs. King, who constantly battles the pain of bad knees, called her come-from-behind victory over Miss Evert, 11 years her junior, "a real trip. I went to the edge of the ledge. I don't understand how I won."

"I'm kind of relieved," said Miss Evert after her loss. "There's been a lot of pressure on me this year, and I knew I have to play great to beat Billie Jean."

In the final set, Mrs. King was trailing 0-3 and had three break points against her in the fourth game. The crowd on centre court thought it was the last they would see of the competitor who first came here as a 16-year-old named Billie Jean Moffitt and has been thrilling them ever since. But they got another surprise.

Mrs. King won the fourth game, came back to 3-3 on errors by Miss Evert, made it 4-3 with a winning forehand pass and took the sixth game to make the final point going to Mrs. King when Miss Evert sent the ball out of court.

"I kept thinking that this was my last Wimbledon and I just couldn't lose now," Billie Jean said. "I was all emotional."

Sharp Takes Edge Off Wise in No-hit Bid

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rick Wise wasn't all that smart Wednesday night and it cost him his second career no-hitter.

The 29-year-old right-hander of Boston Red Sox had been extra-sharp until he faced Milwaukee Brewers. Hitting Bill Sharp with two down in the ninth inning, one out away from becoming the second pitcher in modern baseball history to pitch a no-hitter in each league. But he walked Sharp on four pitches and George Scott and Bobby Darwin followed with home runs.

"It shouldn't have happened," Wise seethed after finishing with a two-hitter and a 6-3 victory in the first game of a twinnight doubleheader as Jim Rice drove in four runs with a pair of homers. "I shouldn't have walked that guy."

Wise, who pitched a no-hitter for Philadelphia Phillies against Cincinnati Reds in 1971, then saw his dream of matching Jim Bunning's record of a no-hitter in each league go up in smoke when Scott teed off on a 1-1 fast ball on the inside part of the plate.

Up to that point Wise had retired the first 18 batters and allowed only two baserunners on an error and a walk.

Ironically, Scott injured an ankle in the second game and had to be carried off the field on a stretcher.

The Brewers bounced back to take the nightcap 5-4 and blew undisputed possession of second place in the Western Division to East Division, one game behind Red Sox.

Elsewhere, Cleveland Indians edged New York Yankees 2-1, Baltimore Orioles routed Detroit Tigers 13-5 as Don Baylor slammed two consecutive home runs, Chicago White Sox nipped Texas Rangers 4-3, Kansas City Royals downed Texas Rangers 7-5 in 10 innings and Minnesota Twins trounced California Angels 8-4.

The Brewers won the nightcap by scoring the tie-breaking run on two-out singles by George Thomas, Charlie Moore and bobby Mitchell in the seventh inning off Bill Lee. Pedro Garcia's two-run homer in the fifth inning earned a 3-1 Boston lead built on Cecil Cooper's homer, Rick Burleson's RBI double and Carl Yastrzemski's run-scoring single.

Moore singled with two out in the ninth and raced home on Ed Crosby's single and a freak error on the relay to give Cleveland its win over the Yankees. Crosby's single sent Kuiper to third and he came home when centre fielder Bobby Bonds' throw hit Kuiper in the helmet and caromed away.

Canadians Hot

KARLSTAD, Sweden (CP) — Canadians won five events and had several runner-up finishes at an international track and field meet Wednesday.

The winners were discus thrower Jane Haist of Montreal, shot putter Bruce Dodgeiowski of Laval, Que., and runners Joan Wenman of Toronto, Ont., Linda Makinsky, Edmonton, and George Smith, Edmonton.

Greg Joy, a 19-year-old high jumper from Vancouver, cleared the bar at seven feet, 2½ inches for a Canadian junior record and finished second to Rune Almen of Sweden who cleared 7-3.

Miss Haist threw the discus 180 feet, five-eighths of an inch to beat Carol Martin of Thorsby, Alta., who had a mark of 175-2¼. Estelle Raung of Edmonton was second with a throw of 171-10.

Mirlos Nemeth of Hungary won the men's javelin throw at 276-4½. Andre Lajoie of Laval, Que., without a mark, was a second arm injury.

Ann Harty of Norway won the women's javelin with a mark of 174-1, and Jay Daly, a green of Vancouver placed fourth with 166-9½.

Makinsky and Smith clipped the 400 metres in 55.1 seconds. Liz Hjalmarsson of Sweden won the 800 in 2:06.7, beating Donna Valaitis of Mt. Brydges, Ont., by a second.

Ann Harty of Norway won the 100 metres in 11.9 and Smith took the 400-metre hurdles in 53.5.

Debbie Mitchell of Toronto placed second in the 1,500 metres behind winner Lea Ordnest of Denmark. The winner was timed in 4:21.1 and Miss Mitchell in 4:21.9.

Jaroslav Jatzky of Czechoslovakia won the 5,000 metres in 14:19.4, followed by Tom Howard of Vancouver in 14:30.4.

Hard Work, Organization Produce the Golden Bat

Whether many people are aware of it, the Belleville Minor Baseball Association Annual Golden Bat Bantam Baseball Tournament is a jewel in the city's sports crown — or at least a feather in our cap.

It has been a first rate affair since its inauguration seven years ago and with each succeeding outing has taken steps forward until now, it can walk no further.

In ratings released by the Ontario Baseball Association the event was placed at the top of the list. It not only has the best bantam competition but the keenest competition of any other tourney in Ontario.

However, its rating was not strictly based on the caliber of its play. As a matter of fact that was secondary in the judgement. The officials of the OBA qualify their decision through the "organization" of the three-day competition.

Never in the first six years has there been a snage in pulling the tournament off smoothly.

In the second year, the skies poured on the event from mid-Saturday morning to the wee hours of Sunday morning. Still, organizers managed to whip the diamonds into shape and complete all games by Sunday evening. They even went as far as cover the infields with gasoline and burn off the excess water.

It is this kind of effort that has occurred and re-occurred throughout the history of the Belleville Golden Bat Bantam Baseball Tournament.

People like Vi Christopher, who not only is tournament director for BMBA but is also first vice-president, and Jean Reid, who every year takes on the hair-raising job of finding homes for out-of-town boys for the weekend, and all the umpires and workers, who donate their time to help make things as big a success as possible, are the ones that have really made the Golden Bat what it is today and what it will be tomorrow.

SLICES — With the past success of the Bantam Tournament, teams from across the province clamour for a spot in action. Last year 20 clubs competed for the top prize and another 20 applications were turned down. This year, Vi Christopher and the tournament committee felt it necessary to cut the team roster back to 16 teams — giving all entries an equal chance (with 18 or 20 entries some teams were playing more games than others).

Because of the tournament's wide-spread popularity the committee also decreed that teams come by invitation only. Nevertheless, several teams applied to the event just in case one invitation fell through.

Circle July 27 on your calendars.

On that date, an event is scheduled for Alemite Park and sports enthusiasts will be able to mix laughter with that satisfied feeling that comes from supporting a worthy cause.

Moe Hudleston, president of the Belleville and District Umpires' Association reports arrangements are being made to present an exhibition softball game featuring a team comprised of members of the umpires group and the renowned CJBQ-CJNH aggregation.

The Knights of Columbus, Alhambra 109 and Shriners Nile Temple are action base. They'll stage a short contest of their own at Alemite Park, immediately preceding the main event.

Of course, who wins these matches is secondary to the fact that all proceeds will go to charities supported by the K of C, Shriners and Alhambra. That is to say, crippled children and the Arthritis Association will be the real winners.

There will be plenty of door prizes and likely an abundance of hi-jinks.

That date again, is July 27. Starting time is 3 p.m. at the Alemite.

Broadloom Upset By Mobil Squad

Belleville Broadloom knew Mobil Chemical was improving but it was doubtful the Broadloom expected, or desired, so much improvement.

All Mobil did was upset Belleville Broadloom 14-2 in their most impressive Belleville and District Ladies Softball League showing all year.

Sue Pobert and Norma May pitched for Broadloom, giving up 15 hits and four walks, while striking out just one.

Ginny Irwin hit two doubles and a single to lead the Mobil team at the plate, while Bonnie McKeown attacked a homer and a double and Heather Sinclair had three singles. Other contributors to the Mobil attack were Maureen Garvin, Sue Shannon and Lynn Wood, each with two singles apiece and Garvin helped her own cause with a double.

Norma May had a single and a double for the lone Broadloom hits.

Earl Colten Fires BISL No-hitter

Earl Colten threw a no-hitter for the Independents Wednesday night, and in so doing picked up a 5-0 Belleville Industrial Softball League win over Brooke Bond.

Colten gave up no safeties all evening although he did walk four batters and another reached on an error. He struck out six hitters in the seven innings he pitched.

Ross Green threw for Brooke Bond, giving up eight hits and four walks while gaining no strikeouts.

Doug McKay led the Independent bats with a single and two triples while Ken Bertrand hit two singles.

The game between Constellation and Canadian Tire, which was supposed to be played Wednesday was postponed because of the poor condition of the field, and will be played tonight.

11-inning Scoreless Tie Features OFL Action

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

If the Belleville McDonalds proved one thing on Wednesday night in Ontario Football League action at Alemite Park here, it's that they belong in the league.

The Macs' record is now 3-17, but only one game has been out of their reach all season long, that game being played in Newmarket at the start of the season.

Wednesday, the Macs lost to the Oshawa Tony's 3-1 in the first game of the twinbill. The second game couldn't be completed because of a city bylaw which states no new innings can begin after 11 p.m. The score of that game was 0-0 after 11 innings.

A familiar name shows up as the Macs' top threat in the loss, Terry Meagher hit a triple and two singles off Oshawa starter Barry Timbers.

The Tony's scored two runs in the top of the second off Belleville starter Scott Reid. They scored again in the top of the seventh when Bob Solomon got his third safety of the evening.

The Macs scored their only run in the third when Meagher hit a well placed single and Frank Robinson came in to score.

Macs had plenty of chances but failed to cash in as has been the case too many times this year.

Timbers took the Oshawa win. He struck out nine while walking one and giving up four hits.

Reid absorbed the loss, his sixth, giving up six hits.

Chase pitched eight and two-thirds innings and gave up five hits and one walk, while striking out six batters. It was Chase's second steady outing for the Macs. Many times new came when Ted Waile did an excellent job in relief, striking out three batters in the two innings he pitched.

Colley went all the way for the Tony's, giving up four hits, one walk and striking out 10 batters.

A couple of outstanding defensive plays by Meagher and Glenn Carleton were necessary to keep Oshawa from scoring. Meagher cut a runner down at the plate, with Larry Mavety making the tag, while Carleton cut another runner down on a perfect strike from centrefield.

Carleton was the only Belleville batter to reach base twice when he came up with a pair of singles.

In other Ontario Fastball League action Woodstock split a doubleheader with Toronto, winning the first 4-1 and losing the second 6-2. Burlington took two games from Hamilton in a doubleheader at Victoria Park, defeating them 5-1 and 5-2. The London Dukes took two games from the Kitchener Evergreens, both by a score of 3-1, in Kitchener.

The Macs will spend the weekend on the road, Saturday in Burlington for one game. Sunday in a doubleheader at St. Catharines. Next home game is Wednesday, July 9 against Newmarket at the Alemite.

Out by Plenty at the Plate

Oshawa's Phil Solomon took a chance, early in the second game of Wednesday's Ontario Fastball League doubleheader. Solomon gambled and lost when he attempted to score from second base on a single to centre field off the bat of Bob Smith. Solomon was out by plenty as the centre fielder Glenn Carleton fired a strike to catcher Larry Mavety who puts the tag on the runner.

5-4 Squeaker To Legion 99

TRENTON — A strong relief chore by Jerry Bury Radford highlighted Belleville Legion 99's 5-4 win over Trenton State Farm at Centennial Park here, Wednesday, as the team used a strong Eastern Ontario Baseball Association bantam contest as a final tuneup for opening games Friday in the annual Legion Tournament at Belleville.

Radford took over from starter Ken Reyer after the home side had rallied for a four-run fifth to take a 4-3 lead. Reyer, working hard to bring his strong right arm back to top condition for regular pitching assignments, showed he's well on the way to reaching his goal. An injury to his throwing arm kept him off the mound in the 1974 season.

With Radford shutting out the State Farm squad in his solid relief effort Legion scored the tying and winning run in the top of the seventh. Ken Wells, two Trenton outcasts and Bruce Bell's infield single accounted for the winning surge.

Darkness forced the umpire to call a halt to the game with Trenton coming to bat in the bottom of the ninth. The visitors had added two more runs in the top of the ninth but the seven reverted back to the eighth inning when the contest was called.

The losers got strong six innings plus from right-hander Paul Dorenscheen who appears set for Golden Bat action. Dennis Baril and Ken Chris Walsh got the call to finish up for State Farm.

Peter Manderville, who made the defensive play of the game with a fine running catch in centre field, Bell, Reyer, Bruce Dafoe, Frank Carr, Jeff Hayward and Gerald Pennington supplied a hit each for the winners.

Walsh had two singles to lead Trenton. The home team's other safeties went to Brian Hanson, Dan Scott, Pete Rosendal, Ben Leavey and Danny Hamilton.

Winning pitcher Dale Forestell stopped Port Hope on five hits and led his team at the plate with three hits and two singles.

Merchants Win 11-8

Belleville Downtown Merchants took another victory in the East Central Ontario Bantam Softball Association Wednesday by edging Napanee 11-8 in nine innings.

Wayne Morrison and Rick Tripp combined for the Belleville win, giving up 11 hits, four walks and striking out eight batters.

Peter Finn went all the way for the losers, giving up 16 hits and two walks while gaining five strikeouts.

Paul Marineau led the local attack with two doubles and a triple. Ron Begley added a triple and Tripp doubled for the winners.

Dwight William homered and tripled, also adding a single but it wasn't enough for Napanee. Mike Martin also homered.

Sheet Metal Team Defeats BYBF Girls

In recent Senior division play in the Belleville Minor Softball Association girls league, Sheet Metal defeated BYBF 15-12.

In games scheduled between AVCO and Mel Barrett's both were defaulted with AVCO taking the 9-0 win.

UCERA defeated The Contractors 24-12, Tebby's took BYBF 15-5 and Clayton smashed Quinte Drive-In 28-18. UCERA was victorious again, defeating Cozy Grill 26-14, while Clayton defeated Dairy Queen 20-7.

Dr. Douglas, Dick Bird Are One-two in Race

Six Quinte area yachts crossed a starting line off the Government Dock Belleville recently. They sailed east down the Bay to Lake Ontario. The course included rounding Main Duck and Yorkshire Islands close to the United States side of the lake, then a northeasterly course to Pigeon Island.

Dr. Ken Douglas and Dick Bird were first and second across the line with their Viking 28s after approximately 56 hours of racing.

"It was tough sailing day and night, but it's worth it for a race like this" said Scott Couture, a member of Bird's crew.

A couple of "old sailors" were next with Grant Rathbun's Corvette "Varuna" beating Bill Finkle's Douglas 31 "Lacretia" by a scant eight minutes corrected time.

Dr. Dan Bechard of Picton sailed his Viking 28 "Melride" was fourth across the line but the handicap system placed him fifth.

The race runs 105 miles and was conceived by Jack Braidwood and is tentatively called the "Braidwood Duck on Oak".

The race was plagued with a lack of wind and "plenty of flies" said race veteran Bill Finkle.

Three Area Teams Are Rated Top Contenders for the Title

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

It should be the best Golden Bat in the seven-year history of the event, and it all gets under way Friday at 6 p.m. at Centennial and Parkdale Diamonds.

What makes it even better for area baseball enthusiasts is that the odds of a championship have to be in the favor of local entries.

Belleville's Legion 99 squad, behind the power bat of Ken Reyer and Grade A pitching of Steve Carr, Rory Radford and Marty Henderson should grab at least a semi-final berth.

Tharlow's Chisholm of Roslin team looks as though they'll surprise a lot of people. The club is in a tight race in their division of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association. A well balanced, well coached unit, the Chisholm's team will be right in the think of the championship reckoning.

However, the favorite of the three local teams is the tournament has to be Trenton State Farm.

Last year the Trenton squad was eliminated in A competition by Cobourg. Returning players though, make the State Farm club the number one choice in the 16-team event.

Six players are back from last season, but they are the ones who will make the difference. Pitching ace Chris Walsh and reliever Dennis Baril along with catcher Dan Hamilton give Trenton the top battery in the tourney. First baseman Paul DiCrescenzo and Kevin Patrick are just starting into the swing of bantam ball.

Friday, four games will be played. All three diamonds will be occupied at Centennial Park with the other contest at Parkdale. Belleville takes on the always strong Oshawa bantamites in the official opener at the main Centennial Diamond. To start things rolling the president of the Canadian Legion Branch 99, co-sponsors of the tourney, and president of the Ontario Baseball Association, Jim Lutton, will throw out the first ball.

In other games at Centennial, Trenton meets Thurlow and Kingston the tournament's defending champions (returning with star hurler Ron Skeggs) take on Brampton, the runners-up in A competition.

Saturday morning the same four diamonds are in use as the opening round is completed. At 9 a.m. Scarborough Village, two-time tourney champs, take on Hamilton Mahoneys, making their seventh Golden Bat start. Toronto Legion 31 meets Waterloo, and Guelph meets Hamilton Alexander Park. At Parkdale Dundas-mood Dorchester plays Lakeside.

The tourney was chopped back to 16 teams this year. In '73 it was up to 18 and in '73 it expanded to 20. However, due to the set-up of a 20-team event, tournament officials did not feel it was fair that certain teams were awarded byes while others had to fight it out all the way. One thing that hasn't been cut back — everyone will be happy to know — is the Annual Golden Bat Dance, On Saturday, at Bay Ridges Canadian Legion Branch 99, the doors will be opened for a nominal $2.50 a person.

BIRTHS

ST. HILAIRE — Vicki Lynn thanks God for safe arrival of her baby brother Bradley Lynn, born at Belleville, June 26, 1975 at Belleville General Hospital. Proud parents Larry and Sandra (nee Reich). Proud grandparents Mr. and Mrs. James Reich, Belleville and Mr. and Mrs. St. Hilaire. Special thanks to Dr. Atkins, Dr. Beattie and Dr. Peterkin. Thank you also to all the nurses on the 4th floor.

BUSHLOW — Teddy and Jenny wish to announce the birth of twin daughters, Connie and Christine, on Monday, June 30, 1975, weight 4 lbs., 2 oz. and 4 lbs., 1 oz. at Belleville General Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Birchard and nurses of 5th floor.

IN MEMORIAM

ROLLINS — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather Clarence Bernard Rollins, who passed away July 3, 1970 and July 3, 1971.
Four years have passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away.
God took him home — it was His will,
But in our hearts he dwells still.
—Very sadly missed and lovingly remembered by wife Bernice, daughter Carolyn, son-in-law Don and grandchildren Kim and Kelly, Ann Marie, daughter-in-law Muriel and grandson Kevin.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to express my sincere thanks to my many friends, relatives and neighbours for their kindness, prayers, gifts, letters, visits and telephone calls. To Rev. Mr. Parsons and Mrs. Parsons for the many calls and prayers and for Communion at the time of accident while I was in there. Special thanks to Dr. Ostrander, Dr. Bell and Dr. Peterkin, to all the lovely nurses and staff on 4th floor for their kindness for the month I was a patient in the Belleville General Hospital. Also thanks to Mr. Ross for his man-of-the-year friendship and meant so much to me.
Sincerely Estella Sherry

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gunsolus, 15 Highland Ave., wish to announce the birth of a daughter on the occasion of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary July 12th, 2 - 4.30 or 7 to 9.30. They would like you to come and bring your good wishes. July3-13

FOUR 70' LOTS LEFT

This will be your last chance for a large lot to accommodate that big house you've been dreaming about. We have sold four so far this week. This west side location is totally located in relation to schools of all grades. Select a plan and have us price it for you now. We will visit you in your own home to assist with all details including financing.

EVER POPULAR HILTON

No one house is selected as often as the Hilton. Maybe it's because it has almost everything under an affordable price. Master bedroom is above average size. Dining ell is larger than most. There is a den or fourth bedroom on main floor level. Attractive entrance foyer contributes to many larger homes. Built in garage.

YEAR OF THE CONDOMINIUM

That is what this year seems to be. We are being deluged with orders. Our latest Belleville site is 75% sold. Trenton is 80% sold. Port Hope 60% sold. Cobourg 95% sold. All these people can't be wrong! With the $1,500.00 grant to help and subsidized monthly payments as high as $60.00 they may be wrong if you don't act now! No excuse not to own your own home.

J. F. NELLES REALTOR

BRICK DUPLEX $37,900.

Two very attractive apartments, each with 2 bedrooms, private entrance, double garage and large garden. No renovations needed — just move in and let rent from one into 1983 make life easier. Good location.

WITH OR WITHOUT A POOL

Some folks like 'em, some prefer without but just a little big lot. Either way, we have a house to please you. A 4-bedroom, 3-story with in-ground heated pool; or a 3-bedroom, long, low and lovely bungalow with grocery store across the street; only special attractiveness. We'd love to show you — call this weekend!

2 BEDROOM DELUXE

Perfect in every detail, this one-owner home is just in love with. It even has a fireplace, a near garage, screened porch, and a finished basement visitors would be happy to stay in. On winding, tree-lined residential avenue. Don't look unless you're ready to be hooked!

Former Kingston Brewery Becomes Theatrical Centre

KINGSON, Ont. (CP) — From beer and barracks to community culture is a transition being made here in a quadrangle of historic old limestone buildings by a handful of people with civic goodwill and labor union cooperation.

The squat, heavy-set buildings, perhaps more than 150 years old, originally housed a brewery, its aging houses and its stables. Later they were occupied by the army with its barracks, mess halls, and—in earlier days—its horses.

Now the buildings are city-owned and are being leased to community groups willing to maintain and refurbish them.

Currently under way is conversion of two parts of the quadrangle to serve two of Kingston's leading theatrical groups, the professional Theatre 3, and the amateur group, Domino.

Both were started by Gordon and Valerie Robertson, who settled here in the early 1950s after Gordon, a native of Kingston, trained in the English theatre and met Valerie while playing repertory in England.

The Robertsons' main interest now is in the professional group. Gordon gave up his other job this spring to devote all his energies to the theatre.

They now have a basic troupe of six actors, who double as singers and writers, and a musician.

But the Robertsons still are active in the amateur group, occasionally taking roles in Domino productions, and keeping a parental interest in its development.

In the eastern wing of the old brewery quadrangle, where the aging keys apparently were originally stored, Theatre 3 is equipping a studio workshop, where it will rehearse, experiment, and produce its works.

In what once was the stables and wagon house on the north side of the quadrangle, Domino is building a fully-equipped stage and house seating 120, complete with wardrobe, dressing rooms, box office lobby and actors' green room.

Domino produces seven plays a season, ranging from the classics to contemporary Canadian works. Theatre 3 is mainly dedicated to touring Ontario, playing to school audiences in the area and to adult audiences here and in smaller communities.

Building Domino's new quarters is a remarkable community story. The city gave the group, founded by the Robertsons in 1952, a 17-year lease on the building. The labor unions agreed to let the work be done without cost by trainees.

John Hirschfield, chairman of Domino, said the electrical wiring for the $55,000 construction project was estimated at $15,000 alone. The work was done free by electricians upgrading their skills at St. Lawrence College, and the wiring supplies were provided at minimum cost by Alcan Aluminum Co.

Some of the funds have been supplemented by a donation from Kingston Whig-Standard, but publisher Michael Davies says the newspaper is "just a catalyst" in the project.

Theatre 3 was started in 1965 in the old downtown Grand Theatre, recently refurbished, and Theatre 3 now has been recognized by the Ontario Arts Council as "a regional theatre resource centre, on our way to becoming a regional theatre," Valerie Robertson said.

"We found touring more profitable without the expense of building elaborate sets, and Kingston is very well served by many theatre groups," Gordon said in an interview.

Theatre 3's latest hit is a documentary review of the founding of the United Church of Canada, this year celebrating its 50th anniversary.

Theatre 3 has also been invited to the Leacock Festival of Humor at Orillia, Ont., this summer, by its artistic director, Martin Brennton.

For high school tours this fall, it will stage a collage of theatre classics. It will also do more story-theatre, like an original adaptation of Oscar Wilde's Canterville Ghost.

"We started off, over travelling, with classical plays. Then we fell in love with improvisational theatre, and for a year we didn't write a word down," said Valerie, who also is artistic director of Theatre 3.

"We then moved to story theatre, which meant dramatizing books—even newspaper reports. Now we're moving into the written review situation."

Theatre 3 has an annual budget of $90,000, which goes mostly to pay its professional actors and musicians. Last year, it had government grants totalling $22,000.

As to its relations with the amateur group, Domino, Mrs. Robertson says:

"It's absolutely essential to the theatre fabric of the town to have an amateur theatre which uses the people who cannot spend the time in professional theatre. . . . They have tremendous ability—but they haven't the time to commit to it."

The versatile performer died Friday in Agadir, Morocco, of injuries suffered last Saturday in an automobile accident, his agent said.

Lionel Larner said Blyden's car crashed about 15 miles from Agadir, where Blyden was vacationing before starting work on a new ABC-TV game show to be called The Show Off.

Two weeks ago, Blyden had left the cast of the Broadway hit Absurd Person Singular after 250 performances. His role as Sidney in the British farce had brought him much critical acclaim and a Tony award nomination.

He had previously received a Tony award as an actor in and co-producer of a revival of A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum.

Blyden also served as host of Personality, a daytime game show, and as John Daly's successor on What's My Line.

LONDON (Reuter) — Buckingham Palace said Monday that a misunderstanding on its part led to renewed shots of a Queen Elizabeth being included in a fictional film about an attempt by an embittered Irish man to blow up the British Parliament.

The film Hennessy was made in Britain by American International Pictures and is regarded as so sensitive for British audiences that two film groups, EMI and Rank, have declined to distribute it.

Rod Steiger plays a man whose child was accidentally shot by British soldiers in Belfast. With help from the Irish Republican Army, he turns himself into a human bomb to blow up the House of Lords during the speech from the throne read by the Queen at the opening of Parliament.

Clips bought from Movietone news by the film company show the Queen leaving Buckingham Palace and at the opening of Parliament in 1970.

The Palace was upset by reports that it asked for the newsreel shots to be deleted and was snubbed by the film company.

A joint statement was issued Monday by Ronald Allison, Queen's press secretary, and the directors of Hennessy Film Productions Ltd.

"When permission was given originally it was not appreciated that the newsreel film would be used in a fictional context," Allison said. "It was not the fault of the company. The palace did not appreciate that it was a fictional film."

The palace has confirmed its consent to the inclusion of the news film, but the statement said that in future consent would not be granted for a feature film.

Columbia Pictures Back on Rails

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Can a movie company that loses $30 million in one year find happiness and prosperity?

Following its back-breaking debit of a couple of years ago, the company has staged one of the most dramatic of Hollywood comebacks: since on-the-skids Frank Sinatra won his Oscar for (Columbia's) From Here to Eternity.

Evidence:

During one April week Columbia amassed film rentals of $6 million, a company record. Four of the top 10 money makers in May were Columbia's—Funny Lady, Shampoo, Tommy and Breakout.

The mass release of Breakout brought theatre grosses of $12.7 million in three weeks, representing a possible profit of $5 million.

The man who has guided the company's recovery is David Begelman, president of Columbia Pictures since Sept. 4, 1973.

He represents the new managerial breed in the industry—well-educated, low-key, persuasive rather than authoritarian. Like many of today's producers, he was an agent.

"It has been a natural step for agents to move into production," Begelman said.

"Major theatrical agents dealing with stars, directors and writers literally put picture projects together," he said. "They were, in effect, producers, but they didn't actually produce.

"Once you had that training, it was a short step to producing. It was simply a matter of understanding the rhythm of film-making and applying taste and judgment.

"Also, an agent must master the art of persuasion, learning to work with people," Begelman said. "With the growing independence of actors, directors and writers, studios can no longer mandate.

"A man in my position has to persuade, and I find myself doing it from 7 in the morning until midnight."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, July 4

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's time to issue a gentle reminder to a friend who has a long-overdue obligation to you. She may have forgotten.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You've had a serious matter on your mind. This is the day to resolve it. Think it through again, for the right answer.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) You'll require some assistance in a confidential matter. The person you approach today will be helpful and discreet.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Set up a get-together for new—and old friends you have not seen for awhile. A good day for pleasant association.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can gain advantages quietly today for a project that's best put under wraps for the time being.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Partnership you display today will be unassuming, but force-ful. You'll channel the group's activities without others being aware of it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Private persons of influence you meet today. Such associations can be beneficial without taking advantage of them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Though the position you take on an important issue is the proper one, you can make a few concessions without compromising your honor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's unnecessary for others to know the motives behind your actions at this time. Avoid misunderstandings. Keep them to yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Let go today. Don't worry so much about others having a good time that you take the edge off your own fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Others may find their fun in golf or tennis today. You'll get more kicks doing something constructive at home.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll have a chance to discuss a serious matter with a friend at a social gathering. Don't hesitate to take this person aside to talk.

Potassium Level Can Be Monitored

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You wrote recently on the subject of potassium. I have a friend who has been told she has a deficiency of potassium. She has been taking potassium pills, but they don't seem to help her.

In the morning she feels badly—weak and faint. What are the symptoms of a lack of potassium?—F.V.H.

Potassium, along with sodium, as I mentioned in that column, is essential in maintaining a proper chemical balance in the body cells. It can be depleted by the use of some diuretics, as well as by chronic vomiting, in diarrhea, in some kidney diseases, or in diabetic acidosis.

The symptoms are chiefly muscle weakness and exhaustion, low blood pressure, heart irregularity, leg cramps. The potassium level can be determined from chemical tests. ECGs also will reveal a pattern of potassium deficiency.

Caution is the word in use of potassium supplements, lest too much be given. In the case of your friend, response to potassium supplement therapy would not be immediate or dramatic. It will also depend on the condition that brought on the deficiency to begin with—which, incidentally, should be determined if this hasn't been done already.

And, it will be important to monitor potassium levels in subsequent tests. If the symptoms of weakness can be associated with the potassium therapy, then your friend should report this to her doctor, which is the proper medication.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had emphysema for several years. His nose started to bleed a lot, and we had to take him to a doctor once to have it stopped. I wonder if that is in any way connected to emphysema.

The doctor said it was caused by high blood pressure.—S.K.

Emphysema, as you know, is a lung problem caused by deterioration of the tiny alveoli, little sacs of the lungs involved in transferring oxygen from the air we breathe to the body.

When the lungs are damaged, as in emphysema, the result is a diminished supply of fresh oxygen entering the system. In severe emphysema, a condition called polycythemia can result.

Since the red cells of the blood are the ones that carry oxygen, and since the body is suffering from a shortage of oxygen, more red cells are produced in an effort to pick up every available bit of oxygen the lungs can hold. This condition can be found in especially high altitude areas because of the rarefied air, and for the same reasons I describe above. The result is a thickened blood, which can aggravate heart conditions. Pulmonary hypertension can result. So, yes, in emphysema and the high blood pressure can be related, as can the nosebleeds.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 19-year-old. My boy-friend had the mumps, and he thinks I immediately got it. I can become pregnant by him. But did. Now he tells me it couldn't have given him. Is this true?—Worried.

It is not true.

In patients who have had the disease after puberty, the testes may become involved, and there is in about 25 per cent of such cases. The condition is called orchitis, a general term to describe inflammation of the testes. There would have been severe pain and swelling of the testes. If he did not have this, the testes would not have been involved.

Sterility is rare, and occurs only when both testes have atrophied (wasted) as a result of the disease. He may be trying to sell you a bill of goods.

Harbor Trial Jury Starts Deliberations

HAMILTON (CP) — The jury in the Hamilton harbor trial continues its deliberations today, and is to hear, once again, one of the tape recordings that formed part of the Crown's case against Kenneth Elliott, former harbor commissioner, and his businessman Reginald Fisher.

The jury had little time to deliberate Wednesday night, but before quitting for the night, foreman Ross Munro told Mr. Justice Thomas Callon of the Supreme Court of Ontario that the jury wants to hear at least one of the tapes again.

Most of Wednesday was taken up with the judge's charge to the jury and with legal arguments and objections to the charge raised by lawyers for the Crown and defence.

After the seven women and five men of the jury retired to deliberate, Mr. Justice Callon considered the lawyers' objections and then called the jury back to clarify some points in his address.

The jury is considering indictments of conspiracy, fraud and uttering, laid against the two men in connection with alleged kickbacks and payoffs on dredging and construction projects in the harbor in 1970-72.

The jury foreman also told the court that he and his colleagues want more explanation of the Criminal Code definition of conspiracy and of the requirements for corroborative evidence.

During his charge, the judge warned the jury that evidence given by accomplices should be corroborated by other testimony or evidence. He told them it is dangerous to convict on an accomplice's word alone.

Mr. Justice Callon pointed out that eight of the Crown's witnesses, including their key witness, Horace (Joe) Rindress, are acknowledged to have been accomplices of the two accused.

Mr. Rindress, a former dredging company official, worked with police in the spring of 1973, using tape recorders and transmitters to monitor a series of conversations with Elliott and one luncheon meeting with Fisher. Some of the Crown's Tape recordings made during those meetings were introduced as evidence during the trial.

The judge's charge also covered the definition of conspiracy and corroboration, but apparently the jurors want more details.

The trial began May 5, heard masses of oral testimony and hundreds of documents, bank records, transcripts and personal papers entered as exhibits.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

There is nothing to the play of today's hand. The defense takes the first trick, declarer the last 12.

There is a lot to the bidding though. South bids 11 high-card points, but his strong six-card suit gives him a sound opening bid. South's one-heart response is normal and North elects to rebid two diamonds rather than give an immediate raise with just three trumps.

South's three-club bid is what is sometimes alled a "True reverse". The bid shuts out a reply of three hearts and by definition is a reverse bid even though the hearts and clubs have been bid in order of rank. It is also a game-forcing bid.

North's jump to four hearts is a very good bid indeed. It shows three good hearts. With four hearts he would have raised hearts right away. It also says: "Partner, you have forced to game. I like hearts and if you want to go on to a slam it is up to you. I have told my all."

South does want to go on. He bids four diamonds. This

Teachers' Bargaining Bill Stays Unchanged

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government's proposed legislation reopening collective bargaining for teachers remains without any changes as it struggles through the committee stage.

Members of the standing social development committee began pouring over the legislative proposal after it received second reading in the legislature June 17.

As of today, the committee had accepted less than a quarter of 85 clauses.

"If we have to sit here for two months that's okay with me," Education Minister Thomas Wells said following Wednesday's committee meeting.

The draft legislation gives teachers the strike sanction and sets down a long list of bargaining guidelines.

Mr. Wells said he expects speedier progress today and Friday with arguments having been completed on controversial clauses embedded at the head of the legislation.

The management rights issue has pilted representatives of teachers and trustees against one another in recent committee meetings. Trustees claims the legislation will give teachers too much too fast and erode the powers of school boards.

Donald Deacon (L—Toronto York Centre) introduced an amendment during Wednesday's meeting designed to bolster boards' management rights by giving trustees total control of "the nature and quality of the instructional program."

He later withdrew the motion after agreeing that "nature and quality" would be difficult to define.

Calf Production Aid Said Inadequate

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government's proposed income stabilization program for cow and calf producers is "seriously inadequate," Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said in the legislature Wednesday.

The government announced plans last week for a program to guarantee producers 50 cents a pound on animals weighing less than 450 pounds.

"The government is not providing a price to meet the farmers' requirements," Mr. Nixon said outside the Legislature. "The goal should be to ensure the a good supply of cattle for the future."

Agricultural associations have said the provincial proposed income guarantees are not good enough.

Robert Eaton (PC—Middlesex South) told Mr. Nixon in the legislature that the government's program was developed after consulting with producers.

He said the government and agricultural associations differ over the progress because the associations have used inflated production cost figures to come up with a guaranteed income supplement.

Mr. Nixon, who owns 50 head of Hereford cattle, says he will keep his St. George, Ont., farm near Brantford, Ont., out of the voluntary stabilisation plan.

Environment Review Bill Stresses Caution

TORONTO (CP) — Modified, environmental assessment legislation brought back to the Ontario legislature Wednesday stops short of requiring publicly-requested hearings or giving to the assessment board the final decision on a project.

The legislation was first promised by the government in the March, 1973, throne speech.

Environment Minister William Newman, in bringing back the amended Bill 14, first introduced in the legislature March 24, said the government intends to proceed with "caution and restraint" in implementing proposed review procedures.

Heather Mitchell, spokesman for the Canadian Environmental Law Association (CELA), one of 178 groups which has spoken on the issue in the last two years, said CELA was pleased the legislation was again before the house and applauded some "significant amendments."

The legislation as proposed would apply to all projects except those spelled out in exemptions and the Statutory Powers Procedure Act would be applied at hearings except at the discretion of the hearing board, she said.

However, the bill would not require public hearings on the request of a proponent of a project or an individual.

Rather, the minister would have the authority to deny a hearing if he considered the request frivolous or vexatious.

The minister also said he could not accept suggestions that the proposed board would have the final decision.

Under the bill, the cabinet could overrule the board within 28 days of receipt of its decision, but if no action was taken, the board's decision would be final, he said.

The bill would apply initially to all projects of the Ontario government and its agencies, municipalities "at a later time" and the private sector "at a time dependent upon our administrative capability and experience."

Mr. Newman said the ministry had taken into consideration in drafting amendments submissions and recommendations received from many sources since the bill was first introduced. The bill now goes to committee for debate.

Icebreakers, New Prisons Victims of Economy Drive

OTTAWA (CP) — New penal institutions and icebreakers are among the victims of federal efforts to reduce planned spending by $1 billion, Treasury Board President Jean Chretien said Wednesday.

He told the Commons that Ottawa will spend $35.6 billion in the current fiscal year ending March 31, 1976. This was up about 13 per cent from last year and while the cuts will not result in reduced real spending, the government was setting an example of restraint by whittling down planned expenditures.

Capital spending cuts centred on six departments with transport losing the most, $35 million, which will slow down development of new icebreakers.

The solicitor-general's department had $6 million lopped from its construction program and Indian affairs and northern development had $8 million chopped from Indian programs, parks development and the Mackenzie highway in the Northwest Territories.

Public works lost $13 million, the defence department $10 million and environment $12 million.

Mr. Chretien said the government was faced with some large overruns in statutory spending programs and, to hold down spending, was forced to cut various departmental programs.

Some departments are still trying to work out ways to absorb cuts, he said.

Conservative housing critic Flora MacDonald said Wednesday the budget is "totally inadequate to meet the housing crisis."

The government had done little to limit costs of housing, the largest single expenditure of most families.

Buses and Trucks Hazard for Marchand

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal role in the bus and trucking industries is expected to be one of the toughest problems for Transport Minister Jean Marchand in carrying out his plans for an integrated transport system.

Despite favorable reaction from some provincial governments to his recently-announced transport policy, federal officials expect talks with the provinces on the policy to be difficult and complicated.

One of the thorniest issues will be how to mesh bus and truck services with air, rail and marine operations as the policy proposes. The motor vehicle industry is regulated by the provinces while the other transport systems are under federal control.

Davis Orders 3-month Gas, Oil Price Freeze

TORONTO (CP) — A 90-day freeze on the price of gasoline diesel fuel and home-heating oil in Ontario went into effect at 12:01 a.m. EDT today.

The freeze and a one-man royal commission to recommend pricing policies beyond the freeze were announced in the legislature Thursday by Premier William Davis.

"Ontario will tolerate no increases until such a time as we are satisfied that the price charged for gasoline at the pumps and heating oil delivered to our homes is justified," Mr. Davis said.

The freeze expires Oct. 1 but could be extended to the end of November, he said.

In effect, the freeze postpones for at least six weeks a mid-August increase of five cents a gallon on gasoline announced in the federal budget June 23. It does not offset the 18-cent excise tax on gasoline imposed when the budget was announced.

The onus will be on consumers to report price-freeze violations to the ministry of consumer and commercial relations under whose jurisdiction the Petroleum Products Price Freeze Act was introduced, he said.

Summary conviction under the act could draw a fine of not more than $2,000 or one year in prison, or both, for an individual. Corporations could be fined up to $25,000.

Telephone interviews conducted Thursday by The Canadian Press showed that some Ontario consumers felt the freeze will not help their pocketbooks much, while others thought the freeze is a good idea.

Jerry McAfee, president of Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., said the province's decision "may serve a short-term political purpose, but only to the detriment of the oil industry's ability to provide adequately for the future energy needs of Ontario and the rest of Canada."

He said Mr. Davis forgot to pass a law "making it economic to buy 18 oil and sell it for $6.50," referring to an excise tax in the federal budget that increased the price of crude oil by $1.50 a barrel to $8.

The June budget also called for a voluntary 45-day deferral to Aug. 15 in price increases.

Mr. McAfee said the long-term damage to Canada's petroleum industry "will far exceed the $5 saving to the average Ontario motorist if he pays five cents less per gallon for the 100 or so gallons he may use during the initial 45 days of the Ontario freeze."

A spokesman for Texaco Canada said the firm has a 20-day supply of gasoline and the price freeze "puts us in a position of having higher raw material and other increased costs on the one hand and a freeze on product prices on the other."

J. A. Armstrong, chairman of Imperial Oil Ltd., said in a statement that the freeze will cost the company an additional $70 million to finance inventory costs.

The announcement of the freeze was greeted by desk-thumping from Conservative and New Democrat members of the legislature.

Liberals sat grim-faced as Mr. Davis preceded his announcement with an attack on the "tax-raising and inflationary" budget presented June 23 by the Liberal government in Ottawa.

Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell said outside the legislature that the head of the royal commission will be a well-known Canadian who lives outside Ontario and is not employed by an oil company. He will be appointed within 10 days.

A political play, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said of the freeze as he spoke to reporters following the announcement.

NDP Leader Stephen Lewis told reporters the freeze is a step in the right direction, although the NDP would have applied a freeze until Dec. 31 and revoked the 18-cent excise tax added to gas prices by the federal government.

In his announcement, Mr. Davis noted that he met with representatives of seven major oil companies last Friday.

"They won't like it," he said.

"Crude oil and natural gas in Canada is no longer managed in the economic interests of the nation. It has been converted into a happy hunting ground for the federal tax-gatherer."

Mr. Lewis said the freeze represents a personal victory for the NDP.

"Something somewhere is turning in his grave," he said. "The sacred cow of all free principles—to allow the free enterprise system absolute freedom—has been violated."

Ottawa Accepts Freeze

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday the federal government will go along with a decision by Ontario to freeze retail gasoline prices for 90 days.

But the minister left open the question of what Ottawa might do if the freeze is extended beyond that time.

"It's really hypothetical at this point to talk about what might happen," Mr. Macdonald said.

He added later that as far as he knows, there is no federal law allowing the federal government to impose its will at the retail price level.

Ontario Premier Davis also told the provincial legislature a commissioner will be appointed to make recommendations on oil product prices. He said the freeze might be extended.

"He obviously doesn't know what to do," Mr. Macdonald said. "I hope the commissioner will be able to explain oil marketing to him and some of the perils of what he is doing."

The minister said he thought the Ontario position was contradictory. The province had earlier worried over whether enough exploration money was available, but now is cutting back on income to the companies.

Mr. Macdonald said he felt the refiners in Ontario, mainly large multinational oil companies, could absorb a 90-day freeze, but any extension could cause problems for the petroleum industry.

"If he's talking about a delay of 90 days to clear refineries of inventories of older cheaper oil, that's one thing," Mr. Macdonald said. "But a delay of a year or more would be something different."

"Ontario seems more concerned with the short-term run," holding down consumer prices but not providing industry with the money to find new supplies of oil.

Time's Up For Time And Digest

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian editions of Time magazine and Reader's Digest will lose their special tax status next Jan. 1 even though legislation affecting the publications will be delayed until fall, Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner said Thursday.

Mr. Faulkner said there will be no extension of the Jan. 1 implementation date for stripping advertisers in the two U.S.-owned magazines of the right to claim income tax deductions for advertising costs.

The government served notice to end the special tax concessions in January and has been ready for two months to proceed with Income Tax Act amendments, he said in an interview.

Lang Promises Law

Jury Decisions To Be Protected

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang said Thursday he will propose legislation to prevent appeal courts from reversing jury decisions as happened in the case of abortionist Henry Morgentaler.

It will be part of a package of proposed amendments to the Criminal Code, to be introduced in Parliament "soon."

Mr. Lang said "considerable concern" about the issue—not entirely warranted—made it seem best to remove the section from criminal law.

The issue came to a head when the Supreme Court of Canada upheld an 18-month sentence imposed on Dr. Morgentaler after the Quebec Court of Appeal overturned his jury acquittal on the original charge of performing an illegal abortion.

The Quebec appeal court said the defence conceded the trial was incorrect. This was supported by the high court on grounds the law had been misinterpreted originally.

The Opposition has claimed repeatedly in the Commons the Supreme Court ruling has jeopardized the jury system. The Ontario Criminal Lawyers' Association adopted a similar stand saying the high court has destroyed a fundamental principle of democracy.

Last week, former prime minister John Diefenbaker introduced a private member's bill to limit appeal courts to ordering a new trial if they disagree with a jury verdict.

Mr. Lang told the Commons the Opposition critics had used the issue as a "red herring" and mounted a campaign have the criminal law changed.

"Since I considered this section a relatively unimportant one in the sense it would almost never be used, the simplest way to end the concern and end the campaign was to remove the possibility of a verdict of guilty in place of a verdict of not guilty . . .

Regan Will Not Copy Ontario Price Freeze

HALIFAX (CP) — A spokesman for Premier Gerald Regan says the premier does not intend to intervene directly to freeze gasoline prices in the province, a step taken Thursday by the Ontario government of Premier William Davis.

The spokesman said that the question of further price increases will be left entirely to the provincial Board of Public Utilities which has "all the authority it needs" to handle the matter.

However, W. D. Outhit, board chairman, indicated in an interview that board members are not clear where they stand.

Traffic Counts to Give Bay Bridge Study Data

By HARRY MUTHALL
Staff Reporter

During the next two weeks provincial government teams will seek on-the-spot traffic data crucial to the Bay Bridge replacement study.

Roadside checks will take place at strategic highway access points around Prince Edward County — including the Belleville area — the transportation and communications ministry has announced.

In all, the teams will take four days — on successive Sundays and Tuesdays starting this weekend.

Three six-men crews will be deputed at selected points, including the present Bay Bridge area itself.

The information they compile will be known as an origin-destination survey.

It will be fed into the study launched late last year to seek the most feasible route for a new Highway 14 connection across the Bay of Quinte — replacing the drawbacks of swing bridge—causeway to Rossmore.

Tuesday checks are likely to produce a better analysis of commuter traffic in the area, Sunday travel at this time of year also will reflect tourist and weekend traffic volumes to the country's parks and water recreation spots, says Diego Nigro, transportation statistics superintendent.

Only selected motorists will be questioned by the survey teams in order to keep any interference with traffic flow to a minimum, he said.

Questioning will be brief — less than a minute — with selected drivers being asked to provide pertinent information about their trip.

Queries will include origin and destination of a journey, its purpose and frequency.

Locations of the survey sites will be indicated in advance by roadside signs and traffic-time control measures.

"We would appreciate the co-operation of the public," said Mr. Nigro.

Main sites chosen are the present swing-bridge site, Highway 33 at Carrying Place and east and west crossings of the Glenora Ferry.

The highway 14 study was expected to take about 18 months from the originated, first phase — involving local reaction to possible routes along a 12-mile stretch of the Bay from Point Ann to Bayside — ended in April.

At that time, ministry planners expected to return in September to develop route alternatives for the highway link for further evaluation.

OPP Conducts Safety Contest

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Ontario Provincial Police are holding a poster contest and guess what the prize is? A two-day stay in Toronto with the OPP.

The contest, designed to make children aware of road-construction safety signs, opens July 7 and closes Aug. 14. It is open to students who were in elementary schools or plan to enter one this year.

Children who enter the contest must color a cartoon depicting a road construction scene. The cartoons are available at local OPP detachments.

The first three winners will be guests of the OPP at the Cambridge Motor Hotel. The trip includes a visit to Ontario Place and to OPP headquarters in Toronto.

Expenses for winners and one parent will be paid by the Ontario Road Builders Association.

Police May Give Riders Time to Learn New Laws

Rigid enforcement of new provincial legislation governing motor-assisted bicycles (mopeds) on the first day it is proclaimed into law in Belleville will depend on the amount of publicity, says Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

Chief Crosbie said today, "it depends on the publicity it (the proclamation) gets. If it is well-publicized on the day it's proclaimed, we'll rigidly enforce it."

If it does not appear a large segment of the public is fully aware of the law at first, he will likely direct his department to issue warnings for minor offences against the new rules during a short transition period, he added.

In a news release issued from Toronto this week, John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications, said the proposed new law will not take effect until they are officially proclaimed.

This will probably be in the middle of the latter part of the summer," he commented.

"Meanwhile, moped drivers may continue to drive without a licence or insurance as under the original regulations.

"This will also give the ministry the time to prepare and distribute the necessary licence plates and registration forms," he said.

Mr. Rhodes announced last Thursday the law for moped drivers, under amendments to the Highway Traffic Act, will mean that only persons 16 years of age or over may operate these vehicles; drivers must have a driver's licence or a learner's permit, they cannot carry passengers; and all motor-assisted bicycles must be insured and registered with the ministry.

Registration is expected to cost $5. Moped drivers will not require helmets.

Driver Charged

PICTON — A Bloomfield area man was charged with impaired driving early today when the car he was driving collided with a parked vehicle on Main Street causing $800 damage.

The accident occurred in front of the Globe Hotel shortly after 12:30 a.m.

Demand Outstrips Supply Of Used Furniture

Demand is far outstripping supply in furniture exchange program administered by the Central Volunteer Bureau.

Summer co-ordinator for the program Beverley Haley said during an interview Thursday: "The shortage of donated furniture is reaching a critical stage ...and threatening the existence of the program."

For several years the furniture exchange program was operated by the Central Volunteer Bureau, a member of the United Appeal Campaign. Last year the program was taken over by a group of Belleville people headed by a federal, make-work grant.

The service was handed back to the co-ignators this year but is experiencing difficulties gaining its former momentum.

"We have all kinds of inquiries about furniture but very few calls from people who would like to donate used goods," said Miss Haley, a second year social sciences student at Peterborough's Sir Sandford Fleming College.

"We need everything from beds to dressers to chesterfields," she said.

Miss Haley said that in the three weeks she has been working on the program her office has received 20 calls for furniture and one call for a donor.

Anyone interested in donating furniture to the exchange program is urged to call Miss Haley at 962-1353 during office hours. The program has drivers who will come to homes and pick up donated furniture.

OBC Wants to Combine Courses with College

Loyalist College Board of Governors recently decided it will consider an Ontario Business College (OBC) offer which OBC president and principal Annetta Brown says will alleviate the college's placement record for one-year secretarial course graduates.

Mrs. Brown approached the board with a recommendation that the college consider transferring its one-year course to OBC where graduates have had considerable success in securing jobs.

She quoted Loyalist figures released in January, 1974, showing only nine out of 32 students in the one-year secretarial program secured a their field at an average salary of $4,000 per year.

Mrs. Brown also requested the board allow OBC to use Loyalist's facilities, noting "there are many areas in which we could co-operate."

Board chairman Will Wilkinson commented, "If a practical solution is to be found between Loyalist and OBC, then we should try it."

The board referred the request to Loyalist's secretarial advisory committee for study and recommendation. The committee is composed of area employers who advise on curriculum content and job opportunities in the region served by Loyalist.

Mrs. Brown remarked, "OBC has been asked from things educational going on in the city" due to the assumption by some people that she does not look kindly upon Loyalist. She said it seems to be correct that impression and noted OBC desires to become involved.

"We are considered to be a profit-making organization and therefore, we must be careful she said of some people's idea of OBC. But she pointed out the profits are turned back into the operation.

Mrs. Brown added that as of January of this year, private business colleges fell under the provincial ministry of colleges and universities which also administers community colleges such as Loyalist.

Tourist Sought

BANCROFT — Provincial police have been asked by the Midland County sheriff's department in Michigan to try and locate an American tourist believed traveling in eastern Ontario.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Mr. Schieben is asked to contact the nearest provincial police office.

England Not Mentioned

TRENTON — In a survey of reaction to the Bicentennial celebrations in gasoline ads published in Tuesday's The Intelligencer, Carl Sanderson was misquoted as saying "as long as I tested the increase, we're still more fortunate than people in England."

What Mr. Sanderson said was "in Canada are still more fortunate than most people in the world, with the exception of those in the United States."

Playground Program Offers New Twist for Children

TRENTON — Playground programs in five school yards in Trenton will take on a new look this summer, says playground supervisor Susan Patrick.

Miss Patrick, head of a nine-member playground crew, said Thursday the departure is due in small part by the number of other activities in Trenton that attract town children.

This year's six-week program is broken into three sections, each based on a different theme — the middle ages, the wild west, and the circus.

Activities at each playground will centre around each theme during a two-week period.

The idea, being implemented for the first time this year, is in answer to a help the nine playground activities, namely, those based on athletic prowess, Miss Patrick said.

"Now that they have so many activities for athletic kids," she said, "the playground has to lean not towards the intellectual, but the average kid."

Sports days and Junior Olympics will be omitted and days, true to theme, will be instituted. Plans now are set for a Rodeo Day.

One reason behind the change said Miss Patrick, is simple.

Kids get bored. Activities will be similar from week to week, but will be dressed differently to keep the attention and interest of children high.

The new orientation will also help the nine playground leaders. Previously, she said, a leader was on his own: "We were there for eight weeks to do what we wanted."

Now, programs will be the same in all playgrounds, with the result that if problems arise, leaders can discuss their solutions with each other.

She said she hopes the feeling that a leader "was left in the cold" will thus end.

In line with the two - week theme idea, the Trenton library has agreed to provide films and books on various aspects of the three basic themes.

As in previous years, children will attend playgrounds morning and afternoon with a one-hour lunch break.

The lunch hour at home is a continuation of a policy geared to help end the thinking among parents that playgrounds are "babysitters" for their children.

Children are often forced to come, says Miss Patrick. "We'd like to think they come because they want to but we'll never get away from the idea of playgrounds as babysitters."

Registration at playgrounds will begin Monday when leaders will be at North Trenton, V. P. Carravell, Marmora, Dufferin, and Prince Charles public schools.

Children will be asked to take home registration forms which parents are requested to fill in. Miss Patrick said the forms will be used to contact parents if any problems occur with their children while they are at town playgrounds.

Hydro Hikes Rates, Ends Heater Rentals

MARMORA — Marmora Hydro Commission has announced rate increases of 15 per cent for their residential customers.

Mr. Maynes explained that the Commission started a major rebuilding program two years ago to update the distribution system and with the spiralling labor and material costs, the commission is finding the actual cost is far exceeding the original estimates.

In addition, Ontario Hydro has been increasing their charges for the energy consumed and a further increase of 30 per cent in these costs now is pending.

The three commissioners, Bob Maynes, Floyd (Bud) Loveless and Reeve Jack Reynolds, regret that the utility has no alternative but to pass along these increases in the form of higher energy rates.

By decreasing the emphasis on the rebuilding program and spreading it over a longer period of time, the commissioners said they feel they may be able to limit the increase to approximately 15 per cent.

The commission also said by limiting the hydro rate to that level there will not be sufficient funds available for new water heaters for rental purposes. The decision has been made therefore to terminate the rental water heater program effective June 30, 1975 and turn over the existing rental water heaters to the respective property owners where they have completed a ten-year rental period.

Boat Builder Plans Picton-area Factory

SOPHIASBURG — An Oakville Company, Aero Marine Industries Ltd., plans to open a small plant here this month in a building recently used as an auction barn on Highway 49.

Owner of the company Hugh Dodds says his firm manufactures reinforced fibre glass boats and other reinforced plastic parts. The operation is moving to Prince Edward County because the site it occupied in Oakville for 27 years soon will become a park.

Mr. Dodds says his company will begin to manufacture by September if all goes as planned.

Prince Edward director of economic development, William Duggan, expressed pleasure with the location of the new industry here and said it is likely to employ about 20 persons.

Mr. Dodds noted the company is beginning here on a small scale. In its Oakville location the marine industries building occupied 22,000 square feet and in Sophiasburg will occupy 2,000 square feet.

"If we can keep things moving then we can really expand," said Mr. Dodds.

Book Beagle

Snoopy, this summer, has a job as book beagle at Picton Public Library where he is part of a program to encourage children to read. On September 13 youngsters who have correctly answered questions on library books they have read during the summer will be eligible to win Snoopy who poses with librarian Gerry Cory.

Cottage Owners Protest Charges for Roadway

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

AMELIASBURG — A delegation representing about 30 home and cottage owners at Quinte Shores, sub-division near Weber's Bay, will meet with Ameliasburg Township council next week to protest lack of a road to service their residences.

Mrs. Norma Litwiller of Burns Ave., Bayside, says she and other Quinte Shores property owners have been told by council they must pay for a road themselves at a cost of about $250 per lot. Since some persons own two lots this, could mean a cost of $500 or more to certain individuals.

She said the lots were sold by a developer from 1962 until 1970. About 50 of them were bought and in 1970 cottages were built on the site by seven or eight families who have continued to pay taxes on the land.

Mrs. Litwiller predicted if residents of Quinte Shores were to pay for a road to their properties the cost of its maintenance would be reflected in tax increases.

She said the road leading to the homes at Quinte Shores is so rough that property owners wanting lumber or fill delivered cannot always find tradespeople who will accommodate them. Several cars have damaged their mufflers on the roadway and have required other repairs because of road conditions.

"We don't feel we should have to pay to have a road put in as our taxes go back to the township," commented Mrs. Litwiller.

She added Quinte Shores residents do not have a garbage pick-up provided by the township. A disposal container was placed at the end of the road leading to the sub-division but she says it is overgrown with weeds and rat-infested.

Mrs. Litwiller said Ameliasburg Township council for several years told Quinte Shores residents it would take over the road as soon as a substantial number of persons occupied the sub-division.

She noted all families owning property at Quinte Shores will be represented by the group of ratepayers that plans to attend the next meeting of township council on July 8.

Ameliasburg Township clerk William Nightingale said Thursday that a subdivision plan for Quinte Shores was obtained in 1965 by T. A. Hancock. It was understood at that time that the developer would install a road and bring it up to township standards. The township would assume maintenance of the road when cottages or homes had been built on 75 per cent of the lots. In the past few years, several developers were associated with the sub-division.

Mr. Nightingale said the developers never completed the road to satisfactory standards and the township now feels lot owners should build the roadway.

He added the estimated cost of the project is $14,000 or about $250 per lot.

The clerk noted he has sent lot owners a petition form enabling them to request a road under local improvements.

Library Offers Snoopy As Good Reading Prize

PICTON — Snoopy of Peanuts fame is tracking down young readers at Picton Public Library in his summer job as a book beagle.

Children's librarian Gerry Cory explained the giant plush dog displayed in his custom-built dog house is part of a program to encourage children to read during their holidays.

All youngsters who take books from the library this summer may be asked questions on them when they are returned. If they answer correctly, the children will receive a cardboard "bone" with a place for their names and addresses. The bones are attached by pins to Snoopy's dog house and on September 13 a draw will be made to find a well-read owner for the comic strip canine.

Children belonging to the library this year are encouraged to make scrapbooks, enter the library's summer reading program and, of course, try to win Snoopy.

Mr. Cory said that more than 1,300 children are members of the library here.

Kentucky Tourist Killed in Crash

WELLINGTON — An American tourist holidaying in Prince Edward County was killed Thursday night, when his car was in collision with a van on Highway 33 on the outskirts of Wellington.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said Mr. Adkins, eastbound on Highway 33 was turning from the east traffic lane to the Orchard Dairy Bar when he collided with a BDC, Ltd. couriers van driven by Colin Clayton, 26, of Trenton. The van was overtaking another vehicle to pass when the collision occurred.

Once the 'Switzerland of Mid-East,' Lebanon Now Plagued by Warring Minorities

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The tragic civil war in Lebanon between Moslem and Christian extremists in the form of PLO groups and the so-called Phalangists, is yet another example of minorities unable to live with each other in national societies.

The recent fighting between Christians and Moslems in this small nation began about two months ago and has already taken the lives of about 600 Lebanese.

This tiny country, long considered a Switzerland of the Middle East because its cultures, languages and religions intermingled without strife, is no longer such a place.

The large external crisis of the struggle between Jew and Arab long ago spilled over into Lebanon when that country permitted the extremist PLO organizations to seek refuge in its borders.

This was following their defeat in a bloody internal war inside Jordan in 1970 between the royalist forces of King Hussein and the revolutionary ones of the PLO.

About 250,000 PLO terrorists, some ranging from those who believe in legitimate solutions for the future of the Arab refugees, to the larger pro-terrorist groups, now exist in Lebanon. Beirut the capital is home to their militant leaders including the now world-famous Yasser Arafat.

It had appeared the Christian communities were given the politics of Islamic communities and would even tolerate a certain amount of terrorist assault from the Israelis, for example air strikes against villages in habited largely by PLO groups.

Part of the reason for this was a certain amount of anti-Semitism among the same Christian communities, a feeling which was, nevertheless, not predominant in Christian Lebanon.

But the crisis simmered and boiled over. The Lebanese formula of sharing power expressed in the constitutional division of powers in government, (a Christian president if a Moslem prime minister or vice versa), has also disintegrated.

Premier Rashid Karami stated at this time of writing has failed to form any kind of working cabinet. Pierre Gemayel, the Phalangist leader uses the now well-known rhetoric of any embattled minority.

On the other hand, Yasser Arafat keeps his nasty political pot at the boil by sending special messages to Premier Karami with unsolicited offerings of solutions for the crisis.

In the meantime, a country, as I have said like Switzerland also because it is a neutral tourist and banking nation, has seen an end to tourism and has been closed for days while PLO and Phalangist teams roam the streets armed with automatic weapons.

And then of course there is the inevitable intervention overt and covert, by the great powers with their own interests even in this tiny and once peaceable Middle Eastern nation.

The PLO are supported from the Russians and East Europeans as well as behind-the-scenes political support. The kind of support for the Phalangists is less obvious.

But it appears to come from world interests which are anti-Communist, anti-Zionist but not exactly representing the interests of the Christians of Lebanon.

Hydro Notes City Boom

There is no better barometer of Belleville's industrial growth than an examination of city Public Utilities Commission activities.

"Boom in Belleville" is the title of a three-page spread in the June issue of Hydro News that begins by informing its readers that the rate of industrial development in the city is eight times greater than the provincial average.

Industrial Commissioner Fred Bemis notes that the value of building permits issued to new and expanding industry last year totalled more than $7 million — greater than the combined total for the previous five years.

For the PUC, industrial expansion has meant change.

For years, city power demands had been increasing annually by 3 or 4 per cent. In the past couple of years, this surged eight per cent to a 55 Megawatt peak, 20 MW of which was for industrial consumption alone.

Distribution engineer Keith Campbell foresees additions to the utility's electrical crew of 20, and there has been the PUC's move to brand new administration quarters on College St.

So great has been Belleville's power boom that billing is subcontracted to Loyalist College, where it is done by computer.

For manager Neil Britton who, the article notes, "read his first meter at 12", and whose father was Newcastle PUC manager, Belleville's industrial expansion represents a personal professional challenge.

Nearly a Million Dead Or Injured in Traffic Within Next Ten Years

Cambridge Reporter

Statistics regarding traffic accidents are nothing less than frightening. It has been shown that next to alcohol, speed is the most common cause of motor vehicle collisions.

One has to feel sorry for the person sticking to the right hand lane of traffic, driving at perhaps 15 to 20 mph below the speed limit.

Motorists, impatient with the more cautious driver fly out at speeds of 80 mph or more to pass the slow driver with a childish glare of insolence that says "I can handle a car better than you can. I'm not afraid of speed."

But that "schmuck" probably isn't going to get involved in a car accident. In fact, the chances are it's because he's the victim, and not the cause of the accident.

Drivers who show complete disregard for others, highway control and their own lives will likely become involved in an accident sooner or later.

There is an argument for over-caution, commonly defined as defensive driving. Certainly drivers who are too careful have been known to cause accidents for that very reason.

But a crash at 20 mph isn't likely to wreak the havoc that one at 80 mph will.

There are strong arguments for lower speed limits on the highways.

Individual municipalities could also lower city speed limits to 25 mph or less. Statistics indicate a great number of accidents occur near the home in 30 mph zones.

"The accident rate is lower on expressways where much higher speed, long-distance travelling takes place," states an article from a booklet entitled "The Human Collision," published by the Ontario government.

"Short trips on urban and rural roads are potentially more dangerous even though the traffic speeds are lower. Also, most people drive locally a great deal more than they drive long distances. Thus, the chances of being in an accident close to home are greater."

Studies show that of all the people now living in Ontario, 43 per cent — 903,888 people will be killed or injured within the next ten years because of motor vehicle accidents.

That number will reach 22 per cent within 40 years, the study has indicated.

The Ease of Parole

An 18-year-old Ottawa youth was sentenced recently to 12 years' imprisonment and ordered to be taken to the Ontario Hospital for the Criminally Insane.

The youth had pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter and two charges of assault causing bodily harm. The charges had been laid in the Oct. 17 shooting death of a 17-year-old girl and the wounding of her mother and 15-year-old brother.

Now, the observations of the judge are interesting, especially in view of the furore over guns and of capital punishment and the whole related matter of law and order.

Mr. Justice Lerner noted the youth would be eligible for parole after four years in the hospital at Penetanguishene.

The judge said also that sending the youth to a penitentiary would destroy him and leave him useless to society. He said further that Canadians have passed the point where they take a life in retribution for a crime.

The judge's compassion is commendable, but where is the evidence of sympathy for the victims — a young girl dead, her mother and brother injured? The youth who pressed the trigger supposedly is one of those unfortunates with whom society is asked to be understanding. Yet, not being a police officer or a prison guard, he would not be eligible for capital punishment anyway.

Be that as it may, in four years the young man could be walking the streets again — and isn't this precisely the kind of mockery of the law and of society's right to protection that is so much at issue just now?

Davis Makes Issue of Oil Costs

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — It's very highstakes gambling that's going on at the present time over the retail prices of gasoline, oil and government is trying to put pressure on the oil companies.

This is big. Large amounts of money are involved for the companies. And though they could probably carry the battle without too much discomfort it still is important to them.

But this battle is really only the secondary one.

The main fight over energy prices under way at present is a political one, and it can be considered as a fight for survival by the Davis government.

In its attacks on gasoline, etc. it is generally assumed that what the government is trying to do is to build up a federal case which will stand up for it as an issue in the coming election.

It pretty desperately needs such an issue.

If the government were to go to the country today the main question in the public mind would be the credibility of the government and particularly of Mr. Davis personally, and this could be fatal.

There is no other provincial issue in sight which could divert this, so the government has to look to the federal field.

We can safely assume this has been a prime consideration in the premier's mind as he has had his battles with Ottawa and the oil companies.

But whether it can work is another question.

One, is the public now so accustomed to inflation that it can't get excited because of paying more at the gas pumps? And secondly, even if it is but up is it, or can it be, convinced that Mr. Davis can do anything about it?

Developments in this situation will evolve in the next few months and it should be a fascinating political period.

Exposure to the Sun: Ottawa Has Some Advice

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Health and Welfare Canada has just released a booklet on The Sun and Your Skin which offers some helpful advice for those who will be heading for beaches and camping spots shortly.

It points out that the rate of skin cancer is affected by skin type, geography, environment, the time of day and the time of year.

On the other hand, especially redheads, tend to take longer to develop a tan and thus are frequently sunburn sufferers.

The booklet advises that you limit your exposure to 15 to 30 minutes for each day, increasing the exposure each day by half the previous day's exposure time.

The hours of greatest risk for a sunburn are from between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. with the peak intensity of rays from the sun, is directly overhead. Exposure should be limited during these hours.

On a seasonal basis, the sun is strongest in the summer when it is more directly overhead. Thus the smart set start their suntan in the spring.

As far as the environment, you will burn faster on the beach or tarmac than on grass. Water reflects the sun's rays than you will in your own backyard.

Wind is a tricky factor. Because it tends to cool the skin, you may be getting a severe burn without realizing it. Dry, cool weather acts as providing us with Vitamins and clearing up the skin in some cases. But there are hazards too. Chronic overexposure over a period of many years may lead to premature aging of the skin, wrinkling and dryness. Individuals frequently working outdoors in warm climates for many years run risk of getting skin cancer.

A Place of Legend

Massassaga Point and the memories of that popular recreation spot at half-a-century ago remain cloaked in legend — and effectively discouraging to any casual visitors by reason of the dusty roller-coaster approach.

There have been various reports of the park being prepared once again for visitors, but that any final realization of this must await development such as road improvements and settlement of rights-of-way.

Certainly the present state of the bush road down there leaves much to be desired. A side road leading to cottages and the embryo outlines of a future housing estate is only for the hardy and the well-sprung auto. Cottagers earn their rest, just getting there.

There's a man who has made an annual trip down that way for about the past four years searching for evidence of work on the old park. He has decided that's enough. Enough of search courses!

A Look at Karate

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

After reading in The Intelligencer of the rising in discrimination of judo, nunchaki and Karate techniques I felt compelled to share some of the late master Gichin Funakoshi.

The style derived from this particular master's teachings is called Shotokan by the world and is the most and most popular style of Karate practised in Japan. I study this style under sensei (teacher) Kenno Dosanu. I feel I have gained more from Karate than just physical fitness and self defense. Karate is a discipline of mind and body. It requires the best in concentration, self-control and a great number of hours of hard work. No athlete achieves any real goal or satisfaction without this repetition which brings skill.

There is an excellent book written by a western man concerning his experiences in learning Karate, entitled Zen in the city called, Moving Zen: Karate as a way to gentleness, by C.W. Nicol of Vancouver.

Now I quote from Karate Do Kyohan by Gichin Funakoshi, translated by Tsutomi Ohshima:

"The student must always be aware of and receptive to criticism. Criticism is a must be constantly introspective and must realize that any lack of knowledge rather than preventing to know what he does not know.

It is the small-minded individual who fears what just acquiring some small skill, and those with little knowledge who carry on as if they were experts who are not. It is because of the large number of fake martial artists in the world that the public tends to ignore the martial artist or consider him wild. Therefore many serious martial artists are embarrassed. Students should always keep these points in mind."

Karate came to Canada in the early nineties (fifty years with Masami Tsuruoka, it is only a proud century but we all hope it soon matures and those of us involved in this way must strive diligently for this goal.

'Interest' is a Dubious Gain When it's Subject to Tax

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

A simple financial item like interest isn't so simple when the tax collector becomes involved.

In fact, the definition of interest is one of the mortal sins of tax law in Canada as well as other countries.

Let's take a familiar example. You have probably received an income-tax refund recently, with a certain amount of interest on your over-payment. You will have to pay income tax on that interest next spring when you make your 1975 tax return.

But is another tax ruling, the interest paid by the Ontario government on prepaid succession (death) duties was held not to be tax interest, and therefore was not subject to income tax.

Here's a tongue-in-cheek definition of interest as offered by A. B. McKie of the Bank of Nova Scotia, writing in the current issue of The Canadian Banker:

"It's a sum of money that depositors think is ridiculously small, and that borrowers think is near-usurious."

The trouble, says Mr. McKie, is that all taxing countries consider interest to be income in the hands of the recipients, and therefore want to tax it. But no bookkeeper has a clear-cut definition of the term.

Consider the case of the Savings Bond. They have a pound interest but it is not receivable until the end of the seventh and fifth years.

A holder of these bonds who has been reporting his interest on an annually or periodic basis will be obliged to include the compound interest at the end of each of the two years in question.

Thus the bondholder is asked for tax, in one year, on interest that his investment has been earning over a period of years.

Most questions of taxable interest are more complicated than this.

For example, many trust companies have not been reporting accrued interest on their tax returns, even though they show it as income in their published financial reports.

Their contention is that the interest is not received or receivable until the due date.

The federal government changed the tax law, with effect from 1975, to require financial corporations to include accrued interest in their taxable income.

One Canadian trust company is appealing a tax bill of $3.5 million for 1972, on accrued-interest income.

Finance Minister John Turner proposed, in his budget of May, 1974, to make such accruals taxable retroactive to Jan. 1, 1972. But the proposal was never enacted!

When is an interest payment not an interest payment?

One example, says Mr. McKie, is when it is a bonus paid on a second mortgage.

"The Canadian courts have held that such a payment was a non-deductible capital outlay," he says.

"However, a Canadian court has also held that a bonus paid on a loan to construct an apartment building that was sold at a profit immediately after its completion was deductible interest."

Such items as discounts and premiums have long been a source of legal dispute. Let's say you lend somebody $100 at the going rate of interest and collect $10 a year for five years—plus the $20 a capital gain or interest?

Each time taxpayers find a new way of making money or money the taxman considers that big gain is interest income and subject to tax.

If the taxpayer goes to court and wins his case, says the bank economist, the debate is often amended to block future use of the loophole.

Bar Head Critical Of Allmand

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand should resign if he finds himself unable to sign execution orders, the president of the Canadian Bar Association said Thursday.

William L. N. Somerville, was commenting on remarks made Wednesday by Mr. Allmand that he personally would be unable to sign an order for the hanging of anyone sentenced to death for killing a police officer or prison employee.

"If's been on the statute books since the great debate in 1965," Mr. Somerville said. "It's the proper function of the governor in council, better known as the cabinet, to exercise the royal prerogative of mercy where the special facts of an individual case warrant."

"It seems to me that you do every single time, without exception, have to have been dealt a dozen times or more it raises the inference that the executive is simply suspending an act of Parliament not to then liking," he said.

"If that is fair reading of what Parliament has prescribed, I consider it far more serious than the issue of capital punishment."

Postpone Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP has had to postpone plans for a special squad that would concentrate on the security of embassies, consulates and visiting dignitaries.

This is disclosed in a list of budget cuts released by Treasury Board President Jean Chretien, which shows $1.9 million for "VIP protection" has been deferred from the RCMP's 1975-76 budget.

Trudeau Returns

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau, to the thunderous applause of Liberals jammed into the Commons for a vote, returned to the House Thursday after a brief illness.

Mr. Trudeau cut short a visit to Newfoundland last week because of a sore throat caused by an influenza-type virus.

Poses with Flag

OTTAWA (CP) — A 22-year-old Montreal woman was detained briefly by police and later released after posing draped only in a Canadian flag in front of the centennial flame on Parliament Hill Thursday.

Andras to Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Thursday a report will be made soon to the Commons to correct what he called "extraordinary inaccuracies" about alleged different treatment given refugees from Chile and South Vietnam.

Mr. Andras said some of the inaccuracies had been "deliberately or inadvertently spread across the country."

Receives Threats

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Thursday he has been receiving death threats because of his opposition to capital punishment. He told reporters the threats have been investigated by police but "nothing has materialized" He did not say how many threats had been made.

Mitchell Disbarred

NEW YORK (AP) — Former U.S. attorney-general John Mitchell, a key figure in the Watergate scandals which led to President Richard Nixon's resignation, was disbarred Thursday in New York State. Five appellate-division judges ruled unanimously that Mitchell had automatically ceased to be "an attorney and counselor at law of the state of New York" at the moment of his conviction in the Watergate cover-up trial.

Budget Approval Expected Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The six-day Commons finance committee to complete the policies behind the budget debate ends today with government expected to have little difficulty in carrying a Conservative motion to approve the new 23 budget measures.

Opposition critics have attacked one of the budget's main themes, calling promises of spending restraint a sham, The government says it is trimming 1.3 billion from its planned spending this year to set an example for business and labor.

The majority Liberals have swept aside two non-confidence motions from the Progressive Conservatives and the New Democratic Party.

As the budget debate neared its end, Commons attendance declined sharply, often barely exceeding the 20 members needed for a quorum in the 264-seat Commons.

A highlight of the debate was the government's professed intention to save Canadians from higher international oil prices.

Domestic gas prices now were as high or higher than in the United States where consumers were buying gasoline refined from imported oil.

The bill which received third reading Thursday now needs only royal assent to become law. MPs also gave third reading Thursday to a bill allowing municipalities to license and restrict body-rub parlors.

Drea Names 'King' Of Yonge Sin Strip

TORONTO (CP) — The "king" of Toronto's Yonge Street strip and its pornographic film business is Harry Vigil Mobney, prime agent for two organized crime families, Frank Drea, parliamentary assistant for consumer and commercial relations told the legislature Thursday.

Although Mobney, alias Harry Klein, 32, of Lansing, Mich., has never entered Canada, "virtually every piece of sexually-oriented film" originates with him and his organized crime connections," Mr. Drea said, documenting the rise of sex films in Ontario.

"In fact, Mobney, who likes to boast of being more than a self-made millionaire, reports to two criminal crime families, through one Robert D. Columbo, chief policy maker and field officer for the Columbo family and protector of pornography operations in the United States," he said.

The other connection is the Calvacante family of New Jersey which also specializes in pornography, particularly in the eastern U.S. and eastern Canada, Mr. Drea said.

Speaking on an amendment to Ontario's Theatre Act which would bring 8mm. film and video tape under control of the provincial censor, the parliamentary assistant said:

"There is no question that another six months of flourishing operations, particularly in the film field on Yonge St., would have meant the spread of this style of entertainment into virtually every community in Ontario."

The bill which received third reading Thursday now needs only royal assent to become law. MPs also gave third reading Thursday to a bill allowing municipalities to license and restrict body-rub parlors.

Asks for Discipline

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie called on organized labour Thursday to display some "self-discipline" and tone down demands for inflationary wage settlements.

Annual wage increases of 20 per cent or more are undermining government attempts to control inflation and strengthen the economy, Mr. Gillespie told the Commons.

"In every case the reason for the loss of charter was flagrant disregard of the requirements of the laws of the province of Ontario relating to business corporations."

But armed with "this facade of business respectability", the Mobney operations tried to break down Ontario entertainment standards by showing the film Deep Throat, banned in the province, Mr. Drea said.

Police raids and a court case sent Mobney agents fleeing to the United States, Mr. Drea said, but others gaine control of businesses owned by Joseph Martin.

The parliamentary assistant also named Ross Wise, purchaser of North American News on Britain Street, as "prime supplier" in the sex film, book and magazine business."

Mr. Drea also told the legislature that Mobney Enterprises and Gorman Books have books and films that "come out of the Mobney operation."

Allmand Has Not 'Yet' Resigned - - Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Thursday that Warren Allmand has not offered his resignation "yet."

He spoke as the solicitor-general's position on capital punishment was battered again by the opposition.

The opposition also asked which was correct: Mr. Allmand's pledge to prison guards to increase security or the government decision to lop $11.5 million from estimated spending on new prisons and staff.

Pat Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley) asked whether Mr. Allmand can continue to "apply the law with one eye," adding that Mr. Trudeau assured the House in 1972 the cabinet would consider individually all capital murder cases that came before it. Yet Mr. Allmand had said he would remain in the cabinet only if all death sentences were commuted.

Mr. Trudeau replied that Mr. Allmand had said he would have to reconsider his position if the cabinet decided not to commute a death sentence.

"He hasn't submitted his resignation to me yet," Mr. Trudeau added, appearing to give slight emphasis to the word yet.

Question period began with a motion by Robert Leggatt (NDP—New Westminster) urging the government to reinstate the $11.5 million lopped from proposed spending for new prisons and staff as part of a $1 billion austerity program.

The motion was rejected but Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked Mr. Allmand to square his statement to guards that "something has to be done" about prison security with the spending decrease.

Mr. Allmand replied he wants to tighten internal security in prisons as well as procedures for escorting prisoners.

Last Friday, Paul Comeau, 21, a guard at Montreal's Penitentiary north of Montreal, was shot to death in a Montreal hospital by an escaping prisoner.

He said the $8-million reduction in proposed capital spending will affect two prisons but the department is going ahead with major maximum-security prisons. The cuts leave $47 million in the department's 1975-76 capital budget.

Mr. Allmand told reporters later the budget cuts would not affect plans to hire more guards, but there would be a $1-million reduction in hiring administrative personnel.

Mr. Allmand said capital spending cuts would delay some work on penal institutions.

A new maximum security prison for the Maritimes would be built as would one in British Columbia if a suitable site could be located.

Broadbent Faces Uncertain Outcome

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ed Broadbent arrived Thursday for the national New Democratic Party leadership convention amid predictions that his long-acknowledged lead over other candidates might be eroding.

But there was little initial sign among delegates that he had much to worry about despite vigorous campaigns by his three main opponents—Saskatchewan MP Lorne Nystrom, B. C. legislature member Rosemary Brown and Toronto professor John Harney.

Conspicuous black and orange "Ed" buttons vaunt vastly outnumbered the badges and stickers of other candidates as about 1,500 delegates gathered from across the country to choose a successor to David Lewis, who decided to retire after his personal defeat in the 1974 federal election.

"It looks good," the Oshawa-Whitby MP was heard telling one supporter at Broadbent headquarters in the posh new Winnipeg Convention Centre where the four-day biennial NDP national meeting opens today. It concludes Monday with balloting for the party's new leader.

Mr. Broadbent has the public support of a majority of the 16 MPs and a huge segment of the important bloc of trade union delegates attending the convention.

Party sources say he also has the backing of Mr. Lewis, although the retiring leader has not publicly endorsed any candidate.

He is the running, but given no chance of winning, are Mmasanga, Ont., trial driver Douglas Campbell and Jerry Davis, a little-known entry from Sudbury, Ont.

Suspends Program

OTTAWA (CP) — Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson has abruptly suspended the government's limited $100-million urban demonstration program to comply with government spending restraints.

Mr. Danson said Thursday the 14 urban demonstration proposals already announced will go ahead as planned, but another 200 proposals now being examined will be returned to applicants.

Prices Drop

OTTAWA (CP) — Average prices in Toronto for new housing units dropped 4.8 per cent in the 12 months to May, Statistics Canada reported Thursday. The average price increased 13.4 per cent in Edmonton and 1.3 per cent in the Ottawa-Hull area in the 12-month period. Statistics Canada only publishes indexes of housing prices, which measure changes within cities but does not compare prices between cities.

Anglicans Bar Women As Priests

LONDON (AP) — The Church of England has said no to the ordination of women priests, siding with the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States on an issue which divided the Anglican churches.

The Church of England's male bishops and priests blocked a proposal to open the priesthood to women Thursday after an all-day debate at the summer session of the general synod, the ruling body.

The synod agreed there is no fundamental objection to women priests. But it said in effect that it doesn't want them yet.

Dr. Una Kroll, a deaconess and leader in the campaign for ordination of women, said after the vote: "It is morally indefensible to approve something in principle and then fail to carry it out."

AROUND TOWN with LANA ROBINSON

(. . . an advertising feature designed to keep you better informed of what's new around town.)

If You Hurry

If you hurry and call Mrs. Cameron at the Cameron Gallery, 962-1606, you can still have the opportunity of enrolling in a Donnah Cameron art class. These classes are eight weeks long and they start on Monday, so when I say HURRY, I am not exaggerating. There are openings in the oil class, which will be taught on Monday mornings, the pen and ink classes Monday afternoons and the beginners' water color classes which will be taught on Wednesday afternoons. Mrs. Cameron will be teaching the classes at her home and gallery which is 1½ miles west of Redneersville on the Redneersville Road. She will also be having her gallery open on the weekend as usual, and as she says, if her car is there during the week, she's there too — which is most of the time. But jot down that above number too, just in case. So c'mon you budding artists . . . GET GOING.

Kill Bugs Electronically

Ruddy Electric's Consumer Division, 291 Coleman St. has done it again. When I called this week, I really got an informational treat, and I'll pass it on. Now, you can control that summer bug problem. The plague of enjoying the outdoors, with an Electronic Bug-killer. This intern-shaped device, which is available in three different models, gives off an odor detectable only to insects, drows them in and eliminates them. It's about 3 feet high, can be hung, or put on a post outdoors and will take care of those bugs day and night. And I mean "take care of them". These bug-killers are effective for up to a quarter of an acre range. The price for these marvelous inventions ranges from $129 to $169. And the place to get them is innovative Ruddy Electric.

Something Special In Sales

This is the time of year when we are bombarded with messages about summer sales. Actually it's a great time for the wise shopper. For years I've been trying to discipline myself to buying clothes twice a year: July and January. I'll give you one guess about how successful I've been . . . But if you want something special in sales, you have to have something special in clothing in the first place. That's just what Jean Smith has at her West Wind Sports Boutique and Import Room. And she is now featuring some of her very special fashions at some very special prices. You'll see for yourself when you visit Jean's West Wind Boutique at the West Wind Motel at Actinolite on Hwy. 7. The drive up is special too. Jean's summer hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. every day.

Some Words To The Wise

Here are some words to the wise tourist from our own pretty wise guru on Front St., Murray Atkinson of Murray's Food Market. You who are going to the cottage country should take your grocery and drug store needs with you, not wait to buy them when you get there — not if, you're interested in being an economical shopper, and who isn't these days? Murray checked the situation out himself recently and as he states, "I couldn't believe it." And you know that Murray is a pretty believing person, most of the time. You can't be a guru unless you are, can you? So wise Murray recommends that wise you buy your groceries here from your regular grocer. And if that regular grocer should happen to be Murray's own store, his feelings won't be hurt if you'll continue your loyalty, Thanks Murray, as usual.

If You've Got The Lot

If you've got the lot and build upon that lot a basement foundation, then Highland Construction's Home Improvement Centre, 257 North Front St., have the model for you, the model in this case being a pre-constructed home. This is a new area for Highland Construction and they are going to apply to this endeavour the same enthusiasm and talents as they do to everything else. You can either have Highland finish the total home inside, or you handy types can finish it yourselves with the materials supplied by Highland. Either way, you'll have an economical new home, a rarity, or almost, these days it seems. You'll get all the information you need with a phone call to 962-1194, or a visit to the Home Improvement Centre, which can be reached through the rear of the large building at 257 North Front St., or by going through the laundromat and down the stairs.

A Great Suggestion

You have guests visiting you but you don't have holidays, so you're wracking your brains for suggestions that will keep your guests amused and happy. Well, here's a good one. Tell them about the great holiday day they can experience at the Four Seasons right here in Belleville. For just $18, your guests can have a room and access to the pool and pool-side of the Four Seasons, and if they don't like that, they're somewhat deprived in the amusement capacity area. They'll charge for all the services of the Four Seasons available to them, such as the Bay Buffet, the Terrace Lounge and the Fortune Dining Room and for gift-hunters, there is even a gift shop with some unusual gift items. So stop wracking, and start calling 968-3411 and give yourself and your guests a delightful break.

Just What You Need

Gibbs and Sons, 37 Allison St. have more of these re-conditioned vacuums which go like hotcakes every time I mention them in this column. They're a great vacuum for work room, room, garage or, as I'm going to do, to take to the cottage. And the prices are so reasonable as the idea of a second vacuum — starting as low as $25. Better hurry though, because they don't last long. And speaking of vacuums, and in this case, of a superb machine, Gibbs and Son are now the distributors of a great Swedish machine, the Volta, in case you missed it in last week's column. And they have a complete selection of vacuum bags for any machine, starting at 79 cents a bag. These bags will fit the proper machine and so will the complete range of accessories that Gibbs carry too. Actually, Gibbs and Son are pretty good at their business all-round. Don't forget these second vacuums.

Handling The Humidity

I have to admit that I have an aversion to certain kinds of words Even if they are very good words, which are succinct in meaning, words such as 'dehumidifier'. Now, what could be a more serviceable word than dehumidifier? It does its job, I agree, and perhaps my hatred of words with multiple syllables is getting in the way again. But, when it comes right down to sheer utility, you have to admit that the concept of the word dehumidifier, has got to have some awards. And if the humidity is a problem at your house, the concept of a dehumidifier will really be popular. If that's the case, then here's a popular name: 962-4504, the number of Moira-Schaister. That's all you need to have to attack the problem of humidity. And Moira-Schaister excell in anything technical. My apologies to the word 'dehumidifier'.

Don't Even Try

If you're one of those people I was talking to in the Moira-Schaister part of this column, who doesn't have a dehumidifier, and you're also one of those people who has a list of heavy-duty cleaning chores and also a great aversion to getting at them (and who can blame you?), then you'd better call Servicemaster at 967-1672. Then you can forget the humidity and the work, because Servicemaster are expert cleaners in all kinds of circumstances, even in disaster situations such as fires. The magnitude of the job do not the conditions under which it must be done are no impediments to them. But they can't display all the skill and amazing resourcefulness, if you don't give them a chance. Give them a chance, and yourself a break. Call Servicemaster and put yourself on the back for your cleverness.

Holiday Holidays

I noticed on Saturday when I drove past Holiday Car and Truck Rentals, 11 West Moira St. at the corner of North Front, that a lot of people are catching on to the Holiday holiday way; there wasn't a Chrysler product to be seen. If your holiday plans include the use of a rented car or truck for yourself or for your guests, then you should give Holiday a call at 962-9114. In dealing with Holiday, you're dealing with a reputable Canadian company, not just someone who is in the business for what it's worth for a while. Holiday is very easy to find, as I mentioned and it's not some hole in the wall, either. You don't wait long, holiday plans spoiled by anyone or any factor. The car and truck rental side of your holidays won't suffer at all, if you deal with the right people. And the right people are at Holiday Car and Truck Rentals.

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intends to construct as a local improvement the following watermain, with private water service connections where required by an individual owner and intends to specially assess a part of the cost upon the lands abutting the work and the balance against the Corporation at large as follows:

Street	From	To	Est. Cost	Corporation Share	Owner Share	Est. Cost Per Foot Frontage of Watermain	Est. Annual Cost Per Foot Frontage of Watermain	Est. Rate Per Service Connection	Est. Annual Payment Per Service Connection
Un-named	Existing 16" Dia. Water main on Centre St.	249.5 ft. Easterly	$8,462.00	$4,697.37	$3,764.63	$12.0501	$1.59471	$215.00	$26.280267

EXAMPLE: (Watermain Only)

50 ft. x $13.0501 = $652.51
If paid over a period of 15 years at 8¾% per annum
the annual cost would be 50 ft. x $1.59471 = $79.74

2. The special assessment is to be paid in 15 equal annual instalments.

3. Application will be made by the Corporation to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval of the undertaking of the said work, and any owner may within 21 days after the first publication of the Notice, file with the Clerk of the Municipality his objection to the said work being undertaken.

4. The said Board may approve the said work being undertaken, but before doing so may appoint a time and place when objections to the said work will be considered.

Sex Education Fights Social Problems

MOSCOW, (AP) — Concerned by increasing social problems — connected with sex — including illegitimate pregnancies, soaring abortion rates as does crimes—the Soviet Union is inaugurating sex education programs in its schools.

The programs, conservative by Western standards, have not been published and exist only in a few cities.

But their introduction is considered revolutionary here where they mark the first systematized attempts to inform young people about a subject which, for the most part, is still off limits in their society.

The small number of youngsters who are given the opportunity to learn about sex in school seem to welcome the chance.

"They're very curious about the problems of love," says Dr. Lydia Bogdanovich, head of Moscow's Laboratory of Problems of Sex Education.

The laboratory, in operation since 1970, sponsors the sex education programs, prepares articles and pamphlets for youths, parents' and teachers, and conducts research on sexual questions regarding young people.

A survey published in a sex education book for parents and teachers, co-authored by Dr. Bogdanovich, says that 77 per cent of Soviet young people got their first information about sex from friends and acquaintances.

"When youths start to show interest in questions of sex, those who should be the first ones to help them—parents, teachers and doctors—remain aloof, not knowing how to give correct answers to the questions," the book says.

"Unfortunately, we still believe that it is considered bad manners to talk about sex, trying to hide very natural things that worry the young generation."

In a poll of 500 high school pupils, 32.4 per cent of the boys and 26 per cent of the girls saw nothing wrong with premarital sex.

Dr. Bogdanovich and other Soviet sexologists underline they are aware of what is going on and are not happy about it, but want teen-agers to fully understand what they're doing before they start their sexual experiments.

"Our sex education differs from that of the West in that the West is concerned more with specific problems of sex as it is—information on what age to start sexual activities, contraceptives, etc.

"We are concerned with sex as it should be—with the formation of ethical notions and a correct moral outlook."

Soviet teen-agers are urged to refrain from sex until their early 20s and only when they are married. They are given stern warnings about the consequences of an early sex life.

Dr. Bogdanovich's pamphlet says early sex can lead to hysterical scenes, guilt feelings, dissatisfaction, bad feelings, physical weakness and eventually "a whole breakdown of the endocrinological system."

But Dr. Bogdanovich insists that the laboratory's sex education program is helpful in using warnings, encourage students to make up their own minds.

"We gather senior classes—ages 15-16—together in the schools and let them talk openly. The discussions are absolutely frank, on different subjects," she said.

The sessions, segregated according to sex, are held in high schools in the Odessa region, Kuibyshev, the Baltic area and Leningrad.

Ann Landers

Here's Her Sister's Recipe

Dear Readers: Here is the meat loaf recipe I promised you yesterday. For those who didn't read that column, I suggest you hunt up yesterday's paper.

MEAT LOAF

3 lbs. ground round steak
3 eggs
1¼ cups bread crumbs
½ cup ketchup
1 tsp. Accent
½ cup warm water
1 pkg. onion soup, mix
Heat thoroughly.

Put into loaf pan, cover with 3 strips bacon if you like that flavor. Pour over all one 8 ounce tomato sauce. Bake one hour at 350 degrees. Serves six.

Dear Ann Landers: You've dealt with the problem on occasion, but please, Ann, say it again. Remind mothers who push their daughters into relationships by being too permissive that they are asking for trouble.

Mothers who permit daughters to go to visit boys when their parents aren't at home and allow them to sit after dark in parked cars are either foolish or they don't care what happens to them.

We have tried to raise our two teen-age boys to respect womanhood. So far, I believe they have not stepped too far out of line. But I am bug-eyed when I see 13 and 14-year old accepts hanging around our swimming pool in their midriffs and potbellies-and-a-half bikinis—belly-buttons showing, no bras and see-through blouses.

Today, most male high school students are much more mature than children. They can stand only so much "testing" before they are compelled to cross that line. I'd like to say to the mothers of the young girls, "I will be responsible for the morals of my sons but I will NOT be responsible for what happens to your daughters."—Seen Plenty

Dear S.P.: You are SO right! I have printed letters with this message before, but it needs to be said again and again. Thanks for saying it.

Dear Ann Landers: Why is it that a person can be as nutty as fruitcake but if he hasn't been to a psychiatrist and there is no record of his being treated by a professional help, he is hired for a job? On the other hand, the minute a prospective employee sees information on a psychiatric application that he has sought help for an emotional illness, he is considered out (or an ex-nut) and is not hired.

This happened to my sister three times. The fourth time she lied on her application and was hired. Why must people be forced to cover up the fact they've received help? Are we still living in the Middle Ages?—Bursed. . . . . .

Dear B.: There is great concern about stigmas attached to mental illness than there once was—but we still have a long way to go.

Some applications no longer ask that question and I fervently hope the day is not far off when it will be stricken ALL application forms.

I recommend hiring employees who have sought professional help. They are more compassionate and more honest (sometimes) than those who have not had counselling.

Dear Ann Landers: I admit that even though I intended to be "cute" by the radical lobotomy I experienced a year ago, that was the best possible pathology report, proved to be very traumatic.

I have since had a couple of benign tumors removed, and now my GP and surgeon are urging the removal of my remaining breast, as a preventive measure.

Other family deaths, illnesses and crises have made this an extremely difficult year. I am perplexed as to what my decision should be, and would be interested in the opinions of your readers (and yours). I am controversial subject.—Very Truly Confused

Dear V.T.C.: My medical experts say, "Listen to YOUR medical experts and know your case and my experts do not.

British Babies 'In Peril'

LONDON (Reuter) — The disclosure that more than 700 babies are battered to death by their parents in Britain each year has emphasized the old taunt that Britons look after their pets better than their children.

On the average, two children are killed by their parents every day and many are maimed in body and mind, says Dr. John Howells, director of the National Society of Psychiatry.

"British children are in greater peril in their homes than they ever were in the bad institutions of the 19th century," he said at a recent health conference.

A justice committee of lawyers has recommended a fundamental change in British law—which until now has seen parents and their offspring as one entity—by giving the creation of a special children's ombudsman who probably would be both lawyer and social worker.

If the report is accepted, children's interests would have separate representation for the first time in Britain.

Maria Colwell was a seven-year-old killed by her drunken stepfather after being reported to her natural mother against the wishes of her foster parents. It was the first of many similar cases in the news recently.

A child-care's bill being debated in Parliament provides for children who are the objects of disputed custody, for example, to be represented in court in certain limited circumstances only.

But the justice committee wants "children to be regarded as people not property."

Its proposed children's ombudsman would have wide powers to request welfare reports, begin legal proceedings and to instruct counsel to represent a child.

The ombudsman would be encouraged to tell him if they suspected that parents were giving a child violent lashings, and he would co-ordinate remedial efforts.

The causes of baby battering are found usually in loneliness, acute depression and lack of money to look after a child. Medical and social experts agree it is a phenomenon that comes with the stress of urban life.

Few set harsher sentences for parents as a solution.

"Baby batterers are highly emotional and disturbed people and putting them in prison usually makes them worse," said Dr. Howells.

Dr. Stephen Hersom, also specializing in child abuse, said anyone might be a baby-beater.

"There is not one of us who, given enough stress, could break down and produce the same results."

The Sea Can Feed Us

LONDON (CP) — Marine life is capable of feeding much of the growing world population. But to encourage housewives — or government—to buy these seafoods must be made not necessarily cheap, nor nutritionally vital, but appealing in taste and sight. That was the message of Hugh Symons, company controller of Birds Eye Foods, at the International Food Industries Congress in London.

Changes in attitudes to the so-called "protein gap" of the 1950s and 1960s had changed attitudes to marine food, said Symons. No longer was there a need for marine food to fill the "protein gap"; it now was recognized that simple hunger was the main nutritional problem because, for most people, sufficient food automatically meant sufficient protein.

Occupying three-quarters of the earth's surface, the oceans absorbed a tremendous quantity of solar energy.

"This energy can be transformed through the ecosystem into the ocean into greater protects suitable for conversion to human food," said Symons. The principal limiting factor, he said, is probably the supply of nitrogen.

Symons said that, as an estimate of the amount of food in waters, some 100 million tons of krill could be taken from Antarctic waters every year as food.

This is a staggering figure which justifies my use of the adjective optimistic," he said. It was estimated that whale, seals, penguins and other birds consumed 153 million tons of the tiny, shrimp-like krill every year.

Technical problems had in general been overcome, said Symons, and today there are few species that can not be harvested reasonably economically and efficiently.

"But since there would always be a cheaper land-grown alternative to any marine food, supplies and distribution must be reorganized and the nations of the world persuaded to accept new tastes. The technology has provided the means: will political, economic and social mechanisms rise to the occasion?"

'Refrain from Bitching' Cooke Tells Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has not given adequate attention to women's concerns and should therefore "refrain from bitching" about resulting criticism of his government, Katie Cooke, chairman of the federal advisory council on the status of women, suggested Wednesday.

In a speech to the Canadian Public Relations Society annual convention, Mrs. Cooke referred to a comment by Mr. Trudeau in January when the government's "Why Not?" buttons were attacked as being sexist.

Asked about the criticism of International Women's Year buttons, Mr. Trudeau told reporters: "That's the trouble with ladies—they bitch after the fact."

During her speech, Mrs. Cooke attributed the statement to a "noted Liberal" and added:

"Those who do not listen to demands, criticisms and needs raised before action is taken should perhaps refrain from bitching when they continue to receive criticisms after the fact."

Mrs. Cooke made the statement during a condemnation of press and political party attitudes toward women.

She was critical of the attitude of the party powers-that-ward the leadership chances of Progressive Conservative Flora MacDonald and Rosemary Brown, a New Democratic Party leadership candidate.

Women Have Trouble Establishing Credit

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia Human Rights Commission is studying women credit to try to determine the extent of difficulties women have in obtaining loans and establishing credit ratings separate from their husbands.

Commission director George McCurdy says the study is a response to inquiries the commission has received regarding the availability of credit to women.

"We have received a number of complaints from women applying for credit and being told the credit will be granted only if the husband or father cosigns or guarantees the loans.

"Married women especially find it extremely difficult to establish a credit history separate from their husbands even if they are working and paying off the debt themselves."

Betty Glenister, a student at Dalhousie University Law School, conducts the study, assisted by student employees and other commission projects.

She said the group will investigate the problems specific to women and credit and make recommendations to the commission on dealing with complaints.

The group also will research Nova Scotia statutes dealing with credit to determine if they relate to women and to credit granting agencies.

"If a woman does not have equal access to money to borrow or be financed in a business, she is extremely disadvantaged and cannot compete on an equal basis with men," Mrs Glenister said.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE—AUDITOR'S REPORT AND FINANCIAL STATEMENTS FOR 1974

To: The Members of Council, Inhabitants and Ratepayers of the Corporation of the City of Belleville

We have examined the 1974 financial statement of the Corporation of the City of Belleville and the local Boards listed on the attached Index. Our examination included a general review of the accounting procedures and such tests of accounting records and other supporting evidence as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion subject to the City for 1974 excluded the audit of the Belleville General Hospital. Therefore our report does not cover the operations of that local Board.

In our opinion subject to the above, these financial statements present fairly the financial position of the Corporation of the City of Belleville and its local Boards as at December 31, 1974, and the results of operations and changes in financial position for the year then ended in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

1. CHANGES FROM LONG TERM LIABILITIES

	1974 $	1973 $
Total charges for the year for net long term liabilities were as follows:
Principal payments including certain sinking funds to the Ontario Municipal Improvement Fund of Ontario Water Resources Commission	1,465,000	1,465,000
Interest	543,901	543,901
	2,008,901	2,008,901

Of the total charges shown above, $636,335 was said from the revenue of the municipality and is included in expenditures, classified according to functions, in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure. The remaining $1,372,566 was paid from the related net long term liabilities were incurred.

2. CONTRIBUTIONS TO RESERVES AND RESERVE FUNDS

Contributions to reserves and funds pertaining to $88,771 are included in the statement of Revenue and Expenditure, classified under the appropriate functional headings.

3. BASIS OF FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

The Consolidated Balance Sheet reflects the assets and liabilities of the revenue fund, the capital fund and all reserve funds of the municipality. Trust fund assets administered by the municipality, amounting to $1,000,000 are not included in the balance sheet and statement of operations of the municipality.

4. NET LONG TERM LIABILITIES

Total long term liabilities incurred by the municipality and outstanding at the end of the year	16,778,223
In addition, the municipality has guaranteed payment for the payment of principal and interest on certain long term liabilities issued by other municipalities within the area of the year. The principal amount of these liabilities shown above the municipality's share of these liabilities shown above the municipality's share of these liabilities which have charges has been assumed by others for a principal amount of	(3,779,134)
The balance in the sinking funds pertaining to the Ontario Water Resources Commission which is deducted from the total long term liabilities	475,409

5. CAPITAL OUTLAY TO BE RECOVERED IN FUTURE YEARS

Some capital outlay does not represent a burden on general municipal revenues, as it is to be recovered in future years from other sources:

	1974	1973
Special charges on benefiting landowners	$ 2,668,569
Municipal enterprises	6,336,395
	8,994,864

6. LIABILITIES PAYABLE IN UNITED STATES DOLLARS

Included in the "Net Long Term Liabilities" is an amount of $6,565,000 payable at U.S. dollars and recorded at par with Canadian dollars.

7. CONTINGENT ASSETS AND LIABILITIES

Amount due to the Ontario water Resources Commission under an agreement to service debentures issued by the City of Toronto, dated December 1972. Principal repayments, plus interest at 7.25% of the amount of $1,000,000 commencing December 1974 and ending December 1983 and included in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure functional headings on schedule 1-4.

8. CHANGE IN ACCOUNTING TREATMENT OF SPECIAL CHARGES

On instruction from the ministry of Treasury, Economics and Intergovernmental Affairs the present for local improvement charges as part of the revenue fund has been changed to show the 1974 charges as part of the 1974 "related net revenue" in the Statement of Revenue and Expenditure. Comparative figures for 1973 have been revised to reflect this change to allocation. The revised figures for 1973 and 1974 are as follows:

	1974	1973
Provisions for local improvements	$248,992	$241,513
Revenue from sewage service charges (includes levy and charges on utility bills)	529,416	521,679
	778,408	763,192

Local Firm Gets $4-million Contract

The Stephens-Adamson plant here has been awarded a $4-million contract by the Steel Company of Canada Ltd. for the design, fabrication and erection of a raw materials handling system, it was announced today.

The conveyor system, when erected at Stelco's new Lake Erie steel complex at Nanticoke, will be capable of transporting up to 10,000 tons of iron ore pellets from the mill's lakeside dock to a stockpile area.

Principal components will be a wharf hopper, a transfer station and two conveyors measuring a total of 7,500 feet.

The project — to be completed by the Belleville firm — is expected to be in operation by 1976, a company release states.

R. G. Gallaghan, sales administrator for the plant, said in an interview Thursday it is the biggest one of our larger contracts."

"Combined with some others . . . the company is definitely expanding and growing," said Mr. Gallaghan. ". . . and because of this expansion you have to hire people."

Since last June, the employee count at the Belleville plant has swelled from 300 to 360.

"We're experiencing good, long-range growth," said Mr. Gallaghan.

Mr. Gallaghan said his firm had had "three or four contracts of this size in the past year."

"These contracts have a long-range effect because each contract is due for completion over a year or more. While workers are completing one, others are being started," he said.

Recently it was announced that the Belleville plant is also supplying equipment for a large sands project at Mildred Lake, 75 miles north of Edmonton. That project was ordered by Syncrude Canada Ltd.

Study Shows Quinte Area Lacks Recreation Sites

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Quinte planning area is drastically short of developed recreational areas . . . particularly areas intended for boating and overnight camping, a report from Quinte Planning Board staff revealed Thursday.

The statement is included in a 100-page report submitted to the board Thursday. The "open space" study, along with five other documents, will be amalgamated to form a concept plan for development of the Quinte planning area. This area is made up of the municipalities of Belleville, Trenton, Frankford and the townships of Sidney and Thurlow.

While the board must participate in the formulation of local plans for municipalities, its chief responsibility has been the general direction of Quinte growth. The final document to be presented to the board will cover urban development strategy, but, along with its rural counterpart, is considered a key document on which to base future area growth discussions.

It will detail the alternatives of how to handle future residential and industrial growth around the area's major, existing urban centres — Belleville, Trenton and Frankford. MORE

In earlier board reports it had been stated that the area's 67,000 population will at least double by the year 2000 — a projection which gives particular significance to the open space study.

"If the population projection is achieved, the developed recreational land we have in the area now will come nowhere near handling the demand," said planner Stewart Murray, author of the study.

"The provincial government expects the demand on its parks will triple during the next 15 years and it's quite possible we will experience the same growth on municipal facilities."

Mr. Murray said because of the popularity of camping and especially boating, both of these areas "should be considered as priorities by area municipalities and the planning board."

Mr. Murray's report showed 400 acres of developed land is available as a recreational use to the area's 67,000 residents.

The report recommends: The board should co-operate with and co-ordinate open space planning with area councils . . . a waterfront land use policy is needed, that an environmental protection policy be considered and that there should be long-term protection of wild life habitats."

The board Thursday accepted the report and moved to have it circulated among member municipalities for their comments. These comments are expected to be received at the board's August meeting.

Bert Kenny, planning director for the board, said the final urban strategy study now is being formulated and will be presented to the board in the fall.

Contract Approved For Town Watermains

The project is the latest phase in bringing community water services to this town of 1,800.

The contract — for $933,500 — was awarded Rideau Valley Constructors Ltd., of Stratford, by the Ontario environment ministry, said Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings.

Work is scheduled to start July 14, and the estimated date of completion is June next year.

The ministry is installing the town's water system and the contract is the second phase of the overall project, scheduled for completion next year, said Samuel Knapp, town clerk-treasurer.

Car Rolls, Driver Hurt

A young Quebec man was reported in fair condition today in Belleville General Hospital after his car rolled on Highway 401 Thursday night east of Marysville.

Henri J. G. Labelle, 22, suffered chest and possible head injuries in the mishap, a hospital spokesman said.

He was under intensive care today.

It's All Work

Despite the setting and the swimsuits these four young people are not taking the day off. It's a matter of work . . . they're among students assigned to Moira River Conservation Authority for summer jobs under provincial government's Experience '75 program. Plugging leaks at control dam in north Belleville Thursday were (from left) Judy Howell, 19, Michael Dallair, 20, Stephen Isaacs, 18, and Bonnie Sills, 18.

Authority Uses Students To Improve Area Projects

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A quartet of young people reported on the job Wednesday in Belleville in their working clothes — bathing suits.

The attire was demanded by the assignment. Caulking leaks in the Moira River Conservation Authority's (MRCA) log control dam between both city riverside parks in northend Belleville.

It was only one of a list of chores that will see them in more conventional work dress for the summer.

Assigned to help out with municipal work projects — such as cleanup chores — the team is only one of several groups of students working for MRCA under Experience '75 — the provincial government's program aimed at providing community-oriented summer jobs for young people.

In all, 15 university and high school students have been designated for MRCA projects under the program, says John Johnston, the authority's resources manager.

"It's 100 per cent funded by the (provincial) government and most valuable to the authority," says Mr. Johnston of the program.

While the province pays the costs, the rest is left to the MRCA.

"We set up our own work schedules. That way we get out of the program exactly what we want," says Mr. Johnston.

Besides the task force made available to the MRCA's 17-member municipalities other projects include:

— Resource assessment. This has a young technician at work examining vegetation, wildlife, possible trails and other facilities within the watershed, for recommendation to the authority.

— Water quality monitoring. This project is in its third summer and has two young people working with the environment ministry.

— O'Hara's Mill. A four-member team has helped ready the conservation site northeast of Madoc for summer tourists. The students will also act as tour guides in the area, notable for its pioneer homestead, schoolhouse and sawmill.

Block Party Popular

Retired Belleville General Hospital nurse Winnifred Donohoe has a solution for those who claim they never get to know their neighbors — throw a block party.

However, it took the Victoria St. resident 20 years to learn that secret when Wednesday night more than 30 neighbors gathered together for the first time. People, on both sides of the street from MacDonald Ave. to Goldwin Road, attended the gathering.

Mrs. Donaldson, 45, recently retired from BGH after 48 years of nursing. Most recently she was head nurse of the post-partum maternity ward.

Homes Have No Water

Approximately 45 Quinte Heights households have formed a citizen's group to present a brief to Sidney Township Council, Monday night, concerning the lack of water in their area.

Mrs. J. L. Gassenbeek, a resident of Quinte Heights, said today the area receives their water from a private source. The water table during the summer is lower therefore presenting a fire hazard said Mrs. Gassenbeek.

Mrs. Gassenbeek said "we've been lucky for three years and it's the same problem every year."

Witnesses To Gather

More than 160 members of the Belleville congregation of the Jehovah's Witnesses will attend North American summer convention in Toronto, says Thor Jensen, presiding minister of the local group.

The convention being held at Woodbine Race Track July 31 - August 3 is expected to attract about 25,000 people.

Cannot Taken

City police are investigating the theft of a canoe valued at $150 from the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club at Victoria Park, some time between Sunday morning and Monday evening.

A police spokesman said Monday the canoe, owned by Stuart LeBaron of 246 Bleecker Ave., is a 12-foot aluminum model, brown imitation birch.

Cyclists Injured

A 62-year-old Belleville man has been charged with making an unsafe left turn following an accident Wednesday evening that sent two people to hospital, said police.

Michael Doolin, 302 Bleecker Avenue, turned in front of a motorcycle driven by Peter Craft, 17, of Bleecker Avenue, when he turned into his driveway when he was in collision with a motorcycle driven by Peter Craft.

Mr. Craft, 19, of 201 Victoria Avenue and Judy Craft, a passenger on the motorcycle were taken to Belleville General Hospital for minor injuries.

The automobile damage was $300.

Rockhounds Uncover Large Apatite Stone

BANCROFT — A gem of a find is being claimed for this area — long renowned for its deposits of natural gemstones.

The stone, cut this week by a Unionville stone cutter weighs 63.25 carats — about a half ounce. Its processors claim it has a commercial value of $10,000.

It was found Monday by gem appraiser John Shearer's wife, Lynda. Mr. Shearer and his partner, William Ince, a provincial government employee, have offered the unique, blue-green gem to the National Museum.

They would not say what price they're asking from the National Museum. If that institution declines, the stone will be offered to the Royal Ontario Museum.

Both men formed Trilliumite Exploration Ltd. and worked throughout last winter gaining mining and access rights on property in this area, containing apatite deposits.

There are other apatite areas throughout the world, generally with yellow deposits. But the Ontario variety is unique for bluish-yellow hue, they say.

They hope to remove the material so Canadians "can get the stones—that's why it's named after the trillium."

Until Monday, said Mr. Shearer, the largest apatite gemstone in the world was a clear yellow stone found in Mexico and now kept in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

The Bancroft area has long been known for the variety of its natural gemstone deposits — a phenomenon that has made it a focal point for collectors. Once a year, rockhounds rendezvous here for the Bancroft Gemboree — an event that has become an international attraction.

Summer Fun

Mentally-handicapped Adults Enjoy Summer Leisure Program

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

The retarded adult population of Belleville will have a summer leisure program for the first time this year.

Thanks to the efforts of the Belleville recreation department and with the help of provincial funding, a program has been established at the William R. Kirk School, on Palmer Rd.

More than 20 adults from the Adult Rehabilitation Centre (ARC) will be taking part in the pilot project comprised of physical and cultural activities designed to create recreational outlets for the participants.

"We want to provide an environment where people can enjoy themselves," says David Joyce, co-ordinator for the program.

"We're not trying to teach," he said in an interview. "The program will be tailored to the individuals desires and abilities in leisure activities."

Part of the first day agenda was a session in the arts and crafts room at the school and the assignment was "to draw something you want to do this summer," said the instructor.

"The entire program is still not finalized," said Mr. Joyce, "because we wanted to get ideas from the program members and that was the objective of the crafts class."

"ARC is an industry and must meet contractual work agreements," said Mr. Joyce, "and there are some afternoons and mornings when they must be elsewhere."

"Because of this we have been trying to contact other handicapped people in Belleville who would like to participate in the summer program," he said.

The Ontario Department of Community and Social Services has been approaching families of retarded adults in Belleville to see if any would be interested in the program.

"The response has been very limited so far," said Mr. Joyce, "but we hope anyone interested will contact the recreation department because we feel we can accommodate an additional 15 people when ARC members are working."

There are special trips and programs planned during the summer.

"Various musical entertainers will be performing for the people and outings to Toronto and perhaps the Toronto Zoo are being planned to provide an opportunity for self-involvement, said Mr. Joyce.

Ministry May Extend Life of Self-Care Unit

Provincial minister of health Frank Miller indicated to Belleville General Hospital (BGH) officials in Toronto Wednesday he will support an extension of the lease for BGH's Queen's Self-Care Unit, in the former motel on East Dundas St.

But a favorable decision will depend on the results of a ministry survey of the total number of beds in the entire BGH centre, says Carl Bateman, BGH Board of Governors chairman.

Mr. Bateman said today the BGH delegation included executive director Philip Rickard, medical director Dr. Reg Anderson, board members Ben Corke and Gerry Joyce and himself, plus Richard Potter, Quinte MLA, "accompanied and supported us," he added.

"He (Miller) has seen it (the unit)," Mr. Bateman said. "He's somewhat enthused with it."

He said Mr. Miller "directed his staff to look at the total complement of beds in the hospital complex."

Mr. Bateman explained if ministry staff do not determine BGH has more beds than necessary, "then he (Miller) is willing to consider an extension of the lease."

Mr. Rickard said today Mr. Miller's decision is expected within the next couple of months.

Boating Deaths Underscore Need for Safety Say OPP

Canadians are halfway through Safe Boating Week as officials of the Canadian Safety Council recently (July 1-7) and with the lack of activity in the Bay of Quinte area, it has probably gone ignored by most residents.

However, one of the most important events in the Ontario Provincial Police display at the Napanee Mall which began Thursday and concludes Saturday.

Constable John McGrath, community services officer at the Napanee detachment commented the display has special meaning in light of the recent boating mishap on the channel between Amherst Island and the mainland, just south of Napanee, in which five people died.

Police have determined six persons embarked from the mainland in the middle of the night at a point where the channel is about a mile wide in a 15-foot fibreglas boat with only two life preservers. One person survived.

Constable McGrath said the detachment's boat and equipment are on view as well as pictures of water safety, two films constantly running inside the boat and information pamphlets on boating and water safety regulations which are being distributed.

Lesley Ingraham of RR2, Roslin, water safety chairman for the Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, said her agency conducted its water safety week, which included boating, June 1-7. Consequently, there was nothing planned for this week. But she noted the Red Cross program does not finish after one week and is an ongoing concern throughout the year.

Mayor Opens Week

Mayor Robin Jeffrey officially opened "Hire A Student Week" today, sigging a proclamation that will, hopefully, stimulate local employers to find summer work for students.

Student placement officer Peter Fleming, with Canada Manpower for Students Centre, said Thursday the special week will occur between July 7 to 14. He said ARC for Students will begin a mailing campaign to reach employers.

Mr. Fleming said the student placement office has found jobs for 500 area students so far this summer but that there are still 1,000 students without jobs.

He appealed to employers and home-owners to find work for a student either on a daily basis or for several weeks. Mr. Fleming said students are still registering for summer employment.

Safety First

Canada is in the midst of Safe Boating Week this week (July 1-7). One of the agencies involved in the promotion of safe boating is the Canadian Red Cross Society. Lesley Ingraham of RR 2, Roslin, water safety chairman of the Red Cross' Belleville branch, displays one of the posters she erects each year in area schools and businesses to exemplify the importance of proper boating techniques.

Perfect Game for Auger's Swan

Bob Swan pitched nothing less than perfect ball on Thursday night at the Alemite, as he led Auger's Men's Wear to a 5-0 win over Rorabeck Real Estate in Quinte Baseball League play.

It was the first perfect game a pitcher has thrown so far this season. He has plenty to do so was Bob Ethier of the Juniors, who their fifth win in a row in the second game of the twinbill, defeating a slipping Howard and Robert squad 5-3. a

John Sprackett had an all-round good night, picking up the win while adding six hits, walking three and gaining four strikeouts.

Sprackett was also lone at the plate for the Juniors, hitting two singles and a triple.

Ted Baker threw in the H and R loss, giving up 10 hits, no walks and striking out two batters.

Other hitters for the winners were, John Romano with two singles, Steve Campbell with a double and Mark Hughes, Ken Vos, Dwayne Deatator and John Heddon with a singled.

In the other QPL game the Ellis Juniors bested their rivals Howard and Robert 5-3.

Swan struck out eight batters on the way to his no-hit, no-walk effort, while Auger's played errorless ball behind him. Swan can thank Ted Cornell for preserving the no-hitter. Ted made a diving catch in the fifth inning that wiped out a sure single.

Veteran catcher Jim Whyte called the shots for Swan in his first game appearances on the field. Whyte also coaches Auger's.

Jim Livingstone doubled twice to help Auger's to their victory. Darryl Kramp had a double and a single to help fellow pitcher Swan and Dave Alery, Joe Therlault and Jim Whyte singled.

Gulliver Blanks Broadloom 6-0

Belleville Broadloom dropped their second game in a row on Thursday night in Belleville and District Ladies Softball League play.

The Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund put out another good effort to defeat Broadloom 6-0 with Shirley Gulliver taking the victory.

Gulliver struck out seven while giving up three hits and no walks in throwing the shutout.

Sheila Smith and Sharon Alexander were the top hitters for the winners, both had a couple of safeties.

The Broadloom hits were spread out among various team members.

The Purinettes must have missed supper before playing Lakeside Oxygen on Thursday night.

The Madoc team defeated Lakeside 17-4, with Sandra Fleming earning a three-hitter, compliments of Red Barn and a voucher at Madoc Dairy. She earned the gifts by hitting a homer and a double in the Madoc win.

Sandra Fleming and Darlene Bodce combined for the win giving up four hits and two walks while striking out six batters.

Norma McQuarrie took the loss tot dida't go away hungry, as she led her team in batting, pounding a homer. That earned her a Barn Burner and a food voucher from Kramp Happy Hut.

Marg Bateman had four singles and a double for Madoc in the win, while Bonnie Thompson his two doubles and Cathy Smith hit three singles.

Comeback Falls Short

A late Bayview Orchard comeback wasn't enough to give them a win over the Ameliasburg A's, as the A's outscored them 8-7.

The Thursday night contest in the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League was a close one with both pitchers putting on good shows.

Don Bonter pitched well, giving up 10 hits, no walks and gaining six strikeouts.

Bob Morris hit a triple in the A's win, while Doug Findlay had a double and a single and Gary Thompson had a couple of singles.

Tykes and Peewees Record Wins

Belleville EOBA Teams Connect

Belleville displayed more baseball talent recently in both the Peewee and Tyke divisions of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association.

In the Peewee game, Belleville Broadloom defeated Port Hope 8-1, while in the Tyke match it was Belleville Elliott Motors 16, Ajax 3.

Rory MacLeod threw the first win, giving up just two hits to Port Hope and, three walks. He had five strikeouts.

Bernie Bemma gave up eight hits and six walks while striking out three batters for the losers.

Tony Pearson and Randy Sutton got the two Port Hope hits, both were singles.

Robbie Revoy and Rob Boomhower couldn't complain, as Elliott Motors' batters gave them 16 runs to work with.

The two pitchers struck out nine batters and walked just one.

Dave Bush hit a home run and a single but it was to no avail as his club ended up on the wrong side of the score.

Golden Bat Set to Swing

Organizers of the seventh annual Golden Bat Baseball Baseball Tournament which opens today with four games at 6 p.m., have been operating in high gear for weeks. And Thursday, the volunteer workers had to slip into overdrive.

A late cancellation by Hamilton Alexander Park spurred feverish effort to secure a replacement. And, as has been the case since the tournament's inception, everything was ironed out smoothly and quickly.

Port Hope of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association will replace the Hamilton team. And the full 16-team event is set to go.

Opening ceremonies will take place prior to the start of the Belleville Legion 99-Oshawa Legion match at Centennial Park No. 1 diamond. Other 6 p.m. games today have Trenton Slate Farm and Thurlow Chisholm's of Roslin hooking up at Centennial No. 2 while Kingston Lions and Brampton supply the action at Centennial No. 3, and at Parkdale, it's Peterborough and North York matching skills.

The action continues with games Saturday and championship play, Sunday.

The first round draw follows:

FRIDAY, 6 P.M.

Belleville vs Oshawa, Centennial No. 1
Trenton vs Thurlow, Centennial No. 2
Kingston vs Brampton, Centennial No. 3
Peterborough vs North York, Parkdale

SATURDAY, 9 A.M.

Scarborough Village vs Hamilton Tanner's, Centennial No. 1
Toronto Legion 31 vs Waterloo, Centennial No. 2
Guelph vs Port Hope, Centennial No. 3
Dorchester vs Lasalle, Parkdale

Second round games Saturday are at 2 p.m. and Sunday with 9 and 11 semi-finals and finals at 3 p.m. A and B championship finals are Sunday at noon with the grand championship match starting at 3 p.m.

6-0, 6-1

Billie Jean Takes Title

WIMBLEDON, England (SP) — Billie Jean King, in a 38-minute massacre, won the Wimbledon women's title for the sixth time today with a 6-0, 6-1 win over Evonne Goolagong Cawley of Australia.

Billie Jean, seeking to tie an all-time Wimbledon record of 19 singles and doubles victories, forced her younger opponent into repeated errors.

Evonne, the 1971 champion, could do nothing right as she lost the first set in 17 minutes.

Billie Jean, 31, and playing her last Wimbledon singles, ended Evonne's service to win the championship, 6-0, 6-1.

ERVASTI SIX BACK

GLENEAGLES, Scotland (AP) — Edward Ervasti of London, Ont., shot a 72 Thursday and trails the leaders after the third round in the international seniors amateur golf championship. With one round to play Ervasti is alone in third place with a 226 total behind Americans Delbert Walker at 214, and Bill Zimmerman with 215.

Franklin Coach, Tweed Win in Stirling Loop

Close games weren't the story in Stirling and District Softball League play in Stirling on Thursday.

Norm Lockhart took the win for Franklin Coach, giving up nine hits and five walks while setting down nine batters on third strikes.

Larry Marshall and Linn Thain took the loss, giving up 16 hits and 10 walks while managing three strikeouts.

Dan Bowery had four safeties to lead Franklin, while Lockhart, Ralph Dafoe and Dave Langstaff all had two hits each.

Dave Brankiein was murder at the plate with two triples and a homer, but it was of no avail as Tucker still absorbed the loss.

Doyle Arnes and Reed Morton took the loss, giving up 17 hits and two walks and striking out six batters.

Terry Lessage had two safeties and a homer for Tweed while Glenn Haggerman came up with four safeties.

Glen Acorn had three hits and a homer for the losers.

Marvin 3-time Winner

WELLINGTON — A Wellington marksman, Earl Marvin, has won the Veteran Champion of Canada title in the Canadian Trapshooting Championships held recently in L'Acadie, Quebec.

It is the third time Marvin has captured this award. His first win was in Montreal in 1967 and his second in British Columbia in 1969.

In the Veterans' class for participants 65 years of age and over this year he won the Open Veterans Handicap, the High Over All and the High All Around.

Constellation Team Back in the Groove

Constellation regained their winning ways on Thursday night in Belleville Industrial Softball League play at the CNRA field, defeating the CNR 9-2.

Ken Kerik took the win, his 14th of the season as Constellation padded its lead in the East division.

In the other game, Black Diamond defeated Canadian Tire 6-3 after just three innings of play.

In the Constellation victory Kerik gave up five hits and five walks while striking out seven batters.

Kerik was tops at the plate for the victors, hitting a homer and a double, while Tom Cain hit three singles and Steve Galchum doubled and singled.

The other league game saw Canadian Tire forfeit the game to Black Diamond after only three innings of play. Ron Bateman received the win while Andy Frudden took the loss.

Ellis Finally Solves Riddle — Beats Expos

MONTREAL (CP) — For Dock Ellis of Pittsburgh Pirates, it was a case of third time lucky.

Ellis, who dropped his first two decisions to Montreal this season, blanked the Expos in five hits Thursday and the Pirates scored a 5-1 National League baseball win.

"I didn't have real good control," said Ellis, who now is 6-4 on the year. "I was keeping the ball down low a lot. I was trying to throw as hard as I could because I was a little wild."

Ellis, who sat out three weeks with a strained right shoulder, is 4-1 since returning to the Pittsburgh lineup June 12. He has won his last three decisions.

The Pirates jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Al Oliver scored a 11 pitch walk on the right-centre field fence for his eighth home run of the season.

Pittsburgh added another run in the third when Frank Taveras got his first of three hits and stole third, moved to second on a sacrifice, went to third on an infield out and scored on Richie Hebner's single.

The Expos came back with a run in the fifth when Tony Scott scored Pete Mackanin with an infield hit. On the play, Scott left his harassed pitcher to second baseman Rennie Stennett who threw late to first baseman Willie Stargell.

Mackanin, who had singled for a two-base error.

That ended the perfect game. And one out later Jerry Reuss walked and his 1-0 lead were gone, too, Bill Plummer, a .188 hitter, hit a run-scoring double.

After the big Philadelphia-born Ed Armbrister, who was to later give San Diego the victory, took third on Ron Cey's grounder but was stranded when Doug Rau grounded out.

Bobby Tolan led off the bottom of the ninth with a single off Will McEnaney and Tito Fuentes doubled him to third. Tolan scored when Armbrister, now in right field, dropped Gene Lacklizer's short fly ball.

It was Jones' second one-hitter of the year. On May 19 he did it against St. Louis, winning 1-0 in 10 innings.

Jones has a 11-5 record with a 1.77 ERA.

John Milner's sixth-inning two-run homer for the Mets, his fifth of the season and his first since June 9, was all pitcher Jerry Koosman needed. Koosman pitched a four-hitter and chipped in with a two-run double in the eighth.

Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski doubled home two first-inning runs, then Bob Boone tripled to break a fourth-inning tie and started a four-run burst that carried the Phillies past St. Louis. Buddy Bradford's pair of two-run homers accounted for all the Cards' runs.

Steve Garvey drove in five runs with a two-run homer, a double and a two-run single to lead Los Angeles past the Giants. The victory was only the Dodgers' third in the last nine games, but it helped them pick up a game on first-place Cincinnati in the West. They trail the Reds by seven games.

Foolish Pleasure Impressive

Supporters of the unbeaten three-year-old filly, who have been telling one and all that it will be Ruffian all the way on Sunday, had some second thoughts today.

The reason: Foolish Pleasure turned in a blazing five-furlong workout Thursday in 58.2-6 seconds, almost two seconds faster than Ruffian's 1:4-5 on Tuesday. That's the equivalent of nearly 10 lengths.

What's more, the winner of the Kentucky Derby was officially timed in 1:09 1-5 for six furlongs while pulling up. Some unofficial clockers caught the colt in 1:08 3-5 for the six panels.

Burlington Wins 3-2

HAMILTON (CP) — Terry Kay's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning drove in Dave Bucknor to give Burlington Associate Provincianers a 3-2 victory over St. Catharines Jackets in the Ontario Football League game Thursday.

Hal Kemp struck out eight batters and added one on his way to the win. Loser Dave Frances gave up six hits and struck out two and walked four.

St. Catharines took the lead in the first inning when Don Neabit knocked in a run on his triple.

Singles by Hal Kemp and Keith Daw brought in two Burlington runs in the third inning.

St. Catharines tied the game in the fifth inning when Mike Maver, who also hit four single, knocked in Dave Rutley with a double.

Jim Kaat First to Log 13 Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim Kaat, off to his best start ever because major league baseball's first 13-game winner Thursday. Joe Coleman, off to his worst start ever, was hockey not to become the first 13-game loser.

Kaat, 13-4, allowed 11 hits but only two runs, one of them unearned, in 8 1-3 innings as Chicago White Sox edged Oakland A's 3-2.

Coleman, who had last seven games in a row since his last victory on May 19, was tagged for home runs by Ken Singleton and Jim Northrup but struggled to his fourth triumph in 16 decisions as Detroit Tigers beat Baltimore Orioles 9-5.

In other American League games, Milwaukee Brewers beat Boston Red Sox 3-2 in 10 innings, Cleveland Indians defeated New York Yankees 3-2, Kansas City Royals beat Texas Rangers 10-5 and California Angels defeated Minnesota Twins 4-3.

The A's scored both their runs off Kaat in the first inning on a triple by Bert Campaneris, an error and an RBI single by Joe Rudi. The White Sox got a run in the second on singles by Bill Melton and Jerry Hairston and an infield out and tied it in the second on Jorge Orta's double and Deron Johnson's single.

They won it in the seventh on an error, Brian Downing's stolen base, Pat Kelly's infield hit and Lee Richard's grounder. It was Chicago's 11th victory in the last 12 games and lifted the Sox past Texas into third place in the AL West, but 11 games out.

Coleman and the Tigers trailed 5-3 until the fifth, when they chased Mike Caldiar on run-scoring hits by Dan Meyer and Bill Freehan. In the seventh, Willie Horton, who homered earlier, delivered a tie-breaking single and Mickey Stanley added a three-run homer.

Centre fielder Fred Lynn's error on Kurt Bevacqua's 10th-inning single allowed Robin Yount, who had drawn a two-out walk, to score from first base, leaving the Brewers just two percentage points behind the Red Sox atop the AL East Division.

JIM KAAT

Hank Aaron homered for Milwaukee and Cecil Cooper for Boston and the Brewers tied the game in the ninth on a walk to Aaron, a sacrifice and Gorman Thomas' double.

Cleveland's Don Hood allowed two hits in 8 1-3 innings—home runs by Bobby Bonds in the fourth and ninth innings—and Oscar Gamble and Boog Powell homered for the Indians.

Kansas City's John Mayberry hit his fifth home run in three nights, a two-run shot in the first inning, and Tony Solaita added a pair of homers and Fred Patek chipped in with one.

San Diego Lefty Winner

Giving Up Run Hurts; No-hitter Secondary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Randy Jones has an interesting set of priorities. Perhaps it has something to do with team spirit.

"I was more upset over giving up a run than losing the no-hitter," the San Diego left-hander said Thursday night after pitching a one-hitter in the Padres' 3-1 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

In other National League baseball games, New York Mets beat Chicago Cubs 4-0, Philadelphia Phillies defeated St. Louis Cardinals 7-4, Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Francisco Giants 7-1 and Pittsburgh Pirates beat Montreal Expos 5-1.

Jones had more than a no-hitter going for most of the game. He had retired the first 13 batters he'd faced. Then shortstop Hector Torres fielded Dave Peres' leadoff grounder in the eighth and fired it wildly past first baseman Willie McCovey

Four Reds Have Firm Grip On NL All-star Positions

NEW YORK (AP) — Cincinnati Reds, led by top vote-getter Johnny Bench, have a firm grip on four starting spots and Los Angeles on one for the 1975 National League all-star team.

Voting tabulations were released today by the baseball commissioner's office.

However, with three days remaining in the balloting, the fans remain in sharp disagreement on the composition of three other starting positions.

Cincinnati's Bench remains the runaway favorite for the catching job with 1,427,362 ballots to 845,762 for Manny Sanguillen of Pittsburgh Pirates.

Reds second baseman Joe Morgan has attracted 2,040,962 votes for a huge advantage of 1,370,028 over Dave Cash of Philadelphia Phillies. Shortstop Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati drawn 1,890,922 votes thus far to outdistance Larry Bowa of Philadelphia by 797,217, while team-mate Pete Rose is confident of a place in the outfield with 1,771,694 ballots.

Ron Cey of Los Angeles Dodgers appears likely to take the third base honors with 1,402,519 votes, 686,357 more than runner-up Bill Madlock of Chicago Cubs.

Meanwhile, a battle is raging for the remaining two outfield positions, and Los Angeles' Steve Garvey has only a slight edge over Tony Perez of Cincinnati in the race for first base.

Base-stealing king Lou Brock of St. Louis Cardinals climbed from fourth to second place in the outfield voting last week with 907,837 tallies, followed closely by Del Unser of the New York Mets with 855,570; Los Angeles' Jimmy Wynn, 830,632; Reggie Smith of St. Louis, 908,921 and the Mets' Rusty Staub with 904,067.

Garvey improved his narrow margin over Perez, attracting 1,231,209 votes to 1,202,272 for his opponent.

The balloting for the lineup concludes on July 6, with the all-star game scheduled for July 15-in Milwaukee.

Ashe and Connors in Men's Final

Evonne and Billie Jean Clash

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King meets Evonne Goolagong Cawley today in a Wimbledon singles final that has the makings of an exciting battle between two determined women.

For Mrs. King, it is the climax of a 15-year Wimbledon career in which she has won five singles and 13 doubles titles, now playing in what she insists is her final major singles tournament, the 31-year-old veteran holder of the all-time Wimbledon ladies title record of 19 if she wins.

Mrs. Cawley, a young Australian star, is fighting to prove her independence after a crisis in her personal life. The 23-year-old crowd-pleaser got married in Englishman Roger Cawley, just before Wimbledon, causing estrangement with her Australian coach Vicro Edwards, her legal guardian since she was 11 and the man who molded her tennis career.

When Mrs. Cawley beat Australian countrywoman Margaret Court 6-4, 6-4 in the semi-final, Mrs. Court said Mrs. Cawley looked unbeatable.

"She's determined to prove she doesn't need Mr. Edwards around to lean on anymore," said Mrs. Court.

Mrs. King ousted defending champion Chris Evert of the United States 3-6, 6-3, 6-3 in a semi-final that stretched her endurance and determination to the limit.

"I just kept telling myself that even if you are to be back calls, bad bounces and the sun is shining in your eyes, you've still got to give everything you have," said the star from San Mateo, Calif.

Some of the sellout crowd of 17,000 slept on sidewalks all night Wednesday to get standing room for Connors' Thursday semi-final against fellow American Roscoe Tanner.

Connors put on a dazzling display of all-court play to win 6-4, 6-1, 6-4.

It meant the defending champion had reached the final without dropping a single set.

Ashe always looked the best player in his three-hour semi-final against Australia's Tony Roche, but he had to battle out five sets before winning 5-7, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3, 6-4. Even he admitted later that much of the match was dull.

On Record Trail

OSLO (CP-AP) — Yvonne Saunders of Toronto set a Canadian open and native record in the women's 800-metre event at an international track meet Thursday.

Saunders, formerly of Guelph, Ont., covered the distance in 2:00.1 to better the previous open and native record—held by Abby Hoffman of Toronto—by one-fifth of a second. Hoffman set the record in 1973.

Grete Andersen Waitz of Norway was second in 2:00.4 followed by Maureen Crowley of Vancouver in 2:01.6 and Hoffman in 2:01.7. Anne Marie Davies of Winnipeg was seventh in 2:07.3.

Later, Debbie Brill of Victoria set a Canadian open and native record in the women's high jump, leaping 6 feet 2¾ inches to better her previous mark of 6-1¾ set last year.

Julie White of Brampton, Ont., was fourth with a leap of 5-8. Mikiko Some of Japan was second with a jump of 5-10¼.

Grant McLaren of London, Ont., placed fourth in the 3,000-metre race with a clocking of 7:59.4. Werner Meier of Switzerland was first in 7:46.2.

Rick Wohlhuter of Chicago beat Lubisina Susani of Yugoslavia in a slow 800-metre race in 1:46.6 at Bislett stadium. Wohlhuter, world record holder at 800 yards and 1,000 metres, just nipped Susani who finished in 1:46.7.

The meet was watched by 9,500 fans.

In the men's high jump, John Beers of Burnaby, B.C., finished first with a leap of 8-10¾. Stein Landsem of Norway was second and Dean Baack of Vancouver was third, both with the same height. Beers took first because of fewer misses.

Reaves Traded

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League traded quarterback John Reaves and an undisclosed draft choice Thursday to Cincinnati Bengals for offensive tackle Stan Walters and quarterback Wayne Clark. Reaves, 25, was the Eagles' first choice in the 1972 NFL draft. But after the Eagles acquired Roman Gabriel two years ago, the former Florida star was used sparingly.

B. C. Squad Takes 41-31 Victory

72 Points as Lions Claw the Riders

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions overcame a shaky second quarter to defeat Ottawa Rough Riders 41-31 Thursday night in a Canadian Football League exhibition game which had the emphasis on offence.

The Lions started quickly as quarterback Don Moorhead threw first-quarter touchdown passes to Jim Young and Rosie Clarkson. Rocky Long added another touchdown in the quarter with a 91-yard return of a pass intercepted off Ottawa quarterback Condredge Holloway.

Terry Bailey put B.C. 28 points in front on a one-yard run in the second quarter but the Rough Riders came to life for three touchdowns in one minute and 56 seconds just before the half ended.

John Bledsoe scored the first Ottawa touchdown with Rhome Nixon getting two on passes from Jerry Keeling. Nixon completed an outstanding evening with another touchdown in the third quarter, this one from Tom Clements.

Ottawa had tied the game at 31-31 going into the final quarter but the 14,334 fans saw the Lions come back with a touchdown by Lou Harris and a field goal by Ivan MacMillan.

MacMillan had another field goal in the third quarter and converted four of the five B.C. touchdowns. John Wintermyer converted the other B.C. touchdown.

IN MEMORIAM

BUFFMAN—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away July 4th, 1968.
Lovely memories are all we have left to cherish
Evelyn, July 4th, 1968.
Sometimes it seems so long ago.
Since they were called away.
Time has not lessened the pain so near,
As it only makes us long
For the days when our thoughts do wander back.
To happy bygone days.
And make loving memories.
With reverence and devotion
Ever remembered by daughters, sons and families.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to thank everyone who helped us after our baby son, Neil Wayne, died in Kingston General Hospital on June 29th. We wish to thank the nurses, doctors and friends for floral tributes and donations, letters and cards. Thank you to Dr. Howard Reynolds, Rev. Ken Ashton and to all you all. Donations will go to the Heart Fund in memory of our son.
Dave Carl Yerkes Deadline, 1 Lawson Blvd., Toronto, Ont. M4B 1Z2.

CHERRY — To all our dear friends and relatives we wish to express our heartfelt thanks for your many acts of kindness, your prayers, messages of sympathy and encouragement to us during our recent loss of our dear memorials given in our daughter and dearly beloved Lois. The fact that so many have helped and shared our grief has sustained us in bearing our sorrow. Lloyd Cherry and family.

Dear Carl and Jean Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stewart (nee Mrs. Lillian Stewart) and Dale Stewart (brothers) and their families.

We extend our thanks to all our friends, neighbors and relatives who donated mass cards, donations to the heart fund, flowers and those who sent cards of sympathy and been Thanks are also due Rev. Baker, Father Greenwegen, Brian Baker, Harry Lebar, Blake Mills and the choir, members of block C.W.L., for the lunch, Mr. Ken Ashton, funeral director, Central Canada Funeral Service, pall bearers and to Willie Brown for a special favor. Your kindness is much appreciated.
Rose Allen and family, Mrs. Mae Lalage and Miss Frances Allen.

The family of the late Mrs. Lulu Mae Hill wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the kindness and relatives to the nurses and doctors of Belleville General Hospital, for cards and messages, contributions to the Cancer Society and the Heart Fund. Special thanks to the John E. Bush Funeral Home for their kind and efficient service to our loved one. Special thanks for the comforting message. Special thanks to Dr. Brandon and the level nurses of Belleville General Hospital and Home Care, Victorian Nurses, especially Miss Ruby Ketcheson and Mrs. Ethel Carter Mrs. Beatrice Bird for their kindness and care. We are very really appreciated and love you all for your help.
Carol Potts and family.

BC Fisherman Predict Average Salmon Catch

VANCOUVER (CP) — Preliminary indications are that this year's British Columbia salmon harvest will be average but less than that of the last two years.

Fred Young, manager of the Pacific Trollers' Association, and association members' early catches did not meet expectations.

However, Mr. Young said experienced fishermen are not worried about the situation and expect a normal year. He said the exceptional Adams River run last year and the peak year of 1973 may make this year's catch appear poor.

The federal fisheries department has predicted above-average return of sockeye salmon for the Nass and Skeena River areas on the north coast with a poor return for Rivers Inlet on the central coast and a return of about 5.5 million sockeye in the southern Johnstone Strait-Fraser River areas. These four regions represent the major sockeye catch zones along the B.C. coast.

The run in the Johnstone Strait-Fraser area last year was about 8.7 million, of which about five million were caught.

In other areas, good to better-than-average sockeye returns are predicted for the Bella Bella, Bella Coola and Barkley Sound areas with poor returns expected in the Smith Inlet and Clayoquot Sound areas.

Expectations are based on recorded sockeye escapements in cycle years (the estimated number of fish that escaped hooks and nets and continued to spawn), water flows, winter conditions and observations of fry survival in the spring following the brood years.

Canadian officials are not alone in predicting lower returns of salmon this year as compared with 1974.

American officials have predicted a sockeye harvest of 17 million pounds for Washington state fishermen and 29.4 million pounds for Alaskan fishermen. This compares with 1974 harvests of 17.2 million pounds in Washington and 32.9 million pounds in Alaska.

Although tonnage for the B.C. catch this year has not been projected, 47.8 million pounds of sockeye were caught by B.C. fishermen in 1974 and 47.5 million pounds were caught in 1973. The total salmon catch in 1974 was 139.9 million pounds compared with the 1973 total of 190.1 million pounds.

This year the pink salmon, which run every two years, are also heading for the spawning grounds. The estimated total pink run of pinks this year is five or six million with escapement of at least 1.75 million.

The International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission which manages the fishery in the Fraser River area has predicted a total sockeye catch of 3.6 million in convention waters.

The fisheries commission, set up in 1937, regulates the sockeye and pink salmon catches in the International waters. Each day it receives the totals of fish caught and by shortening or lengthening the fishing periods in both countries, attempts to achieve adequate escapement and a balanced catch for both countries.

The commission began regulating the Juan de Fuca area of both countries June 28 and the regulated fishery will end about Oct. 12.

Success of the $74-million B.C. salmon industry depends on the escapement of sufficient numbers of salmon each year to allow for good catches in the future. Sockeye run in four-year cycles—the time it takes for them to grow, swim to the sea and return to spawn in their freshwater birthplace.

The Canadian government recently announced it will spend $200 million during the next 10 years to enhance the Pacific salmon fishery. The program includes fish hatcheries, clearing of streams and construction of artificial spawning channels.

Jerry Fick, manager of the Fisheries Association of B.C., says the program will probably double the production of fish in 10 years and bring it back to the level it was at "before the white man came to B.C." He says pollution has damaged and reduced natural reproduction of fish.

The fisheries association represents the large processing companies on the coast.

Sweet Pickings

Grant Hannah enjoys his summer job of picking up litter along the Rideau Canal in Ottawa, especially when he comes across such items as a girl in a bikini cluttering the grass. Gale Hodgins, a 22-year-old nurse from London, Ont. is the unsuspecting litter bug. (CP Photo)

Hotels Take Bite For Lost Teeth

VANCOUVER (CP) — Losing teeth is not an unusual occurrence. Hockey players do it frequently. It brings dollars to dentists and costs the tooth fairy considerable small change.

However, losing one's teeth in a hotel room might seem unique.

But it isn't. At least, not if the contents of lost-and-found departments in Vancouver hotels are to be believed.

A recent check showed the hide-had been taken out of nine sets of dentures. They were languishing in storage at six hotels, their owners having left them behind.

The teeth were among a plethora of mementoes to the memory, or loss of it, of hotel guests left behind. Souvenirs from airline tickets to pyjamas to alarm clocks to eyeglasses—behind.

Also revealed were some peculiar attachments to particular items.

One man phoned the Sheraton-Landmark to inquire about a used bar of soap he'd left at the hotel. It was still there, sudsless, and the hotel forwarded it to him.

During busy summer months about 200 articles are left behind each week at Hotel Vancouver. The Bayshore's books show more than 200 forgotten items a month and Airport Inn reports about 120 a month.

"People would forget their heads if they weren't screwed on," said Leona Cameron, assistant housekeeper at Airport Inn. "They write in for the strangest things . . . that no one would think of wanting back."

Guests have written for—and received—toothbrushes, half-bottles of shampoo, even a tube of toothpaste which was almost empty.

Then there was the practical joker who forwarded a convention at Hotel Vancouver who left a cache in the room of a friend. No one claimed the bird and it was released in Stanley Park the next day.

Most articles are kept for three months although hotels hold more valuable goods for up to a year. About half the items are claimed and those which aren't are distributed to staff, usually to the employee who found them.

Some goods are thrown out or given to charity.

Except in the case of wallets, most hotels wait to be called by the absent-minded guest. That policy was adopted to avoid indiscreet inquiries to married guests about the nightie or pyjamas left behind by travellers who hadn't brought their spouses with them.

Some hotel guests hide their valuables from would-be thieves, then check out without taking it with them. Georgia Hotel employee once received a call from a curious customer asking her to go up to the room he had stayed in and look between the mattress and box spring. The employee checked and discovered $120 hidden there.

The hotels pay for the postage on returned articles as part of their service. However, some regular guests have asked that forgotten articles—such as ties—be kept at the hotel where they can be picked up on the visitor's next trip.

Roy Thomson Was Looking for Trouble At Age When Most Talk Retirement

LONDON (CP) — At an age when most men are thinking of retirement, Roy Thomson breezed into Edinburgh in 1953 "looking for trouble." Being "otherwise in my right mind," he had come to buy control of The Scotsman newspaper.

Thomson, now 81 and a peer of the realm, tells about his life from that point on in his book, After I Was Sixty, published here by Hamish Hamilton and soon to be published in Canada by Thomas Nelson and Sons (Canada) Ltd.

The negotiations for The Scotsman were tough and tedious, and he was roundly snubbed by Edinburgh society who resented this brash Canadian's attempts to take over what was a Scottish institution. As a son in sensitive feeling he even was persuaded to desist from wearing red socks and brown shoes—"Canadian clothes," as aide confided.

But he changed little else of the Thomson personality—then or since—and eventually he won out in th bargaining and won over many of those who had looked down their noses at him.

Purchase of The Scotsman, however, instead of something to keep Thomson occupied in his old age, became the foundation stone of his British empire.

The negotiations also stood him in good stead for what were to become bigger and more intense dealings, at the lofty heights peopled by the powerful press barons. Eventually he branched into television, wrested control of the great Kemsley newspaper group, bought the Canadian Times, entered the travel business and pursued the elusive wealth of North Sea oil.

The obvious question—and one he asked himself—was why, in his 60th year, did he do it? He was already a millionaire; his son Kenneth was being schooled successfully to take over the North American enterprise, and Thomson, in good health, seemed set to enjoy a happy retirement.

In his book, Thomson says it was the end of a great friendship and business partnership with Jack Kent Cooke, and then the death in 1962 of his wife, Edna, "which together brought my life in Canada to a terminal point."

I suffered deeply from both these events."

He also writes of how he and Kenneth have given up "well over eight millions of our private fortune" supporting The Times, asking: "Have we been mad?" And he tells how The Sunday Times was nearly put out of business until he found a little clause in the contract that gave him an extra six months in which to move it to its new home. And how, at last, the business is all tied up in trusts for future Thomsons, so that death duties will not tear it apart.

Cooke, who subsequently became a United States citizen and now runs a sports and leisure business in California, had suddenly told Thomson that he had been offered a $100,000-a-year contract to run one of Canada's biggest radio stations. But the condition he had been obliged to accept was that "I would have no part in it," Thomson writes.

Thomson was hurt. "A year later we split completely."

It was in the wake of his wife's death and the split with Cooke that he made a somewhat half-hearted attempt to get elected a Conservative member of Parliament, but also toyed with the idea of going into a small bank business in Florida.

But it was Edinburgh that finally attracted him and now, looking backover the 20-odd years since, he writes vividly, frankly and often humorously about the whole new world that was to open before him.

In a sense, however, the book is notable for what it does not say.

Those who hope for the Thomson inside version of how he got his hereditary title and of the controversy, involving then Canadian Prime Minister Lester Pearson, that led him to give up his Canadian citizenship in order to accept the title, will be disappointed.

He mentions the title only fleetingly. Pearson not at all.

Nor does he dwell on the number of people who were laid off as Thomson sought to introduce his style of economy within his new acquisitions.

It came up in Edinburgh when he first met Jim Cullatt, who today remains his closest colleague.

"The nearer you are to Roy Thomson, the nearer you are to the door," Cullatt told him. "At least, that's what they say."

"That's baloney," Thomson replied.

But Cullatt went on to point out Thomson "did a lot of firing" at The Scotsman, "and you had to reinstate some of them."

It is when he is relating all the intricacies and intrigues of his business coups that Lord Thomson is really at home as an author. The bigwigs, royalty, the oil potentates and other personalities he met generally get short shrift. But on business dealings he writes with the sharp enthusiasm of an explorer recounting his exploits.

He tells how an astonishing lack of imagination led Scotland's top businessmen to offer more the golden opportunity of independent television. He initially acquired what he termed "the licence to make money" without much outside support.

Perhaps this pretty sensational remark was indulgence, in hindsight, that it was certainly right, and "I weren't certain people knew how they'd refused to join me." In the eight years newspaper chain he took over, sold-subsidized the overturns of this unsophisticated Canadian for an interest in The Times.

Eventually Thomson won out but "it was the toughest deal I had ever made."

Gavin Astor, now Lord Astor, would inherit Thomson life but Kenneth Thomson would become chairman. But all losses—and they were in no little the millions—would be absorbed by the Thomson family, not Thomson shareholders.

A similar deal was devised years later for the controlling gamble in North Sea oil—if it failed the Thomson family would be the losers; if it succeeded the Thomson Organization could buy into an ab which it now is.

Throughout, although he grew older and wiser, and divested himself of the red socks, Thomson did not change much in style. He is deeply conscious—but never apologetic—of the wealth of Canadian beginnings as son of a Toronto hotel man. He refers frequently to this.

The one thing that did stop him in his tracks was the intransigence of British labor unions and the over-manning in press rooms that grew out of inter-union rivalries. This nipped in the bud his plan to ring London, with its high-population suburbs, with small local papers on the Canadian style.

Throughout, he anticipates the reader's question of why, at 80, he was pursuing the old wealth of the North Sea.

"I can only say that I don't feel that I might one day be short of money. I simply cannot comprehend how anyone can live comfortably and enjoy his leisure cultivating dahlias or buying racehorses. . . .

Fishing Champ Seeking Record

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Deval, Canadian fishing and casting champion, has developed a casting rod "too powerful to fish with."

The rod is 11 feet long and is made of tubular glass. Deval, 45, Canadian champion in seven casting events, had the rod made for him in 1967 before the world championships.

"I was getting frustrated in practice," he said, "because the line was fouling up in the conventional guide. So I began to concentrate very hard on a way to eliminate the problem."

He decided to cut off the tip of his rod and attach a plastic funnel. With the funnel performing as a replacement for the conventional guide on the rod, Deval flung the line 477 feet in Ohio, topping the previous mark of 346 feet.

"When I came into the tournament with the funnel on the rod, the American competitors started laughing at me," said Deval, the only Canadian at the event.

Another world record he hopes to obtain is the unrestricted five-eighths of an ounce bait distance competition. He believes that the spool on his rod is the lightest one in the world.

The spool is less than one inch in diameter and weighs less the one tenth of an ounce. The record is 474 feet.

Using his basement as an experimental laboratory, Deval explores ways to develop equipment.

Although he is credited with almost 25 important innovations, only two are on the market.

They are the O-Fishol, a lure accent in a spray can package, and Fishol Buzz, a buzzer that was made originally for ice fishing. The buzzing occurs when the fish are biting.

Blue Bombers Are Looking Good

Smooth Start Puzzles Earl Lunsford

WINNIPEG (CP) — Something went wrong this year at Winnipeg Blue Bombers' training camp, or so general manager Earl Lunsford thought.

"Everything went so well this year I thought something must have been wrong!" Lunsford said incredulously in an interview on the Bomber camp.

"We had no real serious injuries. No real bad days. It was unreal.

People showed up in shape. There were no player squabbles resulting in absenteism from camp. The veterans soon discovered the rookies were threatening their jobs. The injury list could have been written on a postage stamp.

It isn't only a productive training camp that has Lunsford feeling high. An apparently successful recruiting drive has filled in some weak spots evident in last year's roster.

Lunsford is also happy that six good running backs, fighting for a spot on the team, will likely solve last year's weakness in running backs, linebackers and defensive backs.

The running backs include Steve Beaird of Baylor, Tom Walker of Waterloo Lutheran, Richard Crump of Northeast Oklahoma, James Smith of Northern Arizona, Phil Pulak of Bowling Green and others.

Coach Bud Riley said the offensive backfield needs improvement and whether Jim Washington will be joined by a halfback or a powerback depends on how well the players fit into the system.

Another important decision involves the placekicking department where injured veteran Walt McKee is being threatened by newcomer Bob Macerrin, who turned in a stellar performance in the club's first exhibition encounter.

The offensive line, one of the best in the league last year, remains intact but Ken Peeples of Clemson has been impressing everyone in his attempts to gain an offensive guard spot.

Quarterback Chuck Ealey also has raised the hopes of Winnipeg supporters. He received late last season in a trade with Hamilton Tiger-Cats and never did reach his potential with the Bombers.

But this year he has a training camp behind him and Lunsford likes what he saw.

"Ealey is definitely well ahead of last year. He's a veteran and a heady player. We're looking for big things from him this year."

RUSS JACKSON

New Rule May Prove A Disappointment

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League, in what it said was a move to make the game more exciting for fans, this year has changed its rules to allow blocking on punt returns, but Russ Jackson predicts the fans may be disappointed.

Jackson, head coach of Toronto Argonauts, said that in the Argos' first exhibition game at Hamilton on Wednesday night, he ordered punter Zenon Andruszykiw to put about half his punts out of bounds to avoid the possibility of long returns.

"I'm not worried about the fans," said Jackson. "I'm trying to win games.

"Everybody in the league will be punting out of bounds. You'll see."

Jackson said field position, wind conditions and skill of the the out-of-bounds kicks will be ordered.

Everyone in the Act

REGINA (CP) — Head coach John Payne of Saskatchewan Roughriders said Thursday he will use almost all his players tonight in a Canadian Football League exhibition game with Montreal Alouettes.

Payne told a news conference he will use "everyone who still has a chance to make our club."

The announcement serves as a reprieve for some of the Roughriders, who were battered 41-8 by Winnipeg Blue Bombers Tuesday night in the first exhibition game of the season.

Coach Marv Levy of Montreal, which won the Grey Cup last season, faces fewer personnel decisions than Payne, but he said he will change the order in which the team has three talented quarterbacks.

Sonny Wade will start, Dave Lewis and Jim Jones will see action later. Jones started in Montreal's 19-18 victory over Calgary Stampeders Wednesday night and Lewis was prominent in a fourth-quarter rally which netted 11 points in the final 53 seconds.

Ohio Businessman May Get the Penguins

PITTSBRGH (AP) — The court-appointed receiver of Pittsburgh Penguins agreed Thursday, subject to court approval, to sell the National Hockey League team to a Columbus, Ohio, businessman for 2.8 million cash.

As part of the offer, the buyer, Albert A. Savill, agreed to keep the club in Pittsburgh.

A petition was filed in federal court to show cause why the offer should not be accepted. Judge Hubert I. Teitelbaum of the United States district court scheduled a hearing on the offer next Wednesday.

Savill is a principal owner of Columbus Owls of the International Hockey League.

"It's his (Savill's) intention to have a National Hockey League team in Pittsburgh," said lawyer Jerome Lieber, representing the Penguins. "His purchase will be subject to approval by the court and by the National Hockey League."

The team has been under receivership since the internal revenue service filed a lien against it June 13 and padlocked its offices.

Jack Button, general manager of the Penguins, was named by the court as the receiver. Known outstanding debts total at least $6.5 million.

Lightning, Rain and Darkness

Only the Elements Stop Art Wall

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Art Wall said it was his best round of golf in longer than he could remember, and never mind he couldn't finish it.

Wall, winless on the tour in nine years, was five under par with a hole to play Thursday when lightning, rain and darkness forced suspension of the second round of the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open.

Wall was in position to tie or outgrake the second-round clubhouse co-leaders, Gibby Gilbert and Ken Still, during completion of the round scheduled today.

Wall was among almost two dozen golfers unable to finish the rain-threatened second round Thursday.

Gilbert and Still finished respective rounds of 66 and 67 moments before the thunderstruck for a second time during the day. They shared the lead with nine-under-par totals of 135.

Gilbert's six-under-par round was the day's best over the 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course.

Wall, after an opening-day 67 Wednesday, scored five birdies on his back nine Thursday and was 10-under-par for the tourney con-play when he quitted. He and the others who couldn't finish were to resume their second round today from the point at which play recessed.

Wall recorded six birdies on his nearly-concluded second round, and four were on putts of 12 or more feet. He went 10 under with a birdie on No. 16, then scrambled for a par on the next hole, the last played before suspension.

WALTRIOP, West Germany (Reuter) — Patty Loverock of Vancouver defeated Inge Helten, West Germany's sprint champion, in winning the women's 100-metre race at a track and field meet Thursday night. Loverock clocked 11.4 seconds and Hielton, who won her national title four days ago, had a time of 11.8.

ORR WINS AWARD

TORONTO (CP) — Defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins is the winner of the Lester B. Pearson award for the 1974-75 season, the NHL Players' Association announced Thursday. The award is presented annually to the player who, in the opinion of the players, has contributed most to the game during the last season.

Gilbert, using a new set of irons, reeled off four birdies on the back nine. He went nine under for the meet with a birdie on 15, then finished with three pars.

Still, who offset three bogeys with eight birdies Thursday, said light rain at midday helped his putting. Five of his birdie putts were from 10 feet or more.

Miller Barber, first day leader with a 65, bogeyed his first two holes Thursday but recovered for a 71 and 136 total, one behind Still and Gilbert.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't tell tales out of school at a social gathering today. The wrong ears may be listening. You'll offend someone.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) That luxury item may look great in the store, but out of place in your living room. Be sure you keep the sales slip.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Guard against being lavish in your praise of a flash-in-the-pan performance while ignoring the consistent worthy person.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Lay your cards on the table. Ask the other party to do the same in any business dealings. It is neither advantage to be cute or coy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be careful not to inadvertently upstage a friend today. Don't beat him to the punch line.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your first tendency is to discount a tip from an unexpected source. Be wise. Examine it again—it could be profitable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Avoid talking down to people today, even though you're more knowledgeable on a subject. You may not mean to offend, but you will.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your feelings are very vulnerable today where a loved one is concerned. Don't read-in unintended slights.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) To please those you'll be dealing with today you'll make promises unthinkingly. You may have a rude awakening when asked to keep them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Beware of the eager beaver who attempts to take on an important task. Accept his aid, but channel his energy correctly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) If you're planning some social diversion, don't invite one friend and ignore another who is very sensitive. She could feel snubbed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you're making an extensive, lasting change around home, ask for opinions before you plunge. It could be hard to live with.

Madoc Accident Claims 3 Lives

By JERRY BROWN
and
HARRY MUIJHALL
Staff Reporters

MADOC — Three men, one from Belleville, were fatally injured in a two-car crash on Highway 7 west of Madoc at 11:40 p.m. Friday.

William Murray, 20, of 39 Charlotte St., Belleville, a passenger and Larry Phillips, 20, 30 Pearce St., Marmora, driver of the vehicle died instantly in the collision.

Ken Foreson, 19, 34A Lundy's Lane, Kingston, died two hours after arrival at Kingston General Hospital.

A passenger in the Phillips car, James Nobes, 18, of Hastings, Marmora, is listed in fair condition at Belleville General Hospital suffering from severe head injuries.

Police identified the driver and sole occupant of the second vehicle as Michael O'Connell, 70, R#4, Marmora, who is listed in serious condition at Belleville General Hospital.

All four young men were trapped in the wreckage of their compact car which landed in a ditch filled with about two feet of water, said Cpl. Robert Pearce of the Quinte Rescue Squad.

The squad was called to the scene when the wreckage prevented removal of victims from the car.

Seats and the steering column had to be cut to remove the dead and injured, he said.

The accident occurred about a mile west of Madoc and is under investigation said Constable John Bell of the Madoc Ontario Provincial Police detachment.

Blazing Last Hurrah by Lewis Opens NDP Leadership Search

WINNIPEG (CP) — David Lewis delivered a blazing last hurrah Friday, then stepped aside to watch the five aspiring New Democratic Party leaders march their campaigns directly onto the convention floor.

His potential successors listened to him orally rip apart the federal Liberal government and plead for a concerted party effort in Quebec. Later, they went before the convention in a somewhat tame question-and-answer session that had no apparent major effect on the way the 1,500 delegates intend to vote.

The first day of the four-day convention ended with most observers convinced that Ed Broadbent, the party's parliamentary leader since Mr. Lewis' personal defeat in the 1974 federal election, still holds an edge.

They saw Rosemary Brown, a British Columbia legislature member, and Lorne Nystrom, a Saskatchewan MP, locked in a battle for second and followed by former MP John Harney and fringe candidate Douglas Cornbell, a Toronto taxi driver.

A sixth candidate, Jerome Davis of Sudbury, was disqualified for not obtaining the required 20 signatures for his nomination papers.

Mr. Lewis, who received a standing ovation, said the party has failed to become a major political force in Quebec. This fact had become a major obstacle to the party achieving true federal status.

Quebec has been a traditional wasteland for the NDP, which has 16 federal seats. Only one is a Cape Breton-East Richmond—is in that province.

"It is not easy to overcome this obstacle immediately in the present political climate," the 66-year-old Mr. Lewis said.

"Many democratic socialists and other radicals have concentrated their interest on Quebecois nationalist goals rather than on rational objectives of Canada as a whole."

NDP Has Changed

Mr. Lewis, who received a standing ovation, said the party has failed to become a major political force in Quebec. This fact had become a major obstacle to the party achieving true federal status.

Quebec has been a traditional wasteland for the NDP, which has 16 federal seats. Only one is a Cape Breton-East Richmond—is in that province.

Lewis Thinks Hydro Won't Win Rate Boost

TORONTO (CP) — NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said in the legislature Friday he has it from "well placed and very reliable sources" that the Ontario government has decided to "roll back" a proposed 35-percent increase in Ontario Hydro rates.

During the question period Mr. Lewis advised House Leader Eric Winkler that his information was that action would take place "at an appropriate time in the very near future—presumably after the Ontario Energy Board has reported to cabinet."

Mr. Winkler replied that Mr. Lewis' source "is not very well informed."

Noting the proposed increase would not take effect until Jan. 1, he promised only that the government would be "guided by the decisions of the energy board."

Hearings by the board are expected to result in a report to the government by the end of August.

Steaks Replace Box Lunches

WINNIPEG (CP) — It's strange, returning six years later to another New Democratic Party convention here and not seeing jeans covered with stickers, not hearing policy reform rhetoric, and not eating wall-aged box lunches.

Whether a reflection on the party, or Canadian society generally, this NDP biennial convention is unlike its predecessors.

Posh hotels have replaced listing in private homes and dormitories, and the meeting is being held in the newly-built Winnipeg Convention Centre, not the arenas or community centres of the past.

Winnipeg's best steak houses are filled with button-decorated delegates and downtown hotel bars are jammed with delegates—some recalling days when they hitch-hiked to socialist conventions.

There are no box lunches—the delegates pod down well-carpeted walkways to adjoining hotel restaurants or pause for healthy sit-down lunches in a dining area behind upholstered convention bleachers.

Six years ago in the Winnipeg Auditorium, dozens of Jean-clad Young New Democrats camped in the corridors, chewing out their elders as they prepared for another radical confrontation on the convention floor.

Lenarie Lapierre, the Montreal university lecturer and one-time broadcaster, shed his jacket and tie, and actually shed tears, as he talked into a microphone about the gut-feelings of French-Canada. Women, many of them in denim and shabby sandals, decried the oppression of women. Members of the so-called Waffle had the 1,500 delegates spellbound with eulogies about the pending death of Canada by international nationalism.

But the scene has changed dramatically.

Even the supporters of Rose-mary Brown, the most radical of the candidates, stroll about in smart suits and outfits.

And where are the kids? At convention-opening Friday, nearly 1,500 delegates were registered, but only six were called youth delegates.

"It's not a question of the party changing," said Max Saltsman, MP for Waterloo-Cambridge. "It's a question of Canadian society changing.

"We're still representing those on the outside who are trying to fight their way in, but those on the outside don't wear ragged clothes any more."

Lazy, Hazy Days

Summer '75 is now in full swing. And who can remember a Canadian summer without dandelions already gone to seed ready for the slightest breeze to scatter them? Judy Johnson of Prince George, B.C. had no trouble finding a field of fluff in which to relax and add to her spring tan.

King Billy Rides Here

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Correspondent

King Billy Tuesday will ride his white charger down Front Street once again, Saturday, July 12, followed closely by a band of Mohawk Indians.

The parade, part of a celebration commemorating the defeat of the Catholic forces of James II by the Protestant army of William III, will be sponsored by the Loyal Orange Lodge, Belleville.

The local chapter is expected to be host to more than 1,000 Orange Lodge members and their families from Hastings County, says a club spokesman.

"The parade has not been held in Belleville since 1958, and we are hoping the community will come and join the fun," said Bernard Hollinger, vice chairman of the parade committee.

A representative from Mayor Robin Jeffrey, the head of the Belleville ministerial association and the county leader of the Orange Lodge will speak to the assemblage, at Ben Bleeker Auditorium at 1 p.m. before the parade commences.

The parade will start about 2:30 p.m. and will be headed by the costumed figure representing King William as is the custom for all Battle of Boyne Day parades.

The Mohawk Indians in full ceremonial dress, are part of a contingent of Orange Lodge members from the Tyendinaga Reserve, Mr. Hollinger said.

Prizes will be awarded for floats in the parade, majorette units competing, best bands and best men and women registering.

Lunches are being offered and draw for a color television.

Teddy Bear's Picnic

This young bear cub feasts on the fruits and drinks of a group of picnickers at Black Lake in the Gatineau Hills, 15 miles from Ottawa. After his picnic, the cub wandered off and the picnickers continued their outing with occasional over-the-shoulder glances in case of further visits from the bear or members of his family.

NDP Wants No Sales Of Candu

WINNIPEG (CP) — The New Democratic Party's drafting committee was instructed Friday to toughen up proposed resolutions on resource ownership and the sale of Canadian nuclear reactors.

Delegates to the party's biennial convention said the NDP should oppose outright the sale of Canadian-made Candu reactors to other countries.

The drafting committee also was instructed to present a resolution calling for public ownership of all resource industries.

Brotherhood Dedication

Totem poles are pulled into place during dedication of the Indian Wampum and Brotherhood of Man monument at Big Nickel Park near Sudbury, Ont. The two totem poles were created by the Haida Indians of British Columbia and Shaman Kitpou, an Algonquin Indian. The wampum belt between the two poles symbolizes the brotherhood of man's four major races.

News Briefs

Hostage Released

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — A British Columbia Penitentiary prisoner armed with a knife and a straight razor held a hostage for nearly eight hours Friday in the fourth such incident at the institution this year. Robert Garry Hume, 22, released John Rochelseu unharmed at 7.15 p.m. (PDT) in exchange for a written promise of prolonged psychiatric treatment.

Larger Role Sought

SACKVILLE, N.B. (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen indicated Friday that Canada will take a greater part in peacemaking in conjunction with its traditional role of peacekeeping. The minister indicated Canada could do this by prodding dispating parties into negotiations and stopping them from hiding behind the relatively safe fences of peace-keeping forces.

Police Protect Arabs

JERUSALEM (AP) — Riot police today beat back a stone-throwing mob of Jews who tried to take reprisals on Arabs following a terrorist bomb that killed 13 persons. The police, backed up by armed troops, turned a water cannon on the crowd of several hundred.

Thais Fight Reds

BANGKOK (AP) — Thai government troops and Communist insurgents battled 400 miles north of Bangkok, leaving 21 rebels and one Thai soldier dead, a Thai army spokesman said today. The battle Thursday was the first government campaign this year that resulted in major casualties by Communist terrorist forces. Three years ago, 304 terrorists and nine government soldiers were reported killed in the same area.

Puerto Rican Wins

McKeough To Report On Budget

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Friday that Mr. McKeough will make a statement Monday in the Ontario legislature on his review of the April provincial budget and the June 23 federal budget.

Ron Farrow, special assistant to Mr. McKeough, said he would not characterize the statement as a mini-budget.

Premier William Davis ordered Mr. McKeough to undertake a 10-day review of the provincial budget and look at the impact on the Ontario economy of the federal budget.

Judge Exonerates Kerr

Accused Pair Guilty in Dredging Bribe Case

HAMILTON (CP) — Kenneth Elliott and Reginald Fisher went to jail Friday, convicted of conspiracy, fraud and uttering forged documents in connection with bribery and payoffs in the Hamilton dredging scandal.

Elliott, a former Hamilton harbor commissioner, and Fisher, a local businessman, were remanded in custody by Mr. Justice Thomas Callon after an Ontario Supreme Court jury found them both guilty on 10 charges involving several hundred thousand dollars.

They are to be sentenced July 18, and defence lawyers say appeals are planned.

Following the verdict, Mr. Justice Callon said he was satisfied that George Kerr, former Ontario solicitor-general, was not involved in any impropriety.

One of the witnesses testified that Elliott had told him $10,000 in kickback money would go to Mr. Kerr's campaign fund.

Mr. Kerr, who testified he had received no money from Elliott, said in a telephone interview he is thankful and pleased with the judge's comment.

He has not heard from Premier William Davis but expected to see him next week.

In February, when Mr. Kerr resigned from his cabinet post to clear his name, Premier Davis said that after the trial he was over and it was proved that Mr. Kerr was not involved, he would be returned to the cabinet.

The seven women and five men of the jury returned their verdict at 4:30 p.m. EDT. They had been deliberating since Wednesday evening.

The verdict marked the end of a nine-week trial. Since the proceedings began May 5, the jury heard 32 witnesses, inspected more than 100 exhibits and listened to hours of tape recordings.

The charges arose out of a two-year RCMP investigation of allegations that bribes and kickbacks were paid to Elliott in 1970-72, when he was a member of the harbor commission.

Fisher was tied in to schemes to launder the payoffs.

The trial, ranging from RCMP officers to banking officials, dredging company executives and acknowledged accomplices, described a tangled skein of illicit transactions.

OBC Principal Declined Offer

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Officials behind the formation of Loyalist College in 1967 attempted to put the Ontario Business College (OBC) here out of business, says Arnold Brown, OBC president and principal.

Mrs. Brown told the Loyalist College Board of Governors Thursday that persons who started the original board of governors in 1967 "were out to put OBC out of business."

She explained actual board members were not behind the movement at that time but did not identify the people involved.

Mrs. Brown said during the college's formative months as offer was made to her to leave OBC, a privately-operated school, and join Loyalist in a top position in the secretarial program on a one-year contract.

She said Loyalist officials had hoped others at OBC would follow her, with the exodus leading to the demise of OBC and said she thought she would probably be dismissed after a year. However, she did not accept the offer.

Mrs. Brown, who had approached the board Thursday with a presentation offering co-operation between Loyalist and OBC in secretarial education, said Loyalist officials in 1967 included in a course outline brochure a franchise course in secretarial study which is only available at OBC.

When board chairman Will Wilkinson asked her if she was not trying to suggest Loyalist officials were trying to eliminate OBC, Mrs. Brown commented, "I'm not suggesting it. It is a fact."

Mrs. Brown said she has been accused in the past of being anti-Loyalist and the alleged anti-Loyalist feeling have been the reason. Emphasizing she is pro-Loyalist, she said, "I'm twenty years old (1967) and I want you to forget it."

Mr. Wilkinson said the board board would forget the past issue but added he was sure if two news media representatives present at the Thursday meeting would do so.

Mrs. Brown said she hoped the media would forget the subject with little emphasis to avoid her jeopardizing in any future anti-Loyalist rumors.

Motorcyclists Badly Hurt

TRENTON — Two men are in critical condition at Trenton Memorial Hospital following a motorcycle accident in the Glen Miller Road at 2:30 a.m.

David Fraser, 20, RR4, Trenton, was a passenger on the vehicle, lost one leg and is undergoing surgery in attempts to save the other.

The vehicle failed to negotiate a curve about 300 feet north of Highway 401, struck a road sign and ended up in a ditch.

Damage to the motorcycle was estimated at $1,000.

Obituaries and Funerals

MRS. GARNET HILL

The funeral for Mrs. Lulu Mae Hill, 49, of 387 Dundas St., Belleville, was held Saturday, June 28, from the John R. Bush Chapel. Officiating at the service was Rev. Cyril Betts with interment in All Saints Church Cemetery.

Born in Belleville, Mrs. Hill was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Miller, and the wife of Garnet Hill.

Mrs. Hill is survived by daughters Mrs. Gerald (Nancy) Ryan, Mrs. Tony (Carol) Potts, and Deborah Hill, all of Belleville; and by sons Gordon of Belleville, and Eugene and Carl of Rochester, N.Y.

She is also survived by sister Mrs. Donald (Wilda) Tuepah of Tyendinaga, and by brother Willard Miller of Belleville.

A housewife, Mrs. Hill was a member of All Saints Church, Tyendinaga Reserve.

Bearers were Larry, Barry and Dennis Marshall, Ken Tuepah and Tony Tuepah, and Kirk Miller.

MISS SARAH ELLEN MARACLE

The funeral for Sarah Ellen Maracle, 72, of Deseronto, was held Monday, June 30, from Christ Church. Officiating the service was Rev. Cyril Betts with interment in Christ Church Cemetery.

Born, on the Tyendinaga Reserve, Miss Maracle was the daughter of the late Cornelius Maracle and the late Mary Brant.

Miss Maracle is survived by an adopted son, Herbert of RR1, Deseronto. She is also survived by brothers Cornelius, James, and Sam, all of Deseronto.

Educated on the Tyendinaga Reserve, Miss Maracle was a housekeeper and was a member of Christ Church. She was also a member of the Tyendinaga Senior Citizens and Girls' Club.

Bearers were Pat, David, Philip and Billy Maracle; Gary Brant, and John Autin.

Few in Numbers, But...

Dutch Tourist Spends Holiday Searching for Wartime Pal

Gerald Veelo has only a handful of hints to help find the man he's looking for:

— His first name is Victor, and he'd likely be in his late 50s.

— During World War II he served as either a mechanic or driver with the Fifth Division, stationed in Germany near the Dutch border, from where he spent his furlough in Amsterdam.

— He was demobilized from service at Kingston, returned home to Belleville where he had two sisters.

These are the sparse clues Mr. Veelo packed with his light luggage when he set out from his native Amsterdam this week to holiday around Lake Ontario.

But, because he's anxious to find the man called Victor — with whom he struck up a wartime friendship — he's basing himself in Belleville.

Anyone who can help him with information can make contact at the Belleville Hotel. That's where Mr. Veelo is registered between out-of-town trips to Lake Ontario cruises on both sides of the border.

Mr. Veelo — at 57 he's just retired as a sergeant with the Dutch airforce — has shown the photograph around the Canadian Legion and the Army, Navy and Air Force Association with no success.

Still, he's hoping to strike results before he returns for home — maybe in a month or so.

Victor "was a very kind man" he recalls. "He asked me once if I ever was passing through Belleville to get in contact with him. In 30 years we could have moved. But — I'd be so happy if I could see him again."

He's Looking

Gerald Veelo is on holidays from Amsterdam — a vacation that also involves a search for a Canadian veteran with whom he made wartime friendship. The man was from Belleville, and Mr. Veelo is basing himself in the city between tours of Lake Ontario centres.

Booth Gives Group Contact

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

It's probably the smallest group of its kind in the Quinte district.

In fact, total membership in the area's branch of the Rosicrucians is now 30.

That's 12 more than when it quietly started with 18 back in 1967. The membership entries from an area that includes Trenton, Picton and Deseronto.

But, edge in a while the group seeks a little more public contact. Like the booth the Rosicrucians had at the Quinte Mall Thursday.

It's only the second time in three years they've done that, says Rosicrucian Bill Broderick, of Belleville.

And it may be a long time before such contact brings in a new member.

But slow growth is anticipated because of the nature of the order which Mr. Broderick — a Rosicrucian for 25 years described as a "philosophical, mystical fraternity".

The Ancient and Mystical Order of Rosae Crucis (AMORC) — to give its proper name — claims its origins extend to ancient Egypt. Its current membership has its American headquarters in San Jose, California.

Its main thrust is elevation of the human condition and spirit through Rosicrucian teachings, explained Mr. Broderick.

The tenets may be studied at home. But the Belleville-area Rosicrucians meet once a month in the city's Masonic Temple, for a program that includes brief ritual, a lecture and socializing.

In a period which has seen renewed interest in any form of mystique — from astrology to magic — the local Rosicrucians have felt no such impact, said Mr. Broderick. It continues on its "slow, growing" way.

"There's only a certain type of people it appeals to. And certainly those have to be seeking something more than what they've learned of life so far," he said.

And then there's the fact that the order attempts to "help you know yourself".

"And, that, believe me, is not a quick process," added the Rosicrucian.

FUNERAL QUESTIONS
WE ARE OFTEN ASKED
JOHN R. BUSH
R. DOUGLAS BUSHNELL
Q. "WHAT CLOTHING IS NECESSARY TO BE USED FOR BURIAL?"
A. It is often the family's wish and highly desirable to utilize clothing that the deceased wore during his/her life. If suitable clothing is available and the family would prefer that it be used then by all means these garments should be used. Informal clothing seems to be the most suitable. Clothing should be complete except shoes unless otherwise requested by the family. Keep in mind that the funeral director will assist the family in obtaining suitable clothing if it is not available.
Q. "WHAT IS MEANT BY PRIVATE FUNERAL?"
A. If the newspaper notice identifies the funeral as private you should not attend the service unless specifically asked to do so by the family. You may however send flowers or donations to a private funeral service.

New Strain of Oats Product of Research

It's the result of years of cross breeding and testing. The result is a breakthrough that will pay off for Canadian grain farmers.

The scientist had help, of course. An electronic technician calibrated the delicate sensors that controlled the environment in the chambers where the plants were grown. An electrician installed the lights and control panels. A plumber piped in water and nutrients to feed the plants. A carpenter built the trays on which they were grown. A refrigeration technician built the insulated growth room and installed the cooling equipment.

Who are all these people? They are the back-up to research. For example, there are the members of the Technical Unit of the Ottawa Services Section at the 1,300-acre Central Experimental Farm here who serve five research institutes, three services and the Ottawa research station. Without them, services and the Ottawa research station, the scientist could not do his work. Without them, much of the scientific work that has kept Canada in the forefront of agricultural technology could not have been carried out so efficiently.

Bruce Scobie, who heads the 30-man Technical Unit, says some of the gadgets they have to make are simple, such as a metal tube with a removable inner tube for taking soil samples. Some are more complex — like the refrigerator with 24 clock-controlled switches and thermostats that enables the scientist to simulate the hourly changes in light and temperature for a 24-hour day. It was made from a normal home freezer unit.

"When something the scientist needs is available commercially, he just buys it," Mr. Scobie says. "But some of the time it isn't so we make it ourselves."

When Agriculture Canada plant breeders first started working with controlled-environment growth rooms, there was no such thing on the market. So the Technical Unit built them. As the equipment grew, a firm of engineers studied the ones built by the Technical Unit and put a commercial one on the market. Now it is cheaper to buy one than to build it. But the man Bruce Scobie and his crew built are still functioning satisfactorily alongside the others of new commercial units.

Very often a scientist will feel he needs a particular tool for his work, but no such tool exists. He takes his idea to Gordon Ions who translates the scientist's idea into detailed plans from which the machinist can work.

The problems the research-ers face can lead the Technical Unit into some bizarre operations. Field plots of ice frigerated soil, for example. So that scientists could experiment with cold temperature plants, the technicians installed refrigeration and heating pipes under these plots of ground on the Central Experimental Farm.

In addition, the plots had automatically-controlled rain shields. When it started to rain, sensors activated electric motors and huge metal shields trundled across the field to keep the plants dry. When the rain stopped and the sensors dried out, they moved back again.

Much of the work undertaken by the Technical Unit, however is the day-by-day routine maintenance that is as essential to the long-term success of the research work and the operation of the Central Experimental Farm. There are thousands of gauges, light fans, heaters, refrigerators and assorted pieces of research equipment that must be kept in working order.

Delegates

The 1975 provincial 4-H Leadership conference attracted 100 young people from across the province, including Murray Greene, Lennox and Addington County; Diane Jarrell, Hastings County; and Tim Welbanks, Prince Edward County. The week-long conference, sponsored by the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food, was designed to develop leadership qualities and skills that the delegates could use in their home communities.

Farm Hints

CAN YOU AFFORD AN ACCIDENT?

What does an average farm accident cost if the farmer is temporarily disabled? In an average accident involving property damage, first aid and hospitalization, a breakdown would look something like this: Hospital expenses — $714.00; property damage — $456.00; medical expenses — $183.00; cost of replacement labor — $147.00 These are tabulated average figures for farm accidents in an American state. The average farm accident costs the farmer almost $1,500.00.

BIKE A STUDENT

The province is flooded with posters and radio messages suggesting that you hire a student. For the farmers of Ontario its not a bad idea. He can help you get through the busy season ahead. Many do not object to hard work and would enjoy a summer of long hours, fresh country air and hard work. They, as employers have rights, the same as any other employee. One of these rights is Workmen's Compensation coverage. Before hiring check out the implications with your local Workmen's Compensation office.

CHEMICALS CAN BUILD UP

As the list of available chemicals lengthens so does the list of victims of these chemicals. The modern herbicides and pesticides are much more potent than their predecessor and should be more respected. Some of these chemicals have a long residual life and the year after year use can build up in the spray operator's system. When you are mixing and spraying this year, use a respirator and prevent damage to your health.

CHEMICALS NEED CARE

When using chemicals or nitrogen, it is important that your wear elbow-length rubber gloves rolled at the top. Chemicals and especially nitrogen give severe burns and must be used as directed. When spraying or transferring nitrogen, always have a large amount of clean fresh water nearby to wash the affected area if a splash or leakage reaches your skin. Wash or submerge the affected areas for several minutes.

THOUGH THE BARN FLOOR

Every year we hear of some funny incidents of machinery falling through the barn floor or being driven off the barn floor through the side of the barn some incidents are not humorous and we should remember that the majority of our Ontario barns are not Grandfather's age and were not designed for today's weight loads.

Canada Day Great Idea

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

Canada Day '75 now is history.

Organizers' nerves are slowly returning to normal from the frantic pitch of the final days before July 1.

Centennial Park is clean, showing virtually no signs of the thousands of people that flooded the bayshore park for a celebration of Canada's birthday.

And as celebrations go, it went well. Few hitches developed during the day. Temperatures were not unduly hot and rain was gladly absent.

People involved in the presentation of various events seemed pleased with the day.

They have every right to be. Trenton, and a small town but on occasion striving to be big, put one over on its arch-rival Belleville.

Belleville was without a comparable celebration and people in the city were wondering why Belleville hadn't done more than simply acknowledge the day existed.

Trenton worked for weeks to set up their day and the organizers succeeded. Events, though behind at times, flowed smoothly from one to another. Yet, and here was its charm, the work didn't show.

For too often, it seems, days with events in appointed times and appointed places are organized to death. Crowd spontaneity is stifled.

It wasn't the case in Trenton Tuesday. Loudspeakers didn't blare, announcing an upcoming event.

Take for example, the parajumpers. They started jumping and so did the crowd. Children from throughout the park scrambled to the target area in front of the small stage. When the para-drop ended, people went back to where they had come from.

Despite the fact the day was a working day for me, I enjoyed it as much as most others seemed to. Trenton deserves a gold star and a half, and Belleville, our eastern neighbor, should feel a bit of shame, at its neglect of Canada Day.

Craft Shop Badly Needed

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A Showcase for Prince Edward County crafts has been opened in Picton, not to cater just to the tourist trade, but to serve local residents on a year-round basis.

The County Book and Craft Rook and Craft Shop owned by a mother-daughter team, Mrs. Beverly Skidmore and Mrs. Ada Wilkinson is supported primarily by Picton and Prince Edward businessmen who hoy because they identify with the wide selection of arts and crafts offered for sale.

This week Mrs. Skidmore observed business has "far exceeded expectations" and an increasing number of area craftsmen are submitting their work.

Although Opportunities for Youth grants permitted a County Crafts shop to operate in Picton each summer for three years these summer sales pitches lacked the stability of a year-long business.

When the grants no longer were made available the shop was closed as Picton area crafts persons and hobbyists were reluctant to gamble on running this type of business all year long.

By combining a book shop with the sale of hobby kits in addition to a wide selection of crafts Mrs. Skidmore and her mother have provided the core lacking in other craft shops stocked only for the summer months.

Employees at the occupational workshop for the retarded, located in the Armory Mall supply Mrs. Skidmore with ceramics for sale.

Colorful sets of kitchen canisters and piggy banks crafted by the workers at this training centre have become instant hits with customers at The County Book and Craft Shop.

Prince Edward potter Marion Casson of Carrying Place contributes her work to the shelves at the new shop and local residents take pleasure in buying the work of a Quinte area craftswoman.

An art teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Jerry Putman has discovered the marine history of the county through his prize showing Salmon Point, in addition he has sketched the historic White Chapel built in 1800.

Dozens of other Prince Edward residents submit work to the craft shop including quilts, table-cloths, afghans, candles, stuffed animals, rag dolls and paintings.

For all of these people the store offers a year-round opportunity for recognition and sales.

For community residents the new shop is an exciting place to browse for a gift that is different and totally "the county."

Local identity, the quality stressed so often a year ago when a move to county government was discussed, is alive and well in the County Book and Craft Shop.

Scarce Commodity

The most recent census, taken in 1971, reported only 4,400 flocks of sheep in Ontario. Production of lamb and mution is below the demand per capita in Canada. Consumption of both lamb and mutton was 3.7 pounds per year in 1973.

What is FM Stereo Separation?
Answer:
It is the FM Stereo decoders ability to separate the left and right Channel information of FM Stereo broadcasts. For Stereo effect, channel separation in the medium audio Frequency Range (400-1000HZ) is most important a good tuner should have 40 dB separation in this range or 30 dB betweend 40HZ & 8KHZ or 25 dB over the total 20 HZ to 15 KHZ range. Beware of specifications that don't mention the frequency range at all.

Death Sentence Commutations: Like Making Threat and Not Carrying It Out

By F.W. GROYER

OTTAWA — The Liberal Government is only itself to blame for the growing public clamor for a return of capital punishment and stiffer sentences for violent criminals.

That is the view of Members of Parliament from all parties who have polled their constituencies for a grass roots opinion on law and order.

"The first and fundamental right of all Canadians is to be protected from violent assault and to be able to walk the streets free from fear," said Perrin Beatty, the young Conservative MP from Wellington-Grey-Dufferin-Waterloo.

Many share his view that too much emphasis has been placed on the rights of the criminal and too little on the rights of the innocent victim.

"Everyone knows that whether you're training dogs, children or society, the worst thing you can do is make a threat and not carry it out," he was quoted as declaiming.

He was referring to the long string of cabinet commutations of the death sentence even when the courts pointedly refused to recommend mercy. Most Canadians were prepared to go along with a trial period in which capital punishment was abolished for everyone except murderers of policemen and prison guards.

That good-will soon vanished as policemen continued to fall to the bullets of trigger-happy crooks and the death penalty was not enforced. When it was discovered that those murderers were doing the least on weekend passes less than three years after being sentenced to life in prison, the insensitivity of the cabinet became a bitter jake.

There is no doubt that a national referendum on capital punishment now would result in a strong majority call for a return of the noose — and not only for killers of police and prison guards.

A concertedly free vote in the House would probably have the same result. Such a vote is impossible. The consciences of some Liberal Ministers are bound to be conditioned by the abolitionist views of the prime minister, the solicitor-general and other members of cabinet.

Unfortunately, the breakdown of law enforcement is not confined to the crime of murder.

Striking postal workers in Montreal indulged in destruction of public property off an on for a couple of years before Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey made good on a threat of disciplinary action. It took more than a year and a change of ministers before the Treasury Board took legal action against air traffic controllers who walked out against the terms of their employment.

When Parliament ordered striking grain handlers back to work last year, the workers delayed a few days before getting back on the job. Longshoremen in Montreal took it a step farther this year and for a time refused to abide by a back to work order. That was not surprising. Parliament had shown itself a paper tiger in so many things; the dockers were encouraged to ignore it.

What was frightening was that the government seemed slow to appreciate the implications of a situation in which the public do not feel bound to abide by the laws of the land.

The use of Parliament as a labor relations board is a questionable practice in the first place. Most MPs find it distasteful, but public pressure usually forces Parliament to step in. The public demands are often snarked, however, by the flagrant violations of civil liberties and the destruction of private and public property indulged in by the strikers.

If the government was more committed to enforcing the laws that exist, the collective bargaining process would operate more effectively. It may take a hanging to reassure the people that the cabinet is not above the law.

The Leacock Festival

Last year marked the first Stephen Leacock Festival of Humor at Orillia's Edwardian-style Opera House.

It brought together, in the home surroundings of Canada's famous humorist, many of the country's top comedians.

The Festival was financed by the Rotary Club of Orillia, as part of the four-day Fun Fest which attracted 250,000 people.

The 750-seat Opera House itself was sold out for each of the three evening performances.

The success of the first festival resulted in an engagement at the National Arts Centre in Ottawa Feb. 7-8 which was also sold out on the two nights. Now the newly-formed Leacock Festival of Humor Foundation, a provincially-chartered, non-profit organization dedicated to the enrichment of Canadian cultural life, is preparing for this year's week-long Festival from July 25 to August 3. Indeed, the Foundation envisages the Orillia event one day rivalling the Stratford Shakespearean and Niagara-on-the-Lake Shaw festivals.

A pamphlet issued in connection with the event notes that the festival "is a uniquely new Canadian cultural and entertainment event, dedicated to the memory of Leacock, Canada's greatest humorist and the man who immortalized Orillia as Mariposa."

Leacock's roots and writings were indeed uniquely Canadian, although he of course his genius and legend belong also to the world and his birthplace actually was England. There has to be a nod also toward the United States in the person of Dr. Ralph Curry, a craggy Kentuckian who is the director of the Stephen Leacock home and who was in Belleville in recent days. Displaying his own subtle brand of humor, Dr. Curry was in town to tell local Rotarians about this year's festival in Orillia.

An integral part of the life of Amsterdam is its waterways which, seen through the city's charming milieu of residential and business districts, with their panoplies of shady trees. Here a boatload of tourists on the sights of this venerable city which this year is celebrating its 700th anniversary.

A Slow That Didn't Go On

It's too bad Trenton was unable to bring off its Gordie Tapp show. A short while ago we had lauded the local Kiwanis club's initiative in attracting a big-name artist for Canada Day.

Clearly, a lot of people had other plans for the weekend, a factor given added credence by the warm, sunny weather.

The club, taking note of poor ticket sales was able to call off the event in time, but we hope this will not discourage other initiatives, perhaps on some more propitious occasions when more people are likely to be around and in the mood for a show of that calibre.

As noted in recent days, Belleville has the kind of outdoor facilities that would lend itself say to an Ethnic festival of the kind that has had much success in other communities. Trenton similarly might have success with such an event.

Comfortable Retire But Sound Plan Necessary

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Retirement years are meant to be a time of contentment and relaxation from the daily grind. It doesn't always turn out that way, however.

For some people, a golden age does indeed begin at 65. Others find themselves disappointed and forced to lower their living standards.

Financial planning often means the difference between success and failure in retirement.

And the time to start planning is now—no matter how near or distant your 65th birthday is.

During your working years, you at least have some bargaining power that can be used to improve your prospects for retirement. Once you have retired from a job, however, your bargaining power with your employer is finished.

A retired Canadian businessman, Henry S. Humphrey, has distilled his experience into a useful guide, How To Survive Retirement In Canada, just published at $1.95 by Self-Counsel Press of Toronto and Vancouver.

Here is his checklist of steps to be taken at once, whatever your age:

—Obtain your birth or baptism certificate, (it will be useful, quite part from your retirement planning).

—Find out just what benefits go with your job, and the opportunities you have on leaving or retiring. Have the details of pension and insurance coverage spelled out clearly.

—Examine the details of any insurance, pension plan or registered retirement savings plan that you have started independently.

—One year before retirement, ascertain your employer's policy on retirement vs. continued employment, and all benefits and options you may have.

—Six months before your 65th birthday, apply for Old Age Security pension.

—Upon retirement, have a meeting with the responsible person at work who can discuss your full range of benefits. Make sure that you receive all the wages, holiday pay and other cash benefits that are due to you.

—Take extra time and get independent advice, if necessary, before making a choice among your various options as to insurance, pensions and the like.

—You will probably have to start paying for health, medical and hospital insurance on your own. Get the forms and apply immediately.

—Apply for the Canada Pension, if you are eligible.

—Even if you have never kept a budget of living expenses before, a budget is almost a necessity when you switch from the labor force to the retirement sector.

Many of your daily expenses are reduced or eliminated—for example, commuting and lunches. But there may be new expenses, such as insurance.

The purpose of budgeting is not to put yourself into a financial strait-jacket, but rather to know how much you have to spend and how much you will need for the life you plan.

The resulting figures will show where you must choose between things, and help you to make the best use of your income.

Henry Humphrey offers this advice to marriage partners:

—Husbands must keep their wives fully informed about the family's financial affairs, especially in retirement. If and when the wife becomes a widow, she will need to make well informed decision.

—Wives must help the retired husband to offset his new sense of uselessness, by reminding him that he is important and needed.

Sound planning, started early enough and not carried to extremes of self-sacrifice, can usually provide for a happy, comfortable retirement.

Accident Prevention

Is it fate — or is it possible, by reason of taking proper precautions, to prevent the far too common incidence of death by accident.

Accidents on the highway, or by drowning — they are all too common in Canada. In recent days a six-year-old Kingston girl lost her life at The Outlet.

A week before this incident at the beach, a seven year-old boy, only a week in the country from Germany, drowned at a privately-owned swimming area near Kitchener.

Then there were the two deaths and eight injured following an accident on 401 Sunday. A tire blowout is believed to have caused that accident.

In the case of the Kitchener drowning, a local coroner was reported considering an inquest to examine regulations at privately-owned swimming areas.

Too bad that in so many instances there appears to be a lack of supervision in advance, making such tragedies all the more likely. Where the water is concerned, constant vigilance is necessary, by adults and lifeguards. As for cars, the condition of tires is paramount. A check on them before setting out, as well as consideration of how much usage they have had, is good policy.

Metro area high school principals and vice principals are mounting a campaign to convince members of the Legislature that they should not be denied the right to strike along with their teachers. The MPPs might as well let them have that right too. The new bill virtually gives teachers complete control of the education system and — should to think of it — we wouldn't want the principals and vice principals to mount an attack on the Progressive Conservatives at election time, would we?

Diplomatic and Trade Ties with French-speaking Lands from Vietnam to Haiti

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The French-speaking world is a mixed bag of countries and regions where the French once settled or conquered. It includes such unrelated nations as Canada, Haiti, Vietnam and in North Africa, a clutch of new French-speaking African states tinguished editor of a North Vietnamese political journal. The meeting with her was in Toronto and in French.

The news magazines were very wrong about the fall of Western influence in Vietnam. As young men and women, the Vietnamese Communists who rule in Indochina now and the Communist elite, including people like Mme. Thoa, were either trained in the ideologically demanding French school of Marxism or have been exposed to it.

Some day Canada may function as a mediator when the time comes for American-Vietnamese negotiations because of the large number of French-and because this country is ready has an embassy in Hanoi and has recognized the new revolutionary government in Saigon.

Before that happens, if it ever does, a lesser political role faces Canada in the French-speaking Caribbean, namely renewed aid and assistance to Haiti, the only French-speaking independent nation in Latin America.

Canada is helping a Haiti, prostrate after the late president (Papa Doc) Duvalier's excesses, because it is Canadian public policy to concentrate her aid programs in so-called Francophone countries (which means a very large Canadian aid role in the new North African nations as well as in Haiti.

In fact there always has been a substantial French-speaking Canadian presence in Haiti, about 450. French-speaking Roman Catholic nuns from Quebec who received $42,000 in Canadian aid in 1973 administered through the United Nations for missionary-related projects.

Canadian industry assists Haiti mainly through desperately needed infrastructure projects like road-building and rural sewer construction.

In 1973, about $250,000 in Canadian-made waterpipe was used in a 12.3-million water and sewage system at Haiti, financed by the Inter-American Development Bank.

Perhaps an even more important project is current Canadian government training units under their French-speaking officials who have worked in North Africa to teach Haitian bureaucrats how to prepare proposals for foreign aid projects.

Haiti under young President Jean-Claude Duvalier is pushing hard for Quebec tourism which means French-speaking visitors.

A Haitian lobby is trying hard to have either Air Canada, the giant state airline, or Nordair Ltd., a Quebec provincial-based private airline, commence a direct Montreal to Port-au-Prince, non-stop service.

Of course with Montreal as the largest French-speaking city outside of France himself and a normally rich tourist trade among French-speaking Quebecers tourist push makes sense.

Election Burlesque

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — Whatever else may be the outcome of the election (and please brother Davis, please, please, please let us have it and get it over with) it certainly appears as though it will be the saniest on record.

As it shapes up now it seems it may make that old burlesque gag of who's on first look like an elementary lesson in logic.

First of all the Tories. It seems, will be fielding some candidates who just recently joined the fold and still aren't sure just how blue they are and where, though it seems they may be more blue lippers than blue machiners.

Leading the list of new stakes planters is Mayor Mel Lastman of North York, best known across Ontario as owner of the Bad Boy' steer—when he has been suggested sand could be sold to Arabs.

Mr. Lastman is enthusiastic. But his biggest enthusiasm seems to be his conviction that he will be able to make Premier Davis chance his mind about a lot of things.

Mr. Lastman, it would seem, is entering politics riding an elephant. Though he will be has to beat former Toronto mayor Phil Givens who seems to be riding backwards.

Then out in Scarborough West wearing the blue silks will be Syd Brown.

Mr. Brown is used to blue, for he has been a policeman and head of the police association for years.

But he has hardly been used to blue as a political elite silk and he too one suspects could be a political bonus.

He ran once, in 1971, as an independent. This time, he says, he likes the Davis anti-violence policies.

But along with this one has to wonder why policies he doesn't like, and on consideration there is the suspicion that probably there are some of them.

Mr. Brown will be trying to defeat NDP Leader Stephen Lewis.

Seat-belts Save Lives

Cambridge Reporter

It's a portrait of physical violence in six pictures.

In the first picture, the man's body is at rest, seated, lap and shoulder belts in place, hands placed precisely on the upper thigh.

The second picture is a high speed photograph of a collision at 70 m.p.h. All motion in the vehicle is stopping, the man's body continues to move, at 70 m.p.h. toward the windshield; the shoulder harness begins to bite into the upper body, the man's face is contorted with the shock of impact.

Picture number three shows the maximum force of the collision as the upper body has been restrained by the shoulder harness, the man's head, unsupported, is jarred downward almost horizontal with his shoulders, his arms are flung upward observing his face, his knees and lower legs similarly are thrown upward, stomach muscles bulge over the lap belt as it holds his torso against the seat.

The fourth picture shows recovery from impact. The man's body folded almost double by the force of the collision and the restraining effects of the seat belts, has begun to unfold, Arms and legs fall back to their original position and the motion is completed in the final two frames. In the last, contorted facial muscles remain to portray the violent force involved.

The message was very effectively conveyed in a new Ontario government pamphlet called "The Human Collision" in which

Separate Schools Retain Right to Stipulate Religion

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's social development committee has approved an amendment to Bill 100 designed to protect the religious rights of separate school boards.

The Ontario Separate School Trustees Association asked for the amendment to the bill on school board-teacher negotiations because it feared the wording "any term or condition of employment" could be used to prevent boards from hiring teachers of "the religious persuasion."

The amendment provides the act "shall not be construed as to prejudicially affect the rights and privileges enjoyed by Roman Catholic and Protestant separate school boards with respect to the employment of teachers," rights and privileges set out in the British North America Act.

House Approves Budget And Approaches Recess

OTTAWA (CP) — The government easily won parliamentary approval Friday for its June 23 budget measures that raise gasoline prices and commit the Trudeau administration to what it has called restricted spending plans.

With the six-day budget debate now over, MPs move to other business Tuesday before recessing for the summer, probably later this month. The Commons doesn't meet Monday because the New Democratic Party is choosing its new leader at a convention in Winnipeg.

The Commons also gave routine first reading Friday to three budget related bills, including one to authorize the 16 cents-a-gallon excise tax on gasoline.

The added federal tax was one of the most bitterly-attacked budget measures during the debate. Finance Minister John Turner says it is needed to encourage fuel conservation and help subsidize Eastern consumers using higher-priced imported oil.

The other bills raise income taxes moderately for those earning over $25,000 and eliminate import tariffs on a varied range of items.

Police said the man was a widower who lived alone.

Consumer Will Have More Cash

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers will have more spending money during the next 18 months, the Conference Board in Canada, a private economic research organization, said Friday in an economic forecast which says the recession has ended.

The latest quarterly forecast by the organization says average wages will rise ahead of inflation by about four percentage points this year and next year.

However, unemployment is projected to stay above seven per cent through 1976.

Corporation profits are expected to be down by about 14 per cent this year but increase by about the same amount in 1976.

The Conference Board in Canada, an affiliate of a U.S. organization, is financed privately by almost 600 organizations—business, industry associations, unions and government agencies. It provides a broad range of economic consulting services to its clients.

Big Car Deficit

OTTAWA (CP) — Foreign trade in cars, trucks and parts resulted in a deficit of almost $130 million in the first three months of the year, most of it in trade with the United States, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

Sweet Scots

EDINBURGH (CP) — An official report said that the Scots "have become the most tooth-less nation in the world" mainly because they eat too much candy. The report said Scots eat an average of 120 pounds of sugar a year—one of the world's highest rates.

MPs Will Not Get Free Olympic Tickets

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of Parliament will have to pay the full price for 1976 Montreal Olympics tickets set aside for them, Treasury Board President Jean Chretien said in the Commons Friday.

He was replying to questions following a report that top politicians at various levels of government will receive 16,000 free tickets for all Olympic events.

Mr. Chretien said "a certain number" of tickets have been reserved for members of the federal, Ontario and Quebec parliaments, but they must pay the full price for the tickets, which cost up to $50.

"I don't know many MPs who will be willing to pay $50 for an

OTTAWA (CP) — Ken Mason, a national television reporter for the CBC, has resigned to become head of information services for Inuit Tapirisat, the national Eskimo organization.

Mr. Mason, whose appointment was announced Friday by James Arvaluk, Inuit Tapirisat president, was the first TV reporter to cover the Arctic on a regular basis.

Cottage Lots Expensive

TORONTO (CP) — The cost of cottage land in a number of popular vacation areas within a few hours' driving distance of Toronto has increased anywhere from a quarter to eight times what they were a decade ago, a brokerage firm reports.

A 1½-year history of land prices in the area was recently compiled by Gibson Willoughby Ltd. of Toronto, a firm which offers brokerage service in the cottage country.

It showed that in Muskoka on Georgian Bay, lakefront lots sell for $300 a foot, compared with $100 a decade ago.

The report shows that near Lindsay, in the Kawartha Lakes region, lakefront frontage now sells for $175 a foot, compared with $40 just 10 years ago.

Next March any food package which has a durable shelf life of less than 90 days must be so dated. That means that any food package must include the month in letters and the date in numbers. That date represents the period during which the product when stored under proper conditions, will retain its claimed wholesomeness, palatability and nutritional qualities. The package must also include instructions for proper storage.

The idea of open dating, besides assisting the consumer, is to help the retailer rotate stock and withdraw overage product. It should also improve inventory control.

The consumer, to make best use of open dating, should remember a few things.

First, open dating is not a guarantee of quality. It is a guideline which predicts durable life in a specific environment. Improper handling too warm — will shorten the life; freezing will extend the durable life.

The date on fresh meat does not apply if the meat is to be frozen. Similarly, the date does not apply once the package is opened.

The product can be still very acceptable and usable after the "best before" date has passed. This date is not an expiry date. An absent product may not be fit before the "best before" date is passed.

The most advanced "best before" date is not always the freshest product. Every product differs in composition and processing methods and thus every product has a different durable life.

Beginning next week a bumper crop of sweet cherries — both from Ontario and British Columbia — is expected. Supplies should last until the end of July.

The Ontario ministry of agriculture and food recommends the following method for freezing sweet cherries: First, select sweet cherries by looks — firm, shiny, plump and blemish free. Pit them. Dissolve one cup of sugar and ¼ tsp powdered or crystalline ascorbic acid in three cups of water. Pack the cherries in rigid containers and pour the syrup over them, leaving one inch headspace to allow for expansion. To keep fruit submerged, place a small piece of crumpled aluminum foil between layers and lid. Cover with a tight lid, label and freeze immediately.

Then There Were Seven!

"Ron was pretty proud when he was told I was having twins," Patsy Rodgers says, "but when he found out it was triplets, he just didn't know what to say."

Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers, proud parents of Matthew, Mark and Rebecca, were treated at a community shower in their home town of Foxboro, Thursday, two weeks after the triplets came home to join Arthur, 8, Connie, 7, Lorrie, 4 and Barbara, 3.

Hostess for the event was Mae Hollinger assisted by Anne Bonnhogh.

The afternoon shower, which introduced the babies to the community, was held at Mrs. Hollinger's home.

At the shower, Mrs. Rodgers said that her first baby bonus cheque for the triplets had only been for the regulation $125 for one baby.

"We've got all straightened around now," she said. "We called Jack Ellis and he fixed it up. He said the computer can't handle more than one name at a time."

People and Events

LEGION LADIES

The election of officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 99 was held recently.

Dorothy Rachotte is president; Elsie Armstrong, past-president; Edna Semark, first vice president; Freda Mason, second vice president; Gwen Samark, secretary; Daisy Jaffa, treasurer; Bernice Anderson, sgt.-at-arms.

Executive committee members are Jess Bushell, Olive Hansen, Norma Bushkow, Marg Reed, Grace Merry, Evelyn Dailey, Evelyn Brummell and Dolly Reed.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

A very enjoyable and educational evening was held recently at Gilead Hall by the East Hastings District Women's Institute to celebrate International Women's Year.

Each of the 10 branches in the district chose a country of the world where a Women's Institute is organized.

Using that country as their theme each branch put a number on the program, set up a display and made food to serve which are eaten in that area.

The countries represented were: Ireland, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Germany, Hawaii and Australia.

Lois McMechan, newly elected district president, presided over the program, consisting of songs and dances in costume, jokes and readings, skits, descriptions of articles on display, talks about various countries, and a short movie made of Lake Germany, in 1974.

The foods of the different countries were served in smorgasbord style following the program.

It was a new, but successful venture and thoroughly enjoyed by the big crowd of women attending.

ALPHA DELTA KAPA

Wednesday, June 25, Carol Clements was hostess for the Lambda chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa members who met to honor Gladys Sine upon her retirement from teaching.

A short business meeting followed the afternoon tea, which was attended by several of Mrs. Sine's non-sorority friends as well.

Clara Adams has been chosen as delegate to the International Convention in Los Angeles.

UCW WORKSHOP

The Bay of Quinte Conference United Church Women held a workshop at Marmora United Church recently.

Group discussions were conducted for presidents and vice-presidents, finance secretary and treasurer, program chairmen and leadership development chairmen.

Francis Stevenson, missionary on retirement furlough from India showed slides and talked on "The Indian family and the Tri Trust Librarian".

The Bay of Quinte Conference United Church Women presented a Bed for the procession at the 50th anniversary celebration of the United Church of Canada held at Peterborough Memorial Community Centre recently, depicting the work of women in the church over the last 50 years.

MARMORA CWL

A pot-luck luncheon was attended by members of the Marmora Catholic Women's League prior to their June meeting.

Dorothy Meehan was congratulated by president Wilma Brady, on her new position as first vice-president on the Diocesan Council of the CWL.

Marj Brunson reported a successful meeting held in May and noted that 100 boxes of used clothing were taken to Cornborrowe. Clothing was also sent to John Bosco School for Boys in Orillia.

Beverly Maloney read an article describing the levels of communication, with God, with man, and with large numbers of people through mass media.

Leona Brady said that CWL members have an obligation to let their opinions be known to Parliament, on such issues as capital punishment, abortion and gun control.

Prizes will again be given to the top student in each grade in Sacred Heart School. The student with the the highest standing in grade 8 will receive a prize at graduation.

Tickets were distributed by Mrs. Ada Brady for the quilt which will be raffled at the fall bazaar.

The president outlined the highlights of the bus trip to Ottawa the day the Petition of One Million was presented to Parliament and noted a major victory for Pro-Life and Alliance for Life.

IODE

Catherine Cameron, graduate student in the Ph.D. program in Anthropology at the University of Illinois, who is researching the social, political and economic history of Marmora, was a guest of the June meeting of Marmora Chapter IODE.

Sue Callingham, a former member of Shelburne IODE Chapter, and Betty Demorest were also guests at the meeting which was held at the summer home of Regent and Mrs. Howard Bleecker at Crowe Lake. A potluck supper preceded the business part of the meeting.

Retiring Regent Alice Ayre was presented with a gift by Bernice Young on behalf of the Chapter in appreciation of her work as Regent.

It was announced that a profit of $57.25 had been made at the Craft and Hobby Show on May 30. Regent Eleanor Hickenl thanked everyone for their participation.

Muriel Regan, nominating committee chairman, announced that Bernice Young had agreed to accept the position of first vice-regent.

Mrs Cameron spoke of her research project and asked for assistance in locating persons and families with a long association with Marmora.

At the University of Toronto convocation, May 30, 1975, CARL HARRIS (Lyns) B.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Landon McInnis of Iroquois received the degree of Bachelor of Science in Nursing. Mrs. Harris has accepted an administrative position at Belleville General Hospital.

KATHY CALLAHAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.F. Callahan, received her Bachelor of Arts Degree from Trent University, Peterborough, at the spring convocation. She is a graduate of Nicholson Catholic College and Quinte Secondary School. She has accepted a position with the Ottawa Journal.

LINDA ANNE JOHNSTON daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith B. Johnston, received her Bachelor of Science from Victoria College, Toronto University at convocation on June 10. Linda is working for the summer with The Children's Aid Society in Toronto. In September she will attend George Brown College, Toronto, to take a Child Care Worker course. Linda is a graduate of Centennial Secondary School.

JANICE ACKERMAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G.M. Haggerty and the late J.E. Ackerman, received the degree of Bachelor of Arts at the convocation of the University of Toronto, June 11. Margaux from Idaho, On the Road to Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Last fall, Margaux Hemingway, 19-year-old hot-dog skiier from Ketchum, Idaho, was castin about looking for something to do.

Today, Margaux is the latest pretty face peering out of the pages of the world's most-read fashion magazine in the country. She is signed a million dollar advertising contract with Faberge, getting more money than the likes of long-established model Lauren Hutton of Revlon.

It's been quite a transformation: from drifting drop-out (killing time as an au pair girl for actor George C. Scott and "go-fer" for stuntman Evel Kneivel at Snake River Canyon) to millionaire perfume pushed. Margaux accomplished with some luck, public relations and the fortuitous appearance of a hot, new personality with a famous last name.

The granddaughter of novelist Ernest Hemingway and daughter of an Idaho conservationist, Margaux is ingenious — corn-fed — pretty. She's almost six-feet tall (she likes to describe her height as 5-foot-13), has blondish hair, ice green eyes, a snub nose, dimples and a generous mouth that in motion shows more gums than teeth. Margaux is giddy from the excitement of these last months.

How did it all happen?

"I'm just a country kid with style, honesty and good timing," said Margaux.

But her rapid rise to celebrity model status would probably still be earthbound if it weren't for a story book romance with Errol Wetson, New York gadabout and king of his own hamburger empire.

Wetson, who looks like a brunette version of actor Gene Wilder, is the kind of guy who doesn't like to give his age (early 30s) and wears his body-hugging shirts unbuttoned down the front.

Wetson talks endlessly about their relationship — his first encounter with the gorgeous Margaux in the Palm Court of the Plaza, the preliminary flirtation in an elevator, the weekend of champagne and roses . . .

Wetson took Margaux — decked out in corduroys, boots, and a Nepalese shirt — to a party in September attended by models, photographers and agents. Suddenly, everyone was asking: "Who is that girl?" Suddenly that girl was rising out of the sea on the cover of Town and Country magazine. And in its pages languishing around her grandfather's haunts in Key West. And grinning wickedly from the cover of Vogue, photographed by camera genius such as Richard Avedon and Francesco Scavullo.

Said Scavullo: "I loved photographing her. She was born beautiful. Anything you do to her is just an accessory to her beauty. She has the personality, the enthusiasm and the drive to make it. She's got the ball, and she should run with it."

Recently, Margaux, in a granny gown, her hair pinned in little bunches, was cuddled up at Errol's feet in their lavish suite.

A reporter asked what she thought was the key to her success.

"Unlimited looks, talent, super ability. This girl has everything," Errol answered.

The reporter then asked Margaux what it felt like to be famous and rich.

"Money bores us," replies Errol, who grimaces at any comparison of Margaux and him with Twiggy, the doll model of the '60s, and her mentor, Justin de Villeneuve.

"This is not a business deal, this is a love affair," Errol said. Margaux beamed.

Ann Landers

Ann's Most Difficult Column

Dear Readers: In my 20 years as Ann Landers this is the most difficult column I have ever tried to put together.

I do so after many hours of soul-searching. Should it be written at all? Would it be appropriate? Would it be fair? I have decided yes—because you, my readers, are also my friends. I owe it to you to say something. There should be some word directly from me.

The sad, incredible fact is that after 36 years of marriage, Jules and I are being divorced. As I write these words, it is as if I am referring to a letter from a reader. It seems unreal that I am writing about my own marriage.

Many of you may remember the column that appeared in 1962. It was in honor of our 20th wedding anniversary. You may also recall the column I wrote when my beloved mother-in-law, Gustie Lederer, passed away. On both occasions I gave you some intimate glimpses of our life together. Thousands of readers were kind enough to write and say they considered those columns my best.

Every word that appeared in those columns was true when I wrote them, and very little that was said then could not be said today—in complete honesty.

Jules is an extraordinary man. His nickname for me was "The Queen." He was loving, supportive and generous. He is still all those things—and I will always cherish our wonderful years together.

That we are going our separate ways is one of life's strangest ironies. How did it happen that something so good for so long could not last forever? The lady with all the answers does not know the answer to this one.

Perhaps there is a lesson there for all of us. At least, it is there for me. "Never say, 'It couldn't happen to us!'"

Please, don't write or call and ask for details. The response would be, "Sorry, this is a personal matter . . ." Time will not alter my position. I shall continue to say, "No comment." There will be no commenting — no exceptions.

Just wish us both well.

Not only has this been the most difficult column I ever have written, but also it is the shortest.

Tainted Meat Scandal May Benefit Consumers

TORONTO (CP) — Lydia Patry Cullen, member of the current royal commission looking into beef marketing, is glad there has been a fuss about recent stories of tainted meat in Ontario and Quebec.

"It means consumers will start to demand more labels on their meat and government will be forced to put through tough legislation in a realistic way," she said in an interview.

Mrs. Patry Cullen's faith in the power of a well informed consumer is typical of the woman who is rapidly becoming known to many Canadians as a champion of consumer rights in the food industry.

And although her name isn't yet as well-known as Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the federal food prices review board, it should be by the time the three-member federal commission delivers its report on beef marketing at the end of this year.

The commission was appointed last March after farmers complained that cattle prices were plummetting while retail beef prices remained high. Members are Mrs. Patry Cullen of Montreal, Edmonton economist Ric Harries and chairman Maxwell MacKenzie, a former deputy minister of trade.

About the same time, the food prices review board released several reports claiming there was no excess profit in the beef industry and no middlemen making too much of the slack.

But after sitting through three weeks of testimony from farmers, meat packers, retailers and consumers, Mrs. Patry Cullen thinks the board's reports were "a bit naive."

"I don't doubt for a moment Mrs. Plumptre's integrity, but I think she has too much faith in the marketing system," she said. "I'm a much more suspicious character, I don't take anything for granted unless I see the proof."

The 49-year-old mother of three learned her scepticism while working as a reporter with several French language newspapers. Later she moved into the English language advertising world and then spent 5½ years with Steinberg's food chain as director of advertising and consumer affairs.

But despite her business background, Mrs. Patry Cullen thinks as a consumer and not a food retailer.

"A lot of businessmen talk about their concern for consumers but to them K's just lip service, a necessary evil," she said angrily. "If they're so concerned, I wonder why it is that consumers never really know if they're getting what they pay for at the meat counter."

She has reason to be suspicious judging by what is going on at the commission hearings.

For example, the same retail chain that recommended standardization of beef names in clear up consumer confusion turned out to be advertising something called "western round beef".

Mrs. Patry Cullen investigated, and found that it came from low grade cows and discovered that shoppers in the store were "stupefied" to find out what they were really buying.

In St. John's, Nfld., another food retailer talked about the top quality beef it carried. But when Mrs. Patry Cullen slipped out during a break in hearings to have a look at the meat, she found the meat was brown and full of blood — "It must have been lying there I don't know how many weeks."

She's also sceptical about the consumer consultants employed by supermarket ads. "I have nothing against home economists but they tend to get lost in their recipes," she said. "They don't seem to grasp the full importance of a better informed consumer."

Hundreds of consumers across the country the most frustrating part of choice in the supermarket is the most fun-training part of food shopping.

Mrs. Patry Cullen said she's disappointed that at the beef marketing inquiry, there has been much more input from farmers than consumers, particularly farmers who insist that consumers have to be prepared to pay more for beef.

"But I won't accept that argument," she said, "until I'm sure there aren't some savings to be had from straightening out the beef marketing system and eliminating middlemen."

Creative Techniques Help in Job Search

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Canada Manpower Centres offer a course called the creative job search technique. Its message: Anyone who really wants to work can find a job.

"The only prerequisite for taking the course is wanting to find that job," said Suanne de Jong, a counsellor and one of the instructors for the course here.

Miss de Jong recently had a class of five women and one man who were given a simple theme at the beginning: "The best way to get a job is to hire one yourself. There are no limits; the screening is done by you yourself."

There are several reasons why people aren't working, said Miss de Jong. They may be doing something wrong during job interviews; they may not present themselves effectively.

Women changing jobs, entering the work force for the first time or re-entering the work force sometimes need extra assistance, she said.

The object of the Manpower course is to show these individuals the mistakes they may have been making, to encourage participants to be imaginative in their job search, and to help them find out "how is valuable they are to the employment market."

The ideal resolution of the job hunt is a job exactly suiting the applicant.

But "there are times were you must make concessions," said Miss de Jong, "times when you have to work in est."

"But remember, this can be a temporary situation until you can use your full skills," she cautioned the participants. "When you are hard up, don't be choosey."

To Be Neutral Is to Be Foe

By Dr. Gordon Smyth

Any notion of perfection at the beginning of the Christian era finds no support in the New Testament. The seven "letters" in the second and third chapters of the Revelation to John illustrate what I have just said.

The church in each of seven cities received a letter in keeping with its situation. For instance, the congregation in the wealthy city of Laodicea fancied itself spiritually rich. It was in fact poor.

It was indeed in a perilous state of indifference. Hence the harsh verdict, "I know your works: you are neither cold nor hot. Would that you were cold or hot! So, because you are lukewarm, I will spew you out of my mouth" (Revelation 3: 15-16).

During the war, Eire was widely condemned. The words were often uttered by its own sons and daughters who slipped out of the country to enlist with the Allies. The Irish Government proclaimed a policy of strict neutrality. But the fighter of Dublin were a welcome sign to the Luftwaffe in search of London. The neutral was an enemy.

The same principle applies to every dear issue of duty and loyalty. You notice the deterioration in the marriage of friends. Your heart warms over an important stand taken by the local Member of Parliament. But do you ever anything? Do you do more than balk? To what degree are you involved in sliding those of us in public life who are trying desperately to redeem the times?

Out from the pages of the Bible come two haunting figures. Pilate thought it possible to be neither cold nor hot in the case of Jesus Christ. He washed his hands and professed innocence. But, in the light of history, the Roman governor was a responsible agent in the death of the Son of God.

Paul, on the other hand, made what would have appeared to Pilate a fatal blunder. He persecuted the very Church to which later he belonged. The characteristic that made him an enemy in the end made him an apostle. He could never be a mere spectator.

History has forgiven the mistake of Paul and gratefully remembers his passionate involvement. We all know somebody named after him. However, have you ever met anybody called after Pilate? History remembers him only to vomit him up

Florence Scotfield of Edmonton has been a member of the United Church of Canada since its beginning. The 50th anniversary of the union of Methodists, Congregationalists and most Presbyterians into one United Church in Canada will be celebrated this year. (CP Photo)

Broken Arm

LONDON (CP) — A newspaper columnist here reports that a friend received a letter from her 12-year-old son away in boarding school where he said he had started judo lessons. "I was not very good at it and so broke an arm," he wrote "but it was not one of mine."

Going Topless

LONDON (CP) — London Transport has introduced "topless" two-decker buses for the summer tourist trade. The six open-top vehicles are for use on sightseeing tours.

Mother's Helper

OLDHAM, England (CP) — Workmen who arrived to install a new electric stove in Florence Richardson's home here, found no one home. They went on with the job anyway, and after the new stove was hooked up, they transferred a rice pudding in the old stove to the new oven so it would be ready when she came home.

United Church Members Look Back Fifty Years

EDMONTON (CP) — In 1925, travelling Rev. A. B. Simpson hailed his horses at a little church, sounded the bell and waited for the Indians to "appear out of the bush."

Today, 53 years after the formation of the United Church of Canada, he still is crossing miles to minister to souls—but now he stops his 1970 Ford at a country church and waits for the congregation to appear in cars.

Mr. Simpson, one of the men who has conducted services in the United Church since it began, celebrated the 50th anniversary of the union of Methodists, Congregationalists and most Presbyterians into one united church in Canada.

"When I got to church, I would ring the bell because the Indians had no watches to keep time, and they would come from every direction out of the bush."

That church was on a Manitoba Indian reserve, one of the many parishes between the Yukon and Nova Scotia Mr. Simpson has served.

"Weekdays, I'd visit their wigwams or shacks. I love people—all people. I love to sit and talk to families in the evenings, and I spent practically every night doing that kind of thing."

The son of a Maritimes merchant, Mr. Simpson, now living in Edmonton, grew up on a cargo vessel bringing molasses and spices from the West Indies. He's never left the sea in spirit, and now sees himself as captain of a ship of souls.

The role of the clergyman has changed over the last 50 years, he observed.

"The clergyman used to be set apart as a spiritual leader, God's representative whose specialty was the steering of souls. As with the sea captain, you put your life in his hands when you were over the deep oceans."

Nowadays, the clergyman has become more of a counsellor than God's representative in many cases. Sunday he's Reverend; Monday he's "Butch."

Mr. Simpson said he will continue as a seven-day-a-week clergyman for the rest of his life, even though he was supposed to retire in 1968. He still leads services almost every Sunday in small Alberta communities.

Still partly Presbyterian at heart, Mr. Simpson said "I fell union was engineered to a great degree by people in the establishment in Toronto who got the idea because the church would be bigger, it would be better. I wasn't much in favor of union then and I'm not yet."

But Florence Scotfield, also a member of the United Church since its beginning, says there were many advantages to the union.

Settling back on the couch in her Edmonton home, she said "one of the big motivating conditions was that missionaries from the churches found it difficult to get across to people that there were all these different churches and it was the same Christian religion.

"But the main urge towards union was biblical, the saying of Jesus "that all may be one."

There were also financial considerations and a shortage of ministers.

In fact, there were so few ministers that when Mrs. Scotfield took her first teaching job in 1923 in a one-room log schoolhouse, it also involved conducting Sunday services at the school.

There was yet another reason for the formation of the United Church, she added.

"Many of the churches in the west had already been united but there still was great fragmentation of the Church of God down the road from the Church of the True God, a few miles away from the Church of the Only True God."

However, sometimes union had a fragmenting effect, she said.

"There were quite a few hard feelings and some families broke instead of uniting over the issue."

But the 50-year-old union is widely accepted now, and further unions will come, said Mrs. Scotfield.

Cabinet Minister Hears Hillcrest Sewer Story

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Ontario Housing Minister Donald Irvine will visit Belleville next Thursday to discuss the controversial cost of Hillcrest's sewer installations.

This meeting with city and Hillcrest neighborhood spokesmen was arranged Friday by Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Meanwhile, city manager Wilbur Purcell has been preparing the ground for the session by saying that will seek provincial government aid to trim taxes sent soaring by sewer services.

Mr. Purcell has been compiling "facts and figures" related to such installations and as a result "we have a very valid presentation to make to Mr. Irvine," said the mayor.

The meeting with Mr. Irvine followed city council's acceptance June 23 that provincial aid should be sought after Hillcrest residents brought a petition to city hall. They demanded subsidies or lower loans to offset tax bills — some of which had tripled because of local improvement charges for sewer services.

Ken Brooks, president of Hillcrest Ratepayers' Association which initiated the protest, will be spokesman for the northern neighborhood at the city hall meeting with the minister, the mayor and city manager.

The 8 p.m. meeting was made possible by the fact Mr. Irvine will be driving through the Belleville area at the time.

Mr. Brooks said city hall had been made aware of the situation and had assembled a case for Hillcrest.

"Now I think it's up to the provincial government to do their share for us," he said.

Hillcrest residents have been seeking sewer services since after they were annexed into the city in 1968. Sewers have now been installed north of Byron St. — a network that serves about half of Hillcrest.

"We've waited long enough for this service," said Mr. Brooks, "and then when you get hit with charges like that you have to do something.

"We want to get a subsidy of some kind. It's a deserving city for Hillcrest. All the sewer costs) should be subsidized by the Ontario government."

A core problem was that many Hillcrest homeowners have large property frontages — dating from the time the district was a semi-rural suburb. After annexation residential development was frozen, thus preventing land sales which would have reduced the frontages. Cost of the sewer installation as a local improvement has been $17.05 a frontage foot.

Riverside Park Vandals Already at Dirty Work

Belleville has two prime recreation areas in its northend riverside parks, and city recreation department officials are now seeking public help in keeping the sites from deteriorating.

Concerning the department is a recurrence from summer 1974 of vandalism and lightlinks. It's already evident even from the parks not officially opened for swimming this week, say officials.

Cause of the problem is a "handful, or a second few" youngsters among the many who daily throng the parks' beaches on both banks of the Moira River during warm weather, says Marilyn Sanford, the department's coordinator of water programs.

Vandalism last summer and to date at East and West Riverside parks has included:

— Smashed cement blocks anchoring buoy markers denoting supervised swimming areas.

— Broken light fixtures.

— Damaged blocks to which diving rafts are moored in the river.

Of equal concern has been rowdy behavior on the rafts that has seen youngsters pushed or toppled into the river. As a result, the platforms have had to be beached for closer supervision.

Most of the vandalism takes place when the department's lifeguards are off-duty. Hence, the need for public co-operation, says Marilyn Sanford. Anyone who witnesses vandalism is being asked to report it to the department or lifeguards on the spot.

Then officials will bring the problem home to parents.

The department is willing to go as far as installing cutlights from the park.

In a couple of instances where such warnings were sent to parents the contact was effective, says the coordinator.

"It's a problem, but it's not uncontrollable," she says. "Particularly with public co-operation. It's a beautiful recreation area and it's too bad that a few have to spoil things."

Nobody Hurt In Accident

There was $700 damages reported following a two-car collision at the eastern outskirts of Trenton, Friday evening.

Stanley Wright, 20, Gilbert Street, Belleville, was leaving the Dairy Queen on Highway 2, when the car he was driving was in collision with a vehicle driven by Pierre Cote, 20, Trenton.

Damage to the Wright automobile was $200, while $400 damage was estimated for the Cote vehicle.

There were no injuries and no charges.

Car Rolled On 6RD Road

A 26-year-old armed forces man has been charged with careless driving following an accident when the automobile he was operating skidded more than 75 feet and overturned early today.

Stuart McMillan, of Middleton Park, CFB Trenton, lost control of the car he was driving while moving southbound on 6 RD Road and it rolled over around 12:45 a.m.

Mr. McCallum was sent to hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

Passenger Rick Wilkinson 22, of Trenton, went to hospital suffering possible back injuries.

Fun-and-a Problem

Youngsters disport in the sun Friday at East Riverside Park — one of two parks flanking Moira River in northern Belleville and considered prime recreation spots by city officials. But they also are seeking public co-operation with problem posed by vandals and rowdy behavior.

Shoreline Report to be Released

The master plan for proposed long-term development of the Bay of Quinte shoreline as an outdoors resource in the Belleville area moves a step closer to completion next week.

The results of months-long field studies and first-time reaction from community groups has now been compiled by consultants.

Their interim report — a preliminary to final conclusions and proposals — will be presented Tuesday night to the Moira River Conservation Authority's water control advisory committee.

After that, the experts hope to move quickly in drafting their blueprint defining proposed development of the shoreline, indicates Toronto consultant Ralph E. Crysler.

"I want to have the final report ready by early autumn," Mr. Crysler told The Intelligencer from Toronto. As a result, he hopes to seek further public input in the next two weeks.

His firm — Crysler and Lathem — started field work on the project late last year before winter set ing.

Mr. Crysler then held a series of meetings with municipal and community groups to have suggestions on possible outdoors and recreation developments along the shoreline strip.

The study area reaches from east of Point Anne in Thurlow Township to Aiken's Road in Sidney Township.

The interim report will include some "specifics — and alternatives" for discussion with the conservation authority committee, said Mr. Crysler.

Avoiding hard-and-fast suggestions prevents the project from being locked in" to particular courses of action, thus freezing further discussion, he said.

Some of the specific suggestions made to date could be "controversial," in the sense not everyone "will agree with them".

Water Pressure Improves

Water pressure improved in Quinte Heights subdivision later Friday.

But it didn't quench the reaction of householders who intended taking their case before Sidney Township Council Monday night.

About 50 homeowners in the subdivision — north of Highway 2 and east of Bayside Secondary School — horriedly banded together Thursday and formed an association after water supplies trickled off.

The subdivision — where more homes are being built — is supplied by a communal well-water system developed for the subdivision.

Laverne Hatcher, chosen spokesman for the deputation which will go to council, said the group was making no comment until that time.

Good humoured, Mrs. J. L. Gassenbeck, said the problem has recurred during the past three summers when water levels are lower.

School Fees Raised

Monthly tuition fees for non-resident students of Hastings County wishing to attend elementary and secondary schools in the county have been raised.

A non-resident student from Ontario, wanting to attend elementary school here will have to pay $14 a month in 1976 compared to this year's figure of $10. A full-day kindergarten will also cost the same.

The tuition fees for secondary school students, who are non-residents of the county but still live in Ontario, will be increased to $28 from $22. The one-half day kindergarten fee will be increased to $7 from $5.

Fees for full-day attendance at the retainable retarded schools will be increased to $76 from $64. These fee increases correspond to the new regulations set down by the ministry of education.

Fees for non-residents of Ontario have been increased to $83 a month from $70, for elementary school age children. The secondary school fee in this category has been raised to $139 from $118.

Last year the Hastings County Board of Education collected more than $90,000 in fees from non-residents of Ontario and non-residents of the county.

Mark Evenard, a university student home for the summer, discovers the old saying 'a picture is worth 1000 words' has meaning. Mark was viewing the Russell exhibit Friday in the gallery at the Corby Public Library.

Friday Flip Hurts Four

A car driven by a 23-year-old Toronto man travelling eastbound on the 401 rolled over while skidding on the median, Friday evening, sending debris flying into the windshield of a westbound automobile.

Michael Moore, 23, of Toronto, and three passengers, were sent to Belleville General Hospital following the accident, treated for cuts and bruises, and released.

Chuck-Wu Chang, also from Toronto, was proceeding west on the highway when debris from the accident smashed his windshield causing $200 damage but he suffered no injuries.

Belleville OPP charged Mr. Moore with careless driving.

Capital Punishment Receiving More Support

Education Beat

School's Out... But Why Board?

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

School's out for the summer and so is the Hastings County Board of Education — a situation that's inexcusable for a public body that controls $11.87 million in public funds.

Normally, the board holds two regular meetings a month, plus several committee meetings. During the last month (June 23) trustees voted to suspend summer meetings unless a special meeting was needed to be called at the direction of the chairman.

First of all the board has a lot of nerve to suspend all regular meetings when most boards across the province hold at least one regular meeting a month with the second one to be called if needed.

Even though the students are out on summer holidays it doesn't mean trustees or the administration council can afford the same luxury.

Education costs us 12 months a year particularly in view of pending provincial legislation that could drastically shape the board's ability to cope with their responsibilities next year.

The Hastings-Prince Edward County Separate School Board has suspended its meetings only for the month of July and will resume its work in August. This board is only one-tenth the size of the county board.

At the last meeting trustee Ed Paquet suggested to the board that it should be making a public statement concerning the right of teachers to negotiate any working conditions as proposed in the new legislation, June 26. The suggestion was ignored.

In actual fact Mr. Paquet, along with trustee Robert Ord, were the only board officials to express serious doubts about the proposed legislation.

However, the matter was dropped because other trustees were pre-occupied with rushing through a large agenda attempting to clear up odds and ends before the board adjourned for the summer.

The board could have used another meeting to iron out its feelings and approaches to the new legislation. Trustee Paquet will be too late. It's totally unrealistic for the board to view July and August as a summer break.

It's obviously a busy time of the year for the administration because school in effect is starting in two months and preparations must be made. The board could have dealt with the proposed recommendations from the task force looking into the use of electronic calculators in the classroom.

The reports has been prepared and trustees will not see it until September when school has already started and teachers do not have a clear direction from the board.

There is also the matter of the Special Education report, from another task force, which during the last meeting was hailed as a milestone and is supposed to have far-reaching implications for this county. Will the report sit idle all summer?

A responsible board would have at least called one regular meeting a month during the summer — trustees owe it to their students, their electors and the educational system itself.

Increased violence within the penitentiaries in the last 12 months has resulted in deaths of four prison officials. As a result, the prison guards at all federal prisons demonstrated Wednesday. The protest was to have two effects: To demand the return of the death penalty for the slaying of prison employees, for policemen on duty; and to mourn Paul Gosselin, killed Friday while escorting a prisoner to hospital, at Ste. Therese, Que. Before the recent killings of prison guards, the last one was in 1963 and one, in 1961. Previous to them, the last killing was in 1949. Not only guards have been killed but 14 prisoners have been murdered since 1970. In a recent survey taken at a local shopping centre, residents gave their replies to the following question: Should Canada re-instate capital punishment? Here are some of their responses:

BARNEY WALSH

The 62-year-old retired fire-chief of Picton, Barney Walsh said he supports the prison guards and the policemen.

"I'm in sympathy with the actions the guards took," said Mr. Walsh.

Mr. Walsh expressed doubt on the position of the solicitor-general.

"The solicitor-general should carry out the position of the cabinet and not his own personal opinion," Mr. Walsh said.

"It's yet to be proved that the lack of capital punishment is a deterrent."

Mr. Walsh said he feels, "the lack of position of the government is not complementary to the penal system."

KEITH SALLOWS

A visiting truck-driver from Burlington, Keith Sallows, 34, said, "I agree wholeheartedly with them (the guards and police)".

Mr. Sallows said, "Mr. Allmand says 'We have got something better,' but I haven't seen it."

"Rehabilitation has not proven itself," said Mr. Sallow.

The criminals "should get the defence they need by law, but the law should be upheld," said Mr. Sallow.

"We have sufficient laws to put up with the criminals. It is just a matter of enforcement of those laws, Mr. Sallow said.

Mr. Sallow said, "They should get the sentence as passed by the courts."

RAY MARSHALL

Ray Marshall, 20-year-old University of Ottawa student, said he favors the re-instatement of capital punishment.

"I can't see why a man in for murder should be allowed to roam the streets after only serving 10 to 15 years in prison," said Mr. Marshall.

Mr. Marshall agreed with the policemen and guards on Wednesday.

"The guards, they're especially in a hazardous job. And when a guy is in for life, there is nothing to stop him from over-reacting on the guards," said Mr. Marshall.

As a deterrent, "it capital punishment will provide something to think about, especially in premeditated murder," Mr. Marshall stated.

CAROL GRILLS

An 18-year-old Belleville student, Carol Grills said, "I'm in favor of capital punishment.

Miss Grills said she feels the position of the guards is justified but said, "capital punishment should be for everyone and not just for murdering of prison guards."

"I don't believe a man should be able to take another man's life without this type of punishment," Miss Grills stated.

Miss Grills said she feels capital punishment would make people stop and think.

"The death penalty would be a deterrent, in every case and not just for the guards and the police," Miss Grills commented.

LAURAL CAVERLY

Laural Caverly said she is not in favor of capital punishment.

"It won't help because people are going to continue doing what they're doing whether or not they bring back capital punishment," said the 18-year-old student.

The Rossmore resident said, "there's a lot of crimes going on today and it (capital punishment) is not going to stop them."

Miss Caverly said she is in agreement with the solicitor-general but feels "things are too permissive in the prisons."

"They should buckle down on things inside," Miss Caverly said.

LINDA COLE

A veterinarian assistant, Linda Cole, 22, of Belleville said she is not in favor of it in some instances."

"In first- and second-degree murders, if a child is murdered, capital punishment should be used," said Miss Cole.

Miss Cole said she feels capital punishment should be also exercised "in the case of murders of police officers."

Miss Cole said she "blames gun-toting society" as a cause for this increase in murders "in the prison are a crime.

The recent increase of result of wrongs on both sides, Miss Cole said.

"The prisoners are retaliating to the brutality from the guards. The guards partly bring on these attacks themselves," said Miss Cole.

Grote Picks On Old Mate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jerry Grote used to catch Tug McGraw's pitches. Now he's hitting them.

McGraw, once the New York Mets' ace reliever but now chief of the Philadelphia bullpen, was the victim of two [illegible] home runs Friday night.

"I didn't mean to start the fireworks display lately," McGraw said after giving up the two ninth-inning homers—a leadoff shot by Dave Kingman and a two-out, two-run hit by the Cubs' former battery-mate—that vaulted the Mets to a 4-3 victory.

In other National League baseball action, Chicago Cubs swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh Pirates 8-1 and 3-1 in 11 innings, San Francisco Giants beat Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0, Cincinnati Reds defeated San Diego Padres 7-6, Montreal Expos beat St. Louis Cardinals 5-1 and Atlanta Braves defeated Houston Astros 5-4.

After Kingman's 12th homer

JERRY GROTE

of the season, Cleon Jones singled, John Stearns bunted him to second and Jesus Alou, batting for winner Tom Seaver, struck out. Manager Yogi Berra sent Grote up to swing for Mike Phillips.

Grote was looking for a curve ball and that's what McGraw gave him.

"That's part of the game, guessing with the pitcher," McGraw said. "Sometimes you guess right, sometimes you don't."

Chicago's Steve Stone ended Pittsburgh's five-game winning streak, pitching a five-hitter and battling home two runs in Chicago's opening-game victory. In the finale, Andy Thornton's single with one out in the 11th inning, then Steve Swisher and Manny Trillo were walked intentionally to load the bases and Jore Cardenal singled to right.

Willie Montanez' fifth-inning grounder scored Darrel Thomas and John Montefusco made the two-run rally with an eighth-inning 10-strikeout performance for the Giants. The loss was the Dodgers' seventh in 10 games and dropped them eight games back of Cincinnati in the West.

Johnny Bench hit his 17th homer while Ken Griffey and Cesar Geronimo drove in two runs each to highlight Cincinnati's 8-hit assault on the Padres. It gave Jack Billingham his seventh consecutive victory and the Reds their 10th in the last 12 games. Dick Sharon and Bobby Tolan hit three-run homers for San Diego.

Museum Open

NEWCOMERSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — A baseball museum named after the winningest major league pitcher, was officially opened in this small Ohio Appalachian Ravaws County Friday. The Cy Young museum was dedicated to a man who posted 511 victories in his career from 1890 to 1911. Several former major league players were on hand for the opening, including Red Ruffing, Gene Woodling, Johnny Blatnik, Wally Post and Mike Hershberger.

Two Spots Too Much For Tony's

HULL, Que. (CP) — Oshawa Tonys were defeated 2-1 Friday night by New York Two-Spots in a double round-robin final series at the Hull international softball tournament.

The Two-Spots scored the victory on two unearned runs in the bottom of the sixth inning. Centre-fielder Bill Robinson scored the winning run on a fielder's choice to the shortstop.

The losing pitcher, Oshawa's Pete Landers, allowed only two hits and struck out 13 pitchers.

Heron Davis pitched the Two-Spots to a fourth consecutive tournament victory and also scored the winning run on a passed ball.

In other play Friday night, Hull Volants defeated Cardinal, Ont. Pala 1-0 and Victoria beat New Jersey Nationals 3-0. Olatawa Plasa beat New Jersey Whites 7-3.

The tournament ends Sunday.

Yankees Robbing Cradle

THOROLD, Ont. (CP) — New York Yankees have signed 16-year-old catcher Mark Plantery of Thorold to a contract with the American League baseball club.

Yankees scout Bill Wray, who first spotted Plantery in a midget tournament last year, said the young catcher is "probably the youngest player ever signed by the Yankees."

Plantery, who will be 15 on Aug. 14, is six feet and 185 pounds. Wray said he was impressed by Plantery's "physical and emotional maturity" and added that he was convinced the Thorold player "has the potential to be a better-than-average major-league catcher."

Plantery, who now plays for a local midget team, will attend the Yankees' instructional league quarters at Oneonta, N.Y., during August. He plans to return to Oneonta again next spring after completing Grade 12 at St. Catharines high school.

Chiefs Hold Second

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Mississauga Chiefs retained second place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A series by downing Etobicoke Excelsiors 20-14 Friday.

Mississauga now has an 11-4 record with 25 points. Brampton dropped to 11 and eight but remains in third place.

Gamble Lays on Lumber To Power Cleveland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oscar Gamble spoiled trying to outguess pitcher Luis Tiant and started swinging Friday night.

As a result, Gamble hit a two-run homer and Cleveland Indians had a 3-2 victory over Boston Red Sox.

"Earlier, I kept trying to guess what Tiant was going to throw me," said the Cleveland outfielder after his seventh-inning homer.

"The time I hit the homer, I was just looking for the ball."

It was one of the few bad pitches Tiant threw all night. He allowed the Indians only four hits.

In other American League baseball games, Oakland A's beat California Angels 6-4, Kansas City Royals defeated Chicago White Sox 3-2, Baltimore Orioles beat New York Yankees 5-4, Detroit Tigers defeated Milwaukee Brewers 8-2 and Minnesota Twins beat Texas Rangers 5-0 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second game, 4-2.

Before Gamble unloaded his third homer of the season, Boston forged a 3-1 lead against winner Eric Raich in the top of the seventh on singles by Rick Miller and Cecil Cooper and Denny Doyle's sacrifice fly. But in the bottom of the inning, Tiant walked George Hendrick and Gamble followed with his game-winning blow that demoralized the Red Sox.

"One pitch has made the difference between a win and a loss in our last three games," said Boston manager Darrell Johnson. "A home run beat us in the last three games. Just one pitch."

Oakland's Ken Holtzman pitched a four-hitter and Bill North drove in two runs, leading the A's against California. Holtzman posted his ninth victory and his sixth in his last seven decisions.

Jim Wohlford's RBI single in the ninth inning carried Kansas City over Chicago.

Don Baylor tied the game with a home run and Tommy Davis' single produced the go-ahead run as Baltimore rallied for three runs in the ninth to beat New York.

Quebecois Take Over At Top of the Heap

MONTREAL (CP) — Dave Clark allowed seven hits for good pitching and added an assist to lead Montreal Quebecois into sole possession of first place in the National Lacrosse League with a 16-14 win over Maryland Arrows Friday night.

The Quebecois moved their record to 17 wins against 11 losses for 34 points compared with 33 points for second-place Long Island Tomahawks. The Arrows fell to 14-12 for 28 points in third place.

John Davis, Bill Sheehan and Ken Winnicki scored two goals apiece for the Quebecois, while Bill Campbell paced the losers with four goals.

Early Leader Could Win the Match Race

NEW YORK (AP) — Most match races have been won by the horse getting the lead at the start. Will it happen again in Sunday's $250,000 match race at Belmont Park between Ruffian, the unbeaten filly, and Foolish Pleasure, winner of the Kentucky Derby and her first male opponent?

The 1½-mile race is expected to be one of the most memorable in the history of two-horse world-wide interest and will be nationally televised by CBS.

Man O'War beat Sir Barton by seven lengths at Kenilworth Park in Windsor, Ont., on Oct. 12, 1920. Zev beat Papyrus by five lengths at Belmont Park Oct. 20, 1923. A month later at Latonia, Ky. on Nov. 17, 1923, Zev provided the only exception to the overwhelming In Memoriam to his win by a nose.

In all the others the horse who broke on top won. Seabiscuit humbled War Admiral at Pimlico Nov. 1, 1938; Alsab took Whirlaway [illegible] Park Sept. 19, 1942; armed Assault at Belmont Park, Sept. 27, 1947; Nashua whipped Swaps at Washington Park, Aug. 31, 1955; Convenience beat Spectacular at Hollywood Park June 17, 1972, and Chris Evert outdistanced Miss Musket on July 20 last year, also at Hollywood Park.

Ruffian has had her share of way in every one of her races. It is favored to win her 11th in a row. But Foolish Pleasure has shown he can be a speed ball, too.

"The only way to beat her is to run with her," said Leroy Jolley, trainer of Foolish Pleasure. "My colt has the speed to do it. We'll test her, all right."

Frank Whiteley Jr., veteran trainer of Ruffian, said: "We'll play things by ear."

A crowd of about 70,000 is expected to watch jockeys Jacinto Vasquez, on Ruffian, and Braulio Baeza, on Foolish Pleasure, for the winner's share of $225,000.

Leader's Margin Is Slim

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Karolyn Kertzman tries a six-stroke-per 65 Friday to take a one-stroke lead after the opening round of the second Ladies Professional Golfers' Association Wheeling tournament.

Miss Kertzman finished with a rush to lead Jan Ferraris, who had a 66 over Oglebay Park's Speidel course.

Four golfers tied at two-under-par 70. They were Debbie Austin, Gloria Ehret, Gerda Boykin, and Lenore Rensera.

Betsy Cullen, Kathy Postlewait, and Betty Burfeind finished at 71, while six golfers, including defending champion Cathie Jo Shaw, were at even-par 72. Others in that group were Pam Higgins, Joyce Kazes, Debbie Rhoden, and Susie McAllister.

Golden Bat Tournament Opens

North York's John Campbell Fires No-hitter

NORTH YORK — The Golden Bat Bantam Baseball Tournament got off to a roaring start on Friday night, with four games.

The big story was at Parkdale where young John Campbell threw a no-hitter for North York to lead his team to a 7-0 victory over Peterborough.

Campbell pitched seven complete innings, giving up no hits and also no walks while striking out eight batters.

In other games, all played at the three Centennial Diamonds, Trenton defeated Thurlow 23-1, Belleville squeaked by Oshawa 2-1 and Brampton defeated Kingston 14-3.

In the game at Parkdale Gord Lewis took the loss for the Petes, giving up four walks and striking out six batters.

Sandy Garber led his team in hitting with a triple and a double while Don Allen singled for the winners.

The loss went to Mike Ferene, who gave up seven walks while striking out six batters.

Jim Jackson hit a homer for the losers in "second for their only run.

All Belleville hits were singles, coming from Ken Revoy, Dale Dafoe and Rory Radford.

Brampton had no trouble defeating Kingston 14-3 as Watson Rowe hurled th win, striking out 10 batters.

For the losers it was errors that hurt them as they made six miscuts in the field. Ron Skeggs pitched well enough as he struck out 12 batters in the loss.

Rowe hit a homer to help himself in the win, while Pat Mather had two singles.

In the Trenton - Thurlow game, Thurlow had one of those nights, as they lost 23-1 to a strong Trenton attack.

Chris Walsh threw for the losers, striking out nine batters and walking none, he also did well at the plate with two triples and a single.

Gary Badgley and Terry Christopher, tournament director and secretary of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association also looks on, while on Evans' right are Jim Jackson and Oshawa pitcher Mike Ferene, Belleville won the first game of the Tournament 2-1.

$625. Payoff at Raceway

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

Who says playing the horses doesn't pay off?

If you bet on the Exactor combining Lucky Homedale to win and Judge Chief to finish second in the fifth, you won $625.20.

The winning horse, Lucky Homedale, was driven to victory by Harry Burkitt, and, as should be obvious, was quite a longshot. It was the horse's first win of the 1975 season, in a time of 2:12.

The Four Leaf Hotel Feature in the ninth was won by Aust Time, driven by Pat Hunt in a good time of 2:10.3. It was a close one as June Model was pushed by driver Hugh Wemp to a very close second.

The fastest time of the evening was in the third race when Gin Mir took the track in 2:10.1 under the directio of driver Rejean Boily.

The 10th race was one of the closest of the evening as Mighty Kirk took the win with Brian Bellamy at the reins for his second win of the evening. Jaco Chief was an extremely close second with a photo being needed to make a decision. Gord Robinson was driving.

Hunt is close behind with 11 victories while Brian Bellamy has won 11 races.

Crowds were good once again at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway and the stands were close to full.

Meads Squad Takes Second

Meads moved into second place in the Belleville Industrial League's West division by defeating Independents 9-2, Friday.

Fred Davis buried the Mead win giving up just six hits and two walks while Sonny Holoway relieved him in the victory.

In the other league game, UIC moved into first place in the West division, defeating Lenders 20-10.

The loss to Independents went to Greg Bellis and Earl Dalton, combining to give up 13 hits, no walks and strike out three batters.

Jim Sopha led the way with three singles while Mark Reid had a single and a triple, Fred Davis doubled and tripled and Dave Dalton added a triple.

Doug McKay led the way with three singles, while Jarell shared the loss, walking nine and ... five.

Action continues today at Centennial and Parkdale, with the championships on Sunday.

$14,000 Prize Money In Gold Cup Races

PICTON — Prize money for the Prince Edward Gold Cup Races to be held Labor Day weekend at Hayward Long Reach this year totals $14,000 say organizers.

A press release issued Wednesday notes highlights of the two days of racing, August 31 and September 1, will be the Belvedere Grand Prix for the Prince Edward Cup and the North American Championship Grand Prix Unlimited.

The 200 Hydroplane class will be sponsored by Proctor-Lewyt of Picton and the 140 Hydroplane class by Molson's Brewery.

The SS and SK Shihoata class will be sponsored by Pro Hardware of Picton and the three-litre class by Hi-Way Food Market, Picton.

The final two races of the eight-race Belvedere Challenge Cup series of Sportscraft races will be held during the race program at Long Reach. They include the FE, FJ, SE, SJ and S Class boats and the North American championship.

In addition to the $14,000 offered in prize money, divisers can earn Belvedere bonus by carrying signs on winning boats.

Organizers of the races, the Prince Edward Racing Club and the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce say they expect 125 boats will compete at Hayward Long Reach this year.

The two days of racing are sanctioned by the Canadian Boating Federation, the American Power Boat Association and the Mexican Racing Federation.

The Miss Gold Cup contest again will be organized by the Picton Kinette Club. The winner will reign through the weekend of the races and the Gold Cup festival planned in Picton.

The Gold Cup Races will be filmed by CTV for showing on the program Wide World of Sports.

195-mile Rally Is Planned

Next weekend may mean the coming of the Glorious 12th to many in the Bay of Quinte area but to members of the Quinte Auto Sport Club, July 12 means the start of an ambitious Dusk 'Til Dawn Rally.

Organized by Ginger Marshall, assisted by Carol Fortis and Diane McLeod, the rally is the longest in recent memory and is expected to attract enthusiasts from Peterborough to Kingston.

"It's a good test for expert and novice alike," says Ginger.

"All that's needed to enter the 195-mile jaunt is a clipboard, paper and pencil, driver and navigator, and, of course, the $4 entry fee.

The chief organizer goes on to explain that anyone may enter. Instructions will be posted at the Quinte Mall starting at noon and there will be plenty of time for early arrivals to peruse the printed guidelines.

Registration at Quinte Mall is from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. First car is away at 10:01 p.m.

Chief organizer of the Quinte Auto Sport Club Dusk 'Til Dawn Rally scheduled for July 12-13, Ginger Marshall displays one of the trophies which will go to members of winning team in 195-mile competition. CIAG Insurance donated one of the trophies for the event. The other trophy there is Pontoon Pressure Systems. It's the longest rally held by the local club in recent years. Expert and novice alike are welcome to register at the starting point, Quinte Mall, July 12 from 8:30-9:30 p.m. Entries are expected from Peterborough to Kingston.

Tykes Don't Play Around

In the Tyke division of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association when a team wins a game, it really wins.

In recent scores, A and B Precast defeated Bob Sullivan Auctioneer 22-2, Cablevue defeated Belleville Broadloom 22-3, and A and B Precast was victorious again, this time over Bob Sullivan Auctioneer by a score of 17-0.

Jeff Woodward and Darryn Kelly were the losers, combining to walk 30 and strike out tight.

Vance was winner of the second game, also, giving up eight hits and striking out seven.

Jim Crouchman took the Cablevue win over Broadloom, 22-3, with seven strikouts to his credit.

Dave Shandol took the loss.

In Tadpole play, Trudeau Motors defeated Belleville Conductors 22-17 with Mike Pineapple and Rod Murray claiming the win.

Legion House Dart League defeated Kinsmen 13-3 with Bryan Byrd pounding two homeruns for the winners.

Byrd and Mark Chapman combined to hurl the win.

In a single Bantam game, Mulroney's Sunoco took Stapelie 16-6 with fine pitching from Dennis Greer. Louis Scanlon hit a double and two singles.

Paul Dent and Terry Hingsman were the losers, and both had singles to account for two of the three Stapelie safeties.

20 TIPS TO BETTER GOLF

by George Knudson

Copyright 1974, Toronto Sun Syndicate

TIP NO...8 THE DOWNSWING

The key to the downswing is timing. Your weight-shift must be timed to maximize clubhead speed at impact, and your wrist movement must be timed so that your hands come through the ball ahead of the clubhead.

Difficult? Not if you use a little psychological timing trick at the top of your backswing.

It is simply this. Imagine that you are "leaving the clubhead at the top of the backswing" for an instant. Start your weight-shift by moving your right knee forward. Your downswing and follow-through will happen automatically. With the clubhead in delay, additional yardage will result as it is taken through the ball.

POSITIVE KEY — "leave your clubhead" at the top of the backswing for an instant as you begin your weight shift.

Ashe Is the Favorite of Many....But

Ashe—Easy Pickings for Connors?

WIMBLEDON, England (Reuter) — Connors is expected to brush aside Arthur Ashe for the Wimbledon men's tennis title today but will have to struggle to emulate the performance of women's champion Billie-Jean King.

Mrs. King, going out on a high point," as she got it, crushed Jeanne Goolagong Cawley of Australia, 6-4, 6-1 Friday to win the women's title for the sixth time.

The United States star has said she will not play any more major singles events and her victory gave her the added satisfaction of equalling the all-time record of 19 Wimbledon titles set by American Elizabeth Ryan.

But Miss Ryan's title, between the years of 1914 and 1933, included no singles crowns. Mrs. King has won six.

The last was perhaps the most satisfying because, as she said afterwards, "it was about as close to perfect as I've come."

She opened ferociously, maintained the pace and never allowed Mrs. Cawley to get started. The match expected to be a classic was instead a one-sided solo performance.

Today's men's finals may go the same way. The question seems not to be who will win but by how much, and that is no discredit to Ashe.

Ashe, 31, is playing well and has trained hard to win this tournament and follow his victory this year in the World Championship Tennis final in Dallas.

But Connors has been in sensational form here as he continues to employ his aggressive approach to the game.

His manager, Bill Riordan, calls him "the most electrifying player in the game today" and comparisons are frequently made with great players of the past.

Mrs. King says, "Connors is unbelievable, a great, great player. He sees the ball better than anyone. I don't know how he does it. He is my favorite player to watch in tennis."

While marvelling at the 23-year-old champion, many would also like to see Ashe win for the first time.

"I know how much it means to Arthur," said Mrs. King. "He has prepared very, very well. He has made so many sacrifices this year."

Adding interest to the final is the fact that Connors is suing Ashe for $5 million because of a letter Ashe wrote in defence of the American Davis Cup team this year over the team captaincy.

But both players agree the suit should not affect the match.

King — Ends Wimbledon Career in Style

It's Like Old Times For Wall in Tourney

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Art Wall Jr. is back. Will the Edsel, the crewcut and bell-in-the-back slacks be next?

Wall, a superstar before the term became a cliche, but a sweet aside when Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus led the vanguard of golf's young lions 15 years ago, shot a third consecutive 67 Friday as the Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament continued to resemble a "fabulous fifties" weekend.

"I admit I have been contemplating leaving the tour," said Wall who won the Canadian Open title in 1960. "I don't know how much longer I can play. But I am not going to think about that tonight."

Wall, 51, carried a three-stroke lead over Gibby Gilbert and a 15-under-par 201 into today's final round of the $131,000 tourney.

Rod Curl, Mac McLendon, Dave Hill, Mark Hayes, Ken Still and Gary McCord were tied for third, each 11 under par for the 7,019-yard, par-72 Tuckaway Country Club course.

McCord, an obscure second-year pro, fashioned a third-round 65 with the help of two eagles. Hayes, McLendon and Curl posted 66s, Hill and Gilbert a 68 each, and Still 70.

McCord was realistic about the field's chances of catching Wall.

"The way Art is playing, it probably would take 20-under," he said. "He is likely to run away with it."

Wall, voted golf's player of the year in 1959 when he won the Masters and led tour pros in earnings with $53,167, recorded the last of his 13 victories in 1966.

By his admission, he has been in a miserable 18-month slump. He is not among the tour's top 100 money earners this year, and had not shot a competitive round in the 60s all season until Wednesday on the Tuckaway links.

"I don't think I have anything to prove," he said. "Golf is a game you can still play in your 50s. I never felt I can't still play. My game just hasn't been sharp enough in the last year and a half to make much of a mark against these young fellows."

Wall credits his turnabout to a couple of technical tips he picked up while reading golfing magazines a few weeks ago.

"But don't make too much of that. I haven't got it down by a long shot. I am still hitting too many shots to the right."

Wall sliced his first drive of the third round between a pair of gaping traps about 175 yards from the tee.

However, he blasted a five-iron shot to the front edge of the green, and sank a long putt for a birdie.

He birdied the next hole as well, then added four more birdies, offset by a single bogey when he hit a second shot into a trap on the 534-yard sixth hole.

He had parred the 18th hole Friday morning to complete his second-round 67 for a 10-under-par 134 for 36 holes, a stroke ahead of Still and Gilbert.

Wall had 23 birdie putters were on the course when lightning and darkness forced suspension of play Thursday, requiring them to finish the second round Friday.

It's Good News For the Coach

Boileau was getting the word out that he might lose his job.

He saw Savill, whom he knew when they were both affiliated with the International Hockey League—Boileau as Fort Wayne coach, Savill as owner of Columbus Owls.

"Why don't you buy the Penguins?" Boileau asked Savill.

"I just might do that," replied Savill.

Boileau said Friday that Savill's decision to buy the Penguins is the first good news he's had for weeks.

The sale of the bankrupt club to Savill for $2.3 million must be approved by the U.S. federal court and the NHL board of governors. The club will remain in Pittsburgh.

Savill, president of a mortgage and insurance company in Columbus, Ohio.

A petition was filed in federal court here Thursday and a hearing on the purchase will be held Wednesday. If all goes well, as expected, Savill could be the owner by July 11.

Savill said he is buying the Penguins with a "small group" of partners.

"I won't run the club, but I'll certainly be involved. One of my partners knows hockey and he'll run it."

Savill declined to discuss any possible personnel changes including general manager Jack Button and Boileau.

Button's contract is up for renewal. Boileau says his contract is renewable each year before May 15.

Sonny Wade Injured Early

Roughriders Humble Als 32-0

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders shut out Montreal Alouettes 32-0 Friday night in a Canadian Football League exhibition game before 14,859 fans.

The defending Grey Cup champions used all three quarterbacks after Sonny Wade was shaken up early in the game. He had completed one in five pass attempts for 11 yards.

Wide receiver Steve Mazurak scored two Saskatchewan touchdowns on fourth-quarter passes from Ron Lancaster and Randy Mattingly. Mazurak also grabbed a two-point conversion pass from Mattingly to spark the Riders with a 14-point effort.

SONNY WADE

Brian Berg opened the scoring wit a 13-yard field goal to give the Riders a 3-0 first-quarter lead and added a single and two converts in the second quarter as Saskatchewan increased its margin to 18-0.

Rookie Alvin Bowers, a fullback from Texas A and M, scored on Rider touchdowns in the second quarter on a four-yard run after Rhet Dawson hauled in a 40-yard pass from Mattingly. The other touchdown in the quarter came from Leif Tetterson, a second-year wide receiver, on a 19-yard pass from Lancaster.

I've Seen It All Happen Says Winner of 19 Titles

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King left Wimbledon's centre court a winner Friday, describing herself as "the most fortunate woman athlete ever."

"I've seen it all happen," said the 31-year-old American after devastating a mythically out-of-form Evonne Goolagong Cawley 6-4, 6-1 to win her sixth women's singles final at Wimbledon, the last major singles she plans to play.

"What a way to end my career at Wimbledon," said Billie Jean after equalling the women's record of 19 Wimbledon titles.

She first came here in 1961 as 17-year-old Billie Jean Moffitt, losing her first singles match to Yola Ramirez of Mexico 11-9, 1-6, 6-2. But even then, she had the stamp of a champion. She battled with partner Karen Hantze to win the women's doubles title.

"In my first year at Wimbledon, I had to share a room for $1.20 a night, including breakfast.

"All we ate were hamburgers and french fries. When I left I'd put on so much weight I couldn't button up my skirt.

"The young players today all stay at the best hotels. Boy, has the public's attitude toward tennis players changed. We're treated like pop stars now."

Most tennis writers credit Billie Jean with perfecting the attacking serve and volley style, which a generation of young women players have tried to emulate.

"I've always felt an all-court game at its best will beat any other type game," she said.

She plans to continue competing in doubles events and in World Team Tennis for New York Sets, but what are her new goals?

"I'm going to start with beer and ice cream," she had deprived herself of her favorite luxuries to train for Wimbledon.

"I want to help other women tennis players a lot, and I'm going to get totally involved in my television interview show and my women's sports magazine."

The owner of 17 major singles titles, Billie Jean is a leading campaigner for higher prize money in women and fight like a tiger off-court women's rights. She was a driving force in the establishment of the pro women's circuit and was also a prime mover behind the birth of the women's tennis association.

All That Green Stuff May Be Running Out

TORONTO (CP) — The salad days for promising junior hockey graduates may be ending to an end.

A few players drafted in the first round by the National Hockey League will still receive a pile of green stuff but some clubs have lost cash.

Alan Eagleson, the Toronto lawyer who represents a flock of players in both the NHL and World Hockey Association, said Thursday night two such junior grads — Doug Halward of Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series and Robin Sadlerof Edmonton Oil Kings of the Western Canada Hockey League.

Eagleson said Boston Bruins have offered Halward what a third-round draft choice got — year while Montreal Canadi'n have offered much less, than they were prepared to give a year ago.

"In the case of Sadler, Montreal is offering 35 to 40 per cent less than they paid a year ago. The Halward offer is ridiculous. We've signed a second-round pick for more money than he was offered."

Money isn't the issue in all cases, however. For example, Calgary Cowboys of the WHA have offered centre Don Ashby more than Toronto Maple Leafs, but he is reported favoring the NHL. And defenceman Rick Lapointe of Victoria Cougars is said to be leaning toward Detroit Red Wings although tendered a lucrative contract by Toronto Toros.

Jim Gregory, Leafs general manager, said Friday he talked to Ashby's lawyer, Dennis Coates, several times and "we've made some progress."

Ashby played with Calgary Cougars of the WCHL last season, scoring 32 goals and 68 assists.

Lapointe wasn't exactly wind up with a pitance for his efforts. The six-foot-two native of Victoria will get a contract in the same deal Bill Lochead got at the first-round pick of the Wings last year, Eagleson said. Lochead signed a three-year contract calling for $400,000.

He Brings Longshots Home in Front

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fernando Toro proved horse races can be won with opposite strategies as he rode the winners of both divisions in the American Handicap over the grass at Hollywood Park in Inglewood, Calif.

In the first division Friday, he brought Pass The Glass home in a photo finish over the next, he took the longshot Montmartre to the front in a hurry and kept him there.

So the 34-year-old Chilean-born rider completed a riding triple for the Independence Day card and not one of the three was a favorite.

He started with Old Parade paying $18.60 in the fourth race. Then came Pass The Glass for an $8.20 winning return and Montmartre, 20-to-1 shot, returning $43.20.

Originally the 1¼-mile American was scheduled as a $100,000-added race for the handicap horses, but with 23 entries, Hollywood Park split it for only the second time in 36 years and put up $75,000 for each division.

Eleven started the first, making a gross value of $87,500, and nine went in the second, after three scratches, with a gross of $85,500.

The finishing rally by Pass The Glass, carrying 115 pounds and finishing in 1:48 1-5, put him a neck in front of the favored Big Band with Against You another three-lengths behind.

"I didn't want to go to the lead," said Montmartre's Toro said after the victory. "But it didn't take me long to firm out that no one else did either."

After a slow pace, the winning time was 1:46 and change for 115 pounds, finished in 1:49 3-5, a length in front of another longshot, Top Crowd, with the favored Ascimt Title just a head further back.

Montmartre paid his $43.20 to win.

In other July Fourth holiday racing, Lazy P Bandit, Forever, carrying top weight of 123 pounds, scored a 1¼-length victory over 33-to-1 outsider Monetary Principle in the $111,000-Brooklyn Handicap at New York's Belmont Park, winning a 6½-year-old track record for the 1¼-mile race in the process.

Blues Sign Gratton

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Goaltender Gilles Gratton, a two-year veteran of the World Hockey Association, has signed a contract with St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League. Gratton, from LaSalle, Que., came to terms with the Blues Thursday after obtaining free-agent status from Toronto Toros of the WHA. He had two shutouts and a 3.85 goals-against average in 32 games with the Toros last season.

IN MEMORIAM

SATERNAY — In loving memory of our father, who was taken from us and further one year ago today, on Saturday July 5, 1963.
One by one they go unto the shore,
They are falling like the leaves,
Some day we too shall pass through for us,
All the old gang and who.
—Answers remembered by Betty and son Doug and family.

MARACLE — In loving memory of my father, Eli Maracle who passed away 16 years ago today, July 5, 1952.
Dear father, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
We miss your smile and your kind ways,
All you always were before.
—Lady missed by daughter Frances and husband Raymond Sellers.

COULTER — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Joseph Hector Coulter who passed away July 6, 1965.
Always a smile, instead of a frown,
Always a kind word, never a put down,
Always true, thoughtful and kind,
Wonderful memories he left behind.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by your wife Margaret, daughters Carol and Lois and families.

Manitoba Bank Has Historic Show Notes

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Handwritten letters and notes from George Bernard Shaw are among historic documents tucked away in a bank vault in Portage la Prairie.

The documents, most of them letters from prominent early members of the social-Fabian society of which Shaw was an active member, are the property of Catherine Astbury who is not sure what she should do with them.

Until she decides, they will remain in the safe-deposit box.

They have been in the Astbury family for decades. Originally, they were the personal correspondence of John Brownlee Astbury, father of Mrs. Astbury's husband Charles, who died this spring at the age of 79.

John Astbury apparently was actively involved with the Fabians but his complete background is unknown.

The story of the Astbury collection is told by Kelly Armstrong in Brandon Sun. It dates from 1880 to 1916 and was brought to Canada by Charles Astbury following the First World War.

Two postcards written by Shaw in 1904 told of the famous playwright's unsuccessful attempt at public office in London and gave opinions on journalism and government relief programs.

"Relief works, in the ordinary sense, are of no use," wrote Shaw in a letter dated Oct. 30, 1901.

Public works for providing jobs could be unpopular, noted the then active reformer.

"Unfortunately, it is just when times are hardest that the ratepayer protests more strongly against the authorities spending any xtra money.

"In a competitive industrial system, you must take the rough with the smooth. As you know, I do not approve of the competitive industrial system . . . The workers like it and support it.

". . . It is no use their turning around when trade gets bad and complaining of the system they applauded and supported while it was flourishing enough to buy them off."

Towards the end of the letter, Shaw shows more discontent with the workers of the time.

Referring to the expansionist British Empire, he asks Astbury to "tell the unemployed men you naturally pity that they wasted war and extravagance and expenditures and pageantry and for years they have had them without stint.

"And now they must pay for the goods they ordered and enjoyed. What they need is not relief works but a little of your conscience and energy."

Another Shaw letter to Astbury dated April 27, 1903, remarks on a wish by Astbury to become a journalist after he lost his job in a meat market.

"The meat market is a place of truth compared to Fleet Street," Shaw wrote.

"Paying journalism means scamped work, conventional ideas, and a tirade of scribbling rapidly and thoughtlessly without losing all the literary presentableness."

THE UNEXPLAINED

Do Objects Have Memories?

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

Do objects, like people, have memories?

Does your watch have a story to tell to someone supersensitive enough to hear it?

Do your cufflinks, your jewel box, even a lowly button from your coat, possess memories which under proper stimulus can be played back as on a tape-recorder?

Recently I saw Chicago psychic Irene Hughes demonstrate her ability to "psychometrize" objects belonging to strangers and from them pick up personal, even intimate facts she couldn't possibly know.

Oh, I'm aware of the trick mentalists who do their own version of this by planting stooges in the audience or by slipping the psychic information in advance.

That was not the case here. The session at which Irene demonstrated was a screened seminar arranged and presided over by myself. There were no electronic bugs to pick up the audience's conversation, no gimmicks. Only the psychic's own impressions.

And they were amazing.

Not that I was surprised. Nothing Irene Hughes does has surprised me since October 14, 1970, when she said on a network of 30 Canadian radio stations that the first arrest in the case of kidnapped British diplomat James Cross would be made in Montreal "on November 5". (The Cross kidnapping by Quebec terrorists was at the time an international incident and headline news.)

The incredible fact — and fact it is, is beyond all preadventure — is that the first arrest in the case came on precisely the day Irene foretold — November 5. The police picked up suspect Bernard Lortie.

Irene Hughes' impressions and prophecies on other aspects of the Cross case (she even described the correct color and year of the kidnap car — a dark green 1963 model)were equally spectacular. So I knew her ESP was real. On this occasion she merely confirmed that conviction.

Objects were collected in a large basket, from the approximately 200 persons present at the seminar. Irene Hughes simply dipped into the pile, picked something out, and began talking — as though a tape-recording was being played back.

Fingering a woman's red plastic change purse, Irene said: "The underworld's associated with this. I see a garage with a truck half in and half out of it . . . There was another woman involved. Do you understand this?"

The woman who owned the object nodded gravely that she did and said that the details were correct.

Then Irene took out a folded woman's scarf and said: "A man put this in the basket."

A middle-aged man acknowledged that he had. He further acknowledged that the scarf had belonged to his late mother, that her first name started with "E", that she was named "Greene" but been a close friend of hers and that the man himself recently had had trouble with his left leg (he said he had broken it a few months before, though he walked with no trace of a limp).

In one case, Irene Hughes fondled an Indian arrowhead and said the man who owned this had hunted hard for his grandfather's grave before finding it in a cemetery overgrown by weeds. The man admitted this was true.

In other cases, Irene Hughes correctly divined that a bell buckle had belonged to a man who was missing and believed dead; that of a trio of teen-age girls in the audience who were planning a trip to Europe one would stay home to get married (the girl in question giggliingly affirmed it was so); and she also warned a man to beware in the near future of walking too close to a magnetic force next to his home (his wife confirmed that there was indeed such a force next to their house).

Peering into the future, Irene Hughes hinted that of two ships planning to sail in 1975 on a full-scale expedition into the famed Bermuda Triangle, the area of disappearing boats and planes, the second may not return.

"I'm going on the first ship as resident psychic," she said, "and they wanted me on the second one too. But nothing would ever induce me to take that trip."

Her listeners were left to draw their own conclusions.

On the Roman Catholic Church, Irene Hughes said Paul VI will be the last pope "in the full sense of the word" and that after his departure in the not-too-distant future the church will be governed more by a "committee" than a single individual.

When I asked Irene how she felt when her predictions didn't work out — and many of them don't — she said: "I'm not a fortune-teller. I'm a psychic who tries to be his five-year-old son, Samson.

Destroyed Hay

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, England (CP) — Farmer Alfred Gase, 58, was drinking tea with his wife when they saw their livelihood go up in smoke with the fire that destroyed the barn, hay supply and equipment. Two children were later charged by police for setting the fire. Gase is suing Kent Council for neglect in supervision.

Showbiz Shorts

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Earthman's Beauregard Jones, the sad-faced, long-eared blood-hound of the Hee-Haw television program, is dead.

The dog, known to his fans as Beau, died Monday of a kidney infection. Taping of the show's fall and winter programs had been completed last week.

Beau usually was pictured on a flower rug or the porch of a hill country home surrounded by the show's beautiful female stars.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dancer Cyd Charisse, economist Chow, an actor, economist and former technical advisor to the Kung Fu television series, pleaded guilty in federal court to income tax evasion.

Chow, 43, admitted Tuesday he evaded $40,000 in taxes by not reporting $119,000 in income from stock sales and commissions. Th income involved a complicated series of real estate transactions Chow helped organize and promote.

Sunday and Monday Horoscopes

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, July 6

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Double-check the validity of supposedly confidential information passed to you today. Your source may have some facts confused.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You still have to be extra-careful in any financial transactions today, or you'll wind up get full value.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't let indecisiveness about your plans today affect others who expect to share an activity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A friend is going to be disappointed when she learns you've revealed what she told you in confidence to a third party.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll have to make an extra effort to day not to overindulge in the good things life has to offer. If discipline goes by the board, so will your waistline.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) To gain admiration from others today you may expend a bit more than you should about a recent accomplishment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You're overly sensitive today in dealing with friends. Be careful not to expect more than they're capable of giving.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be sure that one you're involved with in an investment is not looking to you and your resources to sponsor the venture single-handed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A more dominant personality will be making up your mind for you today to do things you won't enjoy. If you don't stand up for your rights.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your drive and persistence will desert you today when you turn into resistance you could normally handle. Keep plugging.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Take with a grain of salt promises or propositions offered you today by persons at an informal gathering.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have a tendency to put yourself down today when you compare yourself mentally to another. You're wrong. She's not all that hot.

For Monday, July 7

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Good news is coming your way today from several directions. Get in touch with key people who figure in your immediate plans.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your material prospects are extremely promising today. Be extra-alert for opportunity. A good day to ask for that long overdue raise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll be fortunate in dealings today with groups or large organizations, especially if you take your cues from the top.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Things will fall in place for you today without need for you to expend too much effort on your own behalf.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An event occurring today at some distance will prove to be for your benefit. You may learn of it through the mails.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Important strides can be made to day regarding a major goal. Don't waste your time on mundane things that you can take care of later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) A friend's concern today will be far-seeing and profitable. Take follow-up steps to make it a reality.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You can do much better for yourself today in business negotiations if the contracts are in your hands, not in someone else's.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be lucky today in situations where you'll be dealing with a long-time close associate. Each will protect the other's interests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone having a direct influence upon your work or career are extremely favorable today. Do the best job you're capable of.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Whereas yesterday your contacts couldn't be relied upon, the opposite is true today. People will go out of their way to help you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A beneficial break is coming in a situation that will mean something materially to both you and your family. Be patient and hopeful.

To Your Good Health

Air Conditioning Gives Headaches

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thoiesson: My problem is air conditioning. If I'm in a place that has it for more than a few minutes, my head becomes stuffy and I develop a headache, also a sore throat. I sometimes get a head cold from it.

Is there anything I can do to overcome it?—W.C.J.

You are undoubtedly unusually sensitive to drafts and to temperature changes. At home, you may be able to control things by setting the air-conditioner controls low, increasing humidity levels, etc. But elsewhere things are probably pretty well out of your hands.

There is really not much you can do about buildings whose custodians feel they must recreate polar atmospheres indoors. However, with the developing energy crisis, we may find a bit less of this as fuel conservation cuts down on indiscriminate air conditioning.

Do not discount the possibility that your sinuses may be partly to blame. Sudden changes in temperature and atmosphere can play havoc with your nose and sinuses. Yours may be a bit more sensitive than normal. You might have them checked.

Dear Dr. Thoiesson: I have been plagued with baldness since college. It has gotten much worse over the past years, and since I am around people a great deal, this is most embarrassing.

It appears to be worse when I am at places such as church, school, parties, meetings, and this is every week. I have developed a complex.

I have taken the commonly-thought-of things such as regular dental visits, checks for-ear, eyes or throat trouble, for digestive tract problems, etc. I have used gargles, mints, etc., all to no avail!

My husband says my condition probably stems from emotions. If this is true, can there be a solution?—Mrs. H.S.

You seem to have done about everything possible to track down the cause. Your husband may be correct in suggesting an emotional basis, especially if you are a nervous person.

It is interesting that you report episodes of bad or worse-smelling breath. One doctor has written on the subject, noting that he has detected marked changes in breath odor among patients who are awaiting results of certain examinations. He speculates that anxieties may produce symptoms of hallucinosis under stressful situations.

If this is a factor with you, your only recourse is probably in attempting to get your emotions under control.

The most sure suggestion that comes to mind is that of allergy as a possible cause. This can be a factor, and it can be in response to a common, very good food, not necessarily to one of the usual types.

Dear Dr. Thoiesson: My breasts are very sensitive to the touch. I have heard that the contraceptive pill could make this happen. If this is so, should I change pills or go off them completely?—Mrs. J.D.

Birth control pills have been associated, in some women, with breast tenderness. You might try not using them a while to see if the symptoms disappear. Changing to another brand of Pill would not alter your symptoms necessarily, if your present type is, indeed, what is causing the tenderness.

A pill of lower dosage might be helpful, and you should speak to your doctor about this. You should report the symptoms, anyway.

Dredger Converted

ALTON, England (CP) — A British firm has just converted a trailer suction dredger into a self-propelled stationary dredger, capable of dredging to a depth of 115 feet. The converted vessel will be used in the Canadian Arctic in a project to build artificial islands in the Beaufort Sea. The pile of dredger sand from the sea-bed for islands used as oil-exploration drilling sites.

Strict Quotas Are Imposed By Canada on Egg Imports

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has imposed strict limits on egg imports, effective midnight Friday night, a move expected to increase the retail price of eggs.

The quotas were announced Friday by Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, who said earlier this year he would impose import controls if the Canadian egg industry got its jumbled affairs in order.

For the last six months of 1975, imports, mainly from the United States, will be 1.08 million dozen eggs, 413,800 pounds of powdered eggs and 1,984,140 pounds of melange, frozen egg products.

In 1976, the quota will be fixed at 36 per cent of annual Canadian production, which averages 473 million dozen eggs between 1969 and 1973.

The quotas will be accepted on a monthly basis.

Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the food prices review board said her immediate reaction to Mr. Whelan's announcement in a news release was that the restriction will mean higher retail egg prices.

Mrs. Plumptre also said she is concerned about the possibility that the U.S. might retaliate by restricting imports of Canadian beef.

However, a spokesman for Mr. Whelan said the egg restrictions are being done within the terms of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, a pact signed by most of the major industrial nations that they will not impose discriminatory tariffs on each other's products. Therefore, the U.S. would be violating the agreement if it clamped down on Canadian beef.

In announcing the quotas, the agriculture minister said they would foster stability in the Canadian egg industry, an objective that has required the cooperation of provincial governments and regional egg marketing agencies.

Cherry Price Drop Bitterly Protested

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — "If farmers were in industry we'd be out on strike," Peter Buis, a Niagara-on-the-Lake fruit grower and an executive of the Niagara Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association, said Friday.

"But we sit back and take the punishment. We have to bear the consequences of this little merry-go-round."

Mr. Buis was expressing the displeasure of fruit growers about a recent announcement that the price for cherries used for the processing industry had dropped by as much as $140 a ton.

The drop was made by officials of the Ontario Tender Fruit Growers Marketing Board following completion of negotiations with area processing firms. Growers are to receive $300.50 a ton for cherries used in brining and wine making. Last year the price was $440.50 a ton.

Cherries sold for distilling purposes will sell for $180.50 a ton, compared with $200.50 last year. Prices for crops used for canning have yet to be negotiated.

The growers blame the price drop on the import of processed cherries from the United States and Italy where large harvests are reported.

The growers feel the provincial government is turning a deaf ear to requests for compensation.

"The whole future of the fruit industry is not bright," Mr. Buis said.

New Phone Counting System Is Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission Friday approved a Bell Canada application for a new system of counting telephones for exchange grouping purposes.

The new system will exclude extension telephones in the total count of phones in an exchange group. Currently rates are based on the total number of area phones plus extensions and generally the more telephones in an exchange the higher the rates to subscribers.

A Bell spokesman said the new system will cost the company, which serves Ontario, Quebec and parts of the Northwest Territories, more than $2 million in revenue in the next 3½ years.

Davey Hits Lobbying On Time-Digest Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Keith Davey objected Friday to some aspects of what he said was intensive lobbying against the controversial bill to remove the special tax status for advertising in Canadian editions of Time and Readers Digest.

Speaking at the Canadian Public Relations Society annual convention, the senator (Liberal-Ontario) said he is distressed at claims by the Association of Canadian Advertisers and the Institute of Canadian Advertising that the law—to take effect Jan. 1—will not work to the benefit of Canadian publications.

Both groups, which he said are American-dominated, were claiming that Canadians cannot produce magazines of broad national interest, Senator Davey said both groups made almost exactly the same predictions about the fate of the broadcasting industry when Canadian content rules were imposed, and were wrong.

Ex-minister Says Ottawa Soaks Poor, Lets Rich Off

OTTAWA (CP) — Former cabinet minister Herb Gray (L—Windsor West) said Friday the federal government is taking too much from the poor and letting the rich off too easily.

In a speech to a Kiwanis club here, he criticized the government for lack of leadership in the June 23 federal budget and in recent policy statements.

He said the government has failed to follow through with election promises, but added he will continue to work as a Liberal MP to have the government fulfil its potential. The present government still is a better alternative to the other parties, he said.

Much of the speech was devoted to a critical analysis of the 10-cents-a-gallon excise tax on gasoline introduced in the federal budget. The tax is on gasoline for private use. Commercial users will get rebates.

"This new excise tax is regressive," Mr. Gray said. "It falls most heavily on lower-income Canadians. It has nothing to do with ability to pay or need in time."

He said the new tax will add inflationary pressures and is unfair as a conservation device.

The car is the only practical way for millions of Canadians to get to work because public transit is inadequate or not available, Mr. Gray said.

He said the government is encouraging use of rapid transit, but offered nothing to help speed development of urban rapid transit and little for intercity rapid transit in a recent transportation policy statement.

Liberal leaders gave clear commitments on specific transportation proposals in the federal election campaign last year, Mr. Gray said.

He said an alternative to the excise tax to reduce gasoline consumption is to reduce speed limits to a maximum of 50 miles an hour. The government has argued that speed limits are provincial matters.

Premier William Davis of Ontario has asked the federal government to remove the excise tax and Mr. Gray said the federal government can say it will take off the tax if the provinces set maximum speed limits at 55 miles an hour.

He also said housing proposals in the budget appear to do little to tackle housing problems.

New FM Regulations Effective Next Year

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — New FM (frequency modulation) broadcasting regulations will come into effect in September, 1976, limiting commercials and requiring stations to devote more time to thought-provoking programs.

The FM policy announcement by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) Friday delays the plan for one year but reinforces its intention to have FM stations get away from the steady mixture of commercials and background music many now broadcast.

Argentine Cabinet Quits

Strike Threatens Peronist Regime

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The 3.5-million-member General Labor Confederation (CGT), the bulwark of the Peronist political movement in Argentina, began a 48-hour general strike today.

The strike is an attempt to end the influence of government strongman Jose Lopez Rega and roll back his conservative economic policy.

Lopez Rega and the other seven members of the cabinet submitted their resignations to President Isabel Peron Sunday night in an attempt to head off the strike. But the walkout began on schedule at midnight, and CGT leaders said after a meeting with Labor Minister Cecilia Conditi that it would continue.

The union leaders also said they would continue negotiations with the government to find solutions demanded by the country and the legitimate aspirations of its workers."

Labor sources said the cabinet resignations did not avert the strike because Mrs. Peron did not announce acceptance of them or name new ministers.

The general strike was the first full-scale work stoppage called against a Peronist government.

Public transportation stopped at midnight, and restaurants, theatres and bars closed. All hospitals, only emergency staffs were on duty.

Most businesses and industries were not scheduled to reopen until Thursday, since Wednesday is the Independence Day holiday.

The newspaper La Opinion estimates that by the time production resumes, the crisis will have cost the economy more than $800 million, which is more than the country's foreign exchange reserves.

Lopez Rega, the minister of social welfare, also is Mrs. Peron's confidential secretary, chief adviser and in effect prime minister.

Opposition to his conservative policies was brought to a head by Mrs. Peron's announcement Sunday night of a 60-per-cent rising on wage increases and her refusal to ratify wage increases as high as 150 per cent which the unions have negotiated to counter an inflation rate of more than 100 per cent.

Reliable sources said Lopez Rega was urging Mrs. Peron to take over the CGT, draft transport workers and bank clerks into the army and proclaim a state of emergency. But the military leaders were reported to have advised the president not to take action against the CGT.

A provincial legislator, Senator Santiago Atanasof, challenged Lopez Rega to a duel today, saying there was "a cancer in the social body of Argentina and I believe I could be the right surgeon to extirpate it." Lopez Rega ignored him.

Gandhi Restricts Gasoline Use

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Indian government says it will use the emergency powers assumed by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to restrict private consumption of gasoline and electricity to make more energy available to industry.

Finance Minister Chidambaram Subramaniam, in an interview with the government's All-India Radio, also announced plans to limit expense-account living by business and industrial executives and urban land holdings.

The minister gave no details. But the measures will hit hard at the middle class and were seen as another attempt to divert the attention of the masses from Mrs. Gandhi's suspension of civil liberties and widespread arrests of her political opponents.

Mrs. Gandhi imposed emergency rule June 26 to silence demands that she resign because of her conviction on charges of illegal practises in her 1971 campaign for Parliament.

Mrs. Gandhi announced a 20-point economic reform plan that includes limits on the ownership of rural lands to break down the old landlord-serf farming tradition.

In the past laws to take over large estates and divide them among landless peasants have rarely been implemented, mostly because Mrs. Gandhi's Congress party derives much of its support from rural landowners, her critics say.

However, the prime minister gives the impression that this time she will not be deterred.

Emergency decrees empower the police to detain persons for a year without charges against them or without bringing them to trial.

Even NDP Right Wing Wants To Break Corporations' Power

WINNIPEG (CP) — The New Democratic Party elects a new leader today from five contenders who went before 1,800 odd delegates Sunday to espouse principles they say are required to create a Canadian socialist democracy.

Observers were hard pressed to decide who may have spoiled the most points in the final oratorical match of the campaign.

The only undisputed identification was that Douglas Campbell, the part-time Toronto post, taxi-driver and perpetual runner, won't be around after the first ballot.

It was more difficult to judge the effects of the other speeches as supporters threw all their vocal weight behind either Ed Broadbent, Lorne Nystrom, John Harney or Rosemary Brown. Amid the placard-waving, singing and shouting, each candidate said what their followers wanted to hear.

"I will be unbending in my stand against any sort of oppression that crushes people," said Mr. Brown, a British Columbia legislative member who is considered the most radical of the group. She said she would lead the party on solid, socialist principles and there would be worker control, not corporate control.

Mr. Broadbent, parliamentary leader since Mr. Lewis' personal defeat in the 1974 general election, also took on corporate power, shouting that "muscle must be met with muscle."

"Corporate power must be broken. This is the socialist issue of my generation."

Mr. Broadbent, acknowledged as the candidate to beat, was able to ease into his speech after a glowing introduction from T. C. Douglas, a highly popular and powerful former leader.

Mr. Harney, a former MP for Scarborough West, gave his supporters something to shout about with his plea for a greater involvement across the country. Blue and white Harney posters were raised with cheers when Mr. Harney, the only bilingual candidate, said the party must take the message to French Canada, where there now is no elected NDP representation.

Mr. Nystrom, 29-year-old MP from Saskatchewan made a forceful presentation, frequently suggesting a greater self-examination in view of the party's electoral history.

He was proud to have been raised in a socialistic Saskatchewan and he wanted his children raised in a socialistic Canada.

All candidates committed themselves to an unyielding devotion to party principles and to build the NDP from its present parliamentary base of 16 MPs.

Guerrilla Bases Hit By Israel

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli jet land rocket attacks shelled suspected Palestine guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon early today and Beirut said at least three person were killed and dozens injured.

The Israeli command said rockets were fired from western Lebanon at the town of Sa-fad, eight miles south of the border, several hours later but no casualties were reported.

In other major Middle East developments:

—An obscure terrorist group in Beirut threatened to kill kidnapped U.S. Col. Ernest Morgan, 43, of Petersburg, Va., by 8 p.m., Wednesday (2 p.m. EDT) unless the United States gives food and building materials to "the toiling masses." Morgan was abducted from a taxicab June 29 at the height of Beirut street fighting between religious and political factions.

—The Israeli cabinet postponed for at least a week any decision on further withdrawal in the Sinai Desert in order to seek "clarifications and clarifications" from Washington on various issues in the proposed new agreement with Egypt.

"The Israeli command said its "combined forces" struck against "several terrorist bases" in the area of Sohmatah-yeh and Tyre on the south Lebanese coast. The commonique said all Israeli troops returned safely from the raid.

Housing Slows

OTTAWA (CP) — Housing construction, which had picked up in April and May, slowed in June.

The CMHC monthly report on housing starts said that the seasonally-adjusted rate for June starts was 201,300 units, down from 215,700 in May.

Bay Bridge Project

Traffic Study Underway

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

In broiling weather, provincial government study teams toiled away Sunday on the start of a traffic survey linked to the Bay Bridge replacement project. survey was the Rossmore side of the antique causeway - swing bridge route carrying Highway 14 across the Bay of Quinte from Belleville.

It's one of several strategic sites on highways 33 and 14 stated for study of traffic patterns, entering and leaving Prince Edward County in the next two weeks.

Other data will be collected tomorrow, next Sunday and the following Tuesday before the study is complete.

The surveys are to determine origin and destination of vehicles. The data will be fed into the current study—launched by the ministry of transportation and communications (MTC) late last year—which is to produce an alternative to the current Bossmore-Belleville Highway 14 facility where recurrent bridge breakdowns have long been a target of criticism.

Starting at 7 a.m. in what turned out to be one of the warmest days of the summer — the temperature hit up to 31 degrees Celsius — the crews worked a 12-hour stint on the survey.

Questioning lasted about a minute — on both the highway and the adjacent County Road 28 at Rossmore. Motorists were chosen at random — depending on the volume of traffic — in order to keep the flow moving as quickly as possibbee, and avoid long lineups.

One survey crew member said there had been a "few" complaints from motorists but this was not uncommon.

Reason for the timing of the surveys a ministry official explained last week was that Sundays provide a better analysis of weekend travel and tourist traffic. Tuesdays is expected to give a closer reflection of commuter volumes.

Other sites chosen for the survey include Highway 33 at Carrying Place and the Glenora Ferry near Picton.

During the week counts of traffic volumes on Highway 401 access routes also will be made by hand counters without causing any interruptions said a survey supervisor.

Hotel Fire Kills Two

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Two persons were killed and three injured in a fire this morning in the five-storey Wellington Hotel in the city's downtown business district.

Police said the dead are an elderly woman who was a permanent resident of the hotel and a young man who had lived in the hotel about three months.

Fireman Steve Cudle injured his shoulder and was taken to hospital after he tried to aid another fireman who had fallen part way through a floor.

Heat Kills Children Shut in Car

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A young mother who left three children in a closed car in which the heat reached about 40 degrees Celsius—140 degrees Farenheit—is in custody "pending the filing of charges" after two of the youngsters died, a sheriff's spokesman said. A coroner gave an even higher estimate of the temperature.

Authorities were summoned to a sedan parked outside the Sedgwick County courthouse Sunday when one of three children inside the locked auto was seen in convulsions. Victoria Crockett, 5, and Melvin Crockett, 22 months, were unconscious in the back seat and later pronounced dead at a hospital.

Their sister, Stephanie Crockett, 3, responded to treatment and was released.

However, Cpl. Jerry Chambers, 18, said she saw the car in the shadeless parking lot at 1:30 p.m. when she entered the courthouse. She said when she left the building nearly two hours later, a man was at the car calling for help: "Three kids are suffocating."

Sheriff's officers pried open a window and removed the children from the car. "We tried to give them mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external heart massage, but it was too late," one deputy said.

Carter said a licensed practical nurse applied first aid "that prevented Stephanie from dying."

Dr. William Eckert, deputy county coroner, who was at the hospital when the children were brought in, said:

"The ultimate cause of death was the effect of the heat on the brain. Rightly or wrongly, it's been estimated the inside of that car was 150 degrees Fahrenheit," about 65 degrees Celsius.

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — The city's 21 bus drivers went on strike today to back demands for a salary increase of $1 an hour in a one year contract. They now earn $4.15 an hour.

No A-bombs for Taiwan

TAIPEI (AP) — The Taiwan government has no plans to develop any nuclear weapons, a defence ministry spokesman said Monday.

Plan to Cut Dealers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gun control legislation being prepared in the United States by the Ford administration probably will continue a measure aimed at reducing the number of gun dealers in the country. An administration source said: "The proposal is to make the licence fee for dealers high enough so many would find it prohibitive to deal in guns, especially the fly by nights who sell Saturday night specials."

War Possibility Ebbs

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — United States Defence Secretary James Schlesinger said in an interview broadcast Sunday that the possibility of war between North and South Korea has receded in recent weeks.

Unions Fight U.S. Control

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Confederation of Canadian Unions decided Sunday that Canadians should retain control over their contributions to the pension and welfare plans of international unions. A resolution called for legislation making it illegal for Canadian contributions to pension and welfare funds to be administered in the United States.

Aid to Poor Demanded

BEIRUT (AP) — Premier Rashid Karami said today that Lebanese authorities are negotiating with the kidnappers of U.S. Army Col. Ernest Morgan and "we hope to get him released soon." The terrorists have threatened to kill Morgan unless the U.S. Embassy delivers food, clothing and construction material to a Moslem slum by Wednesday.

Mint Workers Gassed

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — About 40 employees of the Royal Canadian Mint were affected by an ammonia gas leak early today, but all have been released from hospital. Yves Garneau of the mint, said workers on the midnight shift noticed a strange smell but didn't become alarmed until two women employees complained of nausea and headaches. Shortly after, the mint was closed. The leakage was caused by normal work, Mr. Garieau said.

Holidays - - at Last

Wally Marmer and wife, Frances, are sending postcards — before they leave on vacation. Reason: They're informing customers that they're shutting up neighborhood East Hill grocery business to take two-week vacation—first time in 41 years the store's been closed more than a day.

It was that way when he took over the business from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marmer, in 1960.

Since that time Wally and his wife have only taken two vacations — a week at a time the last one to Fort Bragg, Bethesda members of the family kept the store running until they returned.

This summer, however, their family have grown up and left home.

This summer they finally decided to take a full vacation. They're going to Europe, where Mrs. Marmer's brother-in-law is a Canadian attache with NATO headquarters at Brussels.

But to train staff for both grocery and pair-of-pants operations for such a brief period wouldn't be convenient, they found.

They decided at last to break with tradition and shut down completely from July 17 to Aug. 2. Friends will live in their house adjoining the shop to keep an eye on things.

But such is their trade-personable customer relationship has also been a Marmer tradition — they decided to tell their clientele know their intentions well ahead of time.

As a result, they're mailing scores of cards to customers who regularly call for delivery service from the store. The others are being informed as they stop by to shop.

Such is the personal touch in their business, they discovered that customers are just as interested in the vacation plans as the Marmers themselves.

"You wouldn't believe the response we had to the cards!," says Wally Marmer. "Some of the customers seems even more thrilled than we are that we've been given a license to finally take a holiday."

Antique Anchor Uncovered

MARMORA — A relic of days may have been the beginning of the lumber trade in Hastings County has surfaced here.

A heavy iron anchor — six feet long with a five-foot crossbar — is now the proud possession of an Oakville family which has been camping in the area for years.

The Anchor, it's actual 19th century and include from was West Point.

Miss Wilkes also donated two samplers and two paintings.

Mr. Gooding notes she donated the butter pat museum opened in 1973.

Arrangements for Miss Wilcox to visit were made by Edward County Home for the Aged, Gordon Ross and Dr. George Chambers.

Museum Opens Doors To Avid Collector

PICTON — Constance Wilkcox, a Picton woman with a life-long interest in Prince Edward County past recently paid a special visit to the Prince Edward County Museum.

A patient at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital for more than a year, Miss Wilkcox was taken by ambulance to see the museum and the display of more than 200 butter pats that she donated.

Museum curator James Gooding says the butter pats date to the last half of the Holidays Rare Event For Corner Store Owners

Taking a vacation is an annual event for most people.

But for one Belleville couple it's such a novelty they're even mailing postcards before they go.

It's partly the nature of the business.

There's been a store on the site since about 1918. It's been in the Marmer family since 1932.

In those 43 years, says Mr. Marmer, the store which also includes the neighborhood's post office — has never been closed for more than one day.

Anchors Away

Gary Allerdale, 15, of Oakville came to lift aged anchor recovered by brother Paul, 18, while scuba divinig at Crowe Lake. The anchor, believed a relic from lumbering days in the Marmora area, stands six feet high and now decorates the family's camp site on the lake.

Further Charges Laid After Madoc Melee

MADOC — Further charges were drafted during the weekend by provincial police here which now will result in 13 people appearing in court following a fracas here June 28.

A woman is among five additional people against whom charges have been laid.

Last weekend eight men were charged following the incident at the Kiwanis Summerfest dance here.

Provincial police said Sunday they now also have charged Randy William Lowery, 19, Marmora — assaulting an officer and causing a disturbance; Deborah Katherine Harris, 20, Marmora, — causing a disturbance; Randal Dowsett, 19, Madoc causing a disturbance; Phillip Joseph Allore, 29, Belleville, — causing a disturbance.

A charge has also been drawn against a Toronto man but had not been served by Sunday night.

Additional charges of assaulting an officer were also laid against David Scaife, Gilmour; Arthur Smith, Gilmour and Charles Edward Baumhauer, of Crookston. They had earlier been charged with causing a disturbance, when they were among the eight originally arrested.

All are to appear in court Sept. 9.

Service Honors Dead Flyer

A memorial service was held Sunday in Belleville for one of the Quinte district's most widely-known flyers.

Howard Rowe, of 14 Lee Ave., was killed when the watermobile he was flying against 3 forest fire crashed July 2, 75 miles north of Vancouver.

The brother of Russell Rowe, Ontario legislature speaker, he had lived in Belleville for the last eight years. A native of Campbellford, he first joined the armed services in the 1940s and retired from the air force with the rank of captain in 1970 after various assignments overseas and across Canada.

On his retirement, he became a civilian pilot, watermombing in western Canada. He also flew crop-dusting aircraft in the Atlantic region.

Mr. Rowe was also well-known among private flyers in the Quinte district.

The memorial service was held at Eastminster United Church, conducted by Rev. Ralph Morrison.

Besides his wife, Enid, and brother, Mr. Rowe also leaves three daughters — Mrs. Paul (Donna) Goodfellow, and Mrs. Ron (Susan) Harris, of Belleville and Darlene, at home and a sister, Mrs. Annie Dutton, of Campbellford.

Fiddlers on the Roof

EPSOM, England (CP) — Two men climbed to the roof of a school and stripped off much of the lead roof-covering as the staff and children watched. They said the local council had sent them. When they didn't remove the next day, school officials investigated and found the school had been robbed of $2,400 worth of lead.

Fluoride Program Continues

The first year fluoride clinic program, conducted by the Hastings and Prince Edward County Health Unit, will continue during the summer at the health unit office at 208 East Bridge St. here.

On an appointment - basis only, the summer portion is a stand-in for the in-school part which was completed at the end of June.

The program began today and will finish Aug. 1. Dr. Dennis Warrick, director of dental services, says it is expected the four-week clinic will treat about 1,000 children.

He explained since it is only by appointment, "the utilization is generally not what it should be. Our problem is to educate the community to utilize a free service and to book 1,000 appointments."

Dr. Warrick pointed out the service is free of charge. "If a dollar value were attached to this service, to this point it would amount to $18,360 — according to standard Ontario Dental Association fee schedule."

Children from five to nine years of age are eligible and must be accompanied to the clinic by a parent or responsible adult.

The treatment is "provided by a dental hygienist and includes a thorough cleaning followed by the application of a fluoride solution to the teeth. Taking about 15 minutes, it is painless and will make the teeth more resistant to decay — reducing cavities up to 40 per cent in the next year, said Dr. Warrick.

He said the in-school portion, started March 19, has seen portable equipment moved from school to school to treating 1,671 grades one and two students at 26 schools. About 86 percent of the eligible students participating took advantage of the program.

Fireman and Flowers

City firemen like Jack Finkle man hoselines for more than emergency reasons in summertime. With sustained dry spell there's always the flowers to water — keeping up trim appearance of West Dundas St. firehall, until the rain returns.

Momentum Key Says City Centennial Chairman

Plans for the Belleville Centennial are gradually gaining momentum but the most difficult problem will be sustaining interest over the next 2½ years, says Lawrence Kelly, committee chairman.

"Right now it's important to keep interest high among the originators of the concept," he said in an interview. "for continued participation in the formation of the celebration."

A committee, a steering committee of 15 people meets with Mr. Kelly to discuss ideas for involving Belleville people and associations in the planning and celebration.

"You can derive many new ideas when 15 people provide the input," Mr. Kelly said.

The committee is following many avenues to assure community participation.

"We sent letters to local clubs, associations and eight chambers of commerce with suggestions on how they might take part in Centennial '78," Mr. Kelly said.

Individuals have been encouraged to schedule family reunions, invite foreign visitors visit the Canadian Nation on Belleville Day and even suggest ideas for events.

"We are suggesting the area service clubs particularly if they are provincial or nationally affiliated, work toward a convention or a general meeting in Belleville in 1978," Said Mr. Kelly.

Personally, Mr. Kelly and his wife, the official host and hostess for the city have been active during the last month speaking to groups about the centennial.

We take the pressure off the time demand made upon the mayor by speaking for her at those meetings, said Mr. Kelly," and we will be available to speak in the future to any groups requesting a speaker on Centennial.

Old-time Fiddling Attracts Young Element

MARMORA — Who thought old-time fiddling is just for oldtimers?

Today it isn't even just for adults.

More and more youngsters are getting into the act.

And they're not just fiddling around. They're taking their music seriously, say veterans who were here Saturday for this village's seventh annual Old-Time Fiddlers Contest.

Age of the entrants range over the 70s. There was even a great-grandmoth — 63-year old Audrey Gilmour, of Campbellcroft, Ont., who fiddled to third prize among the oldtimer competitors.

But then there were ones like Donnell Leahy of Lakefield, and Tommy Perth, both aged seven—also prize winners in their own class.

"They youngsters are far more interested in old-time fiddling than ever before," said Norman Post, Belleville-area musician whose Cross-Country Jamboree co-sponsored the contest.

"And they're keener than ever before. The status of their fiddling is fantastic," he added.

Old-time fiddling is on the upswing — and a main indicator is the presence of so many young players, said Jim, who has been playing 25 years.

"There are young kids seven and eight years playing at these contests now. When I was young you never saw that," he said.

As if to prove the point about youth, 14-year-old Ricky Cormier, of Bay Ridges, Ont., arrived too late for the youngster's contest, entered the amateur class with adult—and won first prize.

The Leahy family from Lakefield made it a family affair. Besides young Donnel winning a trophy, his father, Frank placed third among professional fiddling contestants. Sisters Denise, 9, and Julie, 10 won first and second prizes for youngsters' step-dancing while Chrissy Leahy won second in senior step-dancing.

Entry fees last year were given to Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children. A charity for this year's donation has yet to be decided, said Mr. Post.

Winners were: Old-time fiddling (children) — Albert Moher, Lakefield; Donnell Leahy, Lakefield; Glen Warburton, Peterborough; Tommy York, Perth; (Open amateur) — Ricky Cormier, Bay Ridges; Kevin Reger, Elmira; Ray Sullivan, Peterborough; Hank Goltz, Massey. (Professional) — Harlan Elder, RR 2 Baltimore; Jim Conners, Ottawa;—Frank Leahy Lakefield; (Oldtimers) — Tommy Sullivan, Lakefield; Audrey Gilmour, Campbellcroft; Stewart Thompson, Nestleton.

175 Units Clinic Goal

Blood donations have increased this year in Belleville.

That's one reason the city's Red Cross branch is optimistic about its next clinic — July 18 at Centennial Secondary School.

The summer holiday period usually sees a slackening in donations. Ironically, it also is a peak time of demand for blood due to the increase in accidents, points out a local Red Cross official.

As a result, a special request this year has been received for as many donors as possible from the organization's Ontario division — which distributes blood to the province's hospitals.

Last year's summer clinic at Belleville produced 167 donors. The target this year is at least 175.

So far this year clinics in Belleville have produced 1,706 donors — compared with a total 1,850 in 1974. If targets are met at next week's clinic and the final one of the year in October, the Red Cross is hopeful that last year's donations may be bettered.

All in the Family

Old-time fiddling is a family affair for the Leahy's of Lakefield, near Peterborough. Father Frank gives attentive ear as seven-year-old son Donnell, times up for annual contest at Marmora Saturday night. Both won prizes in the event — as did the family's daughters who entered step-dancing competitions.

Chamber Selects Out-of-Town Printer To Prepare Booklet on Belleville

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

The Chamber of Ommerce will sponsor a booklet about Belleville that will be printed by a Windsor firm, says George Thompson, president of the organization.

The brochure, which will be 30-er-cent editorial and 70-per cent advertising, will be financed by the ads and sold in bulk for $1.00-$1.50 at chamber offices.

Mr. Thompson said the out-of-town company was chosen because no local printing firm offered a competitive price during the chambers first-year search for a publisher.

"Our search has not turned up anyone in the community who is prepared to undertake the entire project at a comparable cost," he said.

"We originally explored having it done locally but it was too expensive," he said in an interview. "The prices have been more than we can afford.

The current Belleville brochure is 11 years old, outdated and the chamber is near the end of its supply.

"It is a matter of record last year we proposed to the city to publish a brochure," said Mr. Thompson, "but we received $2,500 less than we asked for (from council)."

He said the Windsor firm has a complete shop capable of doing the whole job including writing copy for the brochure.

"The chamber is appointing an editorial committee that has final say over the contents," said Mr. Thompson.

The magazine can be used by local industries for recruiting, by the city for general publicity and by the chamber for its tourist and convention bureaus.

Mr. Thompson said the chamber will be purchasing pamphlets from the Windsor firm which are a by-product of the larger brochure.

They will include color photographs used in the brochure, will cost about 10 cents per pamphlet and will be used for tourism and general distribution.

"The pamphlets are available to the chamber because of a package price," said Mr. Thompson.

The chamber hopes the project will work in Belleville.

"It has been well received in other cities and we are confident it will obtain the same type of reception in Belleville."

Window Smashed

A 17-year-old Belleville area youth has been charged by city police with wilful damage in connection with an incident at a downtown parking lot early Sunday.

A police spokesman identified the youth today as Gord Patrick Tomaso of RR 4, Belleville.

The spokesman said Constable Jim Smith was on foot patrol on Front at St. about 1 a.m. when he heard glass breaking at the Don Har Parking Lot.

He said Constable Smith observed a person withdrawing his arm from the parking lot ticket booth through a shattered window. The person was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital for cuts to his left hand and arm.

Mail Stolen

City police have issued an advisory to persons who placed mail in a mailbox at the corner of Coldate Rd. and Victoria Ave. either late Friday or Saturday.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today the mailbox was overturned, envelopes removed and found about a nearby hedge and some of the envelopes opened and the contents stolen sometime Saturday.

He advised that anyone who placed mail containing cheques in the receptacle should stop payment and issue new cheques. It is not known what was stolen.

Bug Packs Wallop

BANNOCKBURN — A car towing another vehicle took out 12 highway guide posts and two steel highway guide sticks after it was in collision with a 1973 Volkswagen Sunday on Highway 62 at Bannockburn Roadside Park near this hamlet located about 10 miles north of Madoc.

Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc said a 1969 Dodge, driven by Joseph Aubrey Lestard, 29, of Eldorado was towing a 1967 Ford, operated by Shayne Ray, 18, of Bannockburn, when it swerved to avoid a car driven by Murray Lorne Leavitt of the Moscrea area which was leaving the park.

Constable Carl Campbell estimated $400 damage to the right front and left rear of Lessard's car, $200 damage to the towed vehicle and $135 to the highway equipment. Leavitt's car was not damaged. There were no injuries in the

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 48-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today:

Sunday, July 6, 5:18 p.m. — fire in motor of car parked at 224 East Moira St., caused by faulty electrical wiring, damage confined to wiring. Vehicle owned by Ted Hill of 17 Second St.

Music in the Air

Hundreds of people turned out for the free Sunday band concert at Zwick's Island despite temperatures recorded near 31. Ray Hebert and the Green Tones band filled the air with music.

Contract Signed

The chamber of commerce officially became the sponsors of a high - quality brochure about Belleville when George Thompson, president, signed a contract with a Windsor publishing firm. The magazine is designed for use by local industry in attracting skilled labor and tourism.

Radio Club to Continue Despite End of EMO

SHANNONVILLE — Members of what claims to be the oldest communications organization of its kind took time out for their annual picnic near here Sunday.

Usually the Tri-County General Service Radio Club is visible in a more serious fashion.

The organization, which now counts 108 members, says president Frank Keegan, of Belleville, uses citizen-band radio for community service.

As such, it provides a network across Hastings, Prince Edward, and Lennox and Addington counties.

Now in its 8th year, it was the first such organization formed in Canada, says Mr. Keegan.

Highly mobile, its members have made themselves felt in their personal vehicles. For many years they have played a major role in the provincial Emergency Measures Organization (QEMO).

Because of lack of funding from senior and local governments, QEMO's executive recently decided it was impossible to keep the service operable.

"We've been closeknit with QEMO and we're sorry to see it's folded," said Mr. Keegan, who estimated about a third of the club's active members have hitherto involved emergency measures work.

But the club also has many more demands on its services and will remain active as ever, he said.

"We're approached all the time to provide all sorts of communications," he added.

The citizens' group can have its vehicles "anywhere, any time on 24-hour call."

"We're still available in any emergency in three counties."

Among events for which it provides communications are the Quinte Exhibition, road rallies, parade and sports events, said the president.

International Whaling Commission in Move to Save a Threatened Species

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Anyone interested in stopping whaling? Maybe not. But we should be.

If man wants to continue to exterminate himself, as in the Middle East, Lebanon, the jungles of the Philippines, anywhere in the world where he presently wants to fight, we can at least end our efforts at wiping the whale from the face of the sea.

And at last the International Whaling Commission has agreed to move in this direction, after years of opposition from its members and when some species of the giant mammal are at the point of extinction.

The two largest whale-hunting nations, Japan and the Soviet Union, have agreed to cease or severely reduce the hunting of several species of whales which their fishing activities are slowly depleting forever.

Last year the Japanese alone accounted for 38 per cent of the total world whale catch or about 27,300 whales. What a staggering slaughter, considering a fine mammal whose mating routines will no longer keep up with the number of whales being killed and lifted from the sea.

The Russians to do this job, build and operate the largest fishing ships ever built, 44,000-ton factory trawlers built in the Crimea about 15 years ago, as large as ocean passenger liners.

The Japanese fish factory ships are somewhat smaller and between the two fleets, they have the technological capacity to kill, process and package every living whale on earth.

Of course there were quotas agreed to by them and the other member nations of the International Whaling Commission, like Norway and Britain.

But they were based on so-called national need and not on the fish biological statistics which continued to show these beasts of the sea were being fished out.

And now Japanese seamen and consumer associations are complaining about the decision. Well that's too bad for both groups.

The Japanese who can still copy or find substitute materials for just about everything they need including food, know perfectly well that there is nothing they can feed a slaughtered whale, oil, bone and fishmeal to other parts like the vital organs, which cannot be replaced with artificial substitutes.

Where food is concerned, the Japanese have made beef-eating into an art even more refined than in the West to expand their protein needs.

The organic parts of the whale often used in industrial manufacture can easily and safely be replaced with synthetic substitutes.

And if the Japanese say they must have whale meat as part of their basic food supply, let them copy the Communist Chinese who have fewer scientific resources than Japan, but are changing much of the rice diet of their people to obtainable wheat.

The same response goes for the Russians who insist whale meat is a food staple for the P's. That's bunkum.

Let the Russian who fish our seas literally clean with domestic meat and dedicated scientific turn their large scientific skills, (which can also send a man to the moon) to inventing protein replacements for whale meat and oil.

The whale however, will not be safe until we stop hunting it altogether, once and for all. There are still about a dozen nations out there harpooning these magnificent beats for food, drug and clothing needs we can do without on land or substitute for something else.

There isn't a valid reason left to our species, innovative world for killing a single whale for commercial use.

We arrive in the bunch of 19th century New Englanders who will live cold and deprived lives without whale oil to light our homes or blubber to keep us warm.

Our deprivation today is in continuing to kill the whale.

Nuclear Power Output

With the re-opening of Bancroft's Faraday uranium mine booming on the horizon, some optimistic words from a Montreal investment firm are in order.

Levesque, Beaubien Inc. notes that by the end of 1974, some 55 nuclear power stations were generating seven per cent of the total electricity produced in the United States.

For Canadian uranium producers, such developments are making this country a nuclear power in a new sense of the word.

Following the infamous Arab oil embargo, for example, Canada's two largest producers of uranium — Rio Algom Ltd. and Denison Mines — received orders for more uranium than the total proven reserves of both companies.

Then there was the Italian government's $6- million order that paved the way for the Faraday re-opening.

Aware of the surge in demand for Canadian uranium, the federal government last September formulated an export policy to ensure that adequate reserves of the invaluable resource remain in the country.

As economically exciting as our uranium export potential may be, Ottawa must be choosy when it comes to its customers.

For example, the present state of internal turbulence in India must send shivers up and down the collective Canadian spine when one considers the sale of CANDU reactors gave that country the cornerstone for building atomic weapons.

Passions for profit must be tempered by a desire for world peace.

GUN CONTROL

Government Publications Heavy Going — and Costly

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Publications! Have we got publications! One word has it that provincial officials these days think that their job is not to govern but to publicize.

This is not an accurate estimate but a recent calculation in that it would take any medium-paced reader about 10 hours a day, and with a week off for Christmas, two years to get through any one year's government reports, periodicals, pamphlets and the plain printing pieces (and that's a bit of a misnomer, for government publications are seldom "plain").

In front of me on my desk is just one day's accumulation of government printing pieces.

Aside from the Hansard and estimates these include:

A Directory of Community Groups in Ontario.

Ontario Historic Sites, Museums, Galleries and Plaques. A Metric Style Guide.

Guidelines on the Designation of Heritage Conservation Districts.

Insight: Development Control of the Niagara Escarpment Commission.

The 22th annual report of the Ontario Racing Commission.

The 8th annual report of the Niagara Parks Commission.

The annual report of the Workmen's Compensation Board.

As is obvious from their titles these publications have varying degrees of interest to the public, though in most cases the scope is quite limited.

But from the layman's viewpoint the most interesting point can be the different calculation placed on them by the producers in terms of cost and quality of production.

Thus the report of the racing commission, which certainly has a limited interest, is presented with a silver cover and the best of paper and printing.

The Niagara Parks Commission report probably has a wider audience, but does it justify a four-color cover and 21 other illustrations?

There unquestionably is waste, great waste, in our government publications.

In fact if the premier would teach Maxwell Henderson from his spending committee he might be able to produce a report which would save us a nickel or a gallon of that extra money we are going to pay for gasoline.

The Sexist Seventies

Hell hath no fury like that of the women who would have nothing to do with beauty contests.

Yet they go on, even in this International Women's Year which seeks to increase public awareness of feminine qualities other than appearance and a somewhat fading role as handmaiden to men.

A 19-year-old Napanee girl, Jacqueline Wilson, has finished first runner-up in the Miss Dominion of Canada contest which, women's libbers notwithstanding, brings rewards and travel opportunities that would be out of the question otherwise.

And they begin immediately, as in the case of Normande Jacques, the 21-year-old bilingual lass from Blind River who won this year's title and left next day for El Salvador and the Miss Universe pageant.

Indeed, when International Women's Year is over, one of the most enduring things about women that will remain is the fact of their femininity. Their beauty too which, exploitive or not, will continue to give rise to beauty contests and provide work for models.

A Mormon women's representative has been quoted as expressing "increasing concern with the intensity of the so-called women's movement." Ruth Funk says some of the aims of the movement are selfish. She doesn't elaborate, but it is indicative of the trauma that goes with some of the activities of this Women's Year.

Another case in point, the dissension that marked part of the recent women's conference in Mexico City, best symbolized perhaps by a picture of two Latin American women scuffling for possession of the microphone. The issue, ironically: leadership.

Miss Jacques of Blind River meanwhile retains ideas about old world courtesy. "I definitely think that a man should open a door for a lady," she says. And how would we get to hear such a view expressed by our women-folk without the vehicle of events such as beauty contests?

A Marriage That Failed

If it was "one of the world's best marriages" then why didn't it "make it to the finish line?"

That is the question Ann Landers' readers are asking themselves. The syndicated columnist with a readership of millions is not offering any explanations herself and has asked that there be no questions either.

Of course there will be endless speculation as to why a marriage that has survived 36 years is in Splittsville.

Yet divorce after such a span is not without precedent. U.S. Vice-president Rockefeller divorced his wife of 20 years to marry again. Still, the Landers marriage had remained firm also twice that number of years. Naturally the question that is uppermost is "Why?" Look to the glossy magazines for any number of answers.

Alcohol a Prime Social Problem And Television Contributes to It

The Christian Science Monitor

As a series in The Monitor illustrates, the television industry continues to indirectly exacerbate what experts agree to be the nation's "No. 1 drug problem" — alcohol consumption.

Despite recent amendments to the code of the National Association of Broadcasters designating certain hours as "family viewing time" and industry officials' own agreement to de-emphasize liquor, alcoholic drinks continue to be featured on 80 per cent of network prime-time shows, in some cases as often as every eight minutes.

There is no way that this kind of presentation can be construed as an ABC executive told this newspaper) as "a reflection of the actual American scene." Nor can this degree of emphasis on drinking be interpreted as "consistent with plot and character," as the broadcaster's self-imposed code requires.

There is no doubt that excessive alcohol consumption has become an increasing problem in the United States. One out of 14 drinkers is an alcoholic, and the total economic loss to the country from alcohol abuse is 25 billion. Most alarming is the evidence showing that more young people are drinking today, and that they are starting at an earlier age.

This is why the television industry now voluntarily limits liquor advertising. But as with the magazine now being given to criticism of TV violence, network officials have a responsibility to show that frequent drinking is not a natural or necessary part of life.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sir Thomas More, once Henry VIII's chief minister, was executed for treason 440 years ago—in 1535—after being convicted on perjured evidence. He refused to take the oath of supremacy accepting the Englishmen as the head of church. He was canonized in 1935.

Kids, Cycles, Motorists

Detroit Free Press

A pretty Grosse Pointe 14-year-old is finally convinced that a contest between a bicycle and a four-door sedan is bound to come out badly for the cyclist.

But she may not realize that such a confrontation is hard on the motorist, too.

Bikes . . . they are everywhere. In addition to saving a little gas and strengthening muscles, they give young kids, teenagers, even a special chill to zipping down a hill full 100 feet without whizzing past one's ears.

Nothing quite is a car proceeding across the bottom of the hill, the material feeling a sense of false security because he is on a stop street.

Sometimes the kids post lookouts at the bottom of the hill, a little, if the lookout does see, he proceeds forward very cautiously.

And sometimes the young people play bicycle roulette, taking a chance the intersection will be clear, or just plain unable to stop.

Whichever, a fellow driving through Grosse Pointe over the weekend was appalled to feel bumped and celebrated as the little tot, the terrified eyes of a young lady on the back of his car.

She slid off onto the pavement in front of the car. Fortunately, the driver was able to stop before he ran over her.

The police were on the scene in seconds, and an ambulance and the girl was bundled off to a hospital. That the guy that did it? The tall fellow in the gray shorts? Yeah, that's him.

The girl was in distress, but the injury turned out to be a dislocated shoulder. She was up and about in a day. A very fortunate kid. Youth is resilient, and the episode will fade fast in memory.

The motorist, however, will never forget. After driving since 1927 without ever being involved in a personal injury accident, he matter how innocuous, it is a brutal shock to find out how easy it is to be a party to the infliction of it.

He inched home and two hours later he was still so shaky he was afraid he could not risk carrying a roast of beef.

Easy does it. Kids. The person who kills you may be somebody's daddy.

Vacation Semantics

Montreal Gazette

A couple of Monday holidays in a row have got many people thinking of the advantages of pegging holidays to Mondays in order to have long weekends. The issue is not of vital importance to those who can give coaxing arguments for and enjoy a long-long-weekend, but in this world of residual work ethic, collective contracts, scientific management, organizational efficiency and all that, they are but the lucky few.

Queen Victoria has already graciously, if posthumously assented to the transfer of her birthday to a Monday; indeed, it is not celebrated on the birthday of Queen Elizabeth II as lady on the throne. Nobody knows as Ali Mosaraffa Monday without disrespect to sovereigns alive and dead and without to the advantage of the toiling masses,

Displays, Hikes and Talks Part of Nature Program

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

OUTLET PARK — A Carp, Ont. man, Richard Beckolay, is this summer's park naturalist at Outlet-Sandbanks Provincial Park.

Now in its fifth season, the interpretive program is geared to stimulate interest in the park's natural history.

For Mr. Beckolay this is his first year as park naturalist at Outlet and his first year in interpretive work of any kind, and according to the staff naturalist, "response to the programs offered is good".

One of the main attractions of the program is the amphitheatre, located near the entrance to the camping area. Here, audio-visual programs based around Outlet and Sandbank Parks are presented twice weekly. Prior to each showing, said Mr. Beckolay, the area is fogged with a concentrate to eliminate insect pests.

Included in Mr. Beckolay's program this summer, which runs from this month until the end of August, are canoe trips, dawn hikes and bicycle trips, all taking place within the two parks on Tuesday and Sundays.

The naturalists' building, popularly know as the "nat shack," houses a display of photographs and specimens of local found insects, plants and birds. Mr. Beckolay said he hopes to include a live display of snakes and turtles soon as part of the program.

The park visitors seem to get a lot out of the program and films," said Mr. Beckolay. "They have brought up a number of very good questions.

According to the "nat shack" register, the program has enjoyed visitors from all over Ontario, parts of the United States as well as Brussells, Greece and Paris.

Firewood Rationed

OUTLET PARK — Inflation has hit Outlet Park and no longer will campers enjoy a limitless supply of firewood with which to make their fires. All firewood stacks in the camping sites have been removed and campers must now procure their rationed quantities from a central wood area, Robert Davidson, park superintendent, said.

"the change is necessary to lessen maintenance costs in the park.

James Ives, law enforcement officer at the park, says some campers are wasteful, piling unnecessary amounts of wood on their fires and that must have a fire just to create an authentic atmosphere at their campsite.

Authors Visit Shop

PICTON — Richard and Janet Lunn, of Hilliler, co-authors of The County, were at the County Book and Craft Shop in Picton Saturday for a book signing party.

The book, on Prince Edward County, was written in 1967 as a Centennial project and has sold almost 600 copies.

Acclaimed as the only history of the county to be published, the book is an "informal history and a gathering of impression", says the authors.

Janet Lunn also signed copies of her book Saturday, Twiaspell, a ghost-mystery story for young children.

Farmers Hold Meeting

PICTON — The Prince Edward Federation of Agriculture will be holding its July meeting tonight at 8:15 p.m. at the agricultural office just west of here.

Bancroft Market Opens Saturday

BANCHOFT — The toe-tapping music of a country band and a sunny day combined to make the inaugural day of the Bancroft ARC Industries Market Place a success...

The market place, which is a combination of farmer's market and flea market, is held on the South Baptiste Lake Road at Highway 62, two miles north of Bancroft.

According to ARC Industries assistant supervisor, Joan Altoff, employees of the workshop will be operating a refreshment booth and selling crafts made in the workshop in L'Amable.

The ARC employees will be taking orders for solid cedar garden benches which are made in the workshop.

Also available at the market place are fresh produce, mennonite home baking, leather crafts, candles, old books and antiques.

The market place will operate every Saturday in July and August, rain or shine, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Two Held In Theft

PICTON — Two Prince Edward County men were charged with break, entr, and theft on Saturday night following an incident at Rickarton Hotel on Bridge Street.

Det. George Wright of the Picton police department said William Newcombe, 17 of RR 2 Picton, and Darcy Heezen, 18, of RR3 Picton, were charged after the door of upstairs office at the hotel was kicked open and about $5 in change taken. The theft occurred while a dance was in progress at the hotel.

Open-air Market

Home baked goods by members of a local Mennonite community were a big hit at the Bancroft ARC Industries workshop, Market Place Saturday. The market is open Saturdays throughout the summer.

On Duty

Church Marks Birthday With Old-fashioned Supper

BOULTER — Members of the congregation of the Carlow United Church in Boulter have spent the last several months getting ready for the centennial celebrations of the church this weekend.

In a program that ranged from an old, 'home town' baseball game and children's games through a pioneer - cooked beef and beans dinner, church members and Boulter natives , from all parts of Canada and the United States renewed acquaintances.

The dinner, which was cooked by 86-year-old John David Lavoy and other congregation members, was the highlight of the two-day event.

The beef were cooked for 36 hours in 14 large pots in a hot sand pit.

The beef and potatoes simmered away for the afternoon in enormous caldrons, over outside wood fires.

"My grandfather used to be a cook for camps," said Mr. Lavoy, "and this is the way that he would have made the meal, only the bread would be cooked down there with the beans too."

The dinner was served in six shifts to the estimated 600 people attending and took more than four hours to complete.

According to congregation member Gladys Caldwell, the preparations for the meal take about one month.

"We used to do this every year on the first of July," said Mrs. Caldwell. "We've often served more than 600. This year, we had 160 pies donated."

The festivities at the Carlow United Church concluded on Sunday with an open air service attended by several hundred people.

Couple in Hospital After Sunday Mishap

MADOC — A 66-year-old RR 2, Marmora man and his wife are in Belleville General Hospital today with injuries suffered in a two-car accident Sunday on Highway 62 about a mile north of this village.

A hospital spokesman said Thomas Belanger is in fair condition with an injured right shoulder, fractured ribs and internal injuries and his wife, Phyllis, is in serious condition in the intensive care unit with severe face and head injuries.

Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc said the Belangers were eastbound in their 1967 Chevrolet on a township road when they were in collision with a southbound 1973 Ford station wagon driven by William Percy Gaze, 50, of Wilkesville.

Gaze, his wife, Beatrice and another passenger Jean Schoeneau, 59, of Oshawa suffered cuts and bruises but only Mrs. Gaze required treatment at the Madoc Medical Centre.

Constable D.C. Bush estimated $1,500 damage to the front end of the Gaze car and $600 to the left side of the Belanger vehicle.

Men Still Serious

Two Marmora men remained in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Belleville General Hospital today with injuries suffered in a two-car accident late Friday on Highway 7 west of Madoc which killed three other people.

A hospital spokesman said James Nobes, 28, of 16 North Hastings St. in Marmora and Michael Francis O'Connell, 70, of RR 4, Marmora are serious. Nobes has head injuries and O'Connell has severe chest injuries, he said.

Killed were William Murray, 26, of 29 Charlotte St. in Belleville and Larry Phillips, 26, of 39 Pearce St. in Marmora. Ken Foremen 19, of 34A Lundy's Lane in Kingston died two hours after arrival at Kingston General Hospital.

1,200 Cadets Begin Summer of Training

TRENTON — This summer personnel attending Trenton Air Cadet Camp 75 will be introduced to a new concept in the training schedule aimed for less emphasis on parade square drill. Instructors intend to keep the youth occupied by organizing them, with historic and technical points of interest in a number of Ontario locations.

"We're experimenting with a fun-oriented program while playing down the military aspect," explained the camp's chief training officer, Maj. D. V. Crandell as young cadets in numbers arrived at the tent village they will call home for the next two weeks.

The camp, located on the west boundary of the big air base hummed with activity during the weekend with permanent staff involved in numerous tasks in preparation for the official opening today.

Before leaving, following colorful graduation ceremonies on Aug. 15, some 1,500 cadets (including 70 young women); will have specialized training designated to equip them for careers in Canada's armed forces.

Among the first cadet arrivals on Sunday was the 608 Duke of Edinburgh Unit sponsored by the Belleville branch of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans.

Earlier in the day, four cadets from Belleville's 608 squadron boarded a 707 jet transport on a flight to centres in northern and western Canada for courses in specialized training.

LACs Steven Kaye and Pat McArtie went to Whitehorse in the Yukon for two weeks instruction in survival under realistic conditions.

For the first time this year, navy and air cadets are being admitted to the army cadet leader camp situated in the Rocky Mountains at Banff, Alta. In order that LAC Robin Drummond from Belleville to graduate from that school, he will have to march 100 miles with a 40-pound pack on his back and climb a vertical cliff 1,000 feet high along the route.

Destination for Cpl. Don Fish was Cold Lake, Alta., where he has been enrolled in a senior leader's course for six weeks.

The summer camp enrolment here this year represents many places across Ontario, as well as Lahr, Germany.

Glider flight instruction at Mountain View airport is again high on the list of offbase training. Prospective young fliers will find a member of the opposite sex in their midst for the first time.

Cadet Susan Horvath, 17, a Grade 13 student from Toronto joined the other one-male cadets at th ecamp Sunday. She starts taking glider instruction this week.

On Friday, CFB Trenton base commander Col. J. C. Henry and TACC 75 commanding officer Col. R. R. Maznier placed their stamp of approval on the summer camp at the conclusion of a tour of administrative and accommodation facilities.

Mishap Minor

WELLINGTON — Damage was estimated at $325 in a two-car accident ½ miles west of here on Highway 33, Friday evening.

Picton Opp said a car driven by 53-year-old Norman Howard Van Horne of Bloomfield was in collision with a vehicle driven by 18-year-old Robert Boyce of Wellington.

A passenger in the Van-Horne vehicle, Hilda Evans, 56, of RR 8, Picton, received bruises in the mishap.

Doma Rhago was among the first group of Tibetans to come to Belleville in 1971. Doma says that in Tibet, yak meat would be used in the following recipe for Tsail and Labug. The flesh of the yak has a higher percentage of protein (50 per cent) than that of any other domestic animal and more than twice as much as beef — so small portions of meat are used in Tibetan cooking.

Tsail and Labug

½ medium-sized onion, sliced into strips
¾ pound stewing beef, cut into ½ inch cubes.
½ tsp. salt
Pinch of monosodium glutamate (optional)
One head of Chinese cabbage, sliced into shreds.
dash of Worchestershire sauce
1 tsp. vinegar

Saute the onion in cooking oil for about one minute, add the beef, salt and monosodium glutamate and 'coolinse' to saute until the meat is browned. Cover the pot, lower the heat and simmer the meat and onion gently until the beef is tender. Add the Chinese cabbage and worchestershire sauce, cover the pot and simmer the contents until the cabbage is wilted, but not cooked completely. Add vinegar, stir and serve.

Labug

Labug is prepared with the same ingredients and by the same method, but instead of cabbage, at least four cups of carrots cut into julienne strips is used. The carrots take longer to cook to tender-crisp consistancy.

A typical Tibetan meal would comprise Tsail and Labug, served with Sampa (boiled barley) and a dumpling called Ding Momo (pronounced moo-moo). Ding momo is made by mixing flour, salt and water into a soft dough, and steaming 1½ inch balls of the dough over boiling water for about half an hour. These dishes are accompanied by a very hot chili pepper relish and Chinese tea. Tibetans never eat deserts or sweets. After a festive meal a bowl of fresh fruit in season (oranges, apples, pineapple and bananas at this time of year) is passed around the table.

People and Events

TWEED WI

President Mary Wilson welcomed members and visitors at the recent meeting of the Tweed Chapman Women's Institute.

Ethel Bateman was convener for the program on "Cultural Activities," and Helen Hobbert conducted community singing.

Stella Woods introduced Mrs. Don McIntosh of Stirling, who gave a Bell demonstration. Mrs. McIntosh and her husband belong to the American Bell Association. She showed and explained different bells: animal bells, Lady bells, sleigh bells and bells from many countries of the world. The bells were made of brass, china, clay, silver, wood and smoked glass.

Folk dances were one of the highlights of the celebrations held Sunday by Belleville's Tibetan families to mark the birthday of their Dalai Lama. In this dance, good luck scarves are being passed along by the dancers to the star honoree, and the Dalai Lama. Flute playing and folk songs also were performed, and children who attend the Cultural Preservation classes sang the Tibetan national anthem.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kline

Kline — Murphy

St. Joseph's Church was the setting for the June 7 wedding of Mary-Jo-Anne Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy, and Robert Thomas Kline, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Kline.

Rev. J.A. Carley performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of sheer over sharkskin with a mandarin neckline. Alencon lace trimmed the front and back bodice, and made a flounce around the hemline. was trimmed with lace and The full length two-tier veil fell from a headpiece of flowers and seed pearls, and the bouquet was red roses, lily of the valley and fern.

Susan Thibedeau was maid of honor in a peach knit dress with an empire waist, tie-back belt and lace trimmed collar and puffed sleeves. She wore a white lace-trimmed hat and carried a white lace fan with peach-colored carnations, lily of the valley and fern.

Sharon Fox, the bride's sister, was matron of honor and Debbie Donaldson, groom's cousin bridesmaid. They wore identical gowns and identical bouquets to the maid of honor.

The bride's niece, Tammy Fox, was flower girl in a white and peach flowered dress, similar in the design to the bridesmaids'. She carried a white basket of peach-colored carnations, and wore matching flowers in her hair.

John Murphy, the bride's brother, was ring-bearer, and Gary Craig was best man. The bride's brother Pat Murphy, and the groom's cousin Ken Donaldson, were ushers.

A reception was held at the Four Seasons Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Kline now live on Charles Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Bevin Clark

Clark — MacKinnon

St. Michael's Church was the setting for a spring wedding when Sandra Ann MacKinnon, daughter of Mrs. Ann MacKinnon and the late Melvin MacKinnon, became the bride of Bevin Douglas Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Clark.

The double-ring wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Ken Sitt with the bride's brother, Roy MacKinnon, reading the Wedding Epistle. George Shaw accompanied the soloist, George Clark, uncle of the groom, in the appropriate selections.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Bruce MacKinnon, and her mother, wore a white lustre crepe gown with front inset and trim at waist of Venetian needlepoint lace, organza sleeves and attached train. She wore a two-tier veil caught at the crown with a head piece of matching Venetian needlepoint lace. She carried a bouquet of daisies, carnations and baby's breath.

Maid of honor, Rosemary MacKinnon, sister of the bride, wore a beige lustre crepe gown with brown and peach flowers and carried a bouquet of daisies and carnations.

Bridesmaids, Maureen MacKinnon, sister of the bride, Elaine Clark, sister of the groom and Debbie Donohoe wore gowns identical to the maid of honor and carried bouquets of daisies and carnations. Junior bridesmaid, Mary Elizabeth MacKinnon, niece of the bride, wore a peach lustre crepe gown trimmed with brown velvet bows at waist and carried a basket of daisies and carnations.

Randy Clark was his brother's best man and ushers were Murray Clark, brother of the groom, and Bob Hoyle, Al Inson and Art Beaumonck.

Reception was held at the Lower Trent Valley Fish and Game Club, Frankford.

Following a short wedding trip the couple took up residence in Belleville.

Melrose WI

The June meeting of the Melrose WI took place June 25 at Tyendinaga Public School. C'y'ener of the program was Ruth English, who introduced Kathleen Kerr, of the Victoria and Grey Trust Company, who spoke about money management in it applies to women in daily life.

Mrs. English gave the members a short quiz, and Lorna Bates gave the highlights of the WI District Night. A lunch concluded the meeting.

Tibetans Celebrate

Prayers, music and dancing marked the birthday of the Dalai Lama, celebrated Sunday by the Tibetan families in Belleville.

Focal point of the Queen Victoria Public School gymnasium, where the festivities were held, was the brocade-covered shrine to the Dalai Lama, spiritual leader of all Tibetans. At this altar Tibetan families and their guest placed white scarves symbolizing good luck during the ceremony.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey expressed her admiration for the Tibetan culture, and said how proud Bellevillians are to have Tibetan families in their midst.

Jim Staveley, former Manpower counsellor for the Tibetans, and their special friend since arrival in Belleville in 1971, was honored with good luck scarves and a Tibetan calendar. Mr. Staveley's birthday falls on the same date as the Dalai Lama's.

A feast of Tibetan dishes — curries, meat-filled pastries and salads — followed the dances and singing by several young men and women.

After the meal the birthday celebrations moved outdoors, where incense burning and prayers took place before informal partying that continued into the evening.

Ann Landers

Animal Sounds Steal Show, But His Girl's Not Amused

Dear Ann Landers: This letter will never appear in your column because it is so crazy but I'm going to write it anyway because I have to let off steam.

My boyfriend and I have been going together for 10 months. Ed's a nice guy but he gets unhappy if he isn't the center of attention. When we are with family or friends and Ed can't get the spotlight he begins to make animal sounds. Ed was raised on a farm and can do the whole barnyard. His cow imitations are so lifelike you wouldn't believe it.

I find this gimmick childish and annoying. His cackling, crowing, quacking, clucking and barking has derailed many a good conversation. Any suggestions? — Ed's Girl

Dear Girl: When someone else tells Ed to stop making a jackass out of himself, he's probably quit. I hope it happens soon. Until then, ignore the clown.

Dear Ann Landers: A recent column raised my dander! A woman wrote suggesting that "Domestic Engineer" was a better title than plain old "Housewife." You agreed with her!

Why is it that everyone wants to be an engineer these days? The guy down the street takes a three-week course on how to fix refrigerators and suddenly he's a "Refrigeration Engineer." The gardener is a "Landscaping Engineer." Trash collectors are "Sanitation Engineers."

While most of these people spend their youth on fun and games, I was in college pounding the books. No rah-rah frivolity stuff. That was for the liberal arts and business majors. No peddling a canoe on Moonlight Bay with lovely coeds. It was WORK. Five long years, to be exact.

Today I AM an engineer, a professional and mighty proud of it. I resent people taking my title without having earned it. Tell that housewife to call herself "Doctor of Domestic Drudgery" and see how the M.D.s like it! I'm signing myself — A Professional Engineer

Dear P.E.: I have been inundated with letters from professional engineers — all mad as hell. Why don't you characters wake up and smell the coffee? That title "Domestic Engineer" is so patently pompous that no one in his right mind would take it seriously.

Where's your sense of humor, fellas?

Dear Ann Landers: I live in Rockville Center, New York, and have been a fan of the Mets for a long time. They are so great I'd walk to the end of the earth to see them play.

Something about the Mets has been bothering me and I never knew who to ask. A buddy of mine said, "Ask Ann Landers. If she doesn't know she'll find out."

So, here's the question: Why don't our wonderful Mets have their names on the backs of their uniforms like the other clubs? Thanks, Ann. — Proud Of The Home Team

Dear Proud: The Mets aren't alone. Many teams in the majors don't sew players' names on the backs of their uniforms. Unlike the football, where the league dictates uniform styles in minute detail, baseball clubs are free to do as they please. The variety is wide — all the way from the Oakland A's whose sartorial elegance has been likened to the customers in a gay bar to the conservative Cubs, Mets and Yankees, who still dress like Babe Ruth.

Alberta's Business Women Run Sucessful Companies

PONOKA, Alta. (CP)—The Alberta Opportunity Co. (AOC) doesn't consider the sex of an applicant for funds—the criteria for assistance is whether the project has some chance for success.

Ed Clarke, the company's managing director, says women play an active part in many small family businesses in Alberta, most often as highly effective competitors.

"Beyond this, however, women also have shown that many of them have the same degree of entrepreneurial enterprise as their male counterparts."

He cited Pearl Card of Westlock as one of several women aided by the Crown corporation which was established to encourage new businesses and expand small ones in the province.

Mrs. Card, with a disabled husband and a young son, received a $20,000 loan to establish a bottle collection agency in her community and the move has kept her family from receiving welfare assistance.

Lee Fuge of Calgary is president of Canon Metal Industries Ltd.

Mrs. Fuge's firm was founded, with a loan of $6,000 and a bank guarantee of $12,000, to take over and revitalize a company which had become insolvent under its previous male — management," Mr. Clarke said.

Pearl Penner of Linden, Alta. originally received AOC assistance through loans of $12,800 and $10,000 to open a local restaurant.

Gladys Taylor of Calgary is another example of women in the Alberta business field. She is president of Tall Taylor Publishing Ltd., an outlet for Western Canada fiction writers in paperback form, which received a $60,000 loan.

McGibbon Says She's a Moderate

VANCOUVER (CP) — Paulline McGibbon, who many times has stepped into job traditionally reserved for men, describes herself as a moderate in the women's liberation movement.

Mrs. McGibbon, lieutenant-governor of Ontario, and the only woman in Canada to hold a vice-regal post, told the Women's Canadian Club of Vancouver Thursday that women no longer require a militant label to improve their status.

"The women's liberation movement ..... has served to call attention to the inequalities between the sexes," she said. "Equal pay for equal work, promotion and training these come under that 'equality' heading."

Women had made considerable progress in changing outmoded attitudes and breaking stereotyped molds, but educational opportunities must be extended so women may have greater vocational choices.

"What has been conspicuously lacking is the equal opportunity to enable all women to compete with men in all phases of business, religion, education, government, arts and industry."

Before becoming lieutenant-governor in April, 1974, Mrs. McGibbon, 64, was the first woman board member of International Business Machines (IBM) Canada Ltd., first woman chancellor of the University of Toronto and first woman member of the Men's Canadian Club.

She is the first Canadian woman to be made an honorary colonel of the Toronto Service Battalion, holds six honorary degrees and is a member of the Order of Canada.

"I have been elected or appointed to many offices not. I hope, because I was a woman," she said. "And I hope that just because this is International Women's Year, token gestures to women will not be made."

She said one of the most important steps in improving the status of women is to change mental attitudes of both men and women.

"I wonder if mental attitude has something to do with it. I never expected to be discriminated against. I never looked for it and I never received it."

The Poolside Gang ... Join Them!

The fun is just the price of a day room at The Four Seasons. We have the pool . . . cool and sparkling clean, places to lounge, places to sun. We also provide a play area for the kids as well as tennis courts and other games. We give you a bright and happy room (doze or watch TV in air conditioned comfort if you want!) and we take care of everything you need — food for the mood, refreshments and what-have-you. If peace and quiet are your wish, there's plenty available around our grassy lawns and flower beds.

Join the Poolside Gang any day of the week from mid-morning to 6.00 p.m. Day room charge is $10.00 (based on four adults). Extra adults $2.50 each. Maximum of six persons to a room — children under 14 are free. Call 968-3411 in plenty of time to reserve your room.

Aircraft Workers Favor Strike Action Tuesday

TORONTO (CP) — Production workers at de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. voted Sunday in favor of a strike if an acceptable settlement is not reached.

Negotiations are expected to resume this week but the 1,600 workers could be on strike Tuesday.

Earlier the bargaining team for the United Auto Workers (UAW), Local 90, rejected a company offer of three per cent in each year of a three-year agreement and a cost-of-living escalator clause of one per cent an hour for each 45 rise in the consumer price index.

Frank Fairchild, UAW international representative, said the company's offer leaves de Havilland employees 34 to 40 cents an hour behind workers in comparable jobs at Douglas Aircraft of Canada Ltd.

Indian Social Group Protests Political Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — Ananda Marga, an Indian-based social service organization, said Sunday it will protest Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's decision to ban the group in India.

It is one of 26 groups banned last week by Prime Minister Gandhi who said Ananda Marga is an extremist organization trying the right-wing Hindu Sangh party.

Wayne Gibson, spokesman for the 30-member Ottawa unit, described the allegation as ridiculous.

"Basically, Mrs. Gandhi has ruled that we are illegal because the group in India has actively attacked corrupt government practices," he said.

"All our organization does is promote peace through meditation and attempts to improve social conditions around the world."

Ukrainian Greeks Get Church Head

WINNIPEG (CP) — The 90-member Ukrainian Greek Orthodox Church of Canada got a new head on the weekend, with the election of Archbishop Andrew of Edmonton.

The archbishop, elected by more than 330 delegates at church's 19th annual meeting, succeeds Archbishop Michael of Toronto, acting church head since 1972.

In a special ceremony at Ukrainian Greek-Orthodox Holy Trinity Cathedral, Archbishop Andrew was formally installed as primate of the church.

Golden Bat Tournament

Strong in All Departments, North York Rolls to Title

By ALAN TEBWORTH

It resembled an endurance run in the Mojave Desert but it was baseball.

After the dust had cleared from the three days of play in the Seventh Annual Golden Bat Bantam Baseball Tournament, North York Outlaw Labs had come up with a lot more than a bad bit of sunburn.

That's how it was in the 32 degree weather on the weekend, with North York capturing the seventh edition of the tourney with a convincing 13-3 win over Scarborough Village in the grand championship game.

"A war of attrition" was how North York coach Sol Schop summed it up. Whatever team was left standing after play in the three days was the winner. We were lucky enough to be the ones on our feet."

The heat took its toll on players throughout the three day event, particularly during the Sunday contests, and even more on the pitchers and their battery mates.

In the Grand Championship game, six pitchers worked on the losing side, with losing Scarborough going through four in the seven inning game. North York Labs had a four run lead after only one out in the bottom of the seventh, with the game called at that point. It had been scheduled as a nine inning game, had one team not come up with the 10-run lead.

Considering the shape of personnel on both sides of the field, it may have been a good idea. Players from both sides were totally exhausted from the heat, and the even more intense pressure of competition. Catchers Sandy Garber of North York and Rob Gleisnie and Sean Milligan of Scarborough came out of the game looking like blackbirds in a sand quarry, with the pitchers although perhaps not as dirty, drenched with sweat from head to toe.

In any case, North York, with a bigger, more experienced team than Scarborough managed to hold together for the victory. They held a slim 5-3 lead going into the bottom of the seventh, but combined for eight more to set the final tally.

The younger Scarborough team gave it all they had, but it wasn't enough. For them, it was the second grand championship loss to the North York crew in two weekends. Last week, they had dropped a 4-1 decision in the final game of the Classic Tournament. The Scarborough club is considered the favorite first year bantams, and will certainly be a contender in future tourneys.

Scarborough had managed to tie the game with a three-run uprising of their own in the top of the third, but North York came back with singlestons in the fourth, sixth, fifth, and the eight in the seventh.

John Campbell and Ron Blackmore fanned nine in sharing the pitching duties, only one. Jim Bubrock, Dan McConnachie, Rick Jones and Greg Purtle all worked on the loser side, with Bubrock combining for 10 whiffs and two walks.

At the plate, Blackmore led the winners with a pair of two run homers, and finished in four trips to the plate, with Mark Sotorosky swatting two base hits. Fred Rubinoff and Tom Gallaghan finished up two singles, with Campbell and Dave Simpson each getting doubles.

Gleisnie had a triple for the losers, with McConnachie stroking a double and Greg Purtle a single for the only Scarborough hits.

Captains of the Grand Champion North York Colour Labs, John Campbell and Sandy Garber, accept the Golden Bat from Mayor Robin Jeffrey and Alderman George Zegouras after their team's win over Scarborough yesterday. North York rolled to a 13-3 win over Scarborough in the final to take the seventh annual tournament.

Gerry Downs of the Canadian Legion Branch 99, Belleville, presents the trophy, the Gerry Downs Trophy, to John Campbell, North York pitcher, for his selection as Most Valuable Player in the seventh annual Gordon Bat Bantam Tournament. Campbell had the only no-hitter of the tourney included in his record to back up his selection.

Here's How the Tourney Games Went

BELLEVILLE 2, OSHAWA 1

Belleville picked up the victory, despite having only three hits off losing chucker Mike Ferenc, who struck out six batters. Peter Manderville and Steve Carr combined to throw the Belleville win. Jim Jackson had a four bagger to lead Oshawa, while Ken Revay, Dale Dafoe, and Rory Badford had the only hits for Belleville, all singles.

TRENTON 23, THURLOW 1

Chris Walsh threw third strikes past nine Thurlow batters in their rest of Thurlow, also helping himself to two triples and a single while at the plate. Kevin Patrick slammed a home run for the winners as well, with Dan Hamilton adding a pair of triples and a single. Gary Badgley and Terry Jarrell were tagged with the loss, with Jarrell accounting for the only Thurlow run with a circuit shot.

BRAMPTON 14, KINGSTON 3

Six errors on the field didn't help matters any for Kingston, dropping the game to Brampton. Watson Rowe fired the win, fanning 10. Ron Skeggs was the victim of his team's non-support, as he threw well enough to record a dozen strikeouts. Rowe swatted a home run to help himself while Pat Mather had a brace of singles in support.

NORTH YORK 7, PETERBOROUGH 0

John Campbell got the eventual tournament champions off to a fine start by recording a no hitter, the only one in this year's edition. He did not give up a free pass in the seven inning game, setting eight batters down on third strike calls. Catcher Sandy Garber led the offensive attack with a triple and double. Gord Lewis took the loss, fanning six and walking four.

HAMILTON 4, SCARBOROUGH 0

Dennis Skeddon gave up only three hits on the Hamilton mound, all singles, in his shutout effort, striking out eight and walking only one. Greg Purtle was tagged with the loss, taken for six hits. Joe Parisi had two singles, along with Paul Hrach to lead the winners at the plate.

LEGION, 7, WATERLOO 0

Jamie Blair slammed a home run, double, and single to lead his outfit to the pasting, with Jim Donchas contributing four singles. Ted Palmer threw a two hitter to picking up the victory, striking out three, walking only one. Waterloo pitcher Gary Johnson was plagued with control problems, walking eight in his seven hitter.

GUELPH 11, PORT HOPE 3

Port Hope, a replacement for Hamilton Alexander Park, could collect only three hits off Guelph's Pat Valentine, while fanning 12 times. Guelph batters bagged nine hits in the win, with John King leading the way with a homer. Bob Palmer struck out seven in taking the loss.

LEASIDE 7, DORCHESTER 3

A ten strikeout performance by Leaside pitcher Glen Cook highlighted the last game of the opening round. Cook gave up one walk and seven hits, getting nine his support from his mates. Scott McGowan stroked a triple and two singles to pace the attack, with Daryl Evans and Chris Volpe adding a pair of safeties each. Brent Stevens was tagged with the loss, fanning three.

TRENTON 11, BELLEVILLE 9

Trenton got a six hit performance from Paul Dicresenzo and Chris Walsh in sending the host Belleville crew to the sidelines in Saturday morning action. The pair whifled nine. Rory Badford, Ken Revoy, and Steve Carr all toiled on the Belleville rubber, rapped for 19 Trenton hits. Dan Scott led the attack with a triple, double, and single, while Chris Walsh slapped a home run and single.

NORTH YORK 9, HAMPTON 2

Two Brampton home runs, one each by Wayne Rowe and Tony Middaugh, weren't enough to beat North York, with Sandy Garber stopping them on six hits. Ron Blackmore belted a four bagger for the winners, with the rest of the hits all singles. Neil McClean was the loser for Brampton, striking out eight, but surrendering nine bases on four ball counts.

KINGSTON 11, PETERBOROUGH 3

Kingston smashed out 17 hits in handing Peterborough the pasting, with Rick Smith leading the way with four singles. Ron Skeggs had a double and single, with Glen Cahill and Kevin Markham stroking three safeties each. Mark McGrew fired a four bagger for the win, fanning four and walking the same total. Graig Simmons went the distance in defeat, striking out seven and not walking a batter.

HAMILTON 7, LEGION 31, 0

Rick Spense set 12 batters down on third strikes as Hamilton eliminated Legion from further play. He walked six and gave up six hits. Dave Michaud gave up only five hits in the loss, whiffing six batters. Urkevich had a four sacker for the winners, with Paul Hrach punching a pair of safeties. Mark Davis homered and Jamie Blair added a triple in

LEASIDE 4, GUELPH 1

A one hitter by Leaside's Paul Papadapolous outdueled Guelph's Paul Thomas' four hitter as Guelph bowed out. Thomas struck out 10 and walked only one, while Papadapolous picked up seven strikeouts and issued one free pass. The Guelph hurler also connected for the only extra base hit of the game, a home run, a solo shot in the fourth frame.

DORCHESTER 8, PORT HOPE 3

A 26 hit slugfest by both teams ended up with the Dorchester win, also taking the batting victory with 14 of the 26. Dave Findlater led the attack with a double and two singles, while Bruce Turnbull and Brent Stevens rapped a pair of safeties each. Brian Dailey was tops for the losers, with a triple and double. Brent Stevens threw the win, fanning seven and walking two. Bob Palmer took the loss.

NORTH YORK 12, TRENTON 4

HAMILTON 7, LEASIDE 4

Hamilton advanced to the A final with the win, on only six hits. Paul Hrach picked up the win, striking out seven and walking one. Scott McGowan took the loss, striking out eight, also giving up six hits. Joe Parisi had two singles for the winners, with Gord Urbevich pounding a home run.

SCARBOROUGH 15, DORCHESTER 1

Scarborough made it to the B championship with a 24 hit slotbacking attack of Dorchester with Jim Babcock picking up the win on a four hitter. Babcock also led the winners with four singles, with Purtle tripling. Babcock struck out five and walked three in the five inning affair, with Brent Stevens taking the loss, striking out three and walking six.

NORTH YORK 3, HAMILTON 0

North York took the A championship and a shot at North York in the final with a three-hit performance. He struck out 11 and walked only one, with his mates backing him with eight hits. Rabbie Gleisnie and Rick Jones paced the attack with a double and single each. Ron Skeggs absorbed the loss, fanning seven and walking four.

NORTH YORK 13, SCARBOROUGH 3

North York proved to be the best of the 1975 edition of the tourney, as they pounded out 14 hits to take the Gold. Pitching in fine style, Ron Blackmore was a one man bonfire machine for the winners, cracking a pair of two run homers, two singles, and scoring four runs in four times at the plate. Fred Rubinoff was the only other man in the lineup to collect more than one hit, with a pair of singles. Rob Gleisnie had a triple and Dan McConnachie a double for the losers.

Paul Hrach of the Hamilton Mahoney Bears accepts the Chiasson's Trophy as the Most Sportsmanlike Player in the Golden Bat Tournament from Dave Evans, Sports Convenor of the Belleville Legion, Branch 99. Hrach performed consistently on the field for the Hamilton team, sharing pitching duties, along with playing outfield positions.

Special Awards

As well as carrying away the Golden Bat and Ross Bennett Trophies as Grand and A champions, North York Color Labs added one more piece of hardware to their collection before going home Sunday. It was the impressive Jerry Downs Trophy, for the Most Valuable Player in the seventh annual event.

It was won by John Campbell, one of North York's fine pitching staff. Campbell started his team off on the right foot, in their opening game with a no-hit shutout of Peterborough. Dexter and White, picking up the victory by a 7-0 count. In that game Campbell struck out eight and walked none.

His next assignment came against a tough Tenton State Farm team, firing only a one-hitter this time out to lead them to a 12-0 win. He caught 13 batters on third strike calls, while giving up two walks.

In the A championship contest with Hamilton Mahoney Bears, Campbell managed six strikeouts in a three-inning trial, before giving way to three others. He also earned the starting job of the game.

In the grand championship match with Scarborough, Sullivan three frames before giving way to a more rested Ron Blackmore. In the three innings, Campbell managed three whiffs, giving him a total of 30 for 18 innings pitched.

At the plate, Campbell swatted a triple, double, and five singles, in five games.

The other individual trophy, the Chiasson's Trophy for Most Sportsmanlike Player of the tourney, went to Paul Hrach, of Hamilton. As well as being a gentleman on the field, Hrach also starred for the Hamilton attack with consistent hitting throughout the tourney. Hrach also picked up a win in the pitching end of things, a six hit, 7-4 win over Leaside that sent his team to the A final against North York.

In the final, Hrach started the game, but gave way to Dennis Skeddon in the fourth, having given up all three North York runs on three singles and a triple. He had collected four strikeouts and walked only one while Papadapolous picked up seven strikeouts and issued one free pass.

Betty Ingram of the Bay of Quinte Country Club adds another trophy to her large collection by accepting a silver pitcher from Audrene Moorman, Kingston District Chairman of the Ladies' Golf Association, for her low gross win in the field day held at the Bay of Quinte course Saturday. Mrs. Ingram fired an 83 to capture the title over 77 other golfers in the field.

Another Lost Weekend For Struggling Macs

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

"Help, I need Somebody" is the line to a popular song made famous by the Beatles, but it may very well become the theme song for the Belleville McDonalds.

What McDonalds' need is some wins, and so the weekend not one was recorded.

On Sunday night against St. Catharines the Macs lost 7-1 in Ontario Fastball League play.

Saturday, the Macs dropped a pair to Burlington 7-2 and 3-0.

Actually the Belleville team played well for the first six innings in St. Catharines, holding things to a 1-1 tie. It broke loose in the top of the seventh when St. Kitts hit two homers in a row and a double off starter Scott Reid. That produced five runs and made the score 6-1. Mike Williams hit his second homer of the night in the eighth to close the door on the Macs.

The only Belleville run came on a towering drive by Larry Mavety which went far into the fourth homer of the OFL season.

It just wasn't meant to be Reid's night as he gave up six hits and two walks while striking out one batter.

Dick Balint threw impressively for St. Kitts, giving up just five hits, the only one to hurt him was Mavety's four bagger.

Glen Carleton had two singles for the Macs in the losing effort.

In the first game against Burlington Saturday, the Macs just couldn't get going, and ended up on the wrong end of a 7-2 score.

Belleville starter Jim Chase never registered an out as he was hit hard to start with, giving up a double and two walks to lead the bases. Scott Reid came in and pitched in relief, but two runs scored to make it 3-0.

The game went downhill from there for the Macs, as the only Belleville scoring came in the fourth and in the seventh.

Steve Ling banged a triple for the Macs and was brought in by Terry Meagher's well placed single in the seventh. Glenn Carleton scored on a series of Burlington miscues and a long fly ball by Wayne McTaggart.

Chase took the loss, although both Ted White and Scott Reid pitched in relief.

Bill Drennan took the Burlington win, his fourth of the season.

The second game of the twin bill was a good one for the Macs, as all the fighting spirit, and the final score was a respectable 3-0.

Waite pitched again for the Macs, and did a good job, striking out 10 Burlington batters. Only one Burlington run was earned.

That run came in the fourth when Hal Fairfield, who went for 8 in the doubleheader, scored when Waite hit Peter Giacinti with a pitch. Kemp had previously doubled and then moved over on a passed ball.

Waite threw a good game. At Few of Burlington pitched a superb game, giving up just one Belleville hit.

The one hit came from Larry Mavety, who hit a line shot to right field for a single.

The Macs were shorthanded over the weekend, with several players not able to make the trip. Speedy Morissey was shortstop. Paul Goodfellow, who couldn't come because of an unfortunate death in his family.

In other Ontario Fastball League action, Saturday the Kitchener Evergreens swept a doubleheader with the London Woodstock Warriors 4-3 and 1-0. In London the Dukes defeated Hamilton 3-2.

The Saturday Kitchener defeated St. Catharines 1-0, Hamilton trounced Woodstock 10-1, and in London the Dukes split a doubleheader with Toronto, 3-0 and 3-6.

Four Quinte Golfers Tops

For the second year in a row, the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club put together the lowest scoring foursome, to take the team championship at the Kingston District Ladies Golf field day, held at Belleville county Saturday.

Mary Deaton, Lil Taylor, Judy Henderson, and Alice Stewart made up the foursome who defeated nine other clubs in the annual competition.

Seventeen golfers made up the field for the field day, with Betty Ingram of Bay of Quinte taking the low gross honors. She shot an 83 to finish ahead of the field, one of victories over the years.

Last year's winner, Cookie Cartwright, of Calaraqui, was unable to attend to defend her title.

Mary Deaton, also of Bay of Quinte, walked off with the low net title, with a 69 score. Jackie Hughes was second in that category, with Mildred Moscovich second in low gross with an 86.

Foolish Pleasure on the Move

Ashe Stuns Connors In Wimbledon Final

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — It was Arthur Ashe's lucky day. In the early hours of the morning, he was playing blackjack at a London club.

"I won $300 in one hand and walked out," he recalled later.

Then at two o'clock Saturday afternoon, he marched coolly on to the world-famous Wimbledon centre court and put on a master's display of serve and volley tennis to defeat defending champion Jimmy Connors 6-1, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4, thus becoming the first black man to win the Wimbledon singles title.

Fans, bookies and sports writers who had watched Connors swamp all his opponents in straight sets to reach the final gave Ashe little or no chance against the 22-year-old left-hander, ranked No. 1 in the world.

Ashe, casual and relaxed after his mighty victory, was differently.

"I was the underdog, sure, but I always thought I could win."

Born and brought up in Richmond, Va., and educated at University of California at Los Angeles, Ashe, 31 and still single, dismissed the victory as less important than his part in the United States team's victory over Australia in the 1968 Davis Cup.

But he granted that being the first black to win the men's title—Althea Gibson won the women's in 1957 and 1958—was important.

"Having grown up in a segregated environment in the South, I know what it's like to be stopped on, and I know what it's like to see a black hero do well in the face of adversity," he said.

"I faced a lot of adversity as a kid trying to learn the game, although later I had a lot of people help me."

Connors took defeat gracefully, despite his involvement in $8-million worth of law suits against Ashe, who is president of the Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP).

"Even I can lose," said the vanquished Connors.

"Every time I go out there, I know I've got to play 10 per cent above my best, because they're going to play five per cent above their best—they think I'm the man to beat and that's a compliment to me."

Ashe, Ashe, he will compete in the U.S. championships at Forest Hills, but before then he plans to take six weeks off.

Meanwhile, women's champion Billie Jean King was indulging herself with her favorite luxuries—beer and ice cream—which she had sacrificed in preparations for the Wimbledon final last Friday when she overwhelmed Evonne Goolagong Cawley of Australia 6-0, 6-1.

It was her last major singles tournament, but she said she would continue playing doubles and World Team Tennis, as well as putting new emphasis on her television interview show and sport magazine.

The doubles titles went to Vitas Gerulaitis of Howard Beach, N.Y., and Sandy Mayer of Wayne, N.J.

Fourth Title for Lauda

LE. CASTELLET, France (AP) — Australian Niki Lauda led the French Grand Prix from start to finish Sunday to take his Ferrari to his fourth world championship victory this season and increase his lead for the 1975 drivers' title.

Britain's James Hunt was second in his Hesketh after a long chase in which he failed to threaten Lauda, but managed to hold off third-place Jochen Mass of Germany in a McLaren.

Reigning world champion Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil finished fourth in the second McLaren.

Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., was fifth in his Parnelli and France's Patrick Depailler a fighting sixth in his Tyrrell.

Lauda took an immediate lead from the starting flag and was never troubled. He eased up in the last stages of the race to conserve his exhausts.

Blocker Champion

GRANBY, Que. (CP) — Woody Blocker of California took the men's singles championship at the Quebec Open tennis tournament Sunday.

Jumping Rejean Genois of Quebec City 6-2, 6-3 for the $600 winner's purse.

Genois, who eliminated George Hardie of Florida 1-6, 7-5, 7-5 in the semi-final Saturday, won $400. Blocker ousted Toronto's Peter Pospisil 7-5, 7-5 Saturday.

Jane O'Hara of Toronto took the women's singles title Sunday with a 6-4, 6-3 win over Suzanne Stone of Vancouver, Canada's top-ranked female player.

Blocker and Hardie teamed to defeat Jim Boyce and Dale Power, both of Toronto, 6-1, 7-6 in the men's doubles, while Miss O'Hara and Florida's Aleida Spex downed Andree Martin of Montreal and Miss Stone 6-3, 0-6, 6-3 in the women's doubles final.

Sensational Filly Shatters Ankle

Match Race Ends in Death for Ruffian

NEW YORK (AP) — Ruffian was humanely destroyed early today, the victim of a shattered right ankle that ended her sensational racing career just one-half mile after the start of a match race against Foolish Pleasure.

"Don't let her suffer any more," pleaded Stuart Janney, top3 veterinarians and trainer Frank Whiteley after the coal black filly had dislodged a cast and protective brace on her right leg.

The decision to end the life of the winner of her first 10 races came at about 2 a.m., EDT, a spokesman for the New York Racing Association said, and followed by 2½ hours an operation on the shattered sesamoids in her right leg.

The daughter of Reviewer broke down Sunday at Belmont Park with about three-quarters of a mile to go while she had a half-length lead in her $250,000 match against the Kentucky Derby winner.

Jacinto Vasquez immediately pulled Ruffian up and dismounted. The leg was put into a plastic cast and Ruffian was removed by a horse ambulance at 7:45 p.m., an hour and 35 minutes after the race.

Ruffian underwent surgery that was to last almost four hours. But the winner of New York's Triple Crown for fillies could not be saved.

"She was running very well," Vasquez said. "She changed her lead and I could feel something happening. It was her right leg."

While Vasquez pulled Ruffian up, Foolish Pleasure continued to the finish line to win her $225,000 first prize in the 1½-mile race.

"I am so sorry to see such a fine filly get hurt," said Braulio Baeza, who got the mount on Foolish Pleasure when Vasquez, the regular rider for both 3-year-olds, chose to ride the previously unbeaten Ruffian.

Dr. Manuel Gilman, examining veterinarian for the New York Racing Association, described the injury as a compound fracture of both sesamoids in the right-front leg and said the prognosis is guarded.

Ruffian was taken back to her barn where the plastic cast was replaced with a similar cast and Janney taken across the street from Belmont Park to Dr. Reed's hospital for the operation.

It was at Reed's hospital in 1971 that Hoist The Flag, the early Kentucky Derby favorite that year, was operated on for several hours after he broke a leg in a workout. Hoist The Flag, who never raced again, is standing at stud.

The mishap left a record of 30,764 stakes. The filly had been established as the 9-5 favorite and she was showing her sensational speed when the end came.

Vasquez had ridden Ruffian in eight of her 10 previous races, all victories. Eight of those 10 victories were in stakes, and she had equalled or broken the stakes record in every one of them.

Ruffian, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Janney and trained by Frank Y. Whiteley, Jr., almost had her career ended by injury last year.

After winning her first five starts, the two-year-old filly champion suffered a hairline fracture of a bone in her right hind leg, an injury that forced her to miss competing against the colts in the Triple Crown races last spring.

When she did return to action, she proved without a doubt that the other three-year-old filly could stay with her.

Foolish Pleasure, who finished second by one length in the Preakness and second by a neck in the Belmont in his last two starts, increased his career earnings to $971,107 with his 13th lifetime victory in 15 starts.

The colt carried 126 pounds, five more than Ruffian, over the 1¼ miles in 2:02 4-5 and paid $3.80.

Warriors Back On Right Track

VIRGIL, Ont. (CP) — Brantford Warriors picked an opportune time to break a five-game losing streak as the Ontario Lacrosse Association Major series Sunday night.

Playing their first game in Virgil, six miles east of St. Catharines, the Warriors walloped Fergus Thistles 20-8 before 400 fans.

The Warriors recently moved to this Niagara peninsula community for the balance of the season because of a lack of fan support in Brantford.

The winners led 8-5 at the end of the first period and 14-6 at the end of the second.

Replying for Fergus were Charles Pavlinich with two goals and Steve Warmington, Gord Richardson, John Lovell, Iain Douglas, Angus McKay and Bernie Burns with one each.

League play resumes Tuesday when Warriors travel to Owen Sound.

Canadian Horse Wins Vanity Handicap

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian-owned Dulcia came on with a stirring stretch run Sunday to beat favored Susan's Girl in the $112,500 Vanity Handicap deciding the championship for older fillies and mares at Hollywood Park.

Champion jockey Bill Shoemaker rode Dulcia to only her second victory in the United States as they went the 1¼ miles over the main track in 1:47 2-5 to beat Susan's Girl, ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., by three-quarters of a length in the field of 11.

Now owned by Mrs. Arthur Skillery of Toronto, Argentine-bred Dulcia had earned only $25,825 in the United States but before a crowd of 29,307, she earned a $67,500 winner's purse and gave Shoemaker his 108th triumph in a $100,000 race.

Third place went to Irish-bred La Zanzara who came from behind to finish 1½ lengths behind Susan's Girl.

Dulcia returned $9, $4.40 and $3.60.

Susan's Girl paid $4.20 and $3.20 and La Zanzara returned $3.80.

Susan's Girl, only the third filly ever to win the Santa Anita Handicap, collected $20,000 for her second-place finish, increasing her career earnings to $1,020,867.

On Saturday, Honey Mark, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Roberts of Shreveport, La., beat High Steel by a neck and won the 63th running of the $133,400 American Derby for three-year-olds at Arlington Park.

Master Derby, the Preakness winner, failed as the 7-5 favorite. He finished 19th in the field of 14 while carrying top weight of 124 pounds.

In a crowd of 29,114 saw the son of Traffic Mark take the lead coming into the final turn and then hang on tenaciously late in the stretch to defeat eastern favorite High Steel.

Go In the Bank finished third in the 1 1-16 mile grass race.

Angel Cordero Jr., who rode High Steel, and Jim Powell, aboard fourth-place finisher Crafty Drone, both claimed fouls against the winner, charging that Honey Mark drifted out and interfered with them in the stretch run. The stewards, however, disallowed the claims.

Honey Mark, a stakes winner at Arlington Park last summer, had been defeated several times by Master Derby this season, including the Louisiana Derby and the Blue Grass Stakes.

Brigand won the $58,250 Tidal Handicap at Belmont Park in New York and Katonka took the $58,650 Hinsperjonn Handicap at Hollywood Park in Inglewood, Calif.

Stonewalk, the even-money favorite, edged Sharp Gary by a head to win the Cornbusker Handicap, richest race in history at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Jockey Ron Turcotte, formerly of Grand Falls, N.B., sent Stonewalk from fourth in the backstretch to first shortly after the last turn for a 1-1-40 trip over the 1 1-16th miles, a second off the track record.

The four-year-old colt earned $38,250 for his owner, Timberland Stable of Old Bridge, Va. It was Stonewalk's fourth victory in seven starts this year and his 13th career win.

Nelson Bunker Hunt's Brigand went to the front at the start and led all the way to win the Tidal Handicap before a turnout of 29,065.

Ridden by Heliodoro Gustines, who had won the Belmont Brooklyn Handicap on Friday, the four-year-old Brigand held off the closing surge of Prod to win by a head. Favored Ogdoa stalked the leaders through traffic by Laffit Pincay, took charge in the stretch and romped away to victory at Hollywood Park.

The winner dropped back after the break in the 1 1-16th mile turf race for three-year-old fillies, then found herself in tight going heading into the far turn. Pincay saved ground at the quarter pole when she was blocked and started maneuvering for a clear run.

Finally finding room on the outside, Pincay steered Katonka clear and they stormed home fourth place coming into the stretch to win by more than three lengths over Nicosia.

Dever Disabled

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions will be without quarterback Jackie Dan Dever for most of the Canadian Football League season, Dever, 29, suffered a broken ankle and torn ligaments in his left knee in Thursday night's 41-21 exhibition victory over Ottawa Rough Riders in Vancouver. The six-foot, 200-pound Wake Forest graduate signed with the Lions last year after playing out his option with the Rough Riders.

Slugging Match Prelude To Expos' 4-3 Victory

ST. LOUIS (AP) —"We're all in this together," Montreal Expos catcher Barry Foote said, and after the weekend St. Louis Cardinals are believers.

The Expos, youngest club in baseball's National League, Sunday shortened the hardest punches the Cardinals could throw on a hot afternoon and still climbed back to bag a 4-3 triumph.

"Everybody goes out there to win," declared Foote, who singled during a three-run Montreal rally in the eighth inning and scored the game's deciding run.

"I think you see that even in the scuffles we have," Foote added. "I think this club has a better chance to improve than any they've ever had."

Foote's reference to skirmishes alluded to a fist-swing melee prior to the game at home plate triggered by words between Expos coach Dave Bristol and the Cardinals' Reggie Smith as the two exchanged lineup cards.

Smith, still seething from an altercation the previous night at second base with shortstop Tony Fofi, accused the 42-year-old Bristol of mistaking him.

"I said, 'Reggie, I didn't scratch you,' and he just looked you. I never felt a man from behind," Bristol later maintained.

"Then one thing happened after another and Bristol asked who was banished from the game for delivering the first blow in the bench-clearing scrap.

"I didn't even see it happen," said Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst, who had been in the St. Louis clubhouse.

"I gave the list-up card to Ted Simmons," Schoendienst said. "I don't even know how Smith got it."

"You don't allude to a man as being a mentally retarded ex-peeling to get hit," Montreal manager Gene Mauch contended. "Reggie told Bristol, 'Well, I don't appreciate being scratched by a dirty woman.'

"No man's going to appreciate being called a woman."

Once the pre-game free-for-all subsided, the Cards took a 1-0 lead on Lou Brock's triple and Luis Melendez' sacrifice fly in the third.

Their edge held until Larry Parrish broke up the game in the seventh, then Don Fairly's triple and Ted Simmons' single gave St. Louis a 3-1 lead.

Cards' right-hander Lynn McGlothen, 10-8, fanned Foli after Pepe Mangual singled to start the Montreal eighth but next pitcher Steve Rogers, batting in place of Mike Jorgensen, Larry Bittner was retired on a grounder, and Barry Foote singled to chase McGlothen and Gary Carter and Pete Mackanin greeted reliever Rich German with hits to break the tie.

Bucs, Cubs Hit 30 Mark In Slugfest at Chicago

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least one of the Pittsburgh Pirates would like to spend a whole season playing in Chicago's Wrigley Field.

"I'd like to see this club play one full year in this park, just to see what we could do," mused Pirates outfielder Richie Zisk, obviously relishing the thought. "I get there would be a lot of records broken."

Zisk had just taken part in the Pirates' 18-12 National League baseball win over Chicago Cubs in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader. Rain forced postponement of the second game, leaving the battered pitching staffs of both teams a needed rest.

The debacle took three hours and 26 minutes to play.

"The score was 8-12, but it looked more like the War of 1812," Champ Summers, a young outfielder, remarked after the game.

In Sunday's other National League games, Montreal Expos edged St. Louis Cardinals 4-3, Philadelphia Phillies beat New York Mets 4-3, Houston Astros defeated Atlanta Braves 6-2, Los Angeles Dodgers topped San Francisco Giants 5-1 and Cincinnati Reds routed San Diego Padres 13-2.

On Saturday, Pittsburgh edged Chicago 5-4, Montreal blanked St. Louis 3-0 in the first game of a doubleheader, then lost the nightcap 1-0, Philadelphia swept New York 9-3 and 10-7, Atlanta took Houston 4-3 and 8-4, Cincinnati trimmed San Diego 5-2 and Los Angeles edged San Francisco 5-4.

The Pirates got home runs from Rennie Stennett, Bob Robertson, Willie Stargell and Dave Parker. Stargell and Al Oliver each had four hits, and three runs batted in, and Parker also drove in three.

It got to the point where any time a Pittsburgh player made an out, it drew cheers from the crowd of 38,923. When the Pirates went down in order in the ninth, a huge ovation echoed through Wrigley Field.

Greg Luzinski paced Philadelphia with four runs batted in, giving him 72 for the season. Bake McBride, who had a two-run single in the third inning and a two-run double in the fifth.

Pitcher James Rodney Richard helped Houston snap a nine-game losing streak with his first home run of the season in the fifth inning and a tie-breaking single in a decisive three-run seventh.

Los Angeles left-hander Doug Rau, 8-7, pitched seven innings of no-hit ball and finished with a three-hitter after Chris Speier broke up the no-hit bid with a line drive single to left leading off the eighth.

The Reds pounded seven San Diego pitchers for 18 hits in their romp. Joe Morgan, George Foster and Darrel Chaney drove in two runs each.

Canadian Track Stars Set Pace in Germany

DORTMUND (Reuter) — The Canadian track team harvested another fine crop of victories at an athletic meet Sunday in the West Germany community.

Liz Damman of Kitchener, Ont., set a Canadian record of 13.4 seconds in winning the women's 100-metre hurdles. Teammate Sue Bradley finished second in 13.8 and Cecilia Branch of Halifax placed third in 14.0 seconds to put out the opposition. Miss Branch's time was a Canadian junior women's record.

A Canadian first and second came in the women's 200 metres, won by Joyce Yakubovich of Victoria in 23.4 seconds. Joanne McTreggert finished a second in 23.7 seconds.

Lyn Kelland of Burlington, Ont., took the women's 100 metres in 11.7 seconds.

Toronto's Mary Nash led the women's results with a 10.3 second win in the 100 metres. Bob Martin of Paris, Ont., took the men's 200 metres in 20.9 seconds, with Vancouver's Al Dyck finishing second in 21.0 and Toronto's Ian Seale, placing third in 21.1.

The 400 metres hurdles went to Dave Jarvis of Grimsby, Ont., in the 110-metre hurdles. Williams of Toronto took third place in 51.8.

Daniel Taillon of Laval, Que., won the 110-metre hurdles in 14.2 seconds with George Neeland of Thornhill, Ont., taking second place in 14.3.

The Canadians have competed almost every day and meets since their first West German contest July 2.

'Spitter' Charges Follow Gaylord

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Gaylord Perry is back, can aspirin be far behind?

"Perry was using the spitball all day long," Minnesota manager Frank Quilici charged Sunday after Perry pitched Texas Rangers to a seven-hit 7-4 triumph over the Twins and a sweep in the American League baseball doubleheader.

"Whenever he was in a position where he needed it, he used it," Quilici stormed. "He's got good enough stuff without having to throw that."

It was Perry's first victory with Texas after four losses and one no-decision and stopped a personal eight-game losing streak dating back to May 29. In the opener, Clyde Wright pitched 7 1-3 strong innings for his first victory of the season and the Rangers won 4-2.

In Sunday's other American League games, California Angels blanked Oakland A's 2-0, Chicago White Sox trounced Kansas City Royals 8-2, Boston Red Sox defeated Cleveland Indians 5-2 in the first game of a doubleheader, then lost the second 11-0, New York Yankees downed Baltimore Orioles 6-1 before the scheduled second game of their doubleheader was rained out and Detroit Tigers beat Milwaukee Brewers 7-5 and 11-2.

On Saturday, the Twins edged the Rangers 5-4, the Angels shut out the A's 3-0, the Royals beat the White Sox 4-0, the Indians trounced the Red Sox 13-2, the Orioles drubbed the Yankees 5-2 and the Tigers edged the Brewers 3-2.

Whatever Perry was using, it looked especially peculiar on a 3-0 pitch to John Briggs with the bases loaded and one out in the third inning.

Briggs looked badly, swung and missed, but plate umpire Dave Phillips ruled it an illegal pitch, running the count to 3-0. Perry then fanned Briggs on the next three pitches.

Perry said he has a fast ball with no rotation on it and the bottom dropped out of the pitch," Phillips explained. "I don't think there was a foreign substance involved. It was not a normal pitch."

Dick Lange, Andy Hassler and Don Kirkwood combined to pitch a six-hitter for the Angels and Dave Chalk drove in both runs with a pair of singles off 13-game winner Mike Torrez.

Chicago knocked out Marty Pattin with five runs in the second inning, two on Rocky Dedeaux's double, and beat the Royals behind the six-hit pitching of Claude Osteen.

Home runs by George Hendrick, Oscar Gamble and Doug Rader paced the Indians win the nightcap after falling behind 2-0 in the opener. Hendrick hit Don's Bob Heise, hitting only .175, drove in three runs in the opener before a Bat Day crowd of 56,781, largest of the season in the park.

The split gave the Red Sox a one-game lead over New York and Milwaukee in the American League East.

Pat Dobson blanked Baltimore following Ken Singleton's leadoff homer and Boog Powell hit a two-run double as the Yankees scored a pair off Mike Cuellar in the third inning and added a seven-game losing streak.

Aurelio Rodriguez, Ben Oglivie and Jim Rice hit consecutive homers in the second inning of the nightcap while Lerrin LaGrow fired a six-hitter. Detroit scored five runs in the first inning of the opener with the help of two errors and a balk and beat the Brewers for Mickey Lolich's 14th triumph.

Polish Team Too Good

MONTREAL (CP) — Poland proved more than a match for Canada in international soccer play at the Autostade Sunday, cruising to an 8-1 win. The Canadians almost defenceless against the powerful Polish attack.

Only minutes after the opening whistle the Canadian national team got its first taste of the formidable opposition of the 1972 Olympic champions. After some tight mid-field passing by the Poles, forward Joachim Marks dribbled the ball past four Canadian backs and slipped it through the arms of Toronto goalkeeper Jack Brand.

Grzegorz Lato, top scorer in the 1974 World Cup tournament, made it 2-0 for the Poles midway through the first half.

Canada tried to rally before the halftime whistle with a double-barrelled attack from Frankie Douglas of St. Catharines, Ont., and Buzz Parsons, of Vancouver. But Douglas' shot screened off the post and Parsons' attempt to hammer the rebound home was foiled when Polish goalkeeper Jan Tomaszewski kicked the ball over the bar with a finger-tip save.

Their third goal was scored by Kazimiez Deyna from an indirect kick, awarded after Lato was badly fouled.

Tino Lettieri of Montreal, substitute Canadian goalkeeper, was beaten on the shot.

The Canadians made a short-lived comeback after Bula Marks made it Poland's fourth at about mid-half. Douglas pounded the ball into the back of the net leaving Tomaszewski with little hope of a save.

But in the closing 30 minutes the Poles went on a goal-scoring binge and the Canadians' shaky defence virtually fell apart in the despair of the Polish fans.

The game was the first of six Canada is scheduled to play this summer against Poland, Bulgaria and the German Democratic Republic.

In its previous match against Poland in 1973, Canada lost 3-1.

St. Catharines' Entry Sets Mark in Eights at Henley

HENLEY ON THAMES, England (AP) — Ridley College of St. Catharines, Ont., clipped two seconds off the previous record Sunday in winning the schoolboy eights at the Royal Henley Regatta.

The junior Ridley crew defeated St. Paul's School of Concord, N.H., by one length to take the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup with a time of six minutes, 22 seconds.

Ridley reached the finals by finishing three-quarters of a length ahead of Emanuel School of Britain in Saturday's semi-final. Shawnigan Lake School of British Columbia lost to St. Paul's in the other semi-final.

In the final, Ridley took an early lead of one length and crossed the finish line ahead of St. Paul's 35. St. Paul's increased their rate to 38 in a final drive but couldn't overtake the Canadians.

Members of the winning crew are Shawn Thetford, Mike Pye, Rick Bird, Larry Berkhout, Ed Berkhout, Willie Stewart, Chris Porter, stroke Rob MacLachlan and cox Bob Walker.

A crew representing the Leander Club and Thames Tradesmen Rowing Club of Britain took the premier event in the regatta, the Grand Challenge Cup for heavyweight eights, beating a Harvard crew by two lengths.

The British crew raced neck and neck with the United States crew for the first mile, then took a lead of about eight feet.

The winners then opened a lead of 1½ lengths, stroking 38 to the minute to Harvard's 36 then extended their lead, stroking 40 to Harvard's 39 down the stretch.

Victoria Is Undefeated On the Road to Title

HULL, Que. (CP) — Bate Construction of Victoria was undefeated through six days of high-powered softball to emerge Sunday as champions of the 16-team centennial international tournament here.

And they did it by beating New York Two Spots from the Bronx in both the semi-final and the final. The semi-final of the doubleschool round was 9-1 and the final 4-2 for the Two Spots' only losses of the competition.

The Two Spots had earlier defeated Canadian champion Ottawa Tonys 3-1 to earn the right to play Victoria, national finalists last year against Ottawa.

The Two Spots were named because they traditionally allow only two white players in their otherwise all-black lineup. opened early in the final, scoring twice on big Stan Kern in the first inning.

But the 227-pound Kern settled down after that to strike out 12 batters and allow only three hits in the victory.

Susie's Title Is a First

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP) — Susie McAllister charged out of the pack in the final round of the Wheeling Ladies Professional Golf association tournament Sunday to record her first tour victory.

She finished at four-under-par 212 for a one-stroke victory over runner-up Jan Ferraris. The 27-year-old Miss McAllister carded a final round 70 to nip Miss Ferraris, who had a final 71.

Karolyn Kertzman, who led after the first two days of the 54-hole tournament, added a three-over-par 75 and finished at 214, two under par.

Gloria Ehret, Hollis Stacy and Gerda Boykin were next-par 216.

Miss McAllister, who collected $5,700, started the day two under par. She bogeyed the second, fourth and fifth holes and bogeyed six and seven in making the turn in one-under-par 215s.

Miss McAllister took the lead for good on 16 with a birdie. Miss Ferraris bogled the hole after taking two shots to get out of a sand trap.

The bogey dropped Miss Ferraris to the runner-up for the tournament and she was unable to make up the strokes in the two closing holes. Her final attempt at a tie came on 18, when a 20-foot birdie putt ran just past the hole.

Miss McAllister, who collected $5,700, started the day two under par. She bogeyed the second, fourth and fifth holes and bogeyed six and seven in making the turn in one-under-par 215s.

SACO in Split At Alderwood

ALDERWOOD (Special) — Tournaments were abundant over the weekend, and still more Belleville teams were entered this time the SACO Peewees played in the Alderwood Peewee Baseball Tournament on Saturday.

In the first game all went well as the Belleville squad defeated Seneca "B" 13-5 with Lloyd Olson and John Monkhtrich combining for the win.

Together they gave up seven hits to take the win easily.

Joey Miller of Sarnia was the loser giving up 11 hits and striking out five.

Steve Smith doubled and singled for the winners, while Jeff Soule doubled and knocked in another three runs. Steve Lerry added in the winning cause, hitting a triple and a single.

The second game was Belleville's downfall, as they lost 12-3 to Richmond Hill.

The loss went to John Monkhtrich who gave up 10 hits and walked two in the game.

Dave Allen took the Richmond Hill victory striking out six SACO batters.

Jamie Millar doubled for Belleville while Don Smith had a couple of singles and Dave Gee singled.

Plane's, Latta Score in SHBL

Plane's Concrete took a 54 win over Belleville in the South Hastings and District Baseball League on Saturday, while Latta defeated Foxboro 9-3.

Larry Adams took the Plane's win, giving up five hits and one walk and striking out 12 batters.

The loss went to Tim Reid who gave up six hits and five walks while striking out six batters.

Reid Mallory had a double for the losers and Bill Barbeck managed two singles.

Bob Rid threw a two hitter in shutout Foxboro 9-0 on Latta's win.

Reid walked two and struck out six batters to hurl the winning ball game.

John Anderson gave up just three hits and two walks while striking out 11 batters to pitch well in the loss.

Mobil Team Goes On Hitting Spree

"And the hits just keep on comin'" goes the ad. Well, Mobil Chemical is the perfect example of suggestive advertising.

On Sunday, they defeated Lakeside Oxygen 25-7 in Belleville and District Ladies' Softball play to take their second win in as many starts. Also Sunday the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund defeated Ellis Construction 7-1.

Mobil hitters had a field day on Sunday, with 21 hits collected in all.

Joanne Smith and Lynn Martin shared the win, giving up seven hits and three walks with one strikeout.

Norma MacQuarrie was the loser, striking out four batters.

Sue Shannon cracked a homer and two doubles while Ginny Irwin powered three homers for the winning squad. Aileen Barr had two singles and a homer to round out the homers on the team.

Debbie Ricketts hit two singles to lead the losers at the plate.

Sue Merton collected the BYBF victory, giving up just four hits and a walk while striking out three in the 13-1 win.

Donna Brant took the Ellis Construction loss, giving up 14 hits and three walks while getting only one strikeout.

Carol McKentee led the winners with two doubles and a single, Sue Merton had a triple and a double and Shirley Gulliver tripled and singled.

Evelyn Hill had two singles in the loss.

Greater Milwaukee Tournament

Wall's 17 Under a Record

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Art Wall won it for the old folks.

With many middle-aged members of the Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament gallery cheering him on with, "Win it for the old folks, Art," the 51-year-old Wall did just that Saturday.

He fired a steady two-under par 70 for a one-stroke victory worth $28,000. But it may have meant more than that to his confidence.

Wall, who became the second-oldest player ever to win on the tour, behind Sam Snead, who was 52 when he won the Greensboro Open in 1965, said it was "not my character to say this is going to change everything.

"I always take everything one at a time. But it certainly is a big boost to be able to play under pressure again. I've done some choking in my time, but not here all week."

Wall, who hadn't shot a round under 70 all year until he fired successive five-under-par 67s on his first three rounds here, finished at 271, one stroke ahead of Gary McCord.

Wall's 17-under total was a record for the three-year-old tournament, one stroke less than his 14th career victory, but first since 1967.

Most of golf's big names stayed up the Milwaukee River to prepare for this week's British Open.

Wall, voted golf's Player of the Year in 1959 when he won the Masters and three other tournaments, took a three-stroke lead over Gibby Gilbert into the final round, seemed in command when he sank putts of 15 and 20 feet for birdies on the second and third holes.

He bogeyed the eighth, however, and McCord charged to within a stroke of the lead by birdying No. 9 to finish his front nine in four-under.

McCord appeared to fade when he bogeyed 11 and double bogeyed the par-three 14th.

But the 27-year-old second-year pro birdied his last four holes, meaning Wall had to par No. 18 or face a playoff.

Rod Curl birdied five of six holes between 12 and 17 for a 68 and third place at 272. Gilbert had a final-round 70 and Dave Hill a 69 to tie for fourth at 274.

JOCKEY KILLED

PLEASANTON, Calif. (AP) — Juan Gonzalez, twenty, California's leading jockey, was killed Saturday in a three-horse spill at Alameda County Fairground during the running of the $11,970 Whiling Memorial Handicap before a crowd of 17,311. The Mexican-born Gonzalez, 36, died of a broken neck, said track physician Dr. Edward O'Hagan.

ROBINSON INJURED

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians player-manager Frank Robinson was placed on the 15-day disabled list Saturday because of a muscle tear in his left shoulder. Robinson had been using himself as a designated hitter, but had been absent from the lineup for about two weeks because of the injury.

Safety Touch Makes Argos The Winners

TORONTO (CP) — Reserve quarterback Ralph Brock had Winnipeg Blue Bombers moving Saturday night, but he had them headed in the wrong direction.

Brock was trapped on consecutive plays for losses totaling 23 yards and the second sack cost the Bombers a 15-14 loss to Toronto Argonauts in the only Canadian Football League exhibition game of the weekend.

The 34-year-old graduate of Jacksonville (Ala.) State got himself in trouble looking for open receivers from deep in Winnipeg territory.

After being dropped for one 11-yard loss, he was sacked again in his own end soon by Toronto defensive tackle Jerry Allison for a 12-yard loss and a safety touch, worth a decisive two points to the Argonauts.

"They had the blitz on and I was trying to get outside but I couldn't," said Brock of his second foray. "No one was open downfield so I ate the ball."

"I'm not the type to give up," he said of his decision to try for a pass again after being flattened for his first loss.

"You've got to get back as much as you can. If I could have gotten outside. . ."

The Bombers had rallied from a 11-1 first-quarter deficit to take a 14-13 lead in the third quarter on two Argo defensive adventures.

A five-yard touchdown run by Cleo Dixon and a 27-yard field goal and convert by Zenon Andrusyshyn gave Winnipeg an early lead. Andrusyshyn later added a 19-yard field goal.

Steve Beaird, a rookie running back from Baylor University, scored Winnipeg's only touchdown, with Bob Moscorriti adding two field goals, a single and a convert.

The one-point win was the second in a row for the Argos, who edged Hamilton Tiger-Cats 18-17 in their first game. Winnipeg avenged Saskatchewan Roughriders 41-8 in their exhibition opener.

A crowd of 34,101 fans, the largest ever for a CFL exhibition game, got their first look at remodelled CNE Stadium, being used over it to accommodate baseball.

Seating capacity for football has been increased from the old 31,135 to 41,000 and will be further increased when the changeover is completed.

Tournament at Scarborough

Belleville Bantam Squad Captures B Championship

SCARBOROUGH (Special) — Belleville Downtown Merchants advanced into the B championship game of the Scarborough Bantam Tournament and were victorious over Oshawa 4-0, on the strength of Rick Tripp pitched well for the Bellevillle squad, giving up just four hits, all of which were singles. He walked no batters and struck out seven.

Randy Chopik of Oshawa took the loss, giving up 10 hits and two walks while setting down eight batters on third strikes.

Ron Begley led the visitors at the plate, hitting a triple, a double and a single. Clarence Brookema had a triple to drive in two runs and Ward Morison singled three times.

Defence was a big story in the B game as Andy Rossit and Paul Marineau both came up with excellent plays for Belleville.

Belleville lost their first game of the tournament to go on the B side, when sarnia won 5-4.

Tim Soule took that loss, with all five runs being scored on errors.

In their second game Belleville just downed Port Perry 3-1 to stay alive in the tournament. Rick Tripp took the win, collecting five strikeouts.

Clarence Broekema collected two singles for the winners while Doug Campbell doubled and singled and Paul Marineau had a pair of safeties.

Another squeeker saw Belleville come out ahead, with Tim Soule pitching a 3-2 victory over Corvette Park.

Soule gave up five hits and two walks while striking out three batters to gain the important victory.

Helping him along were Ward Morison and Andy Rossit both with doubles.

That set things up for Belleville taking the B championship. Andy Rossit was the Runnerup for the Most Valuable Player Award.

All-star Soccer

Minor Teams Win and Lose

SMITHS FALLS (Special) — The Belleville Olympic Minor Soccer teams split two games here on the weekend.

The Mosquitos lost their first game of the season 6-1 with Doug Bedie scoring both Belleville goals.

The Peewees were more successful as they came up with a 5-4 win over Smiths Falls.

Rob Cathcart scored a hat trick while Richard Sanderson kicked home two goals to account for Belleville's scoring.

Chris Bateman was outstanding for the Belleville squad at the centre half position.

The two teams have already set up a rematch for August 16 in Belleville.

Visiting Coach Lauds Tourney

Bat Bantam Tournament has been called the best in Ontario by someone who has a good idea of how a tournament should be run.

Ron Tuston, coach of runners-up Scarborough Village made the statement, after his team had dropped into the consolation bracket after being defeated in Ontario, from all angles of the game, including the officiating, hospitality and competition," stated Tustin.

And that comes from the man who has a major hand in organizing one of the other top tourneys in the province, the Scarborough event.

Not only Tustin, but everyone who attended even one game of the tournament agreed that tournament organizers, headed by director Vi Christopher, had done again come up with an outstanding job.

Tomahawks Share First With Montreal Quebecois

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Long Island Tomahawks created a tie in the standings and Quebec Caribous broke another in National Lacrosse League games Sunday night.

The Tomahawks, who downed Maryland Arrows 18-13 before 3,189 fans at Landover, Md., pulled into a first-place tie with Montreal Quebecois at 34 points each. The Tomahawks play at Montreal in the only game tonight.

Meanwhile, before 1,925 at Boston, the Caribous picked up their first road win of the year, an 18-15 verdict, and pulled into sole possession of fifth place, two points ahead of the losing Bolts.

Boston was operating under the bench guidance of general manager Jim Logan after coach Larry Ferguson was fired earlier Sunday. Logan will serve as interim coach until a permanent successor to Ferguson is appointed.

Dave Wilfong scored four goals and Doug Hayes added three to pace the charging Tomahawks, who started the season in sluggish form but now boast a 17-9 won-lost record and have two games in hand over the Quebecois, who are 17-11.

Wayne Granger fired three goals and Greg Marsden contributed two to the Arrows attack. The Tomahawks held a 18-15 edge in shots on goal.

Dave Durante and Brian Evans, a pair of rookies, scored six and three goals respectively to lead the Caribous. Travis Cook also had three goals.

The Bolts got four goals from John Allen and two from both Chuck Lee and Stan Cox. They had a 61-47 edge in shots.

RCYC Sailors Dominate Event

GIMLI, Man. (CP) — Sailers from the Royal Canadian Yacht Club dominated the Canadian 19 years and under single-handed sailing championships in Lasers class sailboats.

Toronto's Raines Kohl of the RCYC won the first three races on Thursday and Friday of last week and counted a ninth-and second-place finish in his next two races to leave his championship without having to sail in the last race. Kohl's total score was 19 points.

Harry McLaughlin, also of the RCYC, had to win the last race to overtake club-mate David Beatson of Toronto and finish second. The Toronto sailor had 21 points to Beatson's 26.7.

Toronto's Greg Tawastjerna completed the sweep by RCYC sailers finishing fourth with 31.7. Brent Fortboil of Vancouver was fifth with 48.7. Bernard Senecal of Montreal came in sixth with 53.4 points in the 23-boat fleet.

Kevin Smith and Joel Sears of the National Yacht club in Toronto won the two-man championship in Olympic class 470.

In the six-race series also sailed in Gimli, Smith and Sears won three races and placed second in two to finish with only six points.

Formula Atlantic Race Won by Elliott Forbes

ST. JOVITE, Que. (CP) — Elliott Forbes-Robinson of California took the lead on the fourth lap and held on the rest of the way to win the Quebec Formula Atlantic car race Sunday at Le Circuit Mont Tremblant.

Forbes-Robinson averaged 96 miles an hour in his Lola T360 over the 100-mile distance.

Toronto driver Bill Brack, leaving from the pole position, held the lead during the first four of 20 laps before clutch failure in his STP Special allowed Forbes-Robinson to move into first spot.

BEAT AUSSIES

OTTAWA (CP) — Jim Ducharme scored two goals Saturday night to lead Canada to a 5-3 win over Australia in an international water polo game. George Gross and Dave and Steve Hart were the other Canadian scorers. C. Turner, R. Goffs and D. Woods scored for Australia.

LED ALL THE WAY

PARIS (AP) — Un Kopeck led wire to wire to win the $250,000 Grand Prix de St. Cloud by two lengths Sunday as defending champion Dahlia finished far back for her fourth consecutive loss. On My Way was third over the two-mile course and Comtesse de Loir was fourth.

Americans Are Tops

WATERTOWN, N.Y. (CP) — Larry Woods of Wilsona, Ont., and Mike De La Roche of Kingston, Ont., were in fourth place in the over-all standings Sunday following the second of three days of racing in the North American tornado sailing championships.

Woods and Roche finished seventh Sunday after first-and ninth-place finishes Saturday in the first two races off nearby Association Island, across Lake Ontario from Kingston, Ont.

A fourth race, scheduled for Sunday, was abandoned due to poor winds.

Americans took the top three positions in Sunday's race. Cappy Sheeley and Ron McLeod finished first and Randy Smythe and Clayton Thrasbull came in second. Paul Allen and Woody Cox took third place.

Donald Cote and John Burrows of Pointe Claire, Que., took fourth pending an appeal which could put them in third place.

Geoff Perry of Pointe Claire and Robert Levy of Hempstead, Que., finished in sixth place.

Since the fourth race was abandoned, all five races will count toward the final standings. Normally six races are run with the best five counting.

After three races Cote and Burrows are in seventh place in the over-all standings with Perry and Levy eighth. The team of Ian Jackson of Pointe Claire, Que., and Brian Palfrey-man of Baiold, Que., are in 13th position among 34 entries.

The championships for two-man, 20-foot catamarans continue today with the final two races.

Boston Player's Trial A First in the U.S.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Boston Bruins hockey player Dave Forbes goes on trial today in a case marking the first time in the United States that a professional athlete has been prosecuted on criminal charges for his actions during a game.

Forbes was indicted for aggravated assault with a dangerous weapon—his hockey stick—by a grand jury for allegedly attacking Henry Boucha, then with Minnesota North Stars.

He has pleaded not guilty to the offence, which is alleged to have occured during a National Hockey League game Jan. 4 in Bloomington, Minn.

Boucha, who required 30 stitches to close a wound near his eye and then suffered double vision, didn't return to the ice until late in the season. Boucha, 24, has since jumped to Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association.

Forbes' lawyer, Ron Meshbesher of Minneapolis, says the case does not belong in the courts.

"In the first place, it was not the intent of the legislature that this statute on aggravated assault cover injuries that occur during athletic contests. And secondly, Forbes had no criminal intent."

HENRY BOUCHA

"This trial could have tremendous repercussions in the sports world. If Forbes is convicted, it would mean platoons of police would have to be posted at every basketball game, football game, hockey game, wrestling match to make sure no criminal offence is committed.

"Every time someone is penalized in football, under the rules it could be considered at least simple assault."

Gary Dayton, the lawyer who will prosecute the case personally, said the attack was hardly like physical exchange frequently witnessed during hockey games.

Boucha and Forbes tangled during the game and, witnesses said, exchanged words while they sat out penalties. When they returned to the ice, Boucha was struck in the face with Forbes' stick.

Shortly after the fight, even Minnesota players said punishment should be left up to the NHL commissioner. Forbes, 26, was suspended without pay for 19 games by NHL president Clarence Campbell. Campbell said the suspension cost Forbes $6,500.

The aggravated assault charge carries a penalty of up to five years in jail and a $5,000 fine. Because a hockey stick is considered a dangerous weapon the statute calls for a mandatory three-year minimum sentence upon conviction.

IN MEMORIAM

SHERMAN — In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister, Ruth Sherman, who passed away 3 years ago.
There's a rend of sweet remembrance,
Where tenderness and wishes meet,
We take that read in thought today,
For the joy it brings to memory.
Perhaps it's hard to understand
Why we miss you so well.
We never could and never will
To one we loved so well.
Our hearts still ache with sadness,
And secret tears still flow,
What we miss most is your Marjorie,
No one will ever know.
They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget,
But time so far has only proved
The memory of you grows more yet.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by Dad, Mom, sisters and brothers.

McLEOD — In loving memory of a dear father, Donald McLeod who passed away July 3, 1971.
Today recalls the memory
Of a loved one gone to rest,
Of a father who was dear to us,
Any those who knew him best.
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
Bear softer and dearer,
But the love for him who lies beneath,
Is more than flowers.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by Dad, Mom, sisters and brothers.

Hood Honored

LONDON (CP) — Robin Hood will be given a hero's welcome when two British films about the legendary bandit who robbed the rich and gave to the poor are shown at Moscow's Children's Film Festival next month. A spokesman for the Soviet Embassy here said, "Our people know about Robin Hood—they regard him a national hero."

Lawrence Displayed

EASTWOOD, England (CP) — First editions of works by the British author, D. H. Lawrence (1885-1930), are on show for the first time at the writer's birthplace in this community, near Nottingham. Together with letters, postcards and signed books there are 800 items of the author's work and reference displayed in a room of a new library and information centre.

Knitted Environment

Swaying gently in the breeze at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, Ill., is this knitted "environment" of hand-dyed sisal hailing twine. Designed by art student Gina Governo, standing in centre of photo, and constructed by art students under supervision of Assistant Professor Judy Mills of the Dept. of Arts and Design (bending at upper right), the work consists of 400 ft. of 12-foot-wide panels dyed yellow and orange. Musician Uses Classroom

HALIFAX (CP) — It was humid with temperatures in the mid-70s when the two buses reached the central Nova Scotia community of Truro and Chalmers Doane seemed anxious to avoid confusion.

His instructions to the more than 80 students were crisp.

"Unload. Set up. Tune up."

In less than 30 minutes a symphony orchestra was ready.

Two hours later Doane was sitting with his chin slumped into the palms of his hands and he didn't seem happy.

"It dragged. The timing was bad and the acoustics were off—that won't happen again."

Five hours later the auditorium was filled again and Doane appeared in a tuxedo and a confident smile.

"I found it—it'll work this time!"

Within minutes the group had begun works by Bach, Schubert and Handel as well as Glière's Russian Sailors' Dance and Stravinski's Firebird.

When it was over Doane, Ninette Babineau and Alexander Tilley seemed happy. Doane summed up for them all:

"God, that went well!"

Soon, the buses were loaded again and heading back to Halifax.

"When we began in '67 people told us this kind of music couldn't happen with kids taught in a classroom" Mr. Doane said. "We thought it could and there's a couple of hundred people back there and thousands more elsewhere who now know that it can work."

The classroom teaching technique he is so committed to arises from his studies at University of Boston sponsored, in part, by a grant from the Ford Foundation.

In Boston he studied and worked for Dr. George Bornoff, a music teacher with an international reputation. It was from Bornoff that he got his commitment to the classroom as an instructive forum.

His philosophy as a teacher is rooted in his experience as a student at Nova Scotia Teachers' College.

"It's what keeps me going and it is this: music for everyone and music is fun."

Chalmers Doane's broad ambition is to see Halifax known for its music and not merely as a gateway to the Atlantic.

After seven years as director of music for the Halifax School Board he has succeeded in changing a four-school bo-hum music program into one covering 57 schools and reaching almost 30,000 people.

Mr. Doane directs a staff of 60 hand-picked professionals from his small, overheated, cluttered office. He says they are as good as any university music department in the nation.

He is also directly involved in the direction of countless music groups.

They include eight ukulele groups, five string orchestras, junior and senior symphonies, beginning, junior, intermediate and senior bands, three high school choirs, an all-city choir and a senior jazz band.

They will perform as many as 200 concerts this year, release their fourth album, and be studied by music teachers from across Canada and the United States.

The program's teaching techniques and the results they spawn are under almost constant review.

The success has been built from a five-year music development skills program that was goal-oriented—it was proposed to take five years to reach those goals. It took only three.

"Our symphony orchestra is made up of young professionals who don't have to apologize to anyone for their music," Mr. Doane said. "They're good. They're very good."

Under his direction the scheme has built-in depth with a full course taught to all students until Grade 6 in the basics of listening, singing, composition and instruments.

By junior high school, music becomes an elective subject taking two periods a week plus performance. Demand is so high that two-thirds of the staff works in the elementary and junior high school levels.

In senior high school, students take five periods a week plus a performance.

With all the talk of master plans, development strategies and discipline the first-glance conclusion is of a bunch of musical egg-heads confining themselves for long hours to a sound-proofed room in a struggle to master the art.

"Not so," said Mr. Doane. "I can give you examples of students missing performances because they were at athletic awards banquets, playing hockey or football, canoeing down the Annapolis River, or were involved in all kinds of things having nothing to do with music."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tuesday, July 8

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't conclude that important matter in haste or anger today. Allow yourself ample time to study all the available alternatives.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're a bit too flexible in your thinking today. You're likely to provoke someone who's equally firm about his idea.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep a close rein on your budget the next few days. Expenses you didn't allow for are apt to pop up. You could be caught short.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you expect others to cooperate today, be tactful in framing requests. A demanding attitude will produce opposition, not aid.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't blame others for your shortcomings today. Chances are if you've saddled with a problem, it's one of your own making.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) To avert hard feelings later, spell out now what's expected of everyone in any involvement you're putting together with friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You hope to achieve something important in the next few days, but it won't be a snap. Don't let a few obstacles dishearten you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) To avoid unnecessary frustration today, be prepared to make prompt changes in your plans if they don't work as well as you'd hoped.

SAGGITARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't do business today with one with whom you've had bad experience. You may be taken again if you're not careful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be on guard in legal and partnership matters today. Get expert advice before committing yourself to agreements or contacts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Nothing will be gained by shirking aside immediate responsibilities. Set a schedule early in the day. Stick to it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 2:) Discussion today and tomorrow, if there's a choice between spending for immediate pleasure or paying off an old obligation.

Immunization Schedule Given

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have two young sons, ages one and two years. They have had their necessary baby shots. What I'm concerned with is which shots they need next at which ages? I know I don't have to have them vaccinated against smallpox, but I still would like to—Mrs. L. R.

I fear we have become somewhat lax in this whole matter of immunization. We may, as a result, be flirting with some unpleasant consequences.

Dr. C. H. Kempe, professor of pediatrics at the University of Colorado Medical Center, states in a recent article that the decline in immunization of preschool children has been alarming. Surveys show that about five million of the nearly 14 million 1-to-4-year-olds are not adequately protected. That is about one in three of the pre-schoolers.

Here is Dr. Kempe's suggested schedule:

Diptheria, tetanus toxoid and pertussis (whooping cough)—at two months, and to be repeated at four months and six months.

Measles vaccine and tuberculin skin test—at one year.

German measles (rubella) and mumps—at from one to 12 years (may be given earlier at the physician's discretion).

Repeat of diptheria, tetanus and whooping cough, plus tryline oral polio vaccine—at one and a half years. This is to be repeated again between four and six years.

Tetanus—between 14 and 16 years and thereafter every 10 years of life.

The TB test should also be repeated periodically, depending on the risk of exposure.

The tetanus schedule suggested protects the child against the usual scrapes and cuts he may receive. However, if there is a puncture wound or a so-called "dirty wound," a booster of tetanus is used at the doctor's discretion depending upon when the last immunization was given. In such cases, it is always best to check with the doctor.

What you say about smallpox vaccination is true. It is no longer recommended routinely. However, if the child is healthy and free of skin rashes or other disorders the smallpox vaccination should be considered.

Some physicians may vary from this schedule. But it is wise for parents to maintain records. In reading your physician's immunization chart, you can keep in mind the following common abbreviations for the various shots and tests:

"DTP" stands for diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis (whooping cough). "OPV" stands for the trivalent polio vaccine, and "Td" for the tetanus toxoid.

I hope this will jog the memories of parents and prompt them to check and see just now protected (or unprotected) their youngsters are, especially those whose children do not get regular checkups.

If there are any doubts, your local health department also supplies a list of required and recommended immunizations.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How does a hormone imbalance cause fluid retention?—Mrs. B.

Sodium is, of course, the main culprit. Estrogen promotes salt retention in the body, and salt in turn promotes fluid retention.

For women on hormone therapy, an adjustment in dosage can often alleviate this problem.

Police Bike

TAUNTON, England (CP) — Police have decided to ride bicycles here in order to catch criminals at night. "A man on a bike can approach quietly with his lights out, and catch criminals who would be scared by the sight of a car," said Chief Superintendent Peter Hawkins.

Free Golf

WORCESTERSHIRE, England (CP) — Samuel Insteep, 79, has been given the free use of the municipal golf course for the rest of his life. The golf course director said it marks Insteep's devotion to the game.

Oswald: "A king of hearts lead followed by perfect defence would beat two diamonds one trick. After the three of spades lead, there was no way left to beat the contract and South scored up below the line."

Jim: "East pointed out that the king of hearts should have been led, but never did succeed to the nitty-gritty. It just never occurred to him that West should have bid two hearts."

Oswald: "Had West bid two hearts he would have played there. Four odd would have, after a diamond lead, but it is impossible to bid all games.

West would have been very happy with 10 tricks in hearts above the line."

Jim: "It seems East and West were victims of the "free-bid" syndrome. Somehow or other they had been taught that when an opponent intervened in the auction an immediate jump over his overcall showed substantial extra values."

Oswald: "In expert circles today the free bid is not given any such meaning. It merely says that the free-bidder would have bid without the interference.

Stop Nuclear Power T-Shirts Proclaim

WASHINGTON (CP) — In Margate, N.J., youngsters have started wearing snazzy T-shirts emblazoned with the slogan "Stop Nuclear Power."

In Greenfield, Mass., citizens' groups are preparing a fast and vigil on the village green to protest peaceful use of atomic energy, while 2,000 voters in New Mexico are sponsoring a petition supporting the same objective.

And supporting these and similar campaigns throughout the United States with all the zeal that has made his name a household word in America is consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

"Give us five years," he says, "and we'll have succeeded in forcing a nationwide moratorium on the construction of nuclear power plants."

The anti-nuclear movement is not new in the U.S. and it isn't big. But it's giving every sign of growing.

"We're finally on the move," says John Abbots, a chemistry graduate and veteran of 4½ years operating reactors in nuclear-powered navy submarines who now is a senior official in Nader's organization.

Interviewed in his hot, cluttered, casual office in central Washington, Abbots says there are clear signs that opposition to nuclear generators is growing.

An organization called Critical Mass, which the Nadereites helped put together, has collected 200,000 signatures on a national petition calling for a ban on reactors "until the rate we're going we'll easily have a million by 1976," Abbots said.

The Vermont legislature, he added, has recently passed a bill giving itself the power to veto or approve construction of any nuclear plants there, and in California the question whether to halt further development likely will go on the ballot in next year's presidential election.

"All of these moves are tangible developments to get nuclear decisions away from the regulatory agencies and back to the hands of the people."

The opponents of nuclear power contend, in a nutshell, that it is a form of technological suicide and that the risks of operating atomic reactors far outweigh their possible benefits.

The nuclear industry, on the other hand, contends that nuclear power plants are no less safe than other complex technologies and that they provide an invaluable source of relatively cheap electricity.

But just to be sure its voice is heard where it counts, the industry is moving its formal organization, called the Atomic Industrial Forum, to Washington from New York.

The arguments on both sides of the nuclear question are highly complex and boiling to non-scientists. But the strongest case made by the industry is simply that it can and does produce a dependable supply of energy at a time when imported oil, accounting for nearly 20 per cent of domestic petroleum consumption, is increasingly expensive and is used as a powerful weapon.

There now are 56 nuclear plants in the U.S., producing about 1-12th of U.S. electricity. An additional 76 are under construction and 196 more are in the planning stage. The industry says the energy produced is both safe and cheap.

The Nadereites, predictably, take issue with both claims.

Says Abbots: "An Act of Congress, known as the Price-Anderson Act, limits nuclear industry liability to 500 million. If it's so safe, why do they need the limit, at all?"

The Atomic Energy Commission itself did a study in 1965 which showed that a nuclear accident could cause 45,000 deaths and $17 billion in property damage."

Spokesmen for the industry counter by saying there has never been a death caused by a nuclear accident. The Nader group replies that this is no indication of safety since the industry still is in its infancy.

Abbotts says the Canadian reactor, Candu, is the safest in the world. But even it, he says, should be banned.

NDP Asks For Fewer Corporations

WINNIPEG (CP) — The New Democratic Party adopted a motion Saturday urging a reduction in the number of multinational corporations, but there was angry criticism from some delegates that the motion is "weak and mealy-mouthed."

"I say get rid of multinational corporations," said Vancouver delegate Svend Robinson. "Don't just reduce them-get rid of them."

Toronto delegate Lakin Robinson said it is not enough to talk of controlling multinational corporations; they must be taken over.

The motion, which called for an examination of the benefits and costs of multinational corporations, was passed after 200 delegates attempted unsuccessfully to return it to the drafting committee.

Svend Robinson criticized the proposed outright takeover of a number of the largest Canadian resource industries.

"They have gone and watered down the existing policy calling for a complete nationalization," he said later in an interview.

The convention also approved a motion calling for a national transportation policy aimed at "public ownership and control of the Canadian Pacific Railway conglomerate including CP Air, CP Rail and all other components related to transportation."

The transportation resolution called for the establishment of a Canadian merchant marine and implementation of a comprehensive rapid transit system utilizing rail, bus and subways.

Bees Kill Teacher

BRASILIA (AP) — A swarm of African bees killed a schoolteacher in the northeastern city of Aracaju, authorities had to use flamethrowers to fight them off, Brazilian newspapers said.

African bees were brought to Brazil by a geneticist professor in 1956 for experimental purposes. Some of the insects escaped and cross-bred with Brazilian bees, producing an irritable hybrid that attacks animals and people.

The killer bees have spread into neighboring Argentina and Bolivia. Scientists say they are likely to continue migrating north, reaching the North America within 10 years.

Kremlin Rejects

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet agricultural newspapers indicated Sunday the Kremlin has no intention of softening its refusal to loosen emigration in return for better trade and credit opportunities from the United States. The newspaper labelled as "absurd demands" any attempts to mix economic relations with issues "which are totally related to the internal competency of the state."

NEW YORK (AP) — A new $15-million federal jail has opened with central air-conditioning, closed-circuit television, carpeted corridors and no bars at the specially-strengthened clear plastic windows. The 10-storey Metropolitan Correctional Centre has single-occupancy cells and a recreation room for every 40 cells. It is part of the new Federal Plaza centre in lower city hall and is designed to replace the old Federal House of Detention, which had a notorious record of escapes.

Historian Dies

FREDERICTON (CP) — One of Canada's foremost literary historians, Dr. William Cyril Desmond Pacey of Fredericton, died Friday night in hospital.

Dr. Pacey, 58, was academic vice-president of the University of New Brunswick.

He was born in 1917 in Dunedin, New Zealand. Dr. Pacey served as executive officer and editor with the wartime information board during 1943. In 1944 he became head of the department of English at the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton. During 1972 he was acting president of the university.

Navy Denies

LONDON (AP) — The United States Navy has denied a London newspaper report that it trains assassins, some of them convicted murderers from military prisons, for assignment to U.S. embassies or for commando operations.

The London Sunday Times says it based its report on an interview with Lt. Cmdr. Thomas Narut, a psychologist at the American Naval Hospital in Naples.

Millionaires Fear

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Millionaires who fear abduction might want their chauffeurs to be escape artists.

That's what Bob Bondurant thinks and that's why he's charging $412.50 for a "corporate driving course" to teach chauffeurs of wealthy executives how to outrun potential kidnappers.

Bondurant said he designed the three day "anti kidnapper" course a year ago at the request of the security manager for a giant oil company.

Moped Budget

FERGUS Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau might get a driving lesson on a motor-assisted bicycle (moped) because his government raised the gasoline tax 10 cents a gallon in the last budget.

Perrin Beatty, Progressive Conservative MP for Wellington-Grey-Dufferin-Waterloo said in an interview Saturday he is prepared to give the prime minister a lesson on his moped, which he plans to take to Ottawa in the fall.

Volcano Dies

VOLCANO, Hawaii (AP) — After a quarter-century of intermittent fireworks, Mauna Loa volcano erupted Saturday night with a spectacular curtain of fire.

Two major rivers of lava oozed down the barren upper slopes on the northeast side of the 13,650-foot mountain, fed by several large vents which continued to shoot out red and yellow molten rock hours after the original activity on the summit had halted.

Inflation Pares Defence Outlay

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Armed Forces once again are losing the battle with inflation and are back into an austerity-restricting financial bind.

While the situation is not so bad as last year when operations were slashed by one-third, some senior officials say the forces are headed in that direction.

The new financial squeeze was shown last week in interviews with senior officials and in answers by defence spokesmen to written questions from The Canadian Press.

The replies show this situation pending the outcome of the defence structure review, which Defence Minister James Richardson has said is expected to result in cabinet decisions in the fall:

—Operating and maintenance costs have increased more than 13 per cent while the defence budget for this fiscal year increased only 11.6 per cent—to $2.8 billion.

—Personnel costs, which make up more than 65 per cent of the budget, are expected to increase as the forces keep pace with public service pay increases.

—The cost of new equipment is rising.

—Less than a year after the last drastic cuts, local commanders are again restricting activities as they attempt to follow orders to live within budgets, some of them reduced fractionally.

—The forces cut 2,000 persons to a level of 78,000 last year as a cost-saving measure and many now are overworked.

They Play While Man Drowns

OTTAWA (CP) — About 30 people, mostly adults, ignored a drowning swimmer's cries for help on the Ottawa River Sunday.

Less than two hours after 24-year-old Elie Abouzaidi began swimming to an island 100 feet away from shore, skin divers pulled his body from the river bed.

His best friend, 19-year-old Imad Nasreddine, said he ran frantically along the river bank begging people to save his friend when he became caught in a current.

"He kept trying to get to the island and break free of the current but he was just too tired," he said. "Suddenly he shouted for help . . . by this time he had got out of the current but he hadn't got the strength to get to the island."

"It was just terrible. . . I just kept running around asking people to go in and help him but they just shrugged or turned away."

Nasreddine said his friend cried for help for five minutes.

"I knew it was too late when I ran to call the police. I just wish I was able to swim."

Da Nang Residents Become Farmers

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The new South Vietnamese regime is moving city dwellers in the country in an attempt to increase agricultural production, Saigon's Liberation Radio said today.

The broadcast said 6,500 residents of Da Nang, the country's second largest city, recently "volunteered" to become farmers.

The broadcast also said 2,000 people in the vicinity of Hue, the former imperial capital, would move southeast to the coastal town of Phu Loc, described as a depressed economic area.

Food shortages have been reported in the South Vietnamese cities since the surrender of the United States-backed Saigon government April 30 ended the flow of rice and other goods paid for by U.S. aid funds.

The broadcast also told of efforts in several provinces to sell rice below market prices to "help the poor and "beat the rice shortage."

In Bangkok, the national police headquarters said the Thailand government will continue to enforce its 1957 anti-Communist law despite the establishment of diplomatic relations with China last week.

The law prohibits "any involvement in Communist activities including distributing or publishing materials on China."

Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj, who signed the agreement to open diplomatic relations, said on his return Sunday from Peking that he never would introduce communism to Thailand.

However, he said his talks with Chairman Mao Tse-tung, Premier Chou En-lai and other Chinese leaders would help Thailand understand China better.

The U.S. Air Force withdrew 15 F-4 reconnaissance aircraft from Udorn Air Base, 250 miles northeast of Bangkok, continuing the withdrawal of American forces from Thailand that is scheduled to be completed by next March. .

The departure leaves about 19,500 American military personnel and about 200 aircraft, a U.S. military spokesman said.

In Manila, President Ferdinand Marcos said his government wants to take control of U.S. military bases in the Philippines and turn them to "productive economic as well as military use."

Smallwood Leads Liberal Reform Body

GANDER, Nfld. (CP) — Joseph R. Smallwood, calling for a movement "to restore Liberalism to the Liberal party," has emerged again as a political force in Newfoundland.

Denouncing the state of the provincial Liberal party and accepting the leadership of a "Liberal Reform Party," the former premier Saturday launched his latest political venture.

In a speech that lasted more than an hour, Mr. Smallwood philosophized on politics and the need for better preparedness on the part of the provincial Liberal party, led by Edward Roberts. He summed up the "concern and frustration" Liberals had with the current leadership and called for new directions.

Mr. Smallwood, who was premier of Newfoundland from 1949 to 1972, later called the current Liberal party leaders "careerists" whose sole attribute was "a more appetite for power."

"They would need a miracle to win" at an election, he said.

"If it is your will to use me, I am bound to respond," Mr. Smallwood said, and accepted the unanimous vote naming him leader of the party.

Kerr and Davis To Meet

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Sunday he will meet former solicitor-general George Kerr today or Tuesday to discuss the prospect of Mr. Kerr's re-entry into the provincial cabinet.

Premier Davis made the statement in a brief interview while attending an annual international picnic on Centre Island in Lake Ontario, but declined further comment until he speaks with the former minister.

Mr. Kerr resigned his cabinet post in February after allegations that he took a payoff in connection with a 1970 dredging contract in Hamilton harbor.

Last week Ontario Supreme Court Judge Thomas Callon said he could find no evidence Mr. Kerr had anything to do "with any of the improprieties before this court."

Mr. Davis said he was "just delighted" with the court's verdict.

"I knew he would be vindicated," the premier said.

Mr. Kerr said Friday the judge's decision "speaks for itself and should "satisfy everyone."

Reports Fires

TORONTO (CP) — Ninety-five forest fires were reported in Ontario during the weekend and 35 were extinguished, the natural resources ministry reported Sunday.

There were 86 fires burning Sunday night. Twenty of them were not under control and ranged in size from one to 400 acres.

If we didn't have these manuals at Ziebart, we'd need X-Ray vision.

We wonder how anyone can rustproof your car without them.

As if rust weren't bad enough to begin with, how it begins is even worse. Because your car starts to rust from the inside out.

Like an invisible cancer, rust starts in the hidden seams and welds, in all the metal hollows and crevices, deep inside your new car's body. And since the only way to stop rust is to not let it start, how do you get at all those places if you can't even see them, let alone know where they are?

Good question. And until Ziebart came along, there was no answer.

What we did was to develop our exclusive Technical Manuals compiled from manufacturer's new car drawings, internal body blueprints, and engineering specifications. For over 800 models of both foreign and domestic cars and trucks.

These manuals weigh over 15 pounds and contain over 2,000 pages. A staff of eight full-time technical people (including engineers) work on them and continually up-date them, year in and year out. At a cost of over $250,000 a year. As you can imagine, they're guarded like atomic secrets.

Because they let our technicians know precisely where to drill (or not to drill) the tiny holes that allow our patented spray tools to reach into every hidden nook and cranny of your car's interior body shell.

And then cover this vulnerable, rust-prone inside metal with Ziebart's unique sealant.

We repeat again that only Ziebart has these books. And quite frankly, we couldn't rustproof your new car without them.

Which brings us (and we hope you) to this question: When the time comes for you to have your new car rustproofed, where would you rather take it? To somebody else, or to the people who wrote the books on rustproofing?

Ontario Cuts Spending

Budget Measures Slash Car Taxes

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario renewed its attack on the federal government Monday with a $178-million shuffle in provincial government spending, which Treasurer Darcy McKeough said was made necessary by the "gross inadequacies" of the June 23 federal budget.

New-car buyers, students, wine drinkers and those in search of housing were chief beneficiaries of new provincial budget measures, to be financed by a $96-million cut in government programs and another $82-million reduction in civil service spending.

Premier William Davis told reporters the package, supplement to the province's April 7 budget, was also an effort "to fill the void of national leadership in the present economic crisis."

About $66 million of the $178-million was to bolster the sagging housing and automobile industries this year and another $94 million was committed for housing in 1976-77.

Measures expected to have a direct effect on some Ontario consumers include:

—Cash rebates of the five-per-cent provincial sales tax on new North American-built cars and station wagons sold between now and Dec. 31, 1975. The average buyer will save an estimated $175 on his purchase and the government is expected to pay out $24 million in rebates.

—Subsidized mortgages at 10½ per cent for an additional 9,000 low-cost housing units under the Ontario Housing Action Program.

—Reduced provincial markups on imported and domestic wines following federal government reductions on excise taxes for wine.

—An increase to $40 from $32 a week in student living allowances for the upcoming academic year.

There were no further initiatives to counteract the increase in gasoline and oil prices beyond the 90-day freeze on retail prices imposed by Premier Davis last week. Ontario residents will still have to pay the 16-cent-a-gallon excise tax imposed by the federal government in the June budget.

Opposition members welcomed some measures in the budget aimed at easing credit as a "political document."

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said the premier was engaging in "the greatest kind of political opportunism" and challenged him to call a provincial election on an issue policies response.

NDP Leader Stephen Lewis called it "a tough political document—not an economic document—designed to offset the reasons and to offset the stupidity of a damaging federal budget."

Ontario Could Pay Health Care Costs

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will assume complete responsibility for all health care programs in the province if the federal government agrees to turn over $1.1 billion of personal income tax it collects here every year, Treasurer Darcy McKeough said in the legislature Monday.

In addition, Mr. McKeough announced that Ontario "cannot afford and does not intend to enter into any new spending areas the federal government chooses to introduce as 'shared-cost programs.'"

He made his initiative on the health insurance front follows a "damaging" federal budget June 23 which effectively decreases the federal share of contributions towards medicare in Ontario by $200 million by 1980, the minister said.

"The federal government has failed to recognize the degree to which Ontario has successfully kept increases in doctors' fee schedules below settlements elsewhere in the economy," Mr. McKeough said in explaining his offer to put the province in complete control of health programs.

There are over 65 shared-cost programs operating in Ontario this year.

The federal government's share downward these programs is $1.8 billion, or 20 per cent of Ontario's total revenue.

Shared-cost programs present various difficulties, it has been pointed out to Mr. McKeough's statement said.

"Massive financial leverage by the federal government forced Ontario to join this program even though the province already had a perfectly satisfactory system of medical insurance."

Car Tax Cut May Save Buyer $175

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government moved to bolster the auto industry Monday by announcing the withdrawal of the retail sales tax on new cars and station wagons.

"This measure will save purchasers an average of $175 on the purchase of a new car," Treasurer Darcy McKeough said.

Removal of the five-per-cent tax on the purchase of a car costing $5,000 will save the purchaser $250.

The rebate, effective immediately, will be offered to Dec. 31.

The rebate will apply to all passenger cars and station wagons built in Canada or the United States including "Big models in inventory as well as new 1976 models, but excluding large luxury cars.

"This will stimulate sales and increase production and jobs in this important industry," Mr. McKeough said. "Expansionary benefits will spread throughout the economy. The cost of this measure will cost some $24 million in the current year."

Ineligible for the rebate are new cars with engine displacements of 400 cubic inches or more. Also ineligible are vans, ambulances, pickup trucks, buses, sport and other work vehicles and all-terrain vehicles used cars and automobiles acquired by lease or rental.

Mr. McKeough said the measure was designed to stimulate employment in the 100,000 strong auto industry.

Rhodesia Sets Up Commission

SALISBURY (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith announced today that Rhodesia will step up anti-guerrilla measures against black-nationalist insurgents and establish a commission on racial discrimination.

The leader of the minority white ruled country where blacks outnumber whites 22 to 1, told Parliament terrorism continues despite a ceasefire between guerrillas and the Rhodesian government announced on Dec. 31, 1974.

Under the agreement, Smith said, the government agreed to release detainees if they joined in a constitutional conference in Rhodesia and there was a cessation of terrorism.

"Neither condition has been fulfilled," Smith said.

"For the past seven months the ANC (African National Council) has been one excuse after another for not coming to the conference table and there has not been any real diminution, let alone cessation of terrorist activity."

Broadbent Defeats Rosemary Brown

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ed Broadbent battled back an unwanted establishment image and an unexpected powerful challenge from an eloquent

ED BROADBENT

The 39-year-old Oshawa-Whitby MP won 948 votes to 858 over radical B.C. legislature member Rosemary Brown at the conclusion of a four-day convention that attracted more than 1,600 delegates.

It was the first various NDP leadership bid by a woman and her showing surprised many of her own workers.

Three other candidates—Saskatchewan MP Lorne Nystrom, Toronto professor John Harney and Mississauga, Ont., taxi driver Douglas Campbell—were eliminated on earlier ballots.

The victory gave Mr. Broadbent a NDP parliamentary leader the job he has held unofficially since the defeat of retiring leader David Lewis in the 1974 election.

The contest, which ended in noisy cheers and bright television lights on the floor of the Winnipeg Convention Centre, aroused strong emotions among supporters of all candidates.

But the party emerged without a split and a vow that occurred in 1971 when Mr. Lewis clashed divisively with the party's radical Waffle faction. The group has since been expelled.

Mrs. Brown, who fought as a gut socialist and champion of women's and minority rights, went directly to the stage to make the vote unanimous when the final count was announced.

Delegates roared approval when she grasped Mr. Broadbent's hand and held it high in a display of unity. The two other major candidates followed suit.

"I will do what I can to make Ed Broadbent the first socialist prime minister of Canada," said Mr. Nystrom.

"This is one party," added Mr. Harney, "I think I can do my bit to help Ed Broadbent."

The only sour note, heard by some delegates, came from Mr. Campbell, who was dropped from the running after polling only 11 votes on the first ballot.

Mother Charged

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A 22-year-old woman was charged with involuntary manslaughter Monday in the death of two of her children after they were left in a locked car in a sun baked parking lot. The children died from "the effect of the heat on the brain," a deputy county coroner said.

Hold Mortgage Meetings

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Davis, Treasurer Darcy McKeough and Housing Minister Donald Irvine held the first of a series of meetings with chartered bank executives Monday night as an initial step to press private lending institutions to release more money for housing mortgages.

Rejoins Cabinet

TORONTO (CP) — George Kerr says he is happy with Premier Davis' announcement Monday that he will be asked today to rejoin the cabinet and resume responsibilities as solicitor general. Mr. Kerr (PC-Halton West) resigned his cabinet post last February when testimony at a preliminary hearing of the Hamilton harbor dredging trial linked him to a $10,000 bribe.

Challenges Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon Monday called the province's mini budget "the greatest kind of political opportunism" and challenged, Premier William Davis to call a provincial election to gauge public response. NDP Leader Stephen Lewis called it "a tough political document — not an economic document — designed for political reasons and to offset the stupidity of a damaging federal budget."

Shot Kills Bancroft Youth, 17

By NAN WHITLAY
Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT — Ontario Provincial Police are investigating the fatal shooting of a 17-year-old Bancroft youth here Monday.

A police spokesman said today George Vincent Lake Jr. was fatally-wounded at about 5 p.m. at the home of his father on Highway 28 near the southern limits of this village.

The spokesman said the incident occurred during a target practice by a visitor to the home. The weapon used was a 22-calibre rifle.

Police had not released the name of the visitor by press time today and other details were not available. Constable Henry Morgan is conducting the investigation.

Peron Scraps Wage Ceilings

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Isabel Peron of Argentina has agreed to scrap her 36-per-cent ceiling on wage increases to appease the striking labor wing of the Peronist movement. But she continues to reject the union leaders' demand for the ouster of Jose Lopez Rega, her closest adviser, informed sources reported today.

The sources said Mrs. Peron offered to replace some of her eight cabinet ministers. It was believed that she and Lopez Rega were prepared to sacrifice Economy Minister Celestino Rodrigo.

Rodrigo is the administrator of the government austerity plan which has resulted in a month of strikes, other protests and intensified political pressure on the president to get rid of Lopez Rega.

Leaders of the General Labor Confederation (CGT) who paralyzed Argentina Monday with a general strike scheduled a meeting today to consider Mrs. Peron's offer. A communique indicated they would accept it.

But as long as the conservative Peron Rega continues to be Mrs. Peron's closest adviser and the virtual prime minister of her regime, a permanent reconciliation is not likely.

The crisis between the CGT and Mrs. Peron's conservative regime came to a boil when she announced a week ago that she would not approve wage increases exceeding up to 130 per cent which the unions had negotiated in counter inflation, now exceeding 110 per cent a year. She said no increases above 50 per cent would be ratified.

The CGT ordered its 3.5 million members out at midnight Sunday for 48 hours in support for its demand for approval of all negotiated wage increases. It also demanded the ouster of Lopez Rega, who is social welfare minister and Mrs. Peron's private secretary, and Rodrigo.

The two men and the other six members of the cabinet submitted their resignations Sunday night. But when Mrs. Peron gave no indication whether she would accept them, the labor leaders went ahead with the walkout.

The strike brought the country of 24 million people to a standstill.

Two Injured In Escape

PARIS (Reuter) — Two policemen, including the security chief of the Paris law courts, were wounded and two court officials, one of them a judge, were taken hostage during a daring escape from the Palace of Justice today.

The two court officials were found a short time later tied to the steering wheel of the getaway car, police said. They were unharmed.

At least two persons, one of them a woman in lawyer's robes, brandished pistols and hand grenades in a court which was judging gangster Jean-Charles Willoquet, court sources said.

Willoquet and his two accomplices dropped out of sight with their hostages and drove off into central Paris after shooting the two policemen who tried to stop them, the sources said.

500 Jobs Disappear

TORONTO (CP) — About 1,500 civil service jobs will disappear by next April to help pay for items introduced Monday in Ontario's $178-million mini-budget.

Treasurer Darcy McKeough told the legislature that cabinet's management board has been told to cut 882 million from civil service spending estimates in 1975-76.

Sidney Residents Demand and Get Aid for Water Shortage

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

More than 50 Sidney Township residents stormed council chambers Monday night demanding — and getting — municipal action to end water shortage problems at the Quinte Heights Subdivision.

Low water pressure has been an annual problem of the housing development near Bayside Secondary School — a development handled by Noramco Corp., Ltd. of Toronto.

The problem became acute this week when there was no water to be had leaving some 50 households high and dry with neither showers nor toilets.

The ratepayers group which met with council Monday demanded that the township take interim measures to truck water into the subdivision to replenish wells and further that council investigate undertaking work to renovate the water system.

To meet the immediate problem of no water, council agreed to hire a contractor to cart water to the subdivision's wells, beginning Tuesday morning.

Lavern Hatcher, spokesman for the group, said "council should consider doing the work and then billing the cost of the work to the developers". He said council is partially to blame for the situation because it has continued to allow building permits in the subdivision which has grown to 53 homes from an original 33 in 1971.

In an attempt to stem the problem of increased usage on an already insufficient supply, council agreed to curtail all future building in the development and investigate the withdrawal of two building permits issued to the developers recently.

Reeve Gord Wilman said a representative from Noramco was "asked to be present at Monday's meeting but could not attend. A meeting with the developers has been arranged for Thursday afternoon.

Bob Watson, senior engineer with the province's ministry of the environment, said "the system is obviously not doing what it is supposed to do". He said the water pressure should be "three times" its present level.

The meeting Thursday will be concerned with determining Noramco's intentions in renovating the water system.

OMB Approves Rezoning Of Hillcrest Area

Rezoning of Hillcrest — permitting residential development after a year's long freeze — has received formal provincial government approval.

The city bylaw returning residential zoning to the northend city suburb has been passed by the Ontario Municipal Board, city manager Wilbur Purcell reports.

The neighborhood was given an industrial zoning designation years ago — a restriction that prevented new home building or owners selling property for such development. Over part of Thurlow township, Hillcrest developed as a semi-rural suburb and large property lots were a characteristic of the area. It was annexed into the city in 1959.

The installation of city services under - soured the problem of large frontages. Hillcrest homeowners billed for local improvements with the arrival of sanitary sewers found their tax bills had soared. This week, along with city hall spokesmen, they are to ask for provincial government aid to share the costs at a special meeting with housing Minister Donald Irvine.

The rezoning permits building on 50-foot frontages — the norm for city residential development.

Homeowners were "glad to see the rezoning come through, there's no doubt about that," said Ken Brooks, Hillcrest Ratepayers' Association president.

However, he cautioned against any notion that the freezing of Hillcrest property should reflect on the sewer-costs protest.

"People may have the opinion that Hillcrest residents can now sold their lots, sell them and pay for their sewers," said Mr. Brooks. "But for years people here have been sitting on their property, paying taxes on it and have been getting nothing for it.

"They shouldn't be forced to sell their property to pay for these services. They should be able to sell and make a profit like anyone else — and just pay for a sewer."

However, if the provincial government didn't produce assistance, Hillcrest homeowners would be forced to sell "because they can't afford to live there with taxes as high as they are," he said.

The beneficiaries in such a situation would be only speculators, said Mr. Brooks.

Report Questioned

PICTON — Picton town council has requested fire chief Leonard Tripp to explain inspection plans and objectives for 1975.

In a report to council, chief Tripp said he would personally inspect for fire hazards in public buildings and in residences, on request, leaving four firefighters available for home inspections during fire prevention week.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson said the fire chief's report does not define the main goals and objectives of the department for 1975.

Heat Wave Bad News For Local Bait Dealer

The long, hot days of the current dry spell may seem ideal for lazing away by a river with rod and reel.

But, for serious fishermen the current weather might have its problems — if it lasts much longer.

Among other things, the hot spell is drying up the bait-worm business.

Moist ground conditions are needed to track the wriggling — in fact, the worter the better.

But it's been so dry there's a decent chance the local bait harvest has taken a drubbing, says Bob Bland.

Bob, long-time Belleville sports operator, operates stores and tourists areas through Hastings and Prince Edward County with live bait — including worms.

To gather the worms he contracts with the Picton Golf and Country Club for use of its greens after dark.

Almost every night a crew of worm pickers leave Belleville to scour the greens for bait.

He has up to 40 pickers to call on, and "in a good night" can bring home 70,000-80,000 worms, says Bob.

But, Sunday night the entire harvest amounted to only 1,500 worms.

"One young picker could get that many in an hour and a half under normal conditions," he says.

Parched earth has meant the disappearance of the green grass the worms feed on when the climate is right.

"Right now all we're getting is just about enough to look after my own store," says the sportsman.

However, the needs of his regular wholesale customers must still be met.

To fill out supplies he's starting buying worms in Toronto.

Usually, says Bob, he'll make only about one such emergency call a year when the weather warms up.

But so far this summer he's already made several trips to Toronto.

"And if we don't get any rain pretty soon maybe the bait dealer's supplying me won't have any either," he adds.

As yet, says Bob, the problem — which hurts recreation costs — hasn't seen any change in the retail price of worms as far as he's concerned — although the bait supplier has already tacked another $1 on the price per thousand for worms.

Bait worms are still selling in Belleville for 30 cents a dozen, and 65-70 cents further north.

"The price has held so far," says Bob. "But we haven't had a good rain for three weeks. It keeps on it's going to go sky-high."

Shaft Replaced

TRENTON — Work crews made final adjustments late Monday and early today to a new shaft installed in the Dundas St. swing bridge drive mechanism that failed last week.

For about 24 hours, the swing section remained open to boat traffic yesterday, forcing automobiles to detour to the D. J. MacDonald bridge upriver.

Now, said deputy work commissioner Gordon Ferguson Monday, the shaft has had to be cut by about an inch.

He said that due to the difficulty in accurately measuring the old shaft, badly deteriorated and bested its replacement, it has made no long. Because of the added length, the main and secondary gears are not meshing completely.

The $1,500 shaft, one of two in the bridge drive mechanism, was removed from the bridge Monday night, shortened, and replaced this morning.

Mine Opening May Bring Influx of New Students

BANCROFT — Board of Education officials here are bracing themselves for a small but significant number of students who will enter this community with their families to work at the Faraday Mine.

Acting director of education L. F. Reid said Monday the secondary school and the two elementary schools in Bancroft are preparing for the estimated 30 to 40 students.

The Faraday Mine, now being re-opened with full-production slated for next year, is expected to bring in between 200 and 300 miners. Currently, the mine is gearing up for operation. It's located about two miles from this north Hastings community.

Bob Leach, principal at North Hastings Secondary School, said he is expecting about 35 students next fall. He said two new students have already enrolled in the school. These students come from families directly associated with the mine.

Mr. Leach said the secondary school may have to hire additional staff if the full complement of students registers. He said he does not anticipate a problem fitting the students into classrooms.

Mr. Leach said he hopes the influx of new students will enrich the total student population.

"Often a new industry or employer in a community brings a new element on to the educational scene," he added.

Bancroft's two elementary schools are also expecting an influx of students associated with the mine. Education officials are anticipating between 30 and 50 elementary school students.

It is not known the exact schedule of mine operations but education officials expect a steady increase of students into the area until late next year when the mine is in full production.

The uranium mine was closed in the early 1960s due to poor economic conditions but was re-opened this year due to a new contract to sell uranium to Italy.

More Parking Needed Say Picton Residents

PICTON — When Picton mayor Donald King campaigned for office in 1974 he stressed lack of parking as a major problem here and following his election appointed a special traffic and parking committee.

Although the committee has studied the congestion on Main Street and offered several minor recommendations little has been accomplished toward smoothing the traffic flow.

Probably the biggest step taken to date is council's decision to pave the parking lot at the former Mary Street School site but this work is not yet completed.

When questioned recently several Picton area motorists confirmed in-town driving has its problems and a solution is needed.

'Curator' of the Prince Edward County Museum James Gooding indicates the famed grave marker of William Pierce who died 'February 31, 1860.' The mythical death date carved on his tombstone has won him a place in Ripley's Believe It or Not and more recently in the National Enquirer.

VICTOR LORD

A Picton businessman, Victor Lord, owner of Vic's Bicycle Shop, says he rides his bicycle to work because its much quicker than driving.

He recalled Picton merchants considered several methods of improving town parking in the mid-1960s but no action was taken.

Mr. Lord suggested cars should not be permitted to park on Main Street. Through traffic then could move freely and the Mary Street parking lot put to maximum usage. He feels this would get the cars owned by merchants and their employees off the streets.MORE

DON LITTLE

From 8:45 a.m. until store closing hours there is not enough parking space for motorists.

He adds that he sometimes finds it necessary to double park to make deliveries.

Mr. Little suggested Picton should follow Belleville's lead and make more parking available behind the stores.

WILLIAM RENOY

William Renoy, a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, says last year occupy too many of the parking slots on Main Street. He thinks they should be allowed only three meters instead of about six.

Mr. Renoy is convinced the Mary Street parking lot will alleviate the parking problem but suggests other lots such as the one adjacent to the Stanton Insurance office should be purchased and improved by the town. He said the Main Street stop light is "ridiculous" and a flashing amber light would function more efficiently.

JAMES GOODING

James Gooding, curator of Prince Edward County Museum, says he has no complaints regarding Picton's parking facilities.

"Downtown is so close that if I can't find a space I'll come back later," he commented.

Mr. Gooding, who notes he has not received a ticket in ten years added that when driving in heavy traffic cities such as Ottawa, sometimes he parks in no parking zones "because there is never anyone else there."

MARGARET JAMESON

A Picton housewife, Margaret Jamieson of York Street says parking is a problem "anytime" in Picton but it is now at its peak problem stage because of tourists.

She feels the parking lot at Mary Street will relieve much of the traffic congestion and observes many persons are becoming educated in use of this area. She says many motorists parked there before improvements were started and predicts when the lot is improved more drivers will use it.

Mysterious Tombstone in Limelight

PICTON — Picton's noted tombstone dated February 31 has gained recognition in the National Enquirer, a United States weekly publication that claims the largest circulation of any paper in America.

Mention of the gravestone of William Pierce in the church yard of the Prince Edward County Museum this week was made in The Enquirer and a photograph is included.

It is engraved on the stone that Mr. Pierce died on February 31, 1860.

Not even in leap years and 1860 was a leap year, does the month of February have 31 days.

The unusual grave marker was the subject of an item in Ripley's Believe It or Not several years ago and remains a popular conversation piece at the museum.

Museum curator James Gooding says nothing is known of William Pierce, the man who did die on this mythical date.

He added that efforts likely will be made in years more about this Picton resident whose name has — become prominent because of his date of death.

TRENTON — Canada Manpower attributes an improvement in student hiring in June to demands by area farmers for strawberry pickers and an unexpected request for kitchen help by CFB Trenton.

A month-end report by Canada Manpower student placement officers in Trenton revealed increases in both regular and casual placements in June over the corresponding month in 1974. June also saw a dramatic jump in placements over May this year.

Sandy McDonald, Manpower placement officer, said Monday 29 students were hired by the base outside Trenton last month. At the same time, he indicated the prospect for strawberry pickers will not be as rosy in July.

Harvesting of strawberries peaked earlier this year than in 1974 and demands for pickers were therefore greater. However, the demand is likely to fall off correspondingly next month.

An unwelcome note in the farm labor picture was also noticed, Mr. McDonald said. Some farmers, who have previously hired students, have placed no requests this year.

He attributed the trend to a shift by farmers to opening fields to the public. The policy of "pick-your-own" has spread, he added, because farmers must now pay workers slightly more for each quart picked than was necessary in 1974.

Placements in regular work (jobs over a week in duration) numbered 272, up from 205 in 1974. Casual laborers were placed in 42 jobs, again up from 24 last year.

June statistics indicate a marked improvement over May, 1975 placements when a total of 84 were recorded. Of those, 46 were placed in jobs falling under the regular employment class.

Between 130 and 135 students were placed in June in jobs that will continue throughout the summer. The remainder, such as strawberry pickers, will hold jobs for a period of several weeks.

Mr. McDonald attributed the improvement in student placements in June, in part, to the increase in the number of visits his office has made to local employers.

Registrations for jobs in June jumped to 457 in May to 1,544, due to an influx of high school students.

That's an Increase!

Canada Manpower placement officer Sandy McDonald and student colleague Ralph Vandervoort Monday gave June job placement statistics and note an improvement in hiring of students in the Trenton area.

Student placement last month were on nine per cent over June 1974 and jumped 225 per cent over May this year.

Truck Marks Beginning Of Fire Department

WOOLER — Chief Willard Tuckaberry and volunteer fire fighters will get their first look at Marmora township's new fire truck this week.

Delivery of the 500-gallon capacity pumper signals the birth of a fire department in the township, now protected from fire halls in three neighbouring municipalities.

Township clerk Ken Rose said Monday King Seagraves Ltd. of Woodstock is expected to deliver the pumper Thursday. Then, the chief and a number of volunteer fire fighters will be given a "short briefing session on its operation."

The approximate $42,000 pumper was ordered in early June.

The action by Murray council was precipitated partly by the withdrawal of fire protection to Trenton in a dispute over the cost of the service. Service by Trenton was withdrawn June 3 when the town did not receive payment for a $25,000 bill it waited for protection for the first six months of 1975.

When the new truck will swing into operation is still "up in the air", said Mr. Rose. No decision has been made by council to put the pumper into use immediately.

Most likely, said Mr. Rose, council will wait until its department is on solid footing before assuming responsibility for protection of part of the township.

The truck will be stored on private property, this making round-the-clock assess difficult, until the township erects its own firehall on Highway 2 at Cameron Ave.

Plans for the firehall now are in the final stages of approval and township officials expect tenders will be called for construction this week. Completion is expected in October.

Until Murray's department is operational protection will be provided for from departments in Brighton, Frankford and Stirling, Mr. Rose said. Once the township's department is set up, the town of Murray will still fall under the protective umbrella of the other three municipalities.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and greatly relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a unique healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured tissue and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Councillor Terms Letter 'Whitewash' On Picton Police Protection Issue

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton town council this spring voted to contact the Ontario Police Commission (OPC) to obtain facts and figures for provincial police protection here and has received a reply councillor Charles Hepburn termed "the result of a whitewash job."

At council's meeting Monday night, a letter from Elmer Bell, chairman of the OPC advised council there now is a shortage in Ontario Provincial Police personnel. In view of this, the letter says, the solicitor general is not entertaining any contracts.

The letter further stated that facts and figures on the cost of provincial police protection cannot be offered "because these would depend upon a study by the Commissioner of the OPP which would precede such an agreement."

Council was told an OPC advisor F.J. Taylor, could discuss policing contracts with "councillors on his next visit" and report back to the commission.

Councillor Hepburn said he considered the reply "an insult to council's intelligence and added "nothing could be a bigger whitewash."

He said other municipalities such as Ernestown are receiving protection.

"I think we should take this to the political arena, since our police commission did not give us answers and neither did the Ontario Police Commission, he commented.

Councillor Take 2

Councillor Russell Alexander backed these objections to the letter from the OPC, observing that he knows several well-qualified young men who have applied for the provincial police force but have been turned down despite the reported personnel shortage.

Councillor Norman Marsh also considered the reply unsatisfactory and said he feel much more could have been done by the OPC.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson moved a letter should be forwarded from council to the chairman of the OPC asking when an advisor can meet with town representatives and to request as early an interview as possible. In addition, he move James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox should be advised of council's action and its progress to date in obtaining information.

The motion was carried by council.

Reeve Richardson stressed," I am not knocking the local police. This is a request for information. I am in no way critical of the local force."

He observed town police are limited in manpower and in vehicles as there is only one cruiser.

"I don't object to the police force but to the letter," said councillor Hepburn referring to the OPC's reply to council's queries.

"I don't think Mr. Bell made any effort at all to assist us."

"This is a complete snow job," said councillor Hepburn.

Reeve Richardson suggested council should "stay polite" in its dealings with the OPC but added if the same "run around" is forthcoming a second time it would be permissible "to show a little teeth".

Parking Debated

PICTON — Although parking at the rear of Picton's Main St. stores has been discussed on numerous occasions, no action has been taken says Sheldon Whitaker, president of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce.

At a meeting of the chamber held Monday Mr. Whitaker noted some property behind the stores recently changed hands and added that possibly arrangements for off-street parking can be negotiated.

Past president of the chamber, Frank Wright observed the Mary Street school lot has been paved recently and suggested the town should receive credit for this action.

He said if merchants were to park there and walk to work "it would relieve pressure on Main Street."

"It is a real asset to the town," he commented.

Picton businessman Morris Purcell said, "I do not think the merchants want to sell their property behind stores on Main Street but I expect they would co-operate in having it paved and kept lighted."

In discussion of off-street parking Miss Pearsall said she would not expect rent for the use of her property off Main Street but she would expect the town to maintain the site.

She suggested if lots being the stores were paved merchants could improve rear entrances for customer use.

Former Prince Edward warden Gordon Lloyd of Wellington commented, Half of the traffic problem in town is caused in Picton by people driving up and down looking for a parking space."

Puppeteers Delight Picton Children

PICTON — The Deckhands, puppeteers sponsored by the Lake Ontario Regional Library system entertained an enthusiastic young audience in the Armory Hall here Monday.

The 30-minute performance included Little Red Hen, and Jack and The Three Billies.

The puppeteers include five Kingston students who entertain youngsters in approximately eight counties on Lake Ontario.

At Picton this week were Walter Freeman, who plans to study radio announcing at Loyalist College, Carol Armstrong, who is majoring in music and drama at Queen's University and Barbara Nylund, a Queen's student in scientific journalism. These puppeteers alternate their performances with students Margie Lyons and Jennifer Gardner.

Mr. Freeman observed this is the first time smaller centres such as Picton have been included on the puppeteers itinerary. In 1974 the shows were presented only in larger communities.

KNOW YOUR ZONING

J. E. McKinney

In a nutshell, zoning laws lay out restrictions as to what kind of buildings may be constructed and how they can be used within certain geographic limits. Municipalities have zoning laws that protect its homeowners. However, they may also put a crimp into future remodeling plans you have in mind.

For example, if the area is zoned for one-family homes, you may not be able to use a part of the house for some special use, such as converting an area for an apartment for a family member or rental or using a part of the house for an office or party for business. There may be height restrictions or lot size limitations.

Before buying, you should know what the zoning is, and the geographic limits of residential and business-zoned areas in your neighborhood. It may affect the future value of your property and save you from an unexpected disappointment.

Mrs. Gandhi Moves Toward Dictatorship with Curbs on Press and Opposition

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

"In India, democracy has given her much licence to the people." These sad, and words, the excuse of the demagogues and totalitarians of our time to strangle free parliaments and the media now come, tragically, from the mouth of India's Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi.

The diversified and often vitriolic newspapers of India, some of the most influential of them published in English, are silent on her arrests of political opponents because she has ordered them to be silent.

The opposition press in India which hits government about as hard, yet with the same dry humor and cynicism of Fleet Street, must only print hand government press releases.

Even these have already been censored by government officials. About 1,000 of Mrs. Gandhi's elected opponents are in jail or under close arrest.

And the Indian crime minister, in spite of affirmation from the Supreme Court of India that she can continue to hold office with political misdemeanors charged against her, acts like the many tyrants of Asia with her actions.

Mrs. Gandhi says that India is "more democratic than any developing country in the world." This is meaningless and a lie where press and politics are concerned.

She has retarded both in an anti-democratic move which still praises many and which leaves her country no more "democratic" than the one-party governments which rule in most of the Third World.

Prior to her sudden devoent on political and press opponents is a dictatorial move to strengthen her shaky position. Prime Minister Gandhi's vast country, along with Japan, was a symbol of experiment with the democratic system in Asia.

Where the People's Republic of China is thoroughly totalitarian and most of the smaller nations of South East Asia practice one-man, one-party rule of one kind or another, India had persisted with the hard, hard democracy that is until a few days ago.

The shock wave of Mrs. Gandhi's totalitarian measures have not only been felt in India and Asia, but throughout the British Commonwealth where India's presence as a separate democratic entity has a nation-building content more than a nation-building content.

'A Sea of Chemicals'

It is hard to keep up with all the warnings on cancer and what causes it. It has run the gamut from tobacco to coffee drunk along with cheese — thereby creating an undoubtable chemical reaction with preservatives — and now hair dyes.

An international symposium in Ottawa was told recently that man lives in "a sea of chemicals" which have not been tested for their ability to alter genes or cause cancer.

Dr. Bruce Ames estimate that 20 million Americans, mostly women, dye their hair and the hazard could be considerable "if these chemicals are actually mutagenic and carcinogenic in humans."

The Californian scientist says that all food additives, drugs and chemicals to which human beings are exposed should be screened by bacterial tests, with further, more time-consuming testing of those which prove to be mutagens.

The conference heard another viewpoint on the health risk factor associated with preservatives. World food shortages, according to Dr. Alexander Morrison, assistant deputy minister of health in Ottawa are forcing the government to weigh the health risks of chemicals against their ability to increase the food supply."

It is a balance that is not easy to achieve.

What about the public's responsibility? There was advice in this regard from Professor Marian Valsey of the University of Manitoba at a recent seminar for nutritionists and food writers. She points out that while many consumers seem to look on freezing as a hazard, it is the prior level of contamination, and thawing conditions that foster microbe growth.

Prof. Valsey says that "food safety may well be threatened most by the way consumers themselves handle foods." Many are too casual about their food handling practices, and she mentions in this regard flu-like symptoms derived from salmonella organisms in meat.

So much for progress. As Prof. Valsey says, consumers may be casual about the way they handle food, but at the same time they are uneasy about what is removed from food — in the way of nutrients — as well as what is added to it.

We only live once . . . and more and more these days a lifetime is hedged with hazards mysterious and as yet unfathomable. There is no point in worrying though, just so long as the scientists are working to ensure the chemical input in our lives is kept at reasonable levels.

If God Went on Strike

"If God Would Go on Strike . . ."

"That's a startling thought isn't it?

And it comes by way of a compelling piece of verse by Mrs. Myrtle Cholmard of Bancroft.

"It's just a good thing God . . . Has never gone on strike . . . For things He didn't like . . . If He had ever once sat down . . . And said, 'That's it — I'm through . . . I've had enough of those on earth . . . So this is what I'll do.' "

That's the first verse. Suppose, the remainder of the four-verse poem — called this is a fantasy) — suggests, God should order the Sun to cut off its heat, and the Moon its light so the oceans can dry. And what would it be like without air and oxygen?

He'd be justified, Mrs. Chouinard avers: "For no one has ever been more abused . . . Or treated with disdain. . . ."

The message of course is that while mankind pursues its wanton and selfish course — perhaps ensuring their own long-term demise through war and the squandering of available resources — the Deity can always be relied on.

What happens though, if the day comes when space and available resources are gone? It's not just a hypothetical question. Experts have been warning of such a desperate situation. Will a higher power save us from ourselves in the evil day?

Mrs. Cholmard's poem, sent by her daughter, Mrs. Dorcus Royle, raises some interesting questions.

Brantford Expositor

Quizzing Canadians on a complex national problem invites a tangle of views. The completed rovings of a parliamentary committee seeking views on immigration policy has proved no exception.

There has been a confusion of voices, many sober and informed presentations, several impractical suggestions and a few organized attempts by politically-motivated saboteurs to disrupt the hearings while bawling unfounded accusations of racism. But on the whole, the committee's tour appears to have been useful.

Parliamentary Opposition Sluggish And It is a Long Hot Summer

By F.W. GROVER

OTTAWA — Odds and ends as the first session of the 28th Parliament staggers to a close. It has not been an exciting session. One wonders why so often in recent years, some excuse has been found to keep the House sitting late July?

Maybe it is a guilt complex — a combination of a bad conscience over the time wasted and a apologetic about public criticism of the recent pay increase. More likely it is just Parkinson's Law — work expands to fill the time available.

In due course the Liberals will publish a list of all the things the government achieved since the session began last fall. It will be followed by a list published by the opposition naming all the things the government failed to do. Both will be right in their own context.

The Liberals will say the Opposition wasted too much time on frivolous matters and filibustering. The Opposition will say the government didn't have the legislation ready to implement its Throne Speech promises and what was presented was hodly drafted and crowded amendments.

The taxpayers may well feel that their interests would have been better served if the MPs had gone home a month earlier and spent the time in their ridings.

The sooty work by the opposition parties can be blamed on leadership problems. — Social Credit Leader Real Caouette has been in poor health for some time and the Conservatives and New Democrats are trying to make up their minds about new leaders. The Liberals don't have that excuse for their sluggishness. Their lack of spark may be blamed, partly at least, on the absence of a snappy opposition to keep them on their toes.

Since the start of the Trudeau era, the Liberals have had little to say about deficits, even though it takes better than $2 billion of the taxpayer's money.

Boastful the military has been chiefly the prerogative of the Conservatives, with a little help from Social Credit. NDP participation in military debates is limited to calling for an end to the NORAD agreement with the United States.

In the more recent debate on defence spending — initiated by the Tories — Defence Minister James Richardson unwittingly come up with the best climéle of the year. In his recitation of the achievements of the Canadian Armed Forces in Transport Command which handles the military mail.

"I think the mail service we provide is perhaps better than that provided to civilians in the rest of Canada," Mr. Richardson said. The Air Transport Command would hardly take that as a compliment.

Transport Minister Marchand's new transportation policy won't immediately resume everyone that his department is no longer in a mess.

To say that Canadians can expect to pay more for passenger travel and shipping costs is stressing the obvious. With fuel costs zooming up and Labor rules rising rapidly under contract settlements imposed by Parliament, shipping rates must follow the national pattern.

Canada's great distances and sparse population have always required that a certain amount of transportation be provided on a public utility basis. Simply announcing that the government will have more say in transportation decisions doesn't solve the problem of moving people and goods from Buffalo Narrows to Sioux Lookout.

Strangely, the first place the government will step in is on the Windsor to Montreal corridor — the one place where private enterprise, given some incentive and a little prodding could make ad honest buck.

VIA rail are guilty as anyone of complaining about the size and efficiency of the public service. One of the solutions lies easily in their hands. That is to quit asking so many questionaires.

The written questions which MPs put on the Commons Order Paper — usually in an attempt to embarrass the government — end up on the desks of junior level public servants who must spend many hours researching the answers.

This session saw more than 2,500 questions asked, about half of which were never answered. How much better if half of them had never been asked.

Steve Paproski, Conservative MP for Edmonton, for instance, asked a multitude of questions seeking detailed information on aid contracts let by the Canadian International Development Agency.

Mr. Paproski is not the only one who feels that all is not right in CIDA. But all he will end up with is a mass of figures that won't help him prove his point and somewhere in the CIDA headquarters there will be a frustrated civil servant convinced that politicians are a lower form of life who should be eradicated if possible.

Canada's Bureaucracy Totals 16.8 Per Cent of Work Force

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

One of baseball's great pitchers, Satchel Page, had a precept that went approximately like this:

"Don't look back. Somebody might be gaining on you."

If you do look back, however, you will certainly find that Big Brother is gaining on you.

The evil jarvies in Canada is rapidly gaining on all of us. Latest figures, for the end of September of last year, showed that 16.8 per cent of the Canadian labor force — 1,421,000 out of a total of 8,840,000 - worked for some level of government.

That's a sharp rise from 11.4 per cent at the end of 1972—just 21 months earlier.

But it doesn't begin to encompass all the people whose income is derived from the public purse.

Canadian figures are not readily available but, for instance, minister at Ford Motor Co. (U.S.) have found that 71,600,000 Americans in private employment help to support 10,753,000 civil servants, armed forces members, welfare recipients, pensioners and unemployed.

That makes a ratio of 47 non-government workers to 53 on the public payroll.

There's good reason to believe that Canadian figures would show an even greater proportion of people in the public sector, which includes overstaffed organizations such as Air Canada, and Ontario Hydro — organizations that would be in the private sector in the United States.

The mere fact that private-sector enterprises are not from perfect. But the politicians and bureaucrats, with their government monopolies and their pork-barrel schemes, may well be a greater threat to our future prosperity.

Act Governing Credit Agencies Working Well and Few Questions Are Asked

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

Just about a year ago Ontario proclaimed a new act which was supposed to bring about a new deal on reporting by credit agencies and companies in the province.

Similar acts were already in force in other provinces and they all had been brought about by the same situation.

People had been and were being hurt by false information that had been supplied when credit reports had been asked on them when they wanted to take out a mortgage, buy a car or make some other purchase, usually major but also quite often minor.

Experience had been that there could be considerable gossip and innuendo in connection with these reports and government decided the consequences were serious enough that they should be cleaned up.

Ontario, as did other jurisdictions, put in tough laws.

It made it an offence to provide false information with a fines of up to $25,000 (in the case of a corporation) and various jail penalties.

But further it made it clear that there was notice given to any individual being investigated and that if any such individual wasn't happy with the situation in the case that he would have to be provided with the information on which it was based.

After a year of operation the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Affairs which handles the law is satisfied with it. It feels it is doing the job that had to be done.

But the administration of the act has not been without its surprises.

A major one has been that there have been comparatively few requests for information in reports from either the ministry or reporting agencies.

At first quite a few such reports had been requested.

When they didn't materialize it became evident that this was probably because the legislation had tightened up the whole reporting operation.

Tightened it up to the extent that it would only be a crash probably who would bother asking for his report.

This was assuming that most people turned down for credit have a pretty good idea of why they have turned down.

And the new safeguards tighten up much of the frivolity that marked the enterprise in its old days, particularly the flyby-night end.

Then anyone giving false information today can be sued for libel or slander and there is a better awareness of this.

Many are aware of the old story of a credit investigator who went to an applicant's neighbor and was told he was a drunk.

This reached the ear of another neighbor who asked the first one about it:

"Have you ever looked at his garbage on Fridays?" the first neighbor scoffed. "It's full of wine bottles."

The second man had known the applicant for years and knew that while he drank wine with his meals he was in no way a drunk.

With this new act the record can now be straightened.

First of all no reporting company can pass on any such information unless it is verified by at least one other person.

Then the company looking at all these penalties and the trouble generally it could be invoiting would tend to seek better sources.

At least that has been the experience to date.

Potter Finds Hastings Ideal Place to Settle

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

MAYNOOTH — A unique business enterprise has opened in the North Hastings area and is geared to appeal to the discriminating pallett and the person with an asthetic eye.

On Highway 62 north, about two miles south of Maynooth and 13 miles north of Bancroft, Pauline Walter, an accomplished potter has opened a craft shop and restaurant.

Mrs. Walter, originally from Germany, has left her city formal art work behind and decided to make North Hastings her new home.

"We found the landscape in this area very appealing," said Mrs. Walter, "and the people are so friendly, that we decided to settle here."

"Besides, I'm very sick and tired of the cities," said the European — trained potter.

Mrs. Walter uses a number of techniques in her work with ceramics.

She enjoys doing raku firing (which involved an outside wood or oil fired kiln reaching temperature of 1,600—1,800 degrees farenheit) as well as traditional firing methods for her ceramics.

Following her training in Europe and Toronto, Mrs. Walter spent some time in the United States where her work was exhibited at the Chicago Art Museum.

"I have exhibited quite a bit," she said, "and I am seriously considering giving lessons in ceramics and macarame."

In making jewellery and hanging pots, Mrs. Walter combines the techniques of pottery and macrame to make three demensional and multi-textured items.

"I really feel that people want to go back to more natural items instead of the ones that are so manufactured," said Mrs. Walter.

At the moment, in order to finance her craft endeavors, Mrs. Walter and her husband Wolf have turned part of the log building they own into a restaurant which features, along with the traditional foods, delicious home baking and refreshing ice coffee.

Where did Mrs. Walter learn to be so accomplished in the kitchen as well as at the wheel and kiln?

"Oh I think that cooking and baking are also a beautiful art," she explained.

OFY Grant Prompts Floating Playground

By RUBY MCCOY
Staff Correspondent

MARMORA — The mothers of Marmora should not hear the plaintive cry of "Mother, what can we do?" this summer, if they take advantage of the plans that have been made to keep the children busy and interested for several weeks.

In addition to the six-week swimming instruction program which got under way Monday a program of sports, arts and crafts is being sponsored by the Marmora and District Lions Club.

On an every third day basis, seven students from Centre Hastings Secondary School who were awarded an Opportunities for Youth grant of $7,655 will operate a floating playground between Marmora Madoc and Tweed.

Supervised swimming began at the beach on Monday and will be held from Monday to Friday in a.m. to 12 noon and 1:30 to 5:00 p.m. and on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The staff in charge will be Linda Lee Leonard refresher in swimming director, Cheryl Smith, Shawn Doyle and Janice McGarvey, patrol leaders and Janet McGarvey as playground supervisor.

Miss Leonard has been busy arranging the swimming program which will include swimming lessons competitive swimming, water polo, synchronized swimming for girls and skin diving.

Invitations have already been received for a Marmora team to compete in swim meets at Campbellford and Lakefield, Miss Leonard reports.

Equipment is being obtained and lists of junior boys and girls and senior boys and girls will be formed so that water polo can be played several times a week.

Something new this year, synchronized swimming will be taught to groups of young and older girls. The staff will also be instructing swimmers in the proper use of underwater and snorkels.

A team of swim experts from Toronto will be in Marmora on July 30 to conduct a clinic. Youngsters in the various groups will have the benefit of some expert advice and criticism by several people who are themselves being considered for Canada's Olympic team.

The Lions Club has put up $1250 and have received a government grant of approximately $1,000, to promote a program that will include arts and crafts, games, field days, hiking trips, orienteering, scavenger hunts, singsongs and many other ideas.

This program began on Tuesday, July 1 and will run Monday to Friday from 9 a.m. 5 p.m. There is no registration fee for this and all children may enroll.

Patti O'Connor will be in charge of the program, assisted by her sister Kate and Tom Cook.

The Lions Club project is being supervised by a committee composed of Jack Golden, chairman, Sheridan Griffin and Don Logan.

The students working with the OFY grant will co-ordinate their program with the Lions Club project on the days that they are in Marmora. The seven young people are Kathy Smith, Russel Green, Bob Murphy, Judy Killian, Amelia Bossin, Carole Anne Burns and Joe Lajoie.

Their plans call for something different every days: bicycle trips, hikes, games, visits to Vanderwater park, the sand banks near Picton and other places by bus, a play which might be presented at local nursing home and other ideas which are not fully developed yet.

In Madoc the floating playground will operate on the grounds of the high school and in Tweed at Tweed Park Arrangement have been made to make use of the facilities at Earl Prentice School when the weather is unsatisfactory for outdoor activities.

Newsmakers

Sidewalk Sale

The annual summer sidewalk sale will be held at the Quinte Mall next week July 10-12. Merchants will display their wares on tables in the mall for strolling shoppers.

Films on View

The boys and girls film entertainment program at the Corby Library continues this Thursday, July 10, with Goodnight Little Foal, Bremen Town Musicians and Clown being shown at 2:30 p.m.

Carnival Planned

There will be a penny carnival held July 12, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. at 32 Elvins St. Proceeds from the carnival will go to the Canadian Cancer Society.

Library Plans Show

The Corby library will host a display of reproductions of paintings from the McMichael Gallery Canadian Collection. They will be exhibited in the upper and lower lobby July 16th - August 30th.

Pots and More Pots

For Maynooth's Pauline Walker, life is becoming an endless stream of pots. Mrs. Walter has just opened a restaurant in this north Hastings community and if there aren't pots to be washed, there are pots to be made from clay as her personal exhibit shows. The new business is a combination restaurant and craft shop and the newest addition to Maynooth's commercial community.

Lions Club Offers Lessons For Junior Swimmers

BANCROFT — The local Lions Club and the municipal council are once again offering a swimming instruction program to Bancroft and area residents.

The program, which has operated for a number of years in the York River, will be in action again this summer despite the construction of the Senior Citizens Housing on the adjacent property.

Registration for the lessons took place last week, and the formal lessons started Monday.

This years' instructors are Anne Quereneesen and Anita Malley and the lessons will follow the program laid out by the Canadian Red Cross Water Safety Branch.

A nominal charge of $1.00 is made for registering and the lessons are all held in the morning.

The Bancroft Lion's Club Pool is located on Station Street, on the east side of the Post Office Bridge.

Camp Popular

MAYNOOTH — One hundred and thirty hot and dusty kids jumping off the bales in Graphite Bay camp doesn't bother Gary Robinson and his staff at all as a matter of fact they'd like to have even more than that arrive.

The children, who attend the camp in two week blocks, come from all parts of North Hastings and enjoy the facilities of the camp on Graphite Lake free.

Graphite Day Camp, is in essence a bible-oriented camp which deals with the spiritual, mental and physical needs of the children attending.

It's operated by Gary Robinson and a staff of volunteers and according to Mr. Robinson, is "a non-profit organization".

We do operate on free will donations," said Mr. Robinson, who inherited the job of running the camp from Doug Robinson.

During the summer months, children are bused to the camp from designated parts of the north.

Currently children from Graphite, Maple Leaf, Monteagle and Hermon are there, however, on July 14 youngsters from Harcourt, Baptist and Birds Creek will be invited to attend.

Bancroft youngsters are getting into the swim of things this week with the opening of swimming lessons at the Bancroft Lions Club pool. Here instructors

Swinging Summer

Swings are fun but they're a lot more fun if you've got someone like playground leader Ruth Stewart to give a push. For four-year-old Gregory Schmidt, a ride on the swings is a perfect way to enjoy the day.

District at a Glance

Booth Busy

The students manning the tourist information booth at the Marmora Municipal Park report that there were nine out-of-town families who made inquiries at the booth during the weekend regarding camping facilities, etc. in the area.

A supply of maps and brochures and a list of interesting places to see are available at the booth.

Store Moving

MARMORA — Martin's Building Supplies here will soon be closing their store on Forsyth St. and move to a new location on No. 7 Highway, one half mile west of the flashing traffic light.

The new store will have approximately 2,000 square feet of floor space and free parking. Moving of the business is hopefully to take place the latter part of July with a grand opening in mid-September.

Puppets on View

MARMORA — The children of Marmora and Madoc will have the privilege of seeing a real live puppet show in the near future.

Arrangements have been completed by the Marmora Union Library Board to have The Deckhands Puppet Theatre present two plays, The Three Sillies and The Little Red Hen, in Marmora on Tuesday, July 15 at 5:00 p.m. and in Deloro on Thursday, July 17 at 1:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Young Heads Tories

MARMORA — Bernice Young was elected president of the Deloro Progressive Conservative Association at their recent annual meeting.

First vice-president will be L.C. Bicknell and the second vice-president Mike Horvath. Eleanor Bicknell will assume the duties of secretary-treasurer and Jace Donaldson will act as Events Co-ordinator.

New Principal Named

MARMORA — The new principal of Sacred Heart School here is Jim Darmanin who comes to Marmora from Burlington.

Robert Bartsch, principal for the past five years, will be teaching at Sacred Heart School in Madawa in September. Mr. Bartsch and his family will continue to live in Marmora.

Milk Store Coming

MARMORA — A Peterborough developer L. Tazowki has purchased the store on Forsyth Street owned by Vaughan Glover and currently occupied by Jack's Bargain Centre.

Work is expected to begin soon converting it into two stores — one to become the site of a new Mac's Milk Store and the other will be used by Jack Jones for his Bargain Centre.

Arts, Crafts Draw Kids

BANCROFT — For the second year in a row, a playground, funded by the Opportunities for Youth (OFY) program will be operating in Bancroft.

The playground, called the Kids Corner, runs daily, Monday to Friday from 9 a.m. to noon and again from 1:00 to 3:30 p.m.

A project employing four supervisors, Nora Sheila Burns, Ruth Stewart and Sandra Jeffries, the kids corner catered to 35 children recently when the doors were opened.

Included in the program are arts and crafts, swimming, games and many other outdoor activities.

Pascoe—Sim

Marlene Sim and Randall Joseph Pascoe were wed June 14 in St. Michael the Archangel Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sim, Montreal; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Pascoe, RR1, Shannonville. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza with high neck and bell sleeves. Her tulle illusion veil was held by a bandeau trimmed with guipure lace. She carried pink and white stephanotis.

Sue McCarvill, Ottawa, Mrs. Larry Pascoe and Carol Moroun wore similar ensembles.

Larry Pascoe, the groom's brother, was best man, assisted by Edward Pascoe, the groom's brother, Keith Sim, the bride's brother and John Pepper.

A dinner and dance was held at the Royal Canadian Legion.

The couple will reside in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall Pascoe

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Robert Moher

Moher — Ross

Elizabeth Ellen Ross and Michael Robert Moher were wed recently at St. Joseph's Church in an afternoon ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Aileen Ross and the late Dr. Francis Raymond Ross. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Moher, North Bay, Ont.

Given in marriage by her brother, Robert, the bride wore a white silk organza gown with re-embroidered Alencon lace. A scalloped panel of lace overlaid the raised waist to emphasize the A-line skirt. A pillbox of appliqued Alencon lace caught her floor length silk illusion veil. She carried white glamelias with a white orchid and ivy.

Lynda Northover, the bride's sister, was matron of honor in a floor length mauve dress with deep flounce collar. She carried white carnations and pink static and baby's breath. Attendants Mary Moher, the groom's sister; Susan Ross, and Marleen Ross, junior bridesmaid, were similarly dressed.

Carolyn Ross was flower girl and Gregory Northover was ring bearer.

Robert Munroe was best man, assisted by ushers Joseph Ross, the bride's brother, Paul Hanley and Tim Moher, the groom's brother.

A dinner and dance at the Park Room of the Four Seasons was followed by a trip to Bermuda.

The couple will reside in Hamilton.

Parker—Hearns

Trinity United Church, Napanee, was the scene of the June wedding of Cheryl Ann Hearns and Donald Wade Parker.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hearns, Napanee; the groom is the son of Mrs. Hubert Young, Islington.

Rev. Thomas Page officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown with chapel train of white peau de soie with mandarin collar. Her elbow length veil was held in place by a ribbon headpiece. She carried yellow silk roses with dried lily of the valley and baby's breath.

Sharon Brewster was matron of honor in a mint green gown and carried a nosegay of pink silk roses and dried yellow mums. Sandra Kimmett, Donna Snazel and Glenda Waddingham wore yellow gowns and carried pink silk roses and dried white mums.

They will reside in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parker

Engagement

Mrs. Bernice Maynes is pleased to announce the engagement of her daughter Janie Lu-Ann, to Gary Douglas Danford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Danford of Marmora. The wedding will take place at 2 p.m. July 26, at Calvary Temple.

PRINCESS ALICE By Gerard Noel

Born in 1861, Princess Alice was the third of Queen Victoria's children. Brilliant like her father, Prince Albert, she was a fascinating personality. Until this book by Gerard Noel, she was somewhat the "forgotten daughter" and had she not died so very young her impact on history would obviously have been felt.

During Prince Albert's fatal illness, Princess Alice did much of the nursing and bore the brunt of her mother's almost demented grief on his death. Barely 18 years old at the time, the strain on her health affected her nervous system for the rest of her life.

Married to Prince Louis of Hesse, the young couple settled in Hesse with frequent lengthy trips to England. Here, Princess Alice found a second vocation in caring for the sick and disabled and was greatly inspired by a regular correspondence with Florence Nightingale, creating many nursing organizations.

Tragedy struck when her adored second son, Fritzie, died at the age of three, victim of Haemophilia; and in 1878 she nursed her whole family through diptheria. When her youngest daughter May died, Princess Alice succumbed herself and died a few days later; she was only 35. She was the mother of Russia's last Czarina and the grandmother of Earl Mountbatten of Burma.

This book is available in the Corby Public Library.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Reynolds

Reynolds — Rodgers

Eileen Jayne Rodgers and Robert Bruce Reynolds were recently married in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Stirling, in a ceremony performed by Rev. Roy Taylor.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rodgers and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reynolds, all of Stirling.

The reception was held at the White House Inn in Brighton. Dr. and Mrs. Reynolds now live in Kingston.

People and Events

Stirling Women's Institute

At the Stirling Women's Institute meeting, held at the Community Hall Wednesday, plans were made for a picnic to be held at Zwicks, Island August 6. After the committee reports, a collection was taken for the friendship fund followed by a solo by Anne McInroy, reading by Mrs. Gifford and Mrs. Tanner, a contest, and the singing of happy birthday for a member. A lunch was served by the committee and hostess Margie Ward.

Carmel W.I.

At the June meeting of the Carmel Women's Institute, cake decorating was the main item on the program.

Cora Ritz, program convener, introduced Olga Lozariuk who demonstrated cake decorating. Dorothy Hodgate won the decorated cake.

Plans were also discussed for catering a wedding.

JUDITH BOLTE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Boyce, received her Bachelor of Arts degree from Trent University at the spring convocation June 6.

Cookbook Contest Underway

Whether you're proud of a special family favorite recipe or you'd just like a chance at a whole collection of draw prizes, you should make a point to enter The Intelligencer's Cookbook contest.

To enter the cookbook all you must do is watch for the regular publication of an entry form in this newspaper. Clip the recipe form and fill it in with a recipe you particularly like.

The recipe should fall into one of these four categories: main dish, dessert, appetizer or salad and miscellaneous. Any sweet from cookies to cake, bread, gelatin desserts falls into the dessert category while special items like meats, breads are considered "miscellaneous". The other categories are self-explanatory.

On Thursday, August 28, the recipes entered — complete with the name and address of the person who submitted it will be published in The Intelligencer's annual cookbook.

Last year's cookbook, which contained 36 pages, included hundreds of recipes submitted by readers along with four special recipes, winners in their respective categories. Tasty Mexican Soup featuring pork sausage links, rice and beans; Empress Beef, with marinated round steak; Cucumber Boats with shrimp and Alaska Mint Pie with ice cream and creme de menthe were last year's winners.

When entering the cookbook and contest, be sure to print or type your recipe clearly. Recipes which are not easily read must be discarded to avoid cookbook errors.

Ingredients should be listed on the lines at left and clear and complete instructions given in the space provided. Be sure to give your recipe a name and indicate the category. Finally, be sure to include your name and address and phone number. Telephone number will not be published.

You should not enter more than one recipe in each category.

When listing your ingredients, be sure to avoid brand names.

The recipe contest — and concurrently the draw contest closes July 19.

All recipe entries are automatically entered in the grand prize draw.

One winner — whose name is chosen by draw — will receive panty hose, dry cleaning, several gift certificates, hamburgers, cake, perfume, gasoline, a blanket, rug, cow and sauter, and hairstyling.

The recipe contest winner, who will be chosen by a panel of expert judges, will receive $25 in cash and a dinner for two at one of four area restaurants: the Four Seasons Hotel, Pape's Steak House, the Hotel Quinte or Sun Luck Gardens.

The decision of the judges is final.

If you'd like a chance at that draw prize or you feel you have a prize-winning recipe — or even if you'd just like to share a favorite with friends and neighbors — enter now.

Remember a free copy of the cookbook will be included with your Intelligencer Thursday, August 28.

Today's Child

By Helen Allen

FRANK

Frank is a pleasant boy, amiable, cooperative and keen to please. Recently turned 12, he is healthy and active, hyperactive at times. He has recently been on medication to help calm him down but does not take it weekends when lots of outdoor activity has the same effect.

Frank has dark hair, brown eyes and olive skin with a few freckles. Since little information is available about his background, his ethnic origin is unknown.

Though not academically inclined, Frank enjoys some things about school. He is in special education but last year took science in a regular grade five. He is progressing well, though needing a good deal of individual attention. He likes doing things with his hands and will put a lot of time and effort into making models. Using cardboard and paper he created a model of his school which was honorable mention in a recent Science Fair.

Very anxious to be adopted, Frank longs for a family and a home where he will belong. He knows adoption is something like a marriage where those concerned have to be prepared for much give and take and he is prepared to do his best to make his adoption work.

A talkative boy, Frank enjoys outings with adults and also gets on well with children.

He likes reading stories of youthful adventures such as Huckleberry Finn. He enjoys sports — plays baseball and soccer at school. Frank's attitude would be a delight to physical fitness buffs — he enters track and field events at school whether he has any chance of winning or not.

This lad needs a family who will give him love and reassurance. He does best in an atmosphere where he knows what to expect and what is expected of him.

To inquire about adopting Frank, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 580, Station K, Toronto M4P 3H2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life.

Courageous Youngster Conquers His Handicap

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Two days before his eighth birthday in August, 1972, Dale Vincent Jumped on to a moving train a few hundred yards from his home.

"We were playing cowboys and Indians, and I was the train robber. I the girl had the loot so I had to go back for more, and that's when it happened," said Dale.

He fell off the train. His right arm was severed, his scalp was split and his right leg was amputated when he was taken to hospital.

"I had 104 stitches in my head," boasted Dale, who is pleased with his resistance. "I was awake all through the accident."

Now 10, Dale can ride a bike, swim, kick a football, write left-handed and participate in sports.

He does not feel handicapped in any way and if someone asks, he just says: "It could be worse."

Dale's mother, Mary, said it was Dale's brave outlook that pulled most of the family through the six months he spent in and out of hospital.

Every two years, he must enter hospital to have a section of bone cut from his injured arm.

Because he still is growing, so are the bones in his arm. The flesh which covers the bottom of the arm must be cut away and an inch or two of bone removed. The flesh then is stitched back.

Dale's greatest wish following the accident was to ride a bicycle again. That wish was fulfilled.

"It only took me half an hour to learn how to ride a bike," he said. "It took me five minutes to learn how to walk on my new leg."

Dale is the youngest person to be named Sydney Jr. by the War Amps of Canada. Sydney Lambert, the organization's poetic who died in 1971.

He is also the only Sydney Jr. to be a double amputee.

As Sydney Jr., Dale has been the centre of attention at War Amps conventions, has led parades and appeared on television.

He will be Sydney Jr. for Canada until a new person is selected at their convention in Montreal in September.

The War Amps have offered to set Dale up as a farmer—his ambition—when he is older. A trust fund, which Dale will receive when he is of age, is to be set up by War Amps.

Box 99 Shifts To 'Buyer Beware' Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal role as consumer protector adopted in 1968 now is in the process of being shifted to the more neutral philosophy of "buyer beware."

John Read of the federal consumers services branch describes as in the thinking stage the format of an expanded consumer information program aimed mainly at lower-income groups.

That means a switch in Box 99, the department's complaint and inquiry service.

The Box 99 service was started in 1968 by the consumer affairs department as a storefront operation designed to protect the consumer, especially the poor and the elderly, against unfair trade practices.

Although offices were initially designed as walk-in aid centres, Box 99 headquarters is located on the 17th floor of a federal building in Hull, Que., across the Ottawa River from the capital. Regional offices are operated in major Canadian cities.

Despite the department's perceived need and the intent of the program, a recent trans Canada study conducted for the department showed that only about 15 per cent of the population had any knowledge of the service.

A one-shot advertising campaign geared strictly to the Box 99 service was conducted in 1969, but a consumer affairs spokesman said that since then the consumer has not been provided with any information on a national basis.

She said the department is trying to decentralize its operations and that Box 99 is but a single feature of several integrated services.

Yet, the publicized aim of the consumer protection branch in 1968 was to assist the poor, the elderly and similar groups to gain redress for injustices in the marketplace, perhaps because of its lack of advertising. Box 99, since its inception seven years ago, has received only 118,000 consumer complaints and 39,710 inquiries from a population of more than 22 million.

Last year, 29,223 complaints were received compared with 3,109 in the first year of the operation.

When a complaint is received by Box 99 officials they can only make representations to the company, firm or persons named. They have no official authority to take action against an offender.

The service can, however, take the matter to the federal or provincial government department under whose jurisdiction the complaint falls.

If, for example, a consumer complains to Box 99 about a faulty braking system on a new car and investigation shows the company to be at fault, a course of action would be recommended by Box 99 officials.

If the company refused to inquiry might, in this case, be placed in the hands of the transport department for an official investigation that might result in legal action against the offending company.

But the Box 99 people now want to throw the complaint-handling process over to the individual consumer through an information or self-help program.

Branch director T. D. Finn said in an interview that the department wants to develop a system whereby only the most complicated problems are brought to government.

"We're trying to evaluate the purpose of the Box 99 service," Mr. Finn said, "and discover the best way of making the consumer aware of the pitfalls of the marketplace."

Emphasis would shift from complaints to information distribution which, it is said, would relieve officials of a complicated operation and be of greater benefit to consumers.

Mr. Finn said information might be distributed to the consumer in a number of ways including television, newspaper and radio advertisements, schools and churches with government cheques.

Many questions arise out of the proposed role change for the Box 99 service, including the credibility of the information program.

If trained Box 99 officials have problems investigating a single complaint, is it conceivable that a 70-year-old widow on a fixed income with minimal education could follow procedures given in a brochure with her government allowance cheque? Mr. Finn seems to think it is.

Asked if the proposed change may not indicate failure of a potentially valuable consumer program, Mr. Finn disagreed. "We simply want to switch to a preventive rather than a curative program," he said.

Ann Landers

Children Need Models, Not Critics

Dear Ann Landers: I write this out of genuine concern for today's youth.

Parents, have you found your son or daughter, grade school and up—

Lying—but overlooked it?

Cheating—felt a little disappointed?

Swearing—got a little upset?

Smoking—got quite upset?

Stealing—gave a lecture?

Drinking—grounded him for a week?

O.K., Mom and Dad, just who set the examples for these children? Was it those bad kids at school or you in your own home?

What you DO speaks louder than what you SAY! If the youth of today are going to get straightened out, the adult generation had better start setting standards kids can look up to.

What images do your children have of you? Puffing on a cigarette, sitting around before dinner with martinis, cheating on your income tax, telling a few small lies, swearing at them and each other? Not a very pretty picture, is it?

What is life like at YOUR house?—Boca Raton

Dear Boca: I've said it before, but I'll say it again—children need models more than they need critics. When parents don't set good examples it ill becomes them to ask, "Where did we fail?"

Dear Ann Landers: Recently a daughter-in-law wrote and complained that her Sunday dinner plans were upset frequently because her mother-in-law insisted on waiting until Sunday morning to invite her family over for dinner.

Your answer was good, but I believe there's another angle. I speak for mothers as well as mothers-in-law. We would love to be invited to your place for Sunday dinner once in a while. We've been cooking for you and your family for many years. How about a break, girls? Maybe that late invitation is because your mother-in-law thinks, "Maybe THIS will be the week she'll invite me!"—Sare Bunions

Dear Sun: It'S amazing how many readers came up with that same reasoning! You may have something there, dol

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for printing the letter from the person who received a corneal transplant through an eye bank. I'm the executive secretary of the Lions Eye Bank at the University of Washington in Seattle. Your letter stirred a great deal of interest in the donation of eyes and we are very grateful.

Did you know that in 1925 the Lions Service Clubs all over the world to become her "Knights Of Blindness"? Since that time the Lions have worked on projects such as buying glasses for children, supporting medical research for eye disease and paying for eye operations for the indigent.

There are about 85 eye banks in the U.S. and the Lions support nearly 75 per cent of them. Since the Seattle Eye Bank started in July '69, we have supplied 587 eyes for corneal transplants.

Thank you for making people aware of this important project.—Donna Olland

Dear Donna: Bless you for giving me the opportunity to give the Lions Eye Bank a boost. They are beautiful people.

Food Costs Rise Seen Smaller

OTTAWA (CP) — An improved crop forecast and a general easing in the rate of inflation may keep food-cost increases in 1975 below the rates of the last two years, the food prices review board said Monday.

However, the board, in its eighth quarterly report, warned that wage demands in the second half of the year may offset the impact of an expected good field crop harvest.

Food costs increased by about five per cent in the first six months of the year, the board said, compared to increases of more than nine-per-cent in the first six months of both 1972 and 1974. Food prices increased by a total of 14.6 per cent in 1973 and 16.3 per cent in 1974.

While food costs in the first three months of 1975 increased by less than one per cent, the board's 18-city price survey showed a further increase of almost four per cent in the second quarter of the year.

The board said it has moderated its earlier prediction of a 16-per-cent increase in food costs in 1975 due to the lower rate of inflation.

However, wage settlements so far this year indicated that demands were being based on extrapolations of the high 1974 inflation rate and that wages were rising faster than prices and productivity, which had declined.

In the three months April-June, there were price increases in beef, pork, poultry, fresh produce and dairy products. However, beef and pork prices are expected to decline in the fall, largely due to lower demand.

New York Rehires

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Mayor Abraham Beame has announced the rehiring of 2,600 city employees who were among 19,000 dismissed last week.

So far, 5,300 employees have been rehired because of $330 million in taxing authority granted the city by the state legislature.

Lottery Thursday

TORONTO (CP) — The next Wintario lottery draw will be held in Oakville, Ont., on Thursday at 8:30 p.m., Barbara Jesson, manager of draws for the Ontario Lottery Corp., said Monday.

Two grand prizes of $100,000 will be awarded.

Oil for China

TOKYO (AP) — China's total output of crude oil in the first half of the year rose 24 per cent from the corresponding period of 1974, the official Hsinhua news agency said Monday.

Milk Levy Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — An increase in the export levy on industrial milk to 99 cents a hundred pounds "must be immediately revoked," James McCague, president of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, said Monday. The levy has increased by 75 cents since April 1, virtually wiping out greater returns to farmers for industrial milk production announced by the government, he said.

Denounces CIA

NEW DELHI (AP) — About 200 demonstrators carrying flags of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress party cried "Shame on the CIA" as they staged a sit-down protest today in front of the United States Information Service (USIS) building here.

The brief rally was the first anti-U.S. outburst since Mrs. Gandhi imposed emergency rule on India June 26. One emergency decree bars public slogan-shouting or gatherings of more than four people. But police made no attempt to interfere with the demonstration.

Control of Resources Advocated by Lewis

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's energy resources must be brought under public ownership if the country is ever to have adequate exploration, security of supply and legitimate prices, Stephen Lewis, Ontario NDP leader, said in the legislature Monday.

Mr. Lewis was speaking about legislation introduced by the government last week to freeze for 90 days the wholesale and retail price of petroleum products sold in Ontario.

The legislature gave its approval to the price freeze following Monday's debate on the issue.

Both the NDP and Liberal opposition supported the bill in principle.

Mr. Lewis called the move a desperate effort to recoup what you lost for the people of Ontario over the last 15 months."

Gandhi Secures Business Help

NEW DELHI (AP) — Business and industrial leaders pledged to co-operate with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi after she threatened to punish those who restrict production, her spokesman reported.

Mrs. Gandhi called in representatives of India's main industries and businesses Monday for a 20-minute outline of her plans to utilize her emergency powers to increase production.

"While the government will look into the genuine difficulties of industry, it will not hesitate to come down heavily on those who resort to practices that restrict production," the prime minister said.

She hinted at speedy prosecution of anyone caught misusing raw materials or evading taxes.

"The emergency presents opportunities which should be used to shake off the old lethargy and go faster ahead," she said.

Two days earlier Mrs. Gandhi told labor leaders she would not tolerate strikes or other labor actions that hurt production.

"The unions assured me of their support," she told the employers and asked them to do their part by not ordering lockouts or layoffs.

A spokesman said the industry leaders welcomed her stress on discipline and offered full co-operation to increase production, particularly of consumer goods.

In return, Mrs. Gandhi promised the government would do everything it could to supply industry with adequate electric power, raw materials and imported goods.

But when the businessmen asked for help in raising capital, she said the tight credit policy would continue in effect to lessen inflationary pressures.

Ever since she declared a state of emergency June 26 to quell political opponents, Mrs. Gandhi has said she would use her new powers to revitalize the country. But her public pledge of co-operation with big business was a further indication that she intends to ignore the demands of her Communist supporters for the nationalization of major industries.

Mrs. Gandhi had a state of emergency declared and curtailed civil liberties to head a country wide demonstrations demanding her resignation because of her conviction of violating elections laws. Several thousand opposition leaders have been jailed, and 26 political and religious organizations have been outlawed.

Drinkers' Habits Lower Earnings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A change in consumer drinking habits is partially responsible for lower earnings reported by the Canadian distilling industry, says Morton A. Cohen of Yorkton Securities Inc.

In a report on the distilling industry, Mr. Cohen said people have been switching from premium products to low-priced imported wines, slowing sales growth of the prestige brands.

Distillers Corp. — Seagrams Ltd. of Montreal and Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts Ltd. of Windsor, Ont., Canada's two major distilleries, have reported reduced profits this year.

For the nine months ended April 30, Seagrams profit dropped 7.3 per cent from a year ago. Walker-Gooderham's fell 32 per cent in the first half ended Feb. 28.

Seagrams profit decline has been eased by the company's diversification into oil and gas. Its investment in oil and gas property, plant and equipment about equals that in wine and spirits.

M. W. Griffin, an executive vice-president, said that natural resource profits "will be a significant help" to Seagrams in

Hydro Won't Trim Capital Spending

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro chairman Robert Taylor said Monday the utility's request for a 30-per-cent rate increase, to take effect in 1976, will not be altered by the provincial Ontario Energy Board.

He said Hydro will proceed with its application before the Ontario Energy Board.

How much do we really know about Pulp and Paper?

If a hundred Canadians were asked how they would describe the future of the pulp and paper industry, the chances are most would say, "very good." After all, doesn't Canada have large, unused forests? Isn't world demand for pulp and paper increasing? Can't Canada meet this demand, as well as its own domestic needs?

The answer to all of those questions is: yes.

If.

If we can keep Canada's pulp and paper products cost-competitive with American, Scandinavian, even Brazilian products. That's not an easy task. Because Canada has some surprising difficulties to place alongside the advantages of a great natural resource and a long tradition in pulp and paper manufacture.

Wood Costs. For example, the cost of wood delivered to pulp and paper mills is often higher in Canada than in the United States. Canadian winters make a difference, as does the enormous cost to the companies of building and maintaining vast networks of roads in remote forest areas. In the U.S. south, where 64 per cent of that country's pulpwood is harvested, forest operations are conducted over smaller areas closer to the mills, truck transportation of wood is almost entirely on public roads, and rail rates are much lower than in Canada.

Equipment Costs. In Canada, the cost of building, operating and maintaining pulp and paper mills is measurably higher than in the U.S. Again, this is partially due to our climate. But, in addition, machinery and equipment is considerably more expensive in Canada.

Transportation Costs. This is a complex subject, with wide regional disparities. However, the transportation cost which must be covered in the price of every ton of pulp and paper shipped to the United States is often higher for Canadian than for U.S. manufacturers.

Taxation. Taxes are a fact of life, for all of us. But here again, a 1973 study conducted by Price Waterhouse & Co. confirmed that the burden of taxation is higher for Canadian pulp and paper companies than for our chief competitors, in the United States. Not only does this tend to make Canadian products less competitive, but it lessens the amount of capital available for growth and expansion.

Labour Costs. This problem was discussed in two earlier messages. But it's worth repeating. The average hourly wage in Canadian pulp and paper mills is over 15 per cent higher than in the U.S. and the gap is still widening. If the trend in Canadian contract settlements since 1969 continues, hourly labour rates here would be some 30 per cent higher than those in the U.S. by 1977. Such an enormous disparity in labour costs would cripple the industry's ability to compete. If an industry cannot compete, it loses sales both at home and abroad to foreign competitors. And people lose jobs. That's also a fact of life.

Now, you know. Canadians have been reliable suppliers of pulp and paper for many years. We have a world-wide reputation for quality and dependability, backed by a great natural resource and an enviable combination of traditional skill and modern technology. We have a pulp and paper industry with great potential, but only if it is cost-competitive with other world producers.

The Pulp and Paper Industry of Canada.

Montrose Residents Want Action on Seven Issues

Sidney Township council Monday night was confronted with seven petitions from residents of the Country Club Village with complaints ranging from park land to traffic lights.

The petitions forwarded to council are "that speed limits on (Montrose) area roads be 30 miles an hour and that school buses be allowed to use flashing lights; that a system of yield and stop signs be instituted for the area; that warning lights be installed at the intersection of the CPR lines and Montrose Rd.; further attention be paid to resurfacing and maintenance of district roads; that a flashing beacon be installed at the intersection of Montrose Rd. and Highway 2; that a street numbering system be arranged for the subdivision and finally that park land be investigated for the area."

Peter Shortall, an area resident, presented the petitions to council and explained "there are presently 200 houses in the area and that by the end of 1975 there will be 400 houses."

Several of the petitions have already been the subject of council action.

Other areas of petition were referred for staff investigation.

'Take Stand' Britton Tells Local Rotarians

Rotarians, as individuals, have a responsibility to take a position on current public issues, said Neil Britton, new Rotary president, Monday.

Addressing the weekly Rotarian gathering in his inaugural address, Mr. Britton was referring to the recurrent theme of the last international convention.

He said it was the opinion held "by the vast majority" of new club presidents, that Rotarians must reach individual decisions and make them known to people in authority.

Discussing the theme for the coming year he called for a continuation of existing programs and told the group full plans for the club would be presented during a September meeting.

Police Recover Stolen Moped

TRENTON — Town police charged a Toronto youth, Larry Defouse, 17, of Victor Ave., with possession of a stolen moped Monday after the motorized bicycle was reported stolen in Toronto last weekend.

Police said the moped, which does not require a license plate, was traced through its model serial number.

We Want Water!

More than 50 residents of the Quinte Heights subdivision near Bayside Secondary School came to Sidney Township Council Monday demanding action to relieve the water shortage in their housing development. Council agreed to take immediate steps to truck water into the development and has arranged a meeting with developers.

Quiet Campaign Ends YMCA Building Debt

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

A low-key campaign to eliminate an $87,750 loan incurred during the construction of the YMCA building has been successful, Ben Corke, chairman of the fund-raising committee will announce at a press conference, Wednesday.

More than $95,000 has been solicited from "known friends and new arrivals in town, and has been used to pay most of the principle and $10,700 in interest.

Mr. Corke is expected to tell the gathering the ban loan is down to $2,000 and an additional $5,000 has been pledged.

The $2,000 balance may be used for refurbishing the building.

There were two previous fund-raising campaigns that failed. One during 1961-62 and the other from 1967-68, but both failed to lower the loan.

The YMCA was having difficulty paying the interest on the loan and the balance was mounting when the board of directors offered the position of committee chairman to Mr. Corke.

Mr. Corke, active in the past as a fund-raiser and past chairman of the United Appeal campaign is not a member of the YMCA and does not sit on the board of directors.

Food Distributor Happy With New Operation

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Signet Distributors Ltd. officially opened its doors as a Belleville industry Monday and business is booming already, says president Ernest Spence.

The plant is located in the city's northwest industrial park and employs approximately 30 workers — 10 more than was originally anticipated.

"The Belleville location paid off much better than we thought," said Mr. Spence. "We're not sure why business is so good . . . possibly because Belleville is such an important tourist area."

Signet Distributors is a warehousing operation that sells bulk packaged foods for institutional use. Its market covers the majority of eastern Ontario.

"It may be a cycle and we've got the busy end," said Mr. Spence. "We won't have a true business picture until this time next year."

Mayor Robin Jeffrey officially cut the ribbon opening the new plant and in her opening remarks said Signet is part of a "beautiful dream."

She was referring to an experimental approach to industrial development fostered by commissioner Fred Bemis where small industries are accommodated in a cul de sac setting of small land parcels.

Mr. Spence said it is too early to comment on plant expansion but that "the plant has been built on the site in such a fashion that expansion is possible."

Signet Opens

Mayor Robin Jeffrey does the official honors Monday afternoon formally opening the doors to Signet Distributors Ltd. Also on hand for the opening was company president Ernest Spence. The company is located in the city's northwest industrial park and supplies bulk packaged foods for institutional uses.

Two Injured in Crash After Car Hits Pole

MARMORA — Two Norwood brothers are at Peterborough Civic Hospital, one in critical condition, after their car wrapped itself around a hydro pole on Highway 7 about 1 ½ miles west of this village, late Monday.

A hospital spokesman said today Kenneth Michael Waugh (age unavailable), the driver, is in critical condition with a head injury in the intensive care unit and his 18-year-old brother, Stephen, is in the emergency unit with an injured right arm.

They were transferred to Peterborough from Campbellford Memorial Hospital late Monday.

Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc said their 1967 Renault left the highway for an unknown reason while westbound at about 7 p.m. and struck the pole which was not damaged. The car was a write-off at about $600 value.

Cooler Weather on Way

There's brighter news tonight from your local weatherman.

The hot and humid climate which has left the Belleville-Trenton area swltering for days is holding for pleasanter times, predicted the duty forecaster at CFB Trenton this morning.

Tonight should bring a curve toward cooler air which will also be "much less humid."

Temperatures should drop about five degrees Celsius — down to around 25 from the scorching 29-30 degrees of the past week or so.

Even a chance of a thunderstorm was predicted — the most welcome feature of the change for many if it's borne out.

Rain shortage in recent weeks has been a dominant feature of the drought spell.

Since June 19 only .13 inches of rain has fallen in the city area, records at the city's filtration plant showed today.

Woman Hurt After Car Hurtles Guardrail

MARMORA A 45-year-old RR 4, Madoc woman is in good condition at Belleville General Hospital with neck and knee injuries following a one-car accident on Highway 7 about two miles east of Marmora late Monday.

Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc said Marion Brunson was the driver of a 1966 Buick which went out of control while eastbound, leapt over a series of metal guardrails and came to rest in a muddy ditch.

Constable John Ball estimated $1,000 damage to the car — a virtual write-off — in the 7 p.m. mishap. There was minor damage to the guardrails.

Hotel Windows Smashed

City police identified the man today as Kenneth Ronald Brownlee.

A police spokesman said a man put his fist through two windows on the west side of the establishment at about 10 p.m. He said the man was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital for a cut in his right forearm which required 14 stitches.

Aah! Cool at Last

Robbie Watson shows the reaction many would like to experience during present hot spell as he enjoys coolness of West Zwick's Island Park wading pool. The nine-month-old is tended by his dad, Bob.

Health Unit Issues Warning About Spring

The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit here has warned city residents against drinking water from a spring at Great St. James St. below the north end of Charles St., unless it is either boiled or chlorinated.

Dr. C. H. Lenk, medical officer of health, said today in a news release, "some cases of intestinal upset have been reported in the neighborhood and they may possibly be connected with the spring."

In an interview today, Dr Lenk said the problem is not a new one — "it has cropped up many a time" — with the most recent incident being about a year ago.

The spring is located in an area behind the Brewer's Retail store on Station St., at the back of a field in a clump of bushes, he said. "People picnic there occasionally," he added.

Dr. Lenk said the water flows from a pipe sticking out of the ground and its source is apparently a spring. He noted there is quite a lot of rubbish in the area which probably can be attributes to its contamination.

Alarm Box

Monday, July 7, 7:41 p.m. — fire burst hole in rear of outside shed at 115 Pinnacle St., started when burning coals fell out of a barbecue, minor damage.

Many Still Work While City Sleeps

By RON HUISER
Staff Reporter

Have your ever stopped to wonder what happens on the streets when you turn off your house lights and go to bed at night?

As the city slows down during the long evening, many people are just starting to wake up and begin their normal routine.

From the police, who patrol the streets in the evening, to the baker preparing bread for the next day, they all have their chores.

The main objective of the police is to "maintain the peace" says Constable Les Hall of the city police.

After travelling with the officer for over two hours, stopping three cars, checking others for the possibility been stolen, and investigating at least two possible break-ins, the officer said, "It's a quiet evening."

It is shortly after 1 a.m. and people slowly start leaving the hotels. Some stop at one of several places to have something eat.

One of the restaurants open 24 hours is Spiro's on Bridge St. E.

"Business is usually pretty good up until 3 or 4 a.m.," said John Baliotis, the night manager.

One of the customers in the early morning was Dana Lear a waitress at the Mad Mechanic.

"We usually go to a restaurant and have a bit to eat after work," said Miss Lear.

"I'm not really a night-hawk, I'm usually home about 3 o'clock", says Miss Lear.

DANA LEAR

Dean said most of the people who come in are "young but there are a few older ones."

"The older ones usually talk for a couple of minutes when they are paying. No one is in a rush. It's pretty good."

As the city begins to wake-up, preparations are being made by many for the coming dawn.

One such person is Joseph Kiser, a baker's assistant at the Family Bakery.

"I come in at 10 p.m. to help with the baking of buns and cookies and leave for home at 6 a.m." says Mr. Kiser.

"I really enjoy my work, the boss is really nice to work for."

In all due respect, there are some night-hawks not mentioned. Some of them include the firemen, the street cleaners, and the maintenance workers in the many stores in the city.

But during the night, all of the city does not retire, much like a sleeping person, it only rest to meet the challenge of the coming day.

FRANK MULVIHILL

Taxi dispatcher, Frank Mulvihill of Central Taxi, said he likes working the "graveyard shift".

"It's a different breed of people who are out on the streets," he said.

Mr. Mulvihill said, "It's the best shift of the bunch. People are not in a rush, it's cooler and usually quiet".

"We're pretty busy until 2 a.m. but after then, it's just the people going or coming to work."

Along with the police, the emergency ward at the Belleville General Hospital provides a 24 hour service.

"I like midnights. I can organize the things the way I like it," says Nurse Irene. "The emergency nurse is not allowed to give out their last name, because people use to bother them at home."

"It can be quiet one night and then all hell breaks loose the next."

The only complaint received about the night shift was from a hospital maintenance employee who said it is too boring and lonely.

It's now after 4 a.m. and the place is Tim Horton's Donuts, and there are nine people eating donuts and drinking coffee.

One person who bought a dozen donuts said he was a dispatcher with the CN, on a coffee break.

The Gulf Self-Serve station on North Front St. was manned by student, Dean Chapman.

"It's slow between 2:30 to 4:30 a.m. but it's worth keeping open," says the Centennial Secondary School student.

JOSEPH KISER

Long, Long Load

A long, long industrial load is ready for the road as 74-foot conveyor truss is secured to trailer in Belleville Monday. The truss, weighing about five tons and ordered by Lake Ontario Cement Ltd., was fabricated in a week at Foley Supply and Machine Co. Ltd., the longest, single piece of equipment made by the company, said a spokesman.

Night-Shifters

The city of Belleville never sleeps. Like Dean Chapman who mans the Gulf Self-Serve station on North Front St. through the quiet moments of a city day, many people work in a variety of jobs from emergency ward to the 24-hour restaurants.

Red Machine In High Gear

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Big Red Machine of baseball is in high gear, rolling along so smoothly that even the man at the controls can't quite believe it.

"It's incredible," said Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson after his Reds' brief struggle, 7-3 decision Monday night over Philadelphia Phillies. That gave

SPARKY ANDERSON

Cincinnati four wins in a row, seven in the last eight games and a record of 23 victories in 44 outings dating back to May 31.

"No one is supposed to win like that," said Anderson. But the Reds were doing it, and as a result have opened an 8½ game lead over Los Angeles Dodgers in the Western Division of the National League.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates blanked Chicago Cubs 5-0, New York Mets beat Atlanta Braves 5-1, Houston Astros edged Montreal Expos 5-1 and St. Louis Cardinals beat San Francisco Giants 8-6.

What turned the Reds, stumbling along at the 500 mark seven weeks ago, into the steamroller in the majors?

"You've got to go back to the move—shifting Pete Rose to third," said Anderson. "It's not just that one thing, but that set off a lot of other things that happened. Getting George Foster's bat in there has been tremendous."

The move of Rose doubly strengthened the club. Rose provided the best third base play Cincinnati has had in quite a while, and Foster has blossomed as a regular outfielder, batting .283 with 15 homers.

Foster got No. 15 against the Phils, a two-run shot in the seventh inning that broke the game open. Tony Perez also hit a two-run homer in the first inning.

New York got home runs by Rusty Staub and Dave Kingman backed the alcohol-plotting of rookie Hank Webb, who posted his second straight victory—both over Atlanta.

Ted Simmons drove in three runs for St. Louis and Luis Melendez' triple highlighted a four-run first inning for the Cards who collected six hits off Giants starter Mike Caldwell, 5-8, in the opening inning.

Pittsburgh's Al Oliver hit a three-run homer and Ken Brett, Ramon Hernandez and Dave Giusti combined on a five-hitter for the Cubs on five hits, all singles.

It was a Pirate night in 11 days between the two clubs. Last night the Pirates won 10, of the meetings.

Tired Pitcher Stops Expos

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston pitcher Larry Dierker says he had to get tired before he could start throwing strikes Monday night in the Astros 5-1 victory over Montreal Expos.

"All of my walks (four) came in the first four innings," said Dierker, who went in the dugout to improve his record to 8-8. "I felt extra strong and I was overthrowing the ball. I settled down after that because I got a little tired and I throw better when I'm tired."

Dierker shared the spotlight with Houston outfielder Wilbur Howard, who hit a two-run single to cap Houston's five-run fourth inning.

"He is the only player on the club I can truthfully say haven't given a chance to play until now," Astros manager Preston Gomez said of Howard, who has hit only in eight of nine games since breaking into the starting lineup. "When (Cesar) Cedeno got hurt, we put Howard in there and he's been hitting ever since."

ROGERS LOSES

Steve Rogers yielded Houston's five runs in the fourth, which included all four Houston hits for the game.

Bob Watson got the first hit off Rogers, now 5-7, and then scored the first run on Doug Rader's double. Cliff Johnson scored on a passed ball and Dierker squeezed home Rader before Howard delivered the two-run single to end the scoring.

Montral's only run came in the fourth when Larry Blittner singled to right field and later scored on Dierker's wild pitch.

Dierker settled down in the latter innings but had to pitch himself out of trouble in the ninth. He gave up consecutive singles and went to a three balls, no strikes count on the pinch hitter, Tim Foli, before striking him out to end the game.

LARRY DIERKER

Connors Played With Leg Injury

LONDON (AP) — Jimmy Connors was injured in his opening match of the Wimbledon tennis championships but played on for two weeks in pain, his manager said Monday.

Connors, who lost the men's singles final Saturday to Arthur Ashe, left London on a direct flight for Los Angeles and his manager, Bill Riordan, said the 22-year-old left-hander from Belleville, Ill., faced six to eight weeks out of the game with a right leg injury.

"The doctor had a look at Jimmy last night and he was amazed he was able to walk, let alone play tennis," Riordan said.

"He called it tendonyositis—something about torn ligaments inside his right shin area. Jimmy didn't want to let on he was hurt so when a couple of reporters saw him limping at times he told them he hit his leg with his racquet."

Riordan said Connors damaged the leg at the start of the two-week tournament against Roscoe Tanner. Lloyd. But he played on, not dropping a set until he was beaten by Ashe 6-1, 6-3, 6-4.

"Jimmy didn't want anybody to know because it might sound as if he were making excuses," Riordan said.

Connors had planned to take four to six weeks off anyway after Wimbledon. He said one of his plans was to make some pop records with singer Paul Anka.

HUNTER

Catfish Picked By Dark

NEW YORK (AP) — Catfish Hunter, the millionaire refugee from the A's, and two of his former team-mates were selected Monday by Oakland manager Alvin Dark as part of an eight-man American League pitching staff for baseball's July 15 all-star game.

Joining the 1974 Cy Young Award winner will be Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers of Oakland, Jim Kaat and Rich Gossage of Chicago White Sox, Nolan Ryan of California and Jim Palmer of Baltimore Orioles and Steve Busby of Kansas City Royals.

Of the eight pitchers selected for the game at Milwaukee's County Stadium, three—Hunter, Fingers and Busby—are repeaters from last year's American League team that lost 7-1 to the National League.

This will be the right-handed Hunter's seventh all-star appearance. Only Hall of Famers Bob Feller of Cleveland Indians and Whitey Ford of the Yankees have been named to the American League team more times, each having been selected eight times.

Palmer, the 1973 Cy Young Award winner in the American League, had injury problems last year but has come back strongly in 1975, tying Kaat for most victories in the league with 13. He received his fourth all-star selection. The right-hander has lost five times in 1975 and shows an ERA of 1.91.

MARSHALL

3 Dodger Pitchers Are Added

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mike Marshall, last year's Cy Young Award winner, and two other Los Angeles Dodgers have been named to the nine-man National League all-star pitching staff to face eight American League hurlers in the July 15 baseball all-star game.

Los Angeles manager Walter Alston on Monday announced his choice of Marshall, honored last year for his consistent relief pitching efforts, along with Dodger starting pitchers Andy Messersmith and Don Sutton, 13-4.

Alston, manager of the National League all-star team, also named Tom Seaver and southpaw team-mate Jon Matlack of New York Mets, left-hander Tug McGraw of Philadelphia Phillies, lefty Randy Jones of San Diego Padres, southpaw Jerry Reuss of Pittsburgh Pirates and Phil Niekro of Atlanta Braves.

The four National League southpaws and five right-handers will face an American League pitching crew, including Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers of Oakland A's, Jim "Catfish" Hunter of New York Yankees, Jim Kaat and Rich Gossage of Chicago White Sox, Nolan Ryan of California Angels, Jim Palmer of Baltimore Orioles and Steve Busby of Kansas City Royals.

From Minors To Prominence

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Milwaukee's Bob Sheldon and Boston's Jim Willoughby, who were in the minors last week, made major contributions to their new baseball teams Monday night.

Second baseman Sheldon, who committed a costly error in the fourth inning, singled home one run in the fifth and two more in the sixth, lifting the Brewers to a 4-3 victory over Kansas City Royals.

Meanwhile, Willoughby came in in the seventh inning of the Red Sox' 6-3 triumph over Minnesota Twins, struck out Eric Soderholm with two runners aboard and went on to earn his first save, fanning five in 2 1-3 innings.

In other American League action, New York Yankees defeated Texas Rangers 5-2 to remain one game behind Boston and one percentage point ahead of Milwaukee in the East Division. Oakland A's beat Cleveland Indians 7-3 and Detroit Tigers edged Chicago White Sox 3-1.

Sheldon's error helped Kansas City score all three runs in the fourth inning—two on a single by Cookie Rojas—for a 3-1 lead but he made up for it with his clutch hits off Al Fitzmorris.

"I wasn't used to that artificial turf and I felt I had let down on me a hurry," Sheldon said. "I missed a ground ball."

Jim Rice hit a three-run homer as the Red Sox scored four times off Minnesota's Jim Hughes in the first inning.

Jim Burton, who relieved Rick Wise in the seventh, issued a walk, allowed a single and Minnesota runners aboard and yielded a three-run homer in an 11-10 loss to Cleveland in his Red Sox debut Sunday. "I knew I couldn't let the Cleveland game bother me, and I didn't," Burton said to Ray White, Graig Nettles and Jim Mason and run-scorers Carlos Rodriguez and Rich Coggins rallied the Yankees to victory after Texas nicked Doc Medich for both their runs in the first inning on Jeff Burroughs' two-run single.

Oakland's Jim Perry pitched two-hitter against Joe Rudi his two home runs and Billy Williams hit one. The 38-year-old Perry, who came to the A's in a trade with Cleveland earlier in the season, won his second game in three decisions with Oakland and improved his overall record to 3-7. He allowed one run on six hits, struck out four and didn't walk a batter in 7 1-3 innings before giving way to Rollie Fingers.

Detroit's Tom Walker, 3-4, scattered eight hits and outdueled Chicago's Jim Kaat, 13-5, who was named to the AL all-star team earlier in the day. The only run off Walker was Ken Henderson's homer in the second inning.

Detroit scored both runs in the fourth on Gary Sutherland's single, Leon Roberts' triple and Willie Horton's sacrifice fly. It was the Tigers' sixth consecutive triumph.

Take Over At the Top

MONTREAL (CP) — Long Island Tomahawks moved into sole possession of first place in the National Lacrosse League Monday night after defeating Montreal Quebecois 16-12.

The Tomahawks, with a game in hand, lead the league with 36 points two ahead of Montreal.

Chuck Modhrey led the Tomahawks scoring with three goals while Brian Walford, Jim Lewthwaite, Jan McGee and Glen Newman scored two goals each.

Long Island outshot Montreal 56-42 before 4,253 fans.

Department Of Labor In the Act

WASHINGTON (CP) — From now on, United States teams in the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association will be required to file annual reports with the U.S. labor department outlining the number of non-American citizens on their rosters.

In addition, the clubs will have to delineate what recruiting activities the league conducts for U.S.-born players.

A spokesman for the department said Monday that similar rules will apply to baseball and soccer leagues in the U.S.

"Since 1967, the labor department has had blanket certification for top athletes and entertainers with outstanding merit, who can enter without specific certification," the spokesman said.

Now, he said, such blanket certification will be conditional upon the filing of such annual reports and will apply only to top leagues. Others will have to apply for specific player-by-player certification.

"What threw the whole thing into the fan was the entry of the labor department spokesman said.

"Small soccer leagues had been springing up and forming ethnic teams, paying the players something like $200 a month. The players were coming in under blanket certification. Then, when these small leagues collapsed, the players were drifting off into other jines of work within the U.S.

"It's our job to certify that nobody in the U.S. is able to do the job the former player, is applying for."

The spokesman said that labor department lawyers "got a little bit concerned" over the situation and decided that such blanket certification would apply in future only to "organized league sports."

He said that the NHL, WHA, baseball and soccer are the only sports which will be required to justify blanket certification annually because these are the main sports in the U.S. with a high percentage of foreign players.

"No alien player will be certified unless he is under contract," the labor department spokesman said.

This means that a Canadian hockey player, travelling to the U.S. for a tryout with a U.S. team but not under contract to that team, would have to apply for entry under a visitor's visa.

Record Effort In Archery

CALEDON, Ont. (CP) — Jo-Ette Bochon of Val d'Or, Que., scored a record 1,081 points in Monday's opening round at the Canadian archery championships.

The round gave Mrs. Rochon a one-point lead over Lucille Lessard of Lorettenville, Que., who had held the previous record of 1,071 points.

Mrs. Rochon beat her own previous personal record by 10 points.

Wayne Pullen of Dorchester, Ont., was the early leader after the opening men's competition which was restricted to 90 arrows rounds.

Pullen scored 562 out of a possible 600 while Ron Lippert of Kitchener, Ont., was close behind with 374.

In the professional class, Bill Fordham of Kitchener scored 586 for a six-point lead over Stuart Bowman of Edmonton.

Canada Shades Aussies

OTTAWA (CP) — Cliff Barry of Montreal scored with less than a minute remaining to give Canada's national water polo team a 5-4 victory over a touring Australian squad.

The win gave the Canadians a two-game sweep over the visiting Australians, Canada won 8-3 in a Saturday game.

Scoring for the visitors were Dave Neesham, Eddie Brooks, Charles Turner and Peter Montgomery.

Hugh Oldham

Rider Veteran Gets the Chop

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders pared down to 44 players Monday by cutting wide receiver Hugh Oldham following their exhibition game in Vancouver.

Oldham, a six-year veteran and star in his early years with the club, suffered with bad knees most of last year and this season. He didn't make the trip west with the Riders.

Meanwhile, with Saskatchewan Roughriders appearing here Wednesday night in a Canadian Football League exhibition game, coach George Brandis is planning to take a solid look at quarterback Condredge Holloway despite a persistent muscle ache.

Holloway, expected to do great things after a brilliant college career at Tennessee, is battling to overtake Tom Clements, formerly of Notre Dame, in the running as backup to veteran Jerry Keeling.

Keeling sewed up his top spot with a strong showing in Vancouver and Clements also showed well in his two western outings. But Holloway, touted as the best of several rookies, had two indifferent games and must make up lost ground if he is to stay.

New Punt Return Rule A Headache for Coaches?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It may be a bit early for accurate assessments, but judging from early tests in exhibition games, the Canadian Football League's punt return rule may have produced nothing more than a few new headaches for coaches.

"I think an important entertainment dimension has been added," said CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur when the new rule providing blocking above the waist on punt returns was first announced last January.

But now, after the rule has been tested in a half-dozen exhibition games, some comments such as this one from Ken Preston, general manager of Saskatchewan Roughriders:

"We've got to give it a year's run at least, but I'm afraid that kicking the ball out of bounds may be what will happen consistently, and what big fan interest is there in that?"

The kick out of bounds seems to have been the immediate reaction of most clubs when suddenly faced by opposition runners making big gains on punt returns.

Toronto Argonauts' first punt of the season was returned 48 yards by Hamilton Tiger-Cat Dave Palmer and Argo coach Russ Jackson immediately ordered a kicker Zenon Andrusyshyn to angle most of his punts to the sidelines to prevent further such returns.

"I've got a feeling that the blocking on punt returns is not going to be as exciting as some fans think it will be," said Jackson. "I think a lot of guys are going to try to kick it out of bounds.

"I think it will be the trend. Instead of making the game more exciting, the new rule could make punt returns very dull."

But then no one ever said the old rule was exciting either. Without blocking, most good punt returners averaged about five or six yards at best before they were met by a wall of tacklers, an element which displeased Montreal Alouettes coach Marv Levy.

"I was against the old rule because of its brutality," says Levy. "If they're kicking out of bounds, I'm not disappointed. Even that is more exciting than before. At least there is an art to kicking the ball that way."

"It'll require more skill for the kickers because they'll have to be able to kick out of bounds or close to it," says Bud Riley, coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Coach Bud Riley of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, although agreeing there will be a tendency to kick out of bounds, says he likes the new rule, calling it an exciting play. "And, if it is proven early that it doesn't result in injuries, I think it'll open up the game a little."

The fear of injuries resulting from the added blocking has coach Jim Woods of Calgary Stampeders on edge.

"I didn't like them when they were announced and I like them even less now," Woods said of the new wrinkle, which also provide for restricted blocking on kickoffs and punt returns.

"I think it will mean every team uses good players to injury because of the premium placed on specialty teams."

The new rule permits blocking above the waist only to avoid possible leg injuries and this presents new problems for coaches and game officials, says coach George Brancato of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Brancato, who otherwise likes the new rule, says his club has not yet been able to take full advantage of it because of the difficulty of executing the blocking above the waist.

Shellacking No Blessing —Marv Levy

The CANADIAN PRESS

Don't try to convince head coach Marv Levy that it could have been a blessing in disguise when his defending Grey Cup champion Montreal Alouettes suffered a 29-8 shellacking at the hands of Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina last Friday night.

"Thats too easy an out," Levy said Monday night as his club prepared to entertain British Columbia Lions in one of two Canadian Football League exhibition games scheduled for tonight.

"I don't think these games scores mean that much, but to lose by that score is a down-right embarrassment—it was a walloping."

And, while the Alouettes will be trying to erase the Saskatchewan debacle from their memories at the expense of the Lions, another Eastern Football Conference club—Hamilton Tiger-Cats—will be testing Western Conference opposition by tackling the Eskimos at Edmonton.

So far the Als have looked like anything but national champions. Prior to the Saskatchewan whack, they needed a late field goal by Don Sweet to beat the Stampeders 19-18 in Calgary July 2.

In their only previous exhibition contest this season the Lions won a 41-3 decision from Ottawa Rough Riders in Vancouver.

While mass substitutions were the order in his club's two previous contests, Levy said he plans to play his first stringers more against the Lions and will use spot substitutes at various positions, rather than unit replacements.

Levy said the Lions are blessed with a fine running back in Lou Harris, plus some fine receivers. He will counter with a running back of his own in homebrew Larry Smith.

Smith has been used as a slot-back this season, a spot left vacant when Johnny Rodgers moved to wide receiver.

But the Montreal coach's plans to go with three quarterbacks against the Lions have changed. Veteran Sonny Wade, who suffered a concussion in Regina, has been advised to sit out the next two contests.

That leaves holdover Jimmy Jones and Dave Lewis.

The Ticats will also be without middle linebacker Jamie Toteila who suffered a knee injury during the taping of the CFL all-pro countdown show for television.

The Eskimos will have running back Calvin Harrell back in their lineup against the Ticats. Harrell is considered a key man for the Eskimos.

"I feel better than I have in three years," Harrell said, paying tribute to a special training program he underwent following a surgeric knee operation seven weeks before training camp opened.

The operation was necessary to repair cartilage damage.

"I think a lot of it has to do with the program Larry Chase set us through," Harrell said. "It gave me flexibility I haven't had."

Emory Blake

Argos Shave Roster to 45

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts cut five players Monday, reducing their roster to 45, still 13 more than the Canadian Football League regular-season limit.

Canadians dropped were veteran defensive back Billy Cooper and rookie receiver Neil Mars. Imports got were tackle Jerry Ellison, Bobback Emory Blake and offensive guard Bob Krause.

The departure of Ellison means that Granville Liggins will move back to defensive tackle from the offensive guard position he preferred.

The Argos had hoped Ellison would prove to be an effective replacement for all-star Jim Stillwagon, out several weeks with a knee injury.

But Argo head coach Russ Jackson said the club was happy with Ellison's work and will count on Liggins to join Garrett Hunsperger at defensive tackle until Stillwagon returns.

Among other position changes announced by Jackson was the switch of Eric Allen to halfback from slotback.

"We are not pleased with the combinations we have been running in the backfield," said Jackson. "We haven't found a breakaway back yet and we're going to find out if Eric can field and catch in our final two exhibition games."

Veterans Doyle Orange and rookie Randy Walker have been battling for the running back position. Orange now has been switched to slotback.

Trial About To Start

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The opening of jury members began Monday in the assault trial of hockey player Dave Forbes in Hennepin County district court.

The 26-year-old Forbes repeled "not guilty" after Judge Rolf Fossen read the charge of aggravated assault with a dangerous weapon—in this case, a hockey stick. The alleged assault took place Jan. 4 in a National Hockey League game between Boston Bruins and Minnesota North Stars at Bloomington, Minn.

Henry Boucha, formerly with the North Stars but now with Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association, suffered an eye injury in the fracas, and a Hennepin County grand jury returned an indictment Jan. 14 against Forbes, a 24-year-old centre with the Bruins.

Earlier Monday, the judge rejected a defense request for dismissal of the charge in the only pre-trial move by defence lawyer Ronald Meshbesher. Forbes's lawyer said the charge amounted to "selective, discriminatory and arbitrary prosecution."

The aggravated assault charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $5,000 fine.

Forbes was suspended without pay for 18 games by NHL president Clarence Campbell following the incident.

BLEACHERS COLLAPSE

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — One person was killed and about 300 injured Monday when bleachers at a local soccer field collapsed. One hospital reported 18 dead spectators, 25 with either severe head injuries or fractured limbs. Other hospitals said they had received injured persons, some of them reported in serious condition.

Rocking Chair and Slippers? Not for 58-year-old Pitcher

By ALAN TEBWORTH

A right fielder playing for Mountain View going only by the name of White could be considered a lucky man. He got a hit, the only one, off Pat Ameche, pitcher Pat Maracle, as Mountain View dropped a 7-0 decision.

The year was 1946. Pat Maracle was 30 years old, and in midstream of his long and outstanding pitching career.

John Noble and Ken Smith also have a right to be happy. They each connected for a base hit while playing for Stirling in the Belleville and District League. Pat was playing for Trenton Commercial Printing. The hits were the only ones he gave up in a 7-0 two hitter.

The year was 1965. Pat, now admitting to an age of 48, was honored for his long years of service in various leagues around the Quinte area by the Trenton team, with Pat responding with the 12 strikeouts. He had been pitching now for some 34 years, since he was 14 years of age.

The year is 1975, the place Ameliasburg. Pat Maracle has thrown yet another game for his Reserve team in the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League. Although he was tagged for many hits, opposing hitters still gawk in amazement when the ball crosses the plate after taking three or four curves before getting there.

Pat Maracle is an institution in softball in the Quinte area. His nicknames, too numerous to mention them all, serve to complisment him on his pitching skills. Among the, "the old man, Sitting Bull, The Chief, Mr. Junk," about wrap up the career in four phrases.

Pat's still throwing the ball at the ripe young age of 58, or thereabouts. He admits to 58 now, but even he's not absolutely sure about that. He's been tossing the ball since he was 14 years old, making a career of 44 years. That's a lot of satisfaction.

A lot of his effectiveness on the mound has been lost, he says Pat, "I'll be playing the game until I'm just not able to any more. A lot of people have said that they'll probably carry me off the field. They're probably right."

Whether they carry him off, Maracle's presence will be felt. He's more of what he is now, than what he does. His leadership to the younger players on the field rubs off in copious amounts. He is the old man, the boss, or just the chief, a name he takes pride in through his heritage as a Mohawk Indian.

His feats go back and back in the annals of time, through many a player, coach, and official. His pitching duels with Mormon chucker Ray Judd will stir many a memory. The pair became great friends over the years. Judd hailed from Lakefield, with Maracle representing many a community in the Quinte area; Belleville, Trenton, Picton, Point Anne, Deseronto — you name the place — he played for them.

He has recorded "several" no-hitters and "several" perfect games. His modesty limits his own memory from serving him well on the exact numbers in these categories, along with strikeout totals. A fire in his home several years ago destroyed many of his newspaper clippings he had collected, and with them probably the only true totals of his feats.

Pitching is not the only strength of Maracle, though. He's still deadly at the plate, continuing a long tradition there. He has also been known to steal the odd base, catching opposing pitchers off their feet, well as showing some speed when on the paths.

He likes to recall one incident that occurred during his play in the North Shore League. "There was a woman sitting in the stands, not too young herself, who had been yelling at me throughout the game about my age. She had been saying "give him a come before he falls apart" and comments like that. When someone connected for a short single, I scored the second base, and on the way in, I asked here where the case was now." smiling wryly with a certain amount of satisfaction.

The Maracle magic has gone on to rub off on his own family. With 10 children, he was bound to get some ball players. His son Don has been one of the top chukkers in the area for several years, with Pat Jr. playing alongside of his dad in the North Shore League.

Whether the Maracle name lives on in the legends of softball past the 44 years he has remains to be seen, but if it only goes that far, it has traveled a long, winding route that will last even longer than, the man who blazed it.

Back to Defend His Title

Ontario Amateur Event Cowan's First This Year

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Gary Cowan, two-time U.S. amateur champion, will be playing in his first tournament this year when he defends his Ontario amateur championship at the Westmount Golf and Country Club starting today.

"This will be my first tournament this year and the only other tournaments I might play are the Canadian Open and the Canadian amateur," said "I will know this week whether I'll play in them or not."

Cowan, who has won the Ontario championship four times, will be playing on his home course at Westmount where he has been a member since 1961.

He will be part of a field of 127 golfers competing for the Toronto Star trophy and a spot on the Willingdon Cup team that will represent Ontario in inter-provincial play.

The format of the tournament has changed this year from a 54-hole to a 72-hole event. This is the biggest change since 1967 when the tournament switched from match play.

The top four golfers in the event win a spot on the Willingdon team and, in the case of a tie for any of these positions, a sudden-death playoff will be held.

The tree-lined course is a good test of golf and has been the site of two national golf championships — the Canadian Open in 1957 and the Canadian amateur in 1960.

There was some concern that a recent heat wave would burn the course, possibly turning the postage-stamp-sized greens into concrete, but Ian Thomson, former Canadian amateur and Canadian junior champion said after his practice round Monday that the greens were in good shape.

"The greens are OK," the 25-year-old accountant from London said. "When I could hit them."

Ernie Hauner, men's playing committee captain at Westmount, who received a host-club exemption to play in the championship, said the greens were watered Sunday night and this seemed to make the difference.

"The greens are in great shape," he said. "They're firm, and will hold a good shot."

Kelly Roberts, 21, of London, who was the championship in 1972 and 1973, will be one of the strong contenders facing the challenge from the favored Cowan.

"You just have to fade your way around this course," said Roberts. "It seems every hole is a dog leg right, so you have to be able to fade the ball. Control is the big thing."

Two other members of the Canada Willingdon team will be in the tournament as well, as Roberts and Cowan, Bob Dorsey of Seaforth and Bruce Brewer Whitevale should provide strong opposition for the title.

There are also five other Ontario amateur champions in the field including Cowan and Roberts, Nick Weslock, of Mississauga has won eight times; Gerry Kesseking of Kitchener Rockway, four times; Ray Cooke of Brampton, and Bill Moreland was the 1963 winner with honors for Dave Dye 1960 champion. Both are from North Bay.

The starting field of 127 will compete in the first two rounds then will be cut to the lowest 60 golfers, and ties for the third round with a further cut to the lowest 40 and ties for the final round.

Ruffian Buried at Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — Ruffian, the fabulous filly whose life was filled with the sounds of cheering and victory, was buried at Belmont Park Monday night before a small, subdued gathering that included her trainer, Frank Whiteley, and her last rider, Jacinto Vasquez.

"Frank Whiteley requested that we make it as private as possible and we think that is only right," said Jack Dreyfus, New York Racing Association board chairman. "This moment certainly is not a happy occasion."

Only a few friends of racing came to watch Ruffian's private burial at Belmont, the site of her final, abortive race.

The burial party dropped a bouquet of roses into the grave, the final testing place for the filly said by many to be the best to ever grace a racing program.

The quiet of Belmont Park Monday night provided a stark contrast to the festive atmosphere only 27 hours earlier, when Ruffian went against colt Foolish Pleasure.

A nationwide television audience saw Ruffian break down in a full-mile into the $350,000 match race, a victim of a shattered right ankle. As Foolish Pleasure raced on to a less-trophy finish line.

Ruffian underwent an operation late Sunday night but in spite of the magnificent competitor, who was too much ever for her opponent, raced, proved too much horse for herself.

Upon awakening from the anesthesia, she lashed out and smashed her cast, causing severe damage to the injured leg. "The cast had become an entangled mess and there was intensive swelling and hemorrhaging," said Dr. Alex Hartshorn, part of the veterinarian team that worked feverishly to save Ruffian.

Stuart Janney Jr., Ruffian's owner, decided on the course of action. "Don't let her suffer any more," he said.

The broken ankle injured Ruffian but her fierce, competitive spirit killed her.

"She didn't accept confinement," said Dr. Hartshorn. "She fought with vengeance, like a tiger."

Player Enters Tournament With Little Preparation

Gary Player

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — Gary Player, defending his title, will begin the British open golf championship over the tough Carnoustie course Wednesday with less than two complete rounds of practice.

"It's the smallest preparation I have ever had for the British Open," the little South African said.

"It's not the wisest way to do it. In fact it's quite foolish."

Player, 38, arrived from Switzerland a mere 48 hours before the start of the big tournament.

By contrast, Jack Nicklaus, rated top favorite with the bookies, has been practising on the 7,065-yard, par-72 links since last Friday.

On Saturday, Nicklaus shot a 65 and a 67 and said he had made his good scores too early.

Player won the British Open the last time it was played at Carnoustie in 1968. He had previously won the title at Muirfield in 1959, and he won again at Lytham St. Annes last year.

"For major tournaments I think you should have four days on the site," Player said.

"What I am doing is taking a calculated risk. I had only 17 holes practice before the U.S. Open, and I didn't do very well in that.

"But practice on the tournament course is not the most important thing. It's how you're playing that counts. The main thing is to hit the ball straight and putt well.

After four practice rounds, Nicklaus had an aggregate of 264, 24 under par. The bookies have made him a 4-to-1 favorite for the title.

Devolin's Griffin Blanks Printers 1-0

Auger's Jamie Hunter Logs Solid No-hitter

Jamie Hunter had Rorabeck Real Estate's number of Monday night in the Quinte Fastball League. The number turned out to be zero, as he hurled a no hitter and went on to win 7-0.

Hunter kept Rorabeck batters off balance all night while he also got just one walk and struck out 10 batters. It was the second time Auger's pitching has kept Rorabeck from gaining a safety.

Auger's hitting came from the same people they got the pitching when Jamie Hunter went for three singles. Jim Livingstone had a pair of safeties while Darryl Kramp hit a single and a double and Vern Whalen tripled. Ted Corneil hit his first home run of the season for Auger's as well as playing well defensively.

In the first game it was a pitchers' duel with Larry Griffin coming out ahead of Bob Richardson.

Griffin threw the shutout giving up just four hits in the 1-0 victory. He also struck out nine batters and walked two.

Richardson gave up four hits also while walking six and only striking out one batter.

The winning run for Devolin came in the top of the second when Larry Griffin's single and a Howard and Robert error scored a run.

Devolin hits came from Larry Griffin and Dave Horwood, both had two singles.

Pete Ford and R. Wayne Woods had two singles while Ken Greenwood and Bob Richardson singled.

The loss dropped Howard and Robert a notch in the standings and kept Bardons Supplies in first place.

McDonald's Looking To Get Even with Ray's

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

Wednesday night, the Belleville McDonald's go at it again in Ontario Fastball League play.

It'll be a special match for the Macs, as they'll be facing the Newmarket Rays, the team that beat them 15-1 earlier in the year.

Hold on now, before you say this'll be another Macs' loss, listen to some facts.

First, the Macs were playing that game in Newmarket, a park where the fences are so short that routine fly balls can go for homers.

Where the Rays were used to this, and have hitters and pitchers geared for just that, Belleville was so surprised it took them a week to recover.

Secondly, the Rays do have Les owning and Derek Kinsenly in their lineup, a pair of legitimate OFL All Stars. Also, the Lahey brothers, Dan and Ron are well known around the league for power.

Downing hit .352 with 50 hits last year, while Ron Lahey hit for a .290 average. Dave finished first and fourth in the league, respectively.

The Rays have power. Downing hit 12 homers, Lahey and Wally Cooper each had six.

The Newmarket pitcher, Bill Lunney was 14-7 last year with a 1.64 earned run average.

Contrary to popular belief, the Macs can be one heck of a ball team too. They did beat Newmarket once in the exhibition season, and definitely would like to again.

What is necessary is the getting of a few factors which are necessary for Belleville to become a winning team.

First, the Macs need another starter, they can't go with just Jim Chase, Ted Waite and Scott Reid (and possibly Bob Ethier). There are no qualifiers in the city, so Macs management has to go looking. So far pickings have been thin.

Secondly, the Macs have to hit when the hits are needed, they have to score more than one or two runs a game before they can expect to win, especially against Newmarket. The hits are there in Paul Goodfellow, Larry Mavety, Terry Meagher, Glen Carlston and a number of others.

The McDonalds' defence is solid. They turn over more than their share of double plays and also have a knack for cutting down runners at the plate. The infield is strong when the Macs have Frank Robinson at first, Terry Meacher at second, Paul Goodfellow at short and Wayne McTaggart playing the way he can at third.

So far the Macs record is not enviable but it can be improved.

Newmarket will be in town Wednesday looking for an easy win, maybe they'll find they've bitten off more than they can chew in the Macs.

Independents Tie Black Diamond

It was a stalemate between Black Diamond and the Independents in Belleville Industrial Softball League action on Monday night.

The final score was 2-2 with both teams gaining eight hits, making one error and having two men on base.

In other games, UIC defeated CNRA 16-3 and Canadian Tire bombed the Lenders 23-12.

Ron Bateman and Carl Bolton went all the way for their respective teams.

Bateman went all seven and gave up three walks for Black Diamond. He struck out six batters.

Bolton struck out seven and walked one batter on the way to the tie.

Ralph Francis doubled and singled for Black Diamond while Jack Francis and Gene Francis kept it in the family with two singles each.

For Independents, Doug McKay doubled as did Ralph Boomhower to lead the way.

UIC moved into first place in the West division by defeating CNRA 16-3.

Joe Scanlon and Rick Sullivan shared another UIC win as they combined to give up seven hits, six walks and six runs.

Brian Plumbe took the loss, giving up 13 hits and three walks while striking out four.

Bob Kitchen had six singles and a triple for the winners while Ron Embury, Bill Healy, Ron Jury, Al Williams and Joe Scanlon all reached twice on singles.

Warren Tilley, Plumbe and Clive Williams singled twice for the losers.

John French and Andy Prudden threw the win for C's.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED WANT AD

Be clear. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, or definite information.

Make it easy for the interested prospect to reach you. Always insert your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, give a preferred time to have prospects call you.

Place it in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would be interested in about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Classified ad.

Wait Ads That Fail to bring satisfaction do so, not through any lack of readership, but because they do not contain enough information to interest readers.

The Greatest Reader Attention can be secured for your advertisement by ordering consecutive insertions. You can stop your ad in the event of early results and you pay only for the days it is published. Summer Theatre Alive and Well in Belleville

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

Not all the performing artists in Belleville take vacations during the summer.

To the discerning ear the sounds emanating from the Pinnacle Playhouse are the growing pains of a new theatre production being fostered by the only summer dramatic troupe in Belleville, Theatre Aquatic.

Almost 40 local young people, performers, stage hands and directors are entering the 6th week of rehearsals that will culminate in the presentation of four one-act plays July 24-28.

Under the guidance of producer Bob Clements, who has been active in local theatre groups for five years, and with careful supervision from the directors, the plays are slowly assuming dramatic shape.

"Everything is going well at this time," said Mr. Clements. "we had some casting difficulty when one of the younger actresses was asked to withdraw from the play by her mother but the problem has been resolved."

The four plays being readied for the summer season are all dramas with one being classified as a dramatic comedy.

Lord Byron's Love Letter, by Tennessee Williams, is the only period play being offered.

Directed by Lindsay Hallam, a local playwrite and performer, it is a turn-of-the century drama taking place in New Orleans.

It will be the first play of the evening and will be accompanied by a short film produced by Miss Hallam making the production a multi-media event.

The second one-acter is Chicago, by Tom Sheppard, directed by Brian Duffy who has directed productions for Theatre August in the past. Chicago is a dramatic comedy with all the activity centred around or taking place in a bathtub. It relates the sexual, fantasy world of young man but really is a statement about the end of the world, with comic overtones, said Mr. Clements.

Calm Down Mother, written by Megan Terry and directed by Jan Austin, is the group selection specifically for acknowledgment by International Woman's Year.

Summer Take 3

The play deals with the constant transformations three woman undergo, switching into new characters right on stage.

The final play presented is Gesture of Concern, by David King.

It is the only totally Canadian play being done and deals with the problems a young man encounters when he is undecided about becoming a police officer and takes two unsuccessful attempts to assault a woman.

For the first time this year live music will be performed with John Kidd, a local musician, providing song and accompaniment preceding the show and during intermissions.

The full complement of workers are enjoying the summer season so far.

"The purpose of Theatre Aquatic is to provide enjoyment, entertainment and experience for the staff and audience," said Mr. Clements.

Prices, he's been kept at the same rate as last year with students being charged $1.25 and adults $2.00.

"We decided we weren't going to contribute to inflation," he said.

Veteran Actors Add Life to Classic Play

NIAGARA AND THE LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Gorge Bernard Shaw's turn-of-the-century historical play, Caesar and Cleopatra, opened Monday night as the third of this season's mainstage productions in the Shaw Festival.

It took veteran actors Edward Atienza and Donini Blythe in the title roles, and experienced Shavian hand James Valentine as Caesar's faithful British slave, Britannus, to inject new life into the play which is dated by such now-trite lines as: "We are caught like rats in a trap."

Directed by British stagecraftsman Douglas Seale, and with sets and costumes by the renowned Leslie Hurry, also from England, the play joins Shaw's Pygmalion and Robertson Davies' Leaven of Malice for the summer run.

Robertson's play will be dropped from the repertoire at the end of the month, and Caesar and Cleopatra will run on to the end of September, then go on a post-season tour to Ottawa and the United States.

The play tells—in Shaw's version at least—the story of Caesar's arrival in Egypt when the young child-king Ptolemy XIV, played by Paul Wardle, was on the throne, and Cleopatra scheming for it as a spoiled teen-ager. Caesar makes a woman of her, and succeeds.

She only gains Caesar's confidence when she sends her servant to kill young Ptolemy's tutor.

Atienza, who is also playing Colonel Pickering in Pygmalion, portrays not Shaw's interpretation of Caesar as an old man, weak in some ways with an uncharacteristic gentleness, but decisive in times of military crisis.

Miss Blythe was the frightened child-queen at the start, learning to be imperious, and curious and vindictive.

Valentine made the best of Shaw's wit, in jibes thrown at him for his British ancestry—answering them with British aplomb more characteristic perhaps of Victorian England than the time of the womak occupation.

Mary Savidge had the meaty role of Ftatateeta, Cleopatra's cruel and sadistic nurse of household. She played the part almost with the evilness of a witch.

Heath Lamberts was Pulcinus, the unfortunate tutor to young Ptolemy, and Edward Henry was a lively Apollodorus, a carpet merchant who lies for art for art's sake.

Lighting by Donald Arnaster, who has arranged the lighting for 30 Shaw Festival productions in the last 10 years, added greatly to the mood and saved some of the more plywood-looking sets from the commonplace.

Herbert Whittaker, drama critic of the Toronto Globe and Mail, said: "The Shaw Festival Theatre achieved a grandeur worthy of its high name with its production of Caesar and Cleopatra . . . From this point on, it can cast aside the minor label of summer theatre It has worn and take its place with the country's major festivals."

He said Mr. Hurry has supplied scene after scene of grandeur and beauty to hold our attention as Douglas Seale steers his cast through the pitfalls of Shavian fun-making onto the safer shoals of Shavian drama.

Once Again

Rhearsals for Theatre Augusta season, July 24-28, is in full swing. Member of the cast of Calm Down Mother Julie Bishop, left, Jan Austin centre, who is also directing the production and Catherine Cunningham in rehearsal, Monday.

Showbiz Shorts

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Star Trek Lives read the banners greeting followers of the science fiction television series who began arriving Friday for a three-day convention.

DeForrest Kelley, who played Dr. McCoy in the series, and James Doohan, who played Chief Engineer Scotty Scott, are scheduled to join in panel discussions and sign autographs.

NBC cancelled Star Trek, a creation of author-producer Gene Roddenberry, in 1969. Re-runs of the 79 episodes have been shown on 142 stations in the United States and 50 other countries.

Organizers expect 1,200 participants "from all over the country."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope, who for years entertained U.S. troops overseas; Friday became the third American to receive the Philadelphia Freedom Medal.

The other recipients were former presidents Herbert Hoover in 1961 and Harry Truman in 1962.

OXNARD, Calif. (AP) — Veteran actor and director John Carradine wed his fourth wife at a quiet church ceremony in this coastal city attended by family and a few friends.

A family spokesman said Carradine, 69, married Emily Cisneros, 30, of Santa Barbara Thursday and returned to Carradine's waterfront apartment. The couple had met at a social gathering.

Carradine, who played roles ranging from light comedy to Shakespeare, is the father of David Carradine, star of the popular television series Kung Fu.

BOLOGNA (Reuter) — A fleet of fast cars raced out of this Italian city Friday, carrying 40 copies of the controversial film Last Tango in Paris for distribution throughout Italy after a court freed it for showing in theatres.

The film, starring Marlon Brando and Maria Schneider, has been the subject of a 2½-year legal battle—alternately condemned and then acquitted of charges of obscenity.

The film now goes "provisional liberty" until a higher court gives a final ruling.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actress Karen Black was married Friday in a freelance writer. After the ceremony in a forest area, the couple joined about 400 wedding guests in a traditional July 4 picnic.

The groom is L. M. (Kit) Carson, 32. The couple met several months ago while Carson was writing a magazine story about the 32-year-old actress.

The marriage is the second for Miss Black, who was nominated in 1971 for an Academy Award as best supporting actress for her portrayal of Rosette DePesto in Five Easy Pieces.

Recently she has starred in Day of the Locust and Nashville.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Grand Ole Opry star George Morgan was placed on the critical list Sunday at Baptist Hospital where he has been since a May 26 heart attack.

Morgan, 50, is best known for his 1949 country hit Candy Kisses, which has sold more than two million copies.

Morgan, who joined the Grand Ole Opry in 1948, underwent open heart surgery Wednesday and his condition worsened Saturday, relatives said.

DALLAS (AP) — Lulu, the bouncing comedy star of television's Hee Haw program, has married Gary Toman, a computer program systems analyst. The wedding took place Sunday at the Beverly Hills Baptist Church, a centre for the charismatic religious movement here. Lulu, whose full name is Bertha Louise Human, joined the cast of Hee Haw in 1969.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wednesday, July 7

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Domestic pressures will be a bit heavier today than usual. Situations won't be helped if you let outsiders put in their two-cents' worth.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Weigh your words carefully again today. Certain parties in the wings are looking for a reason to take a pot shot at you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your checkbook will have to be treated with respect, or it may not tally at day's end. Don't take any liberties.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It will be a bit difficult to set a course of action today and stick to it. Priorities will be neglected.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's usual to let others think of you. Tods you will—Unfortunately their suggestions may not be to your benefit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You still have to be careful in arrangements with friends where money or something of a material nature is at stake. Proceed with caution.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Behave today so that your reputation is protected at all costs. It's best you be idealistic, rather than expedient.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Don't champion an unpopular cause today regardless of how strongly you feel about it. Wait till the odds are more in your favor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your "markers" may be called in today on obligations to you can to clear things up now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Try not to let others pressure you into decisions that are against your better judgment. A firm "No" is better than a weak "Yes."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's not a good day to change proven work routines. An operational change could prove to be the long way around.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're lucky today, but only within certain bounds. Don't take any foolish risks or chances.

To Your Good Health

Acne Can Result From Stress

Dear Dr. Tholeson: I'm a 16-year-old girl. My problem is one you probably hear about often—acne. But mine is not on my face. It's on my back and breast area. Near the neck it seems to be worst. With the beach season here, I begin to get that old bathing suit problem. Any suggestions?—Miss B.R.

Yours may be a case of what is called "acne mechanica," about which a recent study has been done at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine.

According to the study by the school's department of dermatology, at least 15 per cent of acne cases treated by dermatologists may fall into this category, in which physical irritations are involved. It is also called stress acne, and it seems to prevail among those whose skins are already prone to the acne problem.

Among causative factors listed by researchers are bras, turtleneck sweaters (which might apply in your case) and other tight-fitting clothes. Among athletics it can be football shoulder straps, tight-fit football pads, or any item in which tight straps are used. Backpacks, tight-waistlined shirts—even the backs of bus seats or chairs—have been found to be factors.

If your acne is limited to particular areas of the body, you might check your list of wearing gear and see if you can by elimination find out what's causing your problem. It's worth a try.

While acne is generally considered a problem of younger people, they have no exclusive claims on it. The same report mentioned above notes that acne mechanica can be found in some truck drivers whose backs are in contact with seat cushions on their trucks over long periods of time.

Dear Dr. Tholeson: I am 65-yearsold and have an enlarged prostate. It is not a chronic condition. About once a year or so I will flare up. I go to my doctor and he massages it and gives me antibiotic pills. Within a week or so I am all right.

Can you tell me if drinking a glass of wine before dinner has any effect on this, causing the prostate to become inflamed, thereby creating the urinating problem?—G.A.M.

Perhaps we don't have the same definition of the term "chronic." My definition is a condition that persists over a long period of time. From your letter I would call your prostate problem a chronic one.

Your urination disturbance originates from the periodic enlarging of the lobe of the gland with an ensuing congestion. The lobe is in a narrowing of the urinary outlet.

But to your specific question, I doubt that the glass of wine would wet your condition. If your prostate gives you more trouble than you now report, however, you might have to consider surgery, which quite often ends the problem entirely.

Dear Dr. Tholeson: Can you tell me if there is something a person can use instead of the medicated powder after careful bathing of the area with plain soap and water to see if this improves things.

Also, I'm sure there are other deodorants on the market which do not contain the specific chemical you suspect to be the cause of your problem.

Finally, there is a paste you can make from baking soda and water, and this has been helpful in some cases such as yours.

There is one free rebid that does have a special meaning: that is the free rebid in the trump. It must show that you can stop the suit that your opponent has been kind or stinking enough to bid.

Thus, North has a very normal one-notrump rebid after South's one-heart response. When West bids a spade, North just can't bid one spade (he can't stop spades.)

He might try two diamonds but his hand is a complete minimum. The diamond suit is nothing to sing paeans of joy about.

When the spade bid comes around to South he can bid one trump and jumps to two with his 12 high-card points.

North raises to game. West opens his fourth best spade and South rattles off his nine tricks and wins the rubber.

Since multiple-bonus are worth discussing we must point out that if West had passed, North would have bid one notrump. South would have raised to three and East would have been on lead.

East might well have led the jack of spades, rather than his fourth best spade and the hand would have collapsed.

Ask the Jacobys

From time to time we are asked if honors count when played by a defender. The answer is that they do. It usually amounts to extra loss since few contracts are ever fulfilled when a defender holds a hundred honors against declarer.

Oh, yes! Honors also count when dummy holds them.

Algeria Lifts Ban On Former Ruler

PARIS (AP) — Algeria's president has cautiously partially lifted the veil of secrecy shrouded the fate of a one-time hero of the Algerian revolution who became a nonperson exactly 10 years ago.

In an interview published by the newspaper Le Monde, President Houari Boumedienne made his first public comment in a decade about Ahmed Ben Bella, the man he overthrew and consigned to oblivion. But there still was no public mention of Ben Bella to be noted anywhere in his own land.

Ben Bella was the most prominent of the men called "historic chiefs" of the revolution that forced France finally in 1962 to end its rule of Algeria after 130 years. Ben Bella became independent Algeria's first president.

The arcetic president has undoubtedly brought Algerians political stability, intensive industrialization and a militant leadership role in the Third World. But many Algerians accuse Boumedienne of forgetting his 1965 promise to restore the democratic freedoms that had been suppressed by Ben Bella.

Of the six "historic chiefs" only one remains on good terms with the Boumedienne regime and he has virtually no political power or influence.

In 1956, the French captured Ben Bella while he was flying from Morocco to Tunisia. He spent the next six years in prison in France and was released only after the Evian agreement brought Algeria's independence in 1962.

He was swiftly elected president of Algeria.

In a proclamation issued hours after the June 19 coup, Boumedienne accused Ben Bella of setting up a dictatorship and promised Algerians a return to democratic rule. Yet in the 10 years since he seized power, Algeria's only elections have been for municipal councils. Boumedienne has announced that National Assembly elections will be held within a year.

In the early morning hours of June 19, 1965, tanks rolled into the capital's streets under cover of heavy fog and dinnne, then chief of staff, a detachment under Col. Tahir Zbiri routed Ben Bella from his bed and carried him off. Now 58, the man who once was a flamboyant and articulate hero to much of the Third World has been detained without charges ever since. Boumedienne became president and unchallenged leader and Ben Bella a non-person, his name taboo in Algerian politicaldom.

Boumedienne was asked to comment on the "reproach thrown among nations who resented the idea of Ben Bella's detainment.

"He was never put in prison," the president said. "He was only placed under surveillance. FrFrom the beginning until now, he has always had everything he needed to make him comfortable. I consider that he no longer has a role to play in Algerian political life."

Boumedienne insisted that Algeria had "needed a audacious leadership" and so it was necessary to carry out "a certain cleaning up operation."

The result of the "cleaning up" was that a revolutionary council emerged in 1965 with the coup but thereafter drank to almost half its original 26 members as Boumedienne imposed his own domination and became an autocratic leader. Many members of the council went into exile. Ben Bella is believed held in a closely guarded villa in El Biar, an elegant residential quarter of the heights overlooking Algiers. No one without a special, authorization is allowed to approach the Villa.

The few relatives allowed to visit him say he is demoralized and in poor health. He is reportedly allowed reading matter and a television set, but has no telephone or mail privileges.

In France, his friends have formed a committee to press the Algerian government for his release. There has been no official reaction.

Unions Rebuff Peron's Widow

BUENOS AIRES (AP) President Isabel Peron suffered a double blow at the hands of the Peronist movement when labor forced her to abandon the wage ceiling and the Argentina Senate named a successor to the presidency over her objections.

The General Labor Confederation (CGT), backbone of the ruling Peronist movement, called off its two-day general strike 10 hours early Tuesday after Mrs. Peron agreed to abandon the 20-per-cent limit on wage increases she ordered last week as part of an austerity program to counter inflation.

There was no indication, however, that Mrs. Peron had agreed to the labor leaders' demand that she get rid of Jose Lopez Rega, her conservative private secretary and social welfare minister who is the After violent argument, the convention voted to replace the word "demand" with "seek." This put the miners on record that they want the $220 weekly wage but are prepared to forego it for this year.

The vote was a defeat for two militant Communist leaders of the union, Mick McGahey of Scotland and Arthur Scargill of Yorkshire, and a victory for the union president, Joe Gormley, who told the convention the $220 demand was "madness."

Inflation in Britain is running at the rate of 25 per cent, and Wilson's government has announced it intends to limit all pay increases during the coming year to 10 per cent, up to a maximum of $13.20 a week.

Ford Repairs 69,000 Cars

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. said today it has repaired rust damage to 69,000 cars and trucks under a previously secret anti-rust warranty program covering 12 million Ford vehicles built between 1968 and 1972.

Unofficial estimates put cost of the war on rust at 41 million to date but the company declined comment on the amount involved.

Regulate Spending

TORONTO (CP) — A bill introduced in the legislature Tuesday would prohibit candidates in the next provincial election from accepting campaign contributions until issues of the writ, normally 37 days prior to an election.

U.S. May Renew Turkey Arms Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced today a tentative compromise that, if cleared by Congress would permit renewed United States military aid shipments to Turkey.

At a news conference following a meeting with leaders of the House of Representatives, Ford also expressed hope that his compromise would lead to a solution of the Greek-Turkish dispute over Cyprus and encourage Turkey to remain a full partner in the Western defence alliance.

As explained by Ford and an Thomas Morgan, chairman of the House international affairs committee, the principal elements of the compromise were:

—$70 million of military goods already bought and paid for by Turkey would be released to that country immediately.

—In addition, Turkey would be free to buy for cash any additional U.S.-produced military hardware it wants.

—The president would be required to report to Congress every 60 days on any arms sales to Turkey and on progress toward a Cyprus settlement.

Congress voted to end all U.S. arms shipments to Turkey this February following use by that country of U.S.-supplied arms in its invasion of Cyprus. The Senate recently lifted the ban but there has been no similar action in the House.

Turkey set a July 17 deadline for resumption of shipments, saying otherwise that it would require renegotiation of agreements under which U.S. military bases are maintained in that country.

No Nix on Nixon In Mao's Red Book

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Mao Tse-tung still thinks well of former president Richard Nixon and says the Watergate scandal was the result of "too much freedom of political expression in the U.S.," Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj reports.

Kukrit said that during his meeting with Mao in Peking last week, the 81-year-old chairman of the Chinese Communist party told him:

"What's wrong with taping a conversation when you happen to have a tape recorder with you? Most people in America love playing with tape recorders."

Mao said he remembered Nixon's visit to China in 1972 and added: "Please tell him I still think of him," the prime minister reported.

Kukrit talked with newspaper men during a reception celebrating his return from Peking, whereby established diplomatic relations between the Chinese Communist regime and his government.

He said Mao complained of pains in his legs and that his eyesight was getting worse, so he refused to wear glasses.

They talked for an hour, and Mao's lips were trembling all the time he talked. "But I consider him a healthy man at the age of 81," Kukrit said.

OTTAWA (CP) — A decision on whether to allow representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) to attend a United States crime conference in Toronto this fall still is being considered by cabinet, the external affairs department said today.

Summons Parliament

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India today summoned Parliament to meet in a special session beginning July 21 to approve her declaration of a national emergency, official sources reported. She decreed the state of emergency June 26 to put down calls for her resignation after she was convicted of election campaign violations.

Increase Charter Flights

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada is thrusting itself into the charter business as a way of cutting its own costs. As an offshoot, Canadians will soon have greater access to holiday air travel at prices lower than scheduled service. Air Canada's plan is to increase the utilization of passenger space with passengers on scheduled flights, said John McGill, vice president marketing for the airline.

Search for Criminals

PARIS (Reuter) Police are searching for a convicted criminal who shot his way out of the Paris central law courts after his wife, disguised as lawyer's robes, handed him a revolver and brandished a hand grenade. Jean Charles Willemet, arrested last year after a gun battle with police, shot two gendarmes before escaping Monday in a car with his wife and two hostages.

Consumer May Suffer

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada President A. Jean deGrandpre said Tuesday that if a company rate increase application now before the Canadian transport commission is not approved, the consumer may be the one who suffers in the long term. He told the commission that the company, which serves Ontario, Quebec and parts of the Northwest Territories, has been forced by inflationary pressures to cut programs designed to reduce consumer cost for Bell services.

Merchants Fearful
Bylaw May Kill Downtown Core

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville's downtown business association will protest city council's proposed downtown redevelopment bylaw.

At a Tuesday meeting, the association voted to lodge its protest at the next available opportunity — council's July 21 meeting.

A development control bylaw on the city's business section will kill the downtown core, says Irv Shulman, member of the downtown business association.

He made this comment following presentations to explain such a proposed bylaw to city aldermen Joe Cox and Jack Ireland at an association meeting Tuesday.

Several months ago the city's industrial commission approached council with a scheme to monitor and regulate downtown growth and faster its revitalization. The commission asked it be given charge of the bylaw once passed but place then several resolutions have excluded commercial development leaving bylaw administration with the Belleville planning committee.

The downtown association will approach council to formally oppose the bylaw, it was decided following the presentation.

Ald. Cox, chairman of the city's planning committee said he agreed with the bulk of downtown comments and Ald. Ireland said: "I'm not opposed to it but I'm not excited about it either."

If passed, the bylaw would seek to restrict downtown development in much the same fashion as residential growth is restricted.

Developers would have to appear before council and its committees to present plans and meet regulations. Regulations already mentioned include setbacks from roadways and parking allotments.

"It is tyrannical of council to even consider such a bylaw without circulating a proposal in the area such a document would affect," said Mr. Shulman.

"Let's not kill the downtown," said Mr. Shulman. "The bylaw would do just that," he said to the gods of agreement from other association members.

Mr. Shulman contended that when a calamity such as fire or flood strikes a downtown business, that business might end up "dying" if the owner has to conform with such a bylaw.

He said "council is acting autocratically and that the bylaw is very detrimental to the downtown".

Illustrating how downtown merchants use the entire parcel of property for their business and that setbacks would jeopardize their livelihood, a spokesman for Leslie's said "our lot is 22 feet by 118 feet and our store is the same. If you start putting restrictions on . . . well . . ."

Portugal Announces Guidelines

LISBON (Reuter) — Portugal's left-wing military rulers announced new guidelines today for the country's political future, making clear that the military state was worker power.

The plan was outlined in a document issued after an 18-hour meeting of the 240-member assembly of the Armed Forces Movement.

Fourteen months after overthrowing the long-established right-wing dictatorship, the armed forces outlined these three tasks:

—Stimulate the revolutionary participation of the masses with a view to establishing real organs of popular power;

—Defend the revolution from the attacks of reactionary forces by making the people aware of the needs of the moment and the creation of defence bodies; and —Win the economic battle.

In the foreign field, the document said "cordial relations with all people of the world will be guaranteed and an economic position guaranteeing national independence will be consolidated."

Kerr Rejoins Cabinet

TORONTO (CP) — George Kerr was to be sworn in as solicitor-general of Ontario today, the office of Premier William Davis announced.

Mr. Kerr, 51, (PC—Malton West) resigned his cabinet post last February when testimony at a preliminary hearing of the Hamilton Harbor dredging scandal mentioned him in connection with a $10,000 bribe.

At the trial, completed last week, former Hamilton harbor commissioner Kenneth Elliott and business consultant Reginald Fisher of Hamilton were found guilty on 16 charges of fraud, conspiracy and uttering.

Peace Plan Worked Out By U.S. Sadat Asserts

BOSTON (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has indicated that the basic terms of a new Sinai agreement with Israel have been worked out through the United States, Israeli Newspapers report.

In an interview with representatives of the newspaper group Sadat said Tuesday he would not confirm the details of the agreement until he heard from Washington.

"It was clear from what he said that barring a last-minute hitch a new agreement will soon be concluded and signed," the newspapers say in a story from Alexandria, Egypt.

Sadat said the new agreement will include the return to Egypt of the Sinai oil fields and he "indicated he had assured President Ford that Egypt would allow the United States to establish and operate an early-warning system in the strategic Mitla and Gidi passes when Israel withdraws from all but the eastern end of them.

"He said that when Washington announces that as part of the new agreement it will be true, but only when Washington, not Jerusalem, announces it," the story says.

In Berlin today, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said "many problems have been solved, but I think that the key issues have not yet been solved. And when I say key issues, I mean to make sure that we will be the minimum duration of the agreement."

British Miners Drop Wage Demand

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Labor government scored its first victory in its battle against Europe's highest rate of inflation when coal miners agreed to drop a demand for a 40-per-cent wage increase.

The decision Tuesday came after a long, angry meeting at the annual convention of the 270,000-member National Union of Mineworkers.

The meeting discussed a demand by militant union leaders in Yorkshire and Scotland for a $70.40-a-week increase for workers at the coal face, raising their basic wage to $220 a week.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson told the convention Monday that such inflationary pay raises would be "crazy, even suicidal" in the current state of the British economy.

Bricklins Cost More In Canada

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A Bricklin Canada Ltd. official says Canadians must pay nearly $1,600 more than Americans to own a Bricklin, partly because Bricklin is not recognized as a member of the United States-Canadian auto pact.

Canadian car dealers, so far, have been denied permission by their Big Three auto companies to sell other makes of cars. Canadian fanciers of the gull-winged door automobile, assembled in Saint John with the aid of $18.5 million in New Brunswick financing, must make their purchasing arrangements through U.S. dealers, now located in 20 states from the Atlantic coast to Missouri.

There is anti-trust legislation in the United States to prevent this restriction on dealers, but Canada has no similar provision on the law books.

Private Sector to Pay More for UIC Benefits

OTTAWA (CP) — Promised legislation to make employers and employees pay a larger share of unemployment insurance costs was introduced in the Commons Tuesday.

It means premium costs will start rising next year so that the government can extract about $500 million more a year from the private sector, Manpower Minister Robert Andras said.

The proposals were one of two budget-related bills introduced as part of Finance Minister John Turner's June 23 budget promise to restrain spending.

The other bill limits federal contributions to provincial medical care programs, also starting next year.

Mr. Andras' proposals will require employees in 1976 to pay between 1.60 and 1.70 weekly for each $100 of insurable earnings.

This compared with the current 1.40 a week premium requirement for each $100. With current maximum insurable earnings at $185 a week, the maximum premium requirement this year is $2.59 weekly.

Mounties' Riot Squad

Members of the RCMP tactical squad, known to most as the riot squad, practice some crowd control techniques in a wedge formation at the RCMP N division headquarters in Ottawa. The squad was used to control the hundreds of Indians and Maoists who marched on Parliament Hill to protest conditions on Canada's reservations. It's also used to rescue VIP's from angry mobs. There are RCMP tactical squads in many major Canadian cities.
